With two exceptions, they were accompanied by the entire company, in charge of King Bagge and Margaret Snow, and a score of additional people engaged in New York, who will be used in later episodes. George A. Casey, director, and Martin M. Greiner, assistant director in charge of locations, will remain in New York for a few days to make final plans for more out-door scenes when the company returns to film later episodes.

Four New King-Bee’s The King-Bee Films Corp. will ship to the trade and Board of Censors the following new King-Bee comedies, entitled, “The Rogue’s Day Out,” “The Stranger” and “The Orderly.” The showing will take place at the Miles projection rooms, 104 Nassau building, New York.
Theatre Owner Pleads Guilty to Charge of Attempted Arson

Bloomfield, Ind.—Robert Allen, proprietor of the Colonial moving picture theatre, confessed that he had attempted to set fire to the building on January 24, and when arraigned in court pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to defraud an insurance company. A charge of arson was dismissed. Allen was fined $1 and sentenced to three years in the Indiana Reformatory, but Judge Slinkard suspended judgment pending good behavior.

According to Allen’s story, the picture theatre was not bringing in any dividends, and he decided to get rid of it. He first took out additional insurance, more than the value of the theatre. On Wednesday, January 23, he went from Jasonville to Linton, where he obtained an automobile and drove to Bloomfield. He went into the theatre at midnight and collecting some waste paper and an old film, started a fire in a small room beneath the stage. He closed the door and, getting into the automobile, drove back to Linton without seeing anyone in Bloomfield.

The fire was extinguished by the closing of the door, and when the attempt was reported to Prosecutor W. R. Vislock, he started an investigation. A deputy state fire marshal was sent to Bloomfield, and when it was learned that Allen had taken out the extra insurance he was called and questioned, and finally confessed that he had tried to burn the theatre.

Allen is employed as an electrical engineer at Queen No. 4 Mine at Jasonville. His wife had been operating the theatre. They have one child.

Dallas Theatre Has Formal Reopening; Burned Last Fall

Dallas, Texas.—The Queen Theatre, always one of the most popular motion picture theatres in this city, has again opened to the public and is even more beautiful than before its destruction by fire last September.

Many new features have been added at a cost approximating $60,000. On the second floor is a rest room and library furnished with sofas, lounge chairs, and contains the latest motion picture magazines. On the third floor is a special rest room for use of the employees of the theatre. The theatre is wired for both the theatre and the audience, and contains the latest devices essential to the proper care of films.

Shamokin Has New Motion Picture House

Shamokin, Pa.—The new Victoria Theatre, which replaces the house of the same name destroyed by fire one year ago, was formally opened last week. It is conceded to be the finest and largest theatre devoted to pictures in inland Pennsylvania, has a seating capacity of 2,500, and will present nothing but the best features films. The handsomely equipped theatre is equipped with fireproof vaults, steel shelves and the other devices essential to the proper care of films.

Exhibitor Injured When Film Ignites In Iowa Theatre

Lake Mills, Iowa.—Fire which started in the motion picture booth of the Dyne Theatre here threatened that building and the entire opera house block before the flames were finally extinguished.

The fire broke out in the booth when a reel of film became ignited in some undetermined manner. Phil From, the operator, picked up the reel and attempted to throw it from the building, but in so doing it dropped to the floor near the main entrance.

A panic was narrowly averted as the theatre and its patrons filled at the time. Manager Nester attempted to extinguish the blaze and was seriously burned about the hands and arms. Films, machine and ticket booth were destroyed.

TOM MOORE DIRECTS NEW EXCHANGE FOR FIRST NATIONAL FILMS

The new film exchange, which will have the marketing in the territory mentioned of all of the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit attractions which are shown at Moore’s Strand Theatre, is under the management of Walter R. Liebmann, formerly manager of the Washington exchange of Goldwyn.

The product which Mr. Liebmann has to offer exhibitors in this and neighboring cities takes rank with the best that is offered for sale in America. The First National features embrace all those made by the Petrova Pictures Company, Edgar Lewis, Charlie Chaplin, and others whose dramas are in the van of cinema progress and artistic value.

The Washington Branch Exchange of the First National will be located at 419 Ninth street northwest, as soon as the large new theatre can be equipped with fireproof vaults, steel shelves and the other devices essential to the proper care of films.

Insurance Official Asks Exhibitors Aid To Educate Public

Lansing, Mich.—To bring home to the public a realization what the $1,500,000 January fire loss in Michigan means, Insurance Commissioner Ellsworth, ex-official state fire marshal, is planning a state-wide campaign in the movies.

“Many people do not have any idea of how serious the situation is, and how helpless we are, apparently,” said Mr. Ellsworth. “We have gotten convictions in 19 out of 23 cases of arson tried lately, but with all of this, the citizenry can give the least possible attention to it and at the same time seeing to it that buildings are properly watched.

“Almost every fire occurring is reported as a suspicious fire, and we are investigating. Investigations, however, take time. We often find that the blaze might have been avoided in the first place by ordinary caution.”

Eaton and Flagg To Make Red Cross Film for War Fund

Jack Eaton, president of Town and Country, Films, Inc., has been assigned by the government to make the next Red Cross pictures to be used in connection with the second war fund drive, which will begin the early part of May.

Mr. Eaton, together with Frank D. Sniffen, head of the motion picture department of the drive, and James Montgomery Flagg, have left to take the exterior scenes in New Orleans.

This picture is to be known as “The Spirit of the Red Cross,” the scenario of which was written by James Montgomery Flagg, who recently, with Mr. Eaton, made his entrance in the motion picture field, when he wrote and Mr. Eaton produced a series of single reel comedies entitled “Girls You Have Met,” all of which have created favorable comment throughout the country.

In the Red Cross picture Mr. Eaton will have as his leading players Peggy Adams, Raymond McKee, and Harry McKee. George Lane will act as cameraman and Saul Harrison will assist in the direction with Mr. Eaton.

The scenes to be taken in the south will occupy a period of two weeks, and the United States soldiers’ encampment in that section of the country will be used in the picture.

Quits Film for Stage

In order to fulfill contracts for the writing of two plays for the dramatic stage next season, Edith Ellis has resigned as manager of the theatre. She will be able to devote her time to her work with the Literary Department of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. She will also very shortly undertake a campaign for a national producing theatre, a project which she has been working on for some time.
NOTE: Below is printed a blank form which exhibitors may use in keeping records upon which to base tax reports on admissions. It is essential that a daily record be kept in order that the Government may be able to obtain the information it requires in each case. This form has been sanctioned by officials of the Internal Revenue Department.

Vesta Theatre Will “Frozen Warning” Sold

Double Seating Space

Complete remodeling of the Vista Theatre, Forty-seventh street and Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, is planned by H. M. Ortenstein, as a result of which the seating capacity of the house will be increased to 2,400. A building to the east of the present structure will provide the additional space.

The transformation of the playhouse will be effected with but little interruption to the performances in the theatre. M. O. Wells is manager of the house.

Announcement is made by H. A. Spanuth, of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, that he has closed with the First National Exchange, Inc., 509 Fifth avenue, New York, for state rights of New York and northern New Jersey for “The Frozen Warning,” featuring Charlotte, champion woman skater.

PERSONALS

By "Mac"

Winfield Sheehan, general manager Fox Film Corp., was here for the week ending February 16. Merely an o. o. jaunt—so he spakeeth.

Well! WELL! If it ain’t our ole pal Ralphie Bradford. Come home to stay this time, we hope. Yes sir, he quit The Scans of Minneapolis, resigning from the Goldwyn branch up there to occupy the managerial chair for the local Triangle exchange, relieving the boyish Dan Michalove, who expects shortly to join the colors with our great big National army.

H. J. Bayley, manager for Vitagraph, is all lit up with added happiness owing to the abolition of Fuelless Mondays. Of course he got nuthin’ to do from 8:30 a. m. to about the same time p. m., except work, and it will give him an opportunity to add another day of????

A. L. Kahn, well known to local film circles and manager of the Quality Film Exchange of Kansas City, was in the “Loopy” last week greeting his friends. All tells us he has organized another independent film exchange of his own in Kansas City, to be known as the Erlam Film Exchange.

Hunter Bennett, special rep. for the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corp., passed through Chicago last week making a general trip covering all U. S. branches.

Frank B. Rogers, the handsome Standard Film local manager, is not trying to emulate that bad guy of the fillums, Bill Hart. That silk handkerchief stuff wrapped around the young man’s neck is there to simply keep him in mind of those “pretty bulbs” that are growing on that particular spot of his anatomy. Never mind, Frank, everything must CLIMAX.

A. Teitel, that wizard marvelous when it comes to cleaning films, tells us that the “Sultan of Allah” features of the Allen Film Corp., are the latest recruits to his subtle hands. Never worry Abe, you soon have ‘em all.

Ha! Ha! ’Tis he, the long lost pal of the Mid-Night Sun brigade, George V. Booth. He is now managing the popular Parkway Theater at 2743 West 22nd Street.

Safety First

Never argue with a guy that’s over 6 ft. tall, especially if he is an admiral on one of those mid-night surface cars and signs his time card MURPHY. If he ever starts shoving, be sure your O-Sulton heels are adjusted and you have plenty of sand on your shoes, that’s all.

NOTE: Will somebody find out if our good friend, H. A. Gundling, has returned to the Bryn Mawr Theater yet?

On the Firin’ Line

H. W. Richert, erstwhile Standard Film seller, was seen gambling along the fillum Rialto the past week. At present he refuses to divulge his new connection. Sure, he intends to work. When? ?

Hark at these, ye wily P. A.’s. Here’s one from Ed Saecher, manager of the Bijou Theatre, Marinette, Wis., called last week over the ice-covered long distance telephone wires:

How’s the rush up there, Ed?

Say nuthin’; we have over 19 feet of beautiful white snow here and the ole mercury in the thermometer registers a paltry 200 degrees below.

Ask that husky guy, Geo. Bromley; he’ll confirm this.

That comet that’s been flashing and burning things up in Indiana all last week is a Vitaphotographer, J. A. Humphrey. It’s a cinch when you get the goods, is all J. A. says.

Geo. Levine is surely up in the money if that Universal sales register counts correctly. He shouldn’t be he is the very same youngster that put the Alvin Theatre on the map out on the North Side.

Here’s one we snapped from the Beauties’ gallery of fillum celebs: Did you all see that gang of Turks out at the Second Regiment Armory the other night? Well, that guy was sitting up on the stage, all decorated up in a nifty Turkish outfit, was who knows, than the handsome Phil Soloman, of the local George Kleine exchange. Oh! Oh! What a pretty boy.

Art DeSormeaux has quit the road to show the city exhibits all the good things that Fox Film grip of his has. Leave it to Art; he’s a regular shower.

The only guy that seems sorry that film traffic is opening up is the big Scan, Eddie Olson, manager of the telegraph office in the Maller’s building. Ed claims he did a million messages a day from the boys trying to locate their film shipments during the recent weather jam. Cheer up, Ed; it will not be long before another winter overtakes us. This way out—he's all cut—let him alone.

Hav’ yez awl seen the fine fur-collared coat Jimmie Reilly do be wearin’ every toime he come in to th’ city from his fillum palace, the Princess Theatre, downstate; was that short-somethin’. Who knows? He is also sellin’ fillums for the local Triangle office, so he should be able to spare a few dollars on personal decorations, so he should.

At last it has happened. One of the dandiest little chaps in the local film business is leaving this fair city for the greener pastures West of the Pecos: G. L. Miller. Enough said.

In the last two days, there have been two big engagements written in the State School’s Register. The first one is a feature for the Roxy, a release that Warner Bros. is giving a full advertising push.

Mastercraft Company To Film “The One Woman”

Work has been started in the Paralta Studios in Los Angeles, on the first Mastercraft production along the lines of the Warners’ release, “The One Woman.” The scenario was prepared from Mr. Dixon’s book by J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton. The picture is being directed by Reginald Barker and the management of the production is in charge of F. Eugene Farnsworth who has charge of the Mastercraft interests in California.

“The One Woman,” is the first of the series of special productions to be issued by the Mastercraft company, which will be taken from the best of Mr. Dixon’s literary works.

Mary MacLane Picture
In Long-Run Bookings

“Men Who Have Made Love to Me,” a George K. Spoor feature, starring I. Mary MacLane, is enjoying long-run bookings in various parts of the country. Reports state that it has created a great deal of talk in Kansas City, shown there in the Garden Theatre, and in Chicago where it ran for three weeks solid at a Loop theatre, “The Band Box.” The “Rialto” in New York offered the picture for an entire week.
W. W. Hodkinson Goes West to Start His Co-operative Plan

W. W. Hodkinson left New York for a trip to the coast last Saturday, which will bring him into the campaign of Exhibitor's co-operative plan. Mr. Hodkinson's first stop will be in Denver, where he will remain for several days before visiting a number of the coast cities.

He has appointments in the west with a number of the largest and most representative exhibitors who have expressed themselves as most eager to become a part of the Hodkinson organization.

Mr. Hodkinson's years of experience on the Pacific Coast, both as an exhibitor and a distributor, places him on a close personal basis with practically all of the important exhibitors of this territory, and it is the result of this close personal feeling that the exhibitors have for him that has prompted him in his decision to give them the honor of becoming the first partners in the new Distributor-exhibitor organization.

One Exterior Scene
In This Photoplay

Something practically unprecedented in the production of motion pictures occurs in Ben Stitt's latest release, "Paralta Play, "Within the Cup," which will soon be published through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

In the entire drama, which is seven reels in length, there is but one exterior setting. All the scenes, with the exception of the very few which were taken in this setting, were filmed inside the studio, and one of the important characteristics of the drama is the director's intention to give the atmosphere of an elaborate society gathering.

In consequence of the fact that there was but one exterior set, and because of the luxurious scenes which the story demanded, the picture necessitated the construction of a great number and variety of interior settings.

Credit for its elaborateness is due R. Holmes Paul, technical director; Raymond B. West, who directed the production, and to Robert Brunton, manager of productions at the Paralta Studios.

Constance Talmadge
Returns to Comedy
In Next Production

Excellent and unusual photography, it is said, will be featured in Talmadge's new Select production, "Up the Road With Sallie," which is now being filmed under the direction of William D. Taylor at the Morosco studios in Los Angeles.

The scenario version of "Up the Road With Sallie" has been taken from the best-selling novel by Julia Crawford Ivers and is the work of Julia Crawford Ivers. Mrs. Ivers is a well-known scenario writer and in the present play starring Constance Talmadge has developed almost a new field of humor and human interest.

The story has to do with the lives of a number of people closely concerned in a complicated will, and is tinged with romance and adventure. Miss Talmadge is supposed to be Miss Paula Crewe, the leading man, Kate Toncray, Thomas Perse and Karl Formes.

The new picture will mark a return of Miss Talmadge to the real comedy. It will be distributed by Select.

Motion Pictures as Aid to America's War on Autocracy

Frederick H. Elliott, Executive Secretary, National Association of Motion Picture Industry, Cites Millions Raised in Liberty Loan Drives and Screen's Aid in Food Conservation Campaign

By Frederick H. Elliott

The patriotic achievements of the motion picture industry, in co-operation with the 17,000 exhibitors of the country, have been in themselves remarkable. The United States entered the World War for Democracy. For the first time Americans have an opportunity to realize the tremendous part played by the screen in modern life.

Through special work in all the picture theatres of the country millions of dollars were raised for the First and Second Liberty Loans. The motion picture industry and its allied trades did its part, raising approximately $0,000,000.00 to both of these loans, which brought forth a letter of commendation from W. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury.

Herbert Hoover, National Food Administrator, has been utilizing the film on the screen as a direct avenue to send the conservation propaganda to the people and another big campaign is now under preparation.

Secretary of Agriculture D. F. Hous- ton is utilizing the film on the screen to disseminate information on such things as the canning, preserving, drying and pickling of Edible foods.

These wartime achievements of the industry were possible through the lend-lease organization of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, which includes the foremost film producing and distributing companies of America. President Wilson himself, by his splendid official utterances, has always recognized the great value of the screen as a medium of public opinion. Consequently, in organizing the war machine after the country entered the war, the President realized that the industry be mobilized for the purpose of co-operating with the myriad federal departments in the prosecution of the war. Through the National Association a war council consisting of industry leaders was appointed, also a national committee, composed chiefly of executives of the industry, with one representative in each state.

Since the entry of the United States to the world war, the National Association, in order to keep its organization in line with Federal dealings, has centered its efforts upon making the screen do its bit as Uncle Sam. In the first Liberty Loan drive, for instance, the association distributed 30,000 slides to exhibitors, slides sending out 8,000 Liberty Loan orders. In the second Liberty Loan drive 70,000 slides were sent out together with 500,000 feet of film of pictorial appeal. Film fans will be interested in the organization of this patriotic achievement possible. The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry was formed on August 16, 1916, when a number of companies as charter members, William A. Brady, the theatrical and screen producer, was the first president and still continues in that post. Today 81 companies—or 90 per cent of the film manufacturers of the country—are members of the association.

The original purpose of the organization was to bring the motion picture closer to the public.

Aside from its wartime activities, the National Association has taken up the problems of the motion picture fan from a number of angles. The Sunday closing of screen theatres has been one of the unreasonable hardships it has endeavored to eliminate, believing that the motion picture is of vital value to the single day of recreation belonging to the American who may be burdened of unwelcome mind- ing censorship, through a sincere and careful censorship from within, has been another of its hard fought achievements. The association, too, instituted a wide and vigorous fire prevention campaign among the exchanges and exhibitors, its purpose to make the nation's theatres absolutely safe to the public.

In organizing the public education for the purpose of winning the American public over to the idea that the motion picture is an important cultural weapon, the association's funders felt that the whole motion picture world—the producer and exhibitor, as well as the screen fan—were struggling for a concept of the film as a cultural and altogether unintelligent legislation. The association has not only fought enemies of the photoplay but it has conducted a campaign among the exchanges and exhibitors, its purpose to make the nation's theatres absolutely safe to the public.

The association has not only fought enemies of the photoplay but it has conducted a campaign among the exchanges and exhibitors, its purpose to make the nation's theatres absolutely safe to the public.

Bills were introduced simultaneously in several states, providing for the opening of picture theatres on Sunday, and a notable victory was won in Indiana.

Censorship has been met equally vigorously. The association has gone to the heart of the censorship problem by putting itself outside of the area of the public's interest. In other words, the products of its members are guaranteed ethical and moral. Should any of its members fail to abide by this agreement, they will not only be eliminated from the organization but the association will lend every effort to vigorously prosecute the offenders. By this action, the industry eliminated the one possible excuse for censorship. Its strenuous battle along this line has been steadily gaining throughout the country and has brought about the defeat of censorship bills in thirty-one states during the past year.

The organization has shown the film fan his organized power in politics. In certain instances where the association has pointed out the antagonism of certain political candidates and instituted active campaigns against them, these candidates have been defeated at the polls. A notable instance of this occurred when State Senator Christian, of New York, owner of the sponsors of the Christian—Wheeler censorship bill of 1915, was overwhelmingly defeated. The vigorous campaign of the association in the interest of fire prevention has two aims: to safeguard the public and, incidentally, to reduce the fire hazards and thereby reduce exhibitors' insurance premiums. The adoption of a standardized film clause for fire insurance policies was secured.

The association has been taking active steps to further the use of motion pictures by churches, schools and Sunday schools. Special lists of films available for their particular needs have been prepared. A plan of co-operation has been put into effect with the Inter-Abishams, and the Sunday School Board representing five million boys and girls, reports of which are highly encouraging. Then, too, exhibitors everywhere are being aided and encouraged to give specialmatinees for children, presenting programs of juvenile interest.

Through the association's efforts, the motion picture film has been admitted to the parcel post. The film business is always being carried and with the mail, motion picture films. The admission of the film to the parcel post has also made it possible for the movie to invade the far and most remote settlements, far from express and freight stations not reached by the mails.

Improved Business

In South Reported

By Foursquare Man

Jerome Abrams, general manager of the entire south for Foursquare Pictures, reports to his home office an improvement in business in his territory. This executive believes, with M. H. Hoffman, his chief, that the future for the motion picture industry is very bright.

A satisfactory number of contacts on the "Eye's Eye," the Wharton's serial, have been forwarded for volume from his territory touches a new high mark. The Foursquare southern general manager says:

"In the 'Eye's Eye' we have at once a serial that entertains to an unusual degree, and one which has the strongest patriotic appeal of any picture of which I know. Every American will want to see it—and more than once."

"Dealing with the machinations of the Imperial German government against our own government, as many a man, woman and youngster to discover that such methods could be used against a country with whom the German government was on supposedly friendly relations."
Samuel Hutchinson Decrees Useless Waste
Of Film Material; Urges Conservation

"Reduction of output seems to be occupying manufacturers to some extent just now," says Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company. "Level headed manufacturers have seen this crisis coming for over a year and have prepared for it. Every producer who has taken the precaution to look ahead and figure out the situation for himself, has known that reduction was bound to come. No company can afford to work without profit and as the motion picture film is not usually an article which increases in value with the holding it cannot pay to make too many just to shelve for a possible market.

"For one thing, conservation in the use of the film proper is important. When you hear a director solemnly assuring you that he must waste thousands of feet of film in order to produce one picture, you may safely assume that he does not know how to make a picture and is putting up a bluff to conceal his ignorance. You might as well expect your architect, in figuring on lumber for a new house to tell you that while only 50,000 feet of lumber will be used in the finished product, you must order 100,000 to allow for artistic temperament in the wastage.

"If the producers charged up the wastage of film to the director, as they charge up the expense of an overset in a newspaper office, the abuse would soon be remedied. A wastage of film is a tacit admission of incompetency on the part of the director. He admits that he has not once had a clear outline of his picture in his mind; he has been fishing for ideas all the time.

Dougherty Joins World

George C. Dougherty, one of the film pioneers, has signed with World-Pictures as film editor. He was one of the big men with Biograph in the early days of the industry and is called "The man who made David W. Griffith," because of the fact that he saw in Griffith a great director and urged the Biograph company to give Griffith full scope for development. Mr. Dougherty's words of advice were heeded and Mr. Griffith soon showed that he fully merited the confidence Mr. Dougherty felt in his ability.

"The Wrong Flat"
Jester May Comedy

The Jester Comedy Company announces the completion of their fourth film of the series of Jester Comedies, "The Wrong Flat," featuring Twed-Dan, which is scheduled for May.

Useless Conferences

"If we had a little more horse sense in the picture business to offset the artistic temperament that the situation is, we are bound to do it, perhaps we would not find it necessary to hold many useless conferences in large hotels to discuss the motion picture situation. We know what the situation is — any level-headed business man knows enough to retrace when retracing is necessary. The materials used in the manufacture of films are necessary just now as a war product. Cotton and nitric acid are too valuable to be wasted at the artistic whim of a vague director who has to try out thousands of feet of film before he knows what he is doing. Such a criminal waste of valuable material should not be allowed in any industry at this time.

The industry should voluntarily reduce production from a patriotic notice, if nothing else, and thereby release necessary war products.

The American's Policy

"The policy of the American Film Company has always been along the line of fewer but better pictures. We have marched steadily along, making the type of wholesom comedy with a dramatic appeal that the public wants to see. For that reason the present situation has not found us unprepared or with a lot of film that we cannot sell. We are going right along as we have always done, sparing no expense where expense is necessary to produce and save pictures that appeal. The money we put into a picture goes into its merit and we intend to keep up this policy of steadily making pictures that are in appeal.

"There is no necessity for a waste of material at any time. If manufacturers would employ less time in arguing over non-essential details of the situation and put a business head to work ferreting out the leaks in the industry and cementing them up, there would not only be a decided gain in finances; but a higher standard for pictures."

Metro's "The Claim"
Is a Talking Film

In this story Twed-Dan is again given an opportunity to show his versatility and is called upon to do some thrilling and hair-raising stunts, it is said.

Strand, N. Y., Books
"Raffles" for Feb. 18

The announcement that "Raffles, The Amateur Cracksman," with John Barrymore playing the part of Raffles, is to be the featured attraction at the Strand Theatre, New York, during the week beginning February 18, is a tribute to the high quality of the production and its unusual drawing power.

The Boston Photoplay Company purchased the New England rights to "Raffles, The Amateur Cracksman," and the success that the picture has had in the New England territory indicated that a box office attraction there would be no question as to its value and when enthusiastic reports from the various New England exhibitors came pouring in, The Strand management immediately arranged to secure the picture for a showing.

The success that "Raffles, The Amateur Cracksman" has had in New England is in keeping with the reports from other sold territories, where the picture has established records, for example in California where it is owned by the A Star Feature Distributors, of San Francisco, Cal., in the Southern States where it is owned by the Special Features Company of Knoxville, Tenn., and in Michigan, where the exploitation is being handled by the Michigan Masterplay Company of Detroit. Hiller & Wilk, Inc. also report that there is a big demand for the foreign rights to "Raffles, The Amateur Cracksman."

Levine Takes Charge
Magnet Exchange

Jesse Levine has taken charge of the New York territory for the Magnet Film Exchange, it is announced. Levine started his film career with the Pathe Exchange as booker. Then joined the World Film Corporation the capacity of New York representative and later became assistant sales manager. He left this organization, becoming associated with the new Vitagra Distributing Co. For the past year Levine represented the Metro in New York.

Goldwyn Announces
The Turning
Of The Tide

INCREASED business for Goldwyn Pictures from the great and unconquerable WEST—a sure sign of returning prosperity for the nation’s exhibitors.

Increased business from the prosperous Ten Billion Dollar SOUTH; richer and wealthier than ever before in its history.

Increased business and bigger patronage from the recently-zero NORTH, just thawing out under the first sunshine after the worst winter ever recorded.

Bigger business than ever from all-powerful EAST—the financial heart of America with steadily mounting war profits coursing through its veins.

Goldwyn business is feeling and benefitting by these wonderfully changing conditions and the reason we are benefitting is that our productions throughout a desperate winter have kept thousands of our exhibitors “ahead of the game” in revenues; ahead of their competition in patronage; ahead of their rivals in quality product.

We definitely predict the most prosperous Spring and Summer exhibitors have had in several years and we can further insure this prosperity with Goldwyn productions made according to the most skilful box-office pattern.

Announcement and Explanation of United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC., has been chartered under the laws of New York to enable several thousand exhibitors in every section of the United States to OWN collectively and to distribute to its members pictures on which all members can and will make a profit. Through this organization which exhibitors themselves own and operate from top to bottom, we are bringing together our membership which will give a film 4,000, 6,000 or 9,000 days of booking time and WIPE OUT INSTANTLY THE COST OF SELLING, OVERHEAD DISTRIBUTION AND PRINT WASTE, WHICH ARE THE CHIEF REASONS FOR THE HIGH RENTALS YOU ARE NOW PAYING.

Every manufacturer or producer of pictures wishes to do this, wishes to save this money, wishes to free himself of the burden of distribution and salesmanship expense in a highly competitive industry. But every producer who has tried to do this HAS FAILED. Therefore, this revolutionary change, which every producer will WELCOME, has had to come from THE EXHIBITORS OF MOTION PICTURES.

THAT IS WHY UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC., has been organized. We, as exhibitors, do not want to pay the tremendous cost of maintaining thirteen selling organizations with a first-run product trying to sell only three available first-run prospects in Salt Lake City, or seventeen exchanges spending a fortune weekly in seeking the business of five first-run houses in Minneapolis. We are now doing this. None of the various producing firms are any more anxious to pay these costs than we are—but they do not know how to escape them. But WE do know, and this means that this organization of exhibitors, because of its plans and purposes, is a friend and money-saving ally of all producers and ONE TO BE ENCOURAGED by every friend of the industry.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC., is the exhibitors' own solution of the costly evil that every factor in the industry wishes to destroy. What we will do is this: We will agree on a star whose popularity and money-making powers are unquestioned. We will make certain in advance that the star and productions are big enough for the foremost theatres, and therefore, for all other theatres. We will then say to the producer having this star: "Make us six or eight pictures annually with this star and we will pay you for each negative a price that will give you a liberal and yet fair profit. We will make our own prints, our own accessories and take care of the distribution of this and all of our other pictures to our members here and in foreign lands. We are free of salesmanship costs because we have an assured playing time of several thousand days guaranteed in advance by our members. There is today no profit in distribution. The United plan relieves producers of the unprofitable exchange investment and worry and at the same time gives them cash on completion of pictures and wider distribution of their pictures than they now receive.

This collective buying is the principle of CO-OPERATION which dynamites selling expense out of existence. It accomplishes for the film exhibitor what the American Drugists Syndicate has achieved for its 27,000 druggist members. It has cut the purchase cost of drugs practically in half. It unites thousands of small buyers into one huge purchasing unit.

The druggists own 98% of all the stock of this company, so they are their own bankers and reap the bankers' dividends—the druggist members control the company so all companies selling these druggists must give them fair treatment and fair prices. These druggist members are not only the bankers and customers of their own company, but they hire experts to run the A. D. S. for the equal benefit of all members. No drug manufacturer owns stock in the A. D. S., so all manufacturers are treated with equal fairness. When the A. D. S. members advertise and popularize a brand they derive the benefit. Starting with $400 eleven years ago, the A. D. S. today has received from its druggist members $5,000,000 with which to carry on its business. In return for this money the company issued common stock and so large have been the dividends that the stock has long sold above par and the A. D. S. has assets enough to buy back its $5,000,000 worth of stock issued and still have remaining assets worth probably $18,000,000, which is about the total value of the quick assets of all the film companies combined. Everyone has been benefited by the A. D. S. No one has been hurt by it. The A. D. S. has profited its members by the elimination of the waste of competition by co-operation. Ask the A. D. S. druggist in your community.

Applying the A. D. S. method of organization to the exhibitors' problem, UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC., will instantly cut your rental price for a picture THIRTY TO FIFTY PER CENT BELOW THE PRICE YOU ARE NOW PAYING AND GIVE YOU MANY OF THE VERY SAME PICTURES YOU ARE NOW PLAYING.

Behind this organization, devoting their energies and capacities to creating this great new exhibitors' purchasing and distributing alliance, are the men whose names are undersigned and who have headed the urgent appeals of several thousand exhibitors to create this nation-wide organization and wipe out the ruinous waste incurred through separate buying.

The founders of this company have worked out a plan which many of the largest and best-known exhibitors, practically all big producers in New York, and many stars, have pronounced to be unique and of great value to all branches of the industry. Within the next few weeks a United Salesman—a high-class man whom you respect—will visit your community. He will thoroughly explain the United purposes, every detail of the plan, the method of incorporation and everything else. This is the exhibitors' company and you are entitled to know. There are no insiders. There is nothing to conceal. The more you know about the United plan the stronger you will be for it.

In our next announcement we will tell you more about this revolutionary cost-saving plan, which will re-establish sanity and profit for all elements in the motion picture industry.

(RECENTLY RETIRED)
CHIEF OF U.S. SECRET SERVICE

Mr. W. J. Flynn,
New York City.

My dear Chief:

I have just returned from viewing your wonderful film, The Eagle Eye, and I am so much impressed with its power to do good that I must write you this line to congratulate you.

The episode connected with the Hotel Ansonia was particularly interesting to me on account of the hours of mental anguish we all went through before the navigating officers of our fleet were out of danger, and in viewing the picture I realize more than ever the strain you were under during that dreadful twenty-four hours.

Most pictures of this kind border on the melodramatic, but this has not one ounce in it but is really dramatic from beginning to end; and if at the end of the third episode, when you ask people in the audience if they are not going to help destroy German autocracy, I am much mistaken if the appeal does not bring the spectators from their seats into a loud declaration of loyalty for this great country in which they are living. I, personally, with the cold sober thought in my mind that it was only a picture, could hardly restrain from rising up and giving the answer the appeal called for.

It is extraordinarily well done, has the touch of authenticity behind it and will convey a wonderful message to the doubting ones, some of whom still believe we should be neutral.

Wishing you every success in the wonderful story you are putting before the public, believe me

Yours very sincerely,

John McE. Bowman

The Independent Picture

THE independent picture leads the way to the avenue of greatest promise for the entire industry.

If the independent producer and distributor is driven from the field the motion picture exhibitor cannot hope to attain anything better than a clerkship. He will be manager of his theatre in name only, for he will be compelled to run only such pictures as the monopolist-producer sees fit to make and to pay just such prices as the monopolist-producer sees fit to charge.

Under such a plan the exhibitor cannot build up a following for his own particular theatre, but is compelled daily to promote the product of the monopolist-producer. And as the producer becomes stronger—largely through the exhibitor’s efforts—he is able to pile on heavier burdens and further enslave the theatre-man.

The old iron-clad program scheme, carrying with it burdensome deposit requirements and a hodge-podge mixture of good pictures and bad pictures, is responsible for a vast number of the evils which the industry is laboring under. The remedy is the independent picture—the open market.

The program in the past has proven, and is in certain instances today, an excellent thing. In the case of many smaller exhibitors it gives them a quantity of film weekly at a price which they are able to pay. But there is no theatre in the country today that is tied down to a program that cannot improve its business by having certain “open days” upon which it can select from the open market films of the hour that its patrons are clamoring for.

Purely out of selfish motives the exhibitor should cooperate with the independent producer and distributor—it means the protection of his business.

The independent picture can be booked intelligently; the exhibitor is in a position to weigh the various elements of the deal and decide with a great degree of accuracy if it is a picture that should be run in his theatre. If it is a picture in which some player has received an exorbitant salary and consequently an exorbitant price is asked the theatre-man can merely pass it by and thereby avoid becoming a party to a losing venture. If it is based on a theme which has not proven popular at the particular theatre, again the exhibitor is under no obligations to run the picture which is destined to be unsatisfactory to his patrons.

The independent picture gives the exhibitor an opportunity to demonstrate his “showmanship” if he has any; if he has none he is in the wrong business and disaster will overtake him sooner or later. The exhibitor of today that hopes to make a success out of a modern film theatre and depends exclusively for his pictures on what one or two producers decide to turn out is practically certain to be disappointed.

The value to exhibitors of the growth and expansion of the open market can hardly be over-estimated. From all indications nothing will stop the increasing importance of the independent picture, which is a most salutary thing for the business. But tardy recognition of this fact may mean the elimination of many exhibitors who are unable to read “the hand-writing on the wall.”

Dropping the $ Mark

A DECIDED step forward is the plan of the Universal company to have deleted entirely the dollar mark from their advertising and publicity.

This decision of the Universal officials marks the dawn of a new era in respect to the manner in which the film industry will present itself to the general public and one which is only consistent with the dignity and importance of the industry.

The old order of the film business drifting itself in the gaudy and extravagant verbiage of the one-ring circus, shouting loudly about the money cost of everything—just as if the financial outlay was the only recommendation—was certainly grossly inconsistent and its elimination should be a matter of general satisfaction.

Casual Comment

Promoters of "The Birth of a Race" are having no little difficulty in convincing the Attorney General's office of the probability of sixteen hundred per cent profit.

The bronze tablet immortalizing S. L. Rothapfel is a well-merited compliment and if it serves to fix the attention of the exhibitors of the country upon the Rothapfel record it will accomplish great good.

Sentiment among those in a position to take action on the question of exorbitant stars' salaries seems to be crystallizing rapidly and there are many indications that upon the termination of several existing contracts players will not be troubled with income taxes running up into the hundreds of thousands.

It would seem that under existing circumstances a five-year, iron-clad contract is hardly a proper first step in encouraging the good will of exhibitors.

A position of utmost importance and responsibility as chairman of a committee to co-operate in the use of motion pictures in the various military training camps has been assumed by P. A. Powers. The selection of Mr. Powers is a wise one and it will mean that the young men in the training camps will receive in the fullest measure the educational and recreational advantages of motion pictures.

Admitted by all, the one great problem of the motion picture business is that of distribution. Consequently any thoughtfully considered plan to solve the difficulties of distribution is welcomed by producer and exhibitor alike.

Individuals in many branches of the trade stand in need of a decisive demonstration to the effect that a bona fide contract is not a mere "scrap of paper;" such a demonstration would be a splendid constructive step, greatly beneficial to all.

Paramount-Artcraft in New Scheme for Control

Latest Morsel to Be Held Up for Exhibitors
To Nibble at Is Five-Year Non-Cancellable Contract to Use Combine's Productions

Exhibitors of the country are soon to be confronted with the demand to sign a five-year unbreakable contract by the Paramount-Artcraft combine in furtherance of its autocratic aspirations to monopolize the film industry, it became known the last week.

This startling information was made public by J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe in an open letter captioned "A Message to the Exhibitors of America." While the Pathe executive did not name the combine which he decried as a menace to the entire film industry, his description of the machinations of the machine make it only too apparent that the Paramount-Artcraft companies are meant.

For some time exhibitors who have watched with growing apprehension the Paramount-Artcraft invasion into the operation of motion picture theatres. It is alleged that the companies already have control of more than eighty-five photo-play houses in different parts of the country.

Exchange Purchase Rumored

More recently rumor had that the combine had purchased the controlling interest in the Central Film company. This was vigorously denied by Max Goldstine, Chicago representative of Paramount, and also by Aaron J. Jones, who with Nate Ascher controls the film company in question.

The authenticity of Mr. Berst's statements may go unquestioned. His familiarity with the inner workings of the producing end of the industry makes him an authority whose words should not be taken lightly by those in the business. He was instrumental in hitting Paramount-Artcraft one of the hardest blows it has sustained since its organization when he obtained the signature of Tom Moore, Washington exhibitor, to a Pathe contract which was preceded by the outing of Artcraft and Paramount productions.

"Do you and all your fellow exhibitors intend to surrender meekly to a certain organization of producers and distributors who, according to reliable information, are scheming night and day to monopolize the motion picture industry?" says Mr. Berst, in beginning his indictment of the combine.

Five-Year Contract

"Do you want to be forced to sign a five-year non-cancellable contract that will place you and your business absolutely at the mercy of those who have already boosted the price of service from three to five hundred per cent?"

In this connection Mr. Berst doubtless referred to the salaries paid by the combine in its effort to control the services of all the stars in the film firmament. The extent to which they have gone in their "Mittel Europa" policies is evidenced by the fact that Mary Pickford, starring in Artcraft productions, is reneariousness the conditions which the combine attempted to foist upon Tom Moore when the demand was made that Paramount and Artcraft productions be shown in the theatres under his control to the exclusion of all other productions. They were told by this exhibitor that they could not dictate the policies of his theatres and were a short time later in receipt of his cancellations.

"The question you must answer is: Do you want to be your own boss or do you want to be bossed? For I warn you that if you permit present conditions to continue, a combination that is being daily strengthened by your support will within the next few months force you to sign a five-year contract that will shackle you with bands of steel that you will not be able to break," the warning continues.

Would Corner Ability

"This combination is reported to be trying to corner all of the stars and all of the directors; all of the scenario writers and all of the motion picture authors. When they succeed in that there will be no chance of escaping that five-year contract. And they will succeed unless you, Mr. Exhibitor, wake up in time and save yourself."

Here Mr. Berst outlined the efforts of the Pathe company to combat the activities of the combine. He cited the company's new program of Pathe Plays with some of the foremost stars and the best stories the market affords. He called attention to the first three plays on this program, "Innocent," "Loaded Dice" and "The Nautilus," which have received favorable comment wherever shown and then sounded this warning: "Unless our Pathe Play program is supported by the exhibitors of the United States, we will cease making feature productions."

"And when we cease, you may rest assured that within a very short time every independent producing company will be forced to discontinue. Just stop a minute and realize what that means."

"One company will absolutely monopolize the feature production—one company alone will have feature pictures. For five years at least you will have no selection. You will pay the price set for you. If you don't your competitor will. You will sign a five-year contract with this monopoly, and then a real feature program trust will be a reality."

Combine Bides Time

"The plans are already formed and it is generally reported that they are just biding their time—waiting until you—" (Continued on page 12, col. 3)
Special Session Pennsylvania Legislature May Act to Amend Censorship Law

Film Men of State Feel That With the Organization They Have Perfected Success Will Crown Efforts Before Lawmakers

Interest of the Pennsylvania exhibitors is centering in a report that Governor Brumbaugh will call a special session of the state legislature, primarily to act upon a general reorganization amendment and the reapportionment of the state's congressional, senatorial and legislative districts under the census figures of 1910.

The exhibitors and distributors feel that with the organization they have now perfected they will be able at the special session to get the teachings they desire in the passage of important bills in which they are interested, chief of which is a fight against the present censorship laws of the Commonwealth.

Action at the special session on motion picture legislation can be obtained only through getting the governor to insist in the training camps the position desired. The laws of the state provide that only such matters as are specifically named in the call can be taken up by a special session.

As soon as the governor returns to Harrisburg a delegation of the motion picture men will obtain an appointment with him and seek to have a statement relative to the amending of the censorship law included in his proclamation. If the state's chief executive refuses to consider this, the matter must go over to the regular meeting of the legislature.

As an indication of the amount of red tape which enters into the censorship of motion picture films under the present regime, the exhibitors point to the holding up of war pictures, passed by the military censors of Great Britain, France and Belgium, which the members of the British-Canadian recruiting mission had intended to use to aid their drive for recruits beginning February 18.

The films in question show the British army in the making in villages back of the front, British cavalry and infantry, destroyers and submarines patrolling the seas, trench digging and other phases of military life.

A. M. P. A. Pledges Support War Camp Picture Committee

The spirit with which the motion picture industry is taking hold of the opportunity to do its "bit" in connection with the entertainment of the American soldiers is being illustrated at a meeting of the American Motion Picture Advertisers held at Keen's Chop House on Thursday, February 21.

Patrick A. Powers, chairman of the War Camp Motion Picture Committee of the industry, which has been invited by Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman of the Army and Navy Training Camps Commission, to co-operate with it in providing pictures for the camps, through the various agencies engaged in furnishing entertainment for the soldiers and sailors, was present upon invitation and described in a general way the plan whereby the industry is to share in putting the nation's fighting forces "over the top" in a winning mood. Co-operation of all to this end was the message which Mr. Powers gave to the Advertisers' Association.

The Association adopted the following resolution: "Resolved, that the A. M. P. A. pledge its support to the War Camp Motion Picture Committee of the industry of which P. A. Powers is chairman, and hold itself ready to render any and every service in its power to promote the success of that committee in its efforts to bring the best of motion pictures to the soldiers and sailors in the various cantonments and training camps."

Following this action, J. C. Graham, London representative of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, described motion picture conditions in western Europe. He said that the British army cantonments had been supplied through army officers familiar with motion pictures, appointed to take charge of the work of distribution.

Mr. Powers read the following letter dated February 20, received from Arthur James, president of the Advertisers' Association:

"The Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, which includes more than ninety per cent of the advertising and publicity men in the motion picture industry, desires to co-operate with you in your activities in behalf of the Government, and more especially to further the plans to provide entertainment for the soldiers in their camps, both in this country and in Europe.

"You will doubtless recall that it was our organization which secured the first recognition from the Government departments of the value of motion pictures for propaganda, that it was our recruiting plan that was adopted by Brig. General Walsh for the New York district, and that having opened the door, it was made easy for the industry to secure the recognition of the administration.

"We find ourselves with considerable talent at hand, ready for new activities and we desire to be as helpful as possible. Perhaps, you will be good enough to outline to the Association today in what way we can help.

PARAMOUNT'S NEW SCHEME FOR CONTROL

Hibiters entrenched them strongly enough to freeze out the independent producers.

"I believe you are too good a business man to permit anything like this to happen. You would be sounding your own death knell. It would only be a question of time—and not a very long time either—when this monopoly controlled not only the feature pictures, but also your theatres—your business.

"Already you have had a taste of high handed methods. Some of you have been arbitrarily forced to increase your admission prices to the danger point (many times beyond) to pay the high rental prices demanded. You know what the result has been. Business has fallen off and so have your profits.

"We can't help you unless you help yourselves. Think it over. Your future and the future of the motion picture industry are in the balance. What are you going to do?"

MONA LISA, A NEW SCREEN STAR
Second Trade Restraint Suit Filed Against Stanley Company

Greater Philadelphia Amusement Co. Is Plaintiff in Latest Action Which Charges Creation of Monopoly to Restrain Trade

The second in a series of suits, back which are the avowed intentions to drain the power in Philadelphia of Stanley K. Mastaun, head of the Stanley Booking Company, was filed in that city last week in the United States District Court. In this suit the Fox Film Corporation is listed as defendant with the booking company. In the first suit the Mayo Pictures Corporation was mentioned. Hostilities first opened against the Booking Company some weeks ago when A. J. Callahan, personal representative of George K. Spoor, prominent Chicago producer, made an investigation into conditions existing in Philadelphia. Callahan, it is said, found matters so revolting that he publicly announced that his company had no further dealings with the Booking Company. His next step was to testify before the Federal Trade Commission.

The Greater Philadelphia Amusement Company, incorporated in New Jersey, is the plaintiff in the present suit. The Nixon Theatre, which plays a prominent part in the bill of particulars, is owned by G. N. Nirdlinger, William Sloan and Thomas Love. As was the case in the previous suit, the bill charges that 167 theatres in Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Washington, Baltimore and Washington are also suffering anxiety and loss because of the methods used by the booking company.

The bill sets forth that in November, 1917, the Fox Philadelphia manager solicited and obtained a contract with the Nixon Theatre for first showing of Fox comedies at $50 a week. There was paid down on the contract, as is stated, $100. The contract was to have run for one year if not cancelled by the plaintiff.

None of the terms of the contract were ever put up to the exchange, the bill charges—money was returned and the contract cancelled without comment.

Early in December, it is recited, George Dembow, the Fox manager, told Mr. Nirdlinger that Fox was in an alliance with the Stanley Company and had joined with that company to "put the Freeholder-Nirdlinger Theatres out of business."

The bill further charges that the Stanley people tried to force the plaintiff to join the Stanley Booking Company under threat. When the plaintiff refused, he is alleged the Stanley interests began a systematic effort to coerce some of its producers to ruin the business of the plaintiff.

It is stated in the bill that the complainants are prepared to prove that the film company discriminated in prices between the independent theatres and those controlled by the Stanley Booking Company. The bill asks for a permanent injunction restraining the Fox Film Corporation from discriminating in price and further continuing its alleged combination with the Stanley Booking Company to furnish films only to those exhibitors controlled by the Stanley Company, thereby creating a monopoly in restraint of trade.

Pettijohn Completes Tour of Mid-West

C. C. Pettijohn has completed his tour of the mid-west in the interests of the eight independent producers who have formed the Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated. Mr. Pettijohn returned to New York on Wednesday, February 20, and informed the producers that their "producer to exhibitor" policy had met with hearty approval and cooperation of exhibitors throughout the middle west in all districts he had visited during his trip. The last territory to be rounded up was Eastern Pennsylvania, where Pittsburgh guaranteed the specified 88 days. The plan upon which the producers were now working in the interests of the exhibitor was first conceived at a convention of the exhibitor organizations of the country held in Washington, D. C., in December last. The Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated commenced operations in the first of the year and although but six weeks have elapsed, they announce that already 256 days have been guaranteed by exhibitors in various states throughout the Union. Already five features are ready for distribution. The producers plan to manufacture and issue 32 pictures a year, one each week, and place them straight into the hands of the exhibitor, eliminating all intervening expenses. Herbert Brennan, Production Manager, Mutual Film Corporation, Lillian Walker Productions, Shubert, Hammerstein & Ince Productions, were written around her in the drama by her late husband, Paul Armstrong.

Ralph Bradford is New Chicago Manager Of Triangle Exchange

Ralph Bradford, until last week manager of the Goldwyn exchange in Minneapolis, became manager of the Triangle Chicago exchange this week. He is one of the best known exchange managers in this section and was manager of the Chicago exchange of the Mutual Film Corporation for two years prior to the time he went to Minneapolis and opened up the Triangle exchange there.

After successfully conducting the Triangle offices in that city for eighteen months, Mr. Bradford was selected to open the Goldwyn exchange and only resigned last week to accept the Triangle offer in Chicago.

Work Progressing

On Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corp. Film

Rapid progress is being made at the Biograph Studio, New York, on "A Romance of the Underworld," the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation announces.

Catherine Calvert will be presented in the leading feminine role, it being one of her notable successes on the speaking stage. The part in which she appears was written especially for her by her late husband, Paul Armstrong.

The picture is being directed by James Kirkwood.

New Assistant Director Joins Jester Comedy Co.

"Tommy" Regan, who has been for many years an assistant director with Paché, Mittenthal, Pokes & Jabs, and the World Film Corporation, has been engaged by the Jester Comedy Company as assistant director on the Jester Comedies featuring Twodee-Dan, the international mirth maker.
Publication Date Is Announced for Wharton Serial “The Eagle’s Eye”

Production Sponsored by William J. Flynn Retired Chief of U. S. Secret Service Is in Twenty Episodes—Deals With German Espionage

The Whartons announce that the first episode of “The Eagle’s Eye” will be published the week of February 22-March 4. The remaining nineteen episodes of the serial expose of the plotting and intrigue of the Imperial German Government in America, by William J. Flynn, recently retired chief of the United States Secret Service, will be published at weekly intervals.

The advance bookings for the serial are extremely heavy, according to reports from all the branch offices of the Foursquare Exchange, which will distribute the picture. The timeliness of the subject matter, combined with its unquestionable authenticity because of the authorship, are the reasons given by the branch exchange managers for the unusual interest which has been taken in the serial by exhibitors.

The first episode deals with the plot fostered by Count Johann von Bernstorff, the recalled ambassador of the Imperial German Government to the United States, which resulted in the sinking of the Lusitania with a loss of nearly 1,500 lives. Many of the details of the plans made for the certain consummation of the outrage are shown in the picture.

Interwoven in the authentic expose of the real truth of the plot in which Count von Bernstorff and his three chief aides, Captain Franck von Papen, Captain Boy-Ed and Dr. Heinrich Albert, are shown in their true character by impersonations, is the beginning of the romance of Harrison Grant, the president of the Criminology Club, and Dixie Mason, the southern girl secret service operative, which runs through the entire twenty episodes.

“The most brilliant screen successes were made in the American Film studio, under our direction,” said Mr. Sameth, and it was natural that after a thorough investigation into the merits of different locations and studios, that he should wish to have his new pictures made under the same highly desirable conditions. He feels that with the unusual equipment and facilities of the American studios at Santa Barbara, which are incomparably superior in point of location and beauty of surroundings to any other studio he considered, that the William Russell Productions are starting out under auspicious surroundings.

Russell to Produce Features at Plant Of American Film Co.

Samuel S. Hutchinson has confirmed the rumor that all pictures to be made by the new Russell Productions will be done at the American Film Company studios at Santa Barbara, Cal. The technical work will be done at the laboratories of the American Film Company, Chicago.

“Mr. Russell’s most brilliant screen successes were made in the American Film studio, under our direction,” said Mr. Hutchinson, “and it was natural that after a thorough investigation into the merits of different locations and studios, that he should wish to have his new pictures made under the same highly desirable conditions. Lillian Walker Begins Work on New Feature

According to an announcement from Lillian Walker’s personal representative, work was started on February 25 on Miss Walker’s first picture for the Lillian Walker Productions. Many scenarios and screen versions of popular novels and plays are being considered for future photoplays. The title of her first picture will be announced this week, it is said.

Mabel Frank, a sister of Beulah Livingston, well known in publicity work as Miss Petrova’s personal representative and publicity agent for several New York plays, has been engaged as Miss Walker’s publicist.

Ned Finley Will Star in “Return of O’Garry”

The first of the Ned Finley Films, “The Return of O’Garry,” a three-reel subject dealing with the new adventures of the popular Royal Mounted Canadian hero made famous by the well known actor Ned Finley, will shortly be ready, according to General Film Company.

This is a romantic adventure story of the great Northwest which presents new thrills with the popular O’Garry atmosphere. The leading roles are played by Mr. Finley and Marion Henry. They are supported by a strong cast, it is said.

Probably twelve of these three-reel stories in which the famous Canadian mounted police hero will be featured are to be produced in the studios located at Bat Cave, near Esmeralda, North Carolina, which abound in scenery typical of the northwest country. These O’Garry stories will be issued once a month by General Film Company.
CHARGE FOR DUPLICATE PERMITS AROUSES CHICAGO EXCHANGE MEN

Censor Funkhouser Declares City Ordinance Upholds Him
In the Practice—Is Profitable Pastime for Second Deputy's Department

Considerable resentment has arisen among the Chicago film exchange managers, due to the doubtful tactics employed by Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, the city censor, in the matter of issuing duplicate permit slips for the showing of motion picture productions.

While it has always been considered an injustice by the exchange men that they should be compelled to pay a similar charge for permits to distribute prints that they had paid for censoring the original film, they feel doubly indignant at the recent method the censor has employed in making the loss of these permits even more frequent occurrence. As the charge assessed amounts to $1 per reel it can readily be seen where this has roved a source of considerable revenue to Mayor Funkhouser's department.

Censor Explains Situation

When seen concerning the matter in his office, Chicago's film censor preserved his usual enigmatic demeanor and answered question with question in the same manner as has thus far baffled members of the Steffen sub-committee in their efforts to draw from him some information concerning his department.

"It is a fact, major, is it not, that each reel of film to be exhibited in Chicago is assessed $1 by your department?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"And when you are asked to issue a duplicate permit you make the same charge?"

"Don't you think that is right?" the major parried.

Major Becomes Silent

Upon being assured that no opinion had been formed by the questioner and that he came simply in search of information concerning the method of handling such matters, the censor assumed a secret silence.

"Is the idea back of this charge for duplicates that some exchange might dispose upon your office?" was the next question which roused the major from his reverie.

Here the censor by innuendo gave a general indictment of the exchanges of the city with one or two exceptions. While he did not say it outright, he intimated that he and his staff had to be in the constant alert to prevent films being exhibited without permits.

Cites Ordinance Violations

"Only last month," he said, "two of the employees of this office brought in more than $500 through picking up films which were exhibited without permits. There was one company which took out one permit for eight prints. "This charge is regulated by ordinance or is it of your own making?"

"By ordinance—by ordinance," said the major indignantly, as he reached into a near-by-desk drawer and pulled forth a pamphlet entitled, "City Ordinances Governing the Exhibition of Moving Pictures." He hastily marked a paragraph and showed the paper over to the interviewer. It read:

"The fee for each of such permits shall be one dollar and shall be paid to the city collector before same shall be issued."

At this point the censor, announced to another part of the building by a telephone call, rose abruptly from his desk and walked rapidly toward the elevator shaft. In his wake followed the questioner, eyes on the marked paragraph, wondering whether he had found out anything or not.

A careful study of the marked section of the ordinance would seem to fail to substantiate the major in his stand. The white cards sent with the reels of motion picture film are simply an indication that a permit has been issued. Between these and the actual permit the major has failed to differentiate much to the financial benefit of his department.

"My Gawd, How the Money Rolls in!"

Doug Fairbanks, who holds the world's record for the standing broad grin, will undoubtedly hold the income tax record among film folk when the returns are in.

The Arterial star, it is reported, will turn over to the collector of internal revenue for the Los Angeles district somewhere in the neighborhood of $450,000, thereby outdistancing "Little Mary" by $200,000.

Charlie Chaplin will pay $100,000 for "Billy Bill" Hart and Billy West are still to be heard from.

First National To Distribute "Tarzan" Picture

Exhibitor's Circuit Closes Deal With National Film—Open Booking

Through a transaction which is not an outright sale, but rather a marketing arrangement, the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc., will handle the National Film Company production, "Tarzan of the Apes." The latter company still retains an interest in the picture.

The National company had but recently announced that bids totaling more than $500,000 had been received from various state right buyers for the production. Harry Schwalbe and J. D. Williams acted for the First National in the transaction and Harry Reichenbach represented the National Film Company.

"By arrangement," says a statement given out by the First National, "any theatre owner in the country can secure the picture in competition to even the franchise owner of the First National. That is, the booking of the picture is open and can be secured for first, second or third run by any theatre manager who sees the value of the picture to his house, and in order to get the picture himself the territorial representative of the First National Circuit will have to outbid the others."

By April 2 it is planned to have sixty prints of the production open in sixty principal cities for a run of one week or longer. So that with one or two exceptions the value of extensive exploitation campaigns may be lost, arrangements have been concluded for additional prints to be furnished to the smaller cities.

Exhibitors, it is announced, can secure rental either on percentage basis or on a flat rental for the opening periods. Exploitation and advertising of the production will begin in each city immediately after a contract is closed.

Ten "Broncho Billy" One-Reel Features
To Be Re-Issued Through Kline System

New Prints of Famous Series Have Been Made—Titles Announced by George K. Spoor

Responding to a demand that has increased instead of diminished in the past few years, George K. Spoor announces the immediate weekly publication of the famous Essanay "Broncho Billy" pictures. This will come back to the screen the idol of millions of picture devotees who have never forgotten the "good bad man" that thrilled them in other days.

Mr. Spoor is now engaged in selecting the very best of the great series of Broncho Billy one-reelers and announces the titles of the first ten. They are: "Broncho Billy's Leap," "Broncho Billy and the Rattler," "Broncho Billy's Close Call," "Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter," "Broncho Billy's Indian Romance," "Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need," "Broncho Billy's Wild Ride," "Broncho Billy's First Arrest," "Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child" and "Broncho Billy's Last Deed.

"Mr. Spoor has anticipated a great demand and plenty of new prints have been prepared to meet it. The pictures have been carefully re-edited and equipped with new subtitles.

Excellent Photography

These first ten Broncho Billy pictures represent some of the best photographic work as well as the most appealing story value of the lot. They are full of action, heart interest and the spell of the great West.

Goldwyn Enters New Territory With Films

Following the entry of Goldwyn Pictures into Australasia comes the further announcement of the distribution of Goldwyn Pictures in South Africa, Argentine Republic and Porto Rico. Negotiations have been closed for distribution through Arthur Zehm, of Goldwyn's export department.

Goldwyn Pictures are to be shown in all of Africa south of the equator in association with the African Film Trust Limited. This organization controls the South African territory, owning up-to-date theatres and representing the leading cinema producing organizations of the world in that field.

Contracts for distribution in the Argentine Republic, Uruguay and Paraguay have been signed with Messrs. Saez & Gonzalez, a new organization in Argentina. In India, Burmah and Ceylon Oriental distribution will be handled by R. M. Saver, the largest film concern in India.

Agencia General Cinematografica of San Juan, Porto Rico, has closed negotiations with Goldwyn for the distribution in Porto Rico, Venezuela and Santo Domingo.

In speaking of the Broncho Billy pictures, Mr. Spoor says that to his mind they rank up even higher than the present day pictures of the same length, and, in some cases, than even longer productions.

"It was difficult to find anything in them to criticize from a construction standpoint," he added. "Each contains the qualities that are supposed, even today, to represent the highest standard of motion pictures.

"There is supene, a very important element of the melodrama and drama of the hills and plains, there is romance, in most cases afforded by the work of Margarette Clayton in support of Broncho Billy and there is a simplicity of story that gives the pictures each a punch and a smash at the end."

Bookings Coming In

Mr. Spoor states that bookings are already coming in and exhibitors may get the Broncho Billy films through the George Kleine system. They are invited to inspect each picture before they book it, at any Kleine office.

Coincident with the foregoing announcement comes another to the effect that Essanay will also put out new prints of their well known "Snakeville comedies" which ran at the same time with the Broncho Billy films.

"Snakeville comedies," it will be remembered, afford a thrilling laughable phase of western fun, featuring "Slippery Slim" and "Sophie Clutts." They are one-reelers and will be published one a week through the General Film Company.

Goldwyn's entry into two of the great European nations and in still other parts of the world is to be announced shortly.

M. Cadden to Enlarge His Screen Magazine

Beginning with the sixth number soon to be issued, Bern Macfadden announces that he will enlarge the scope and size of his Physical Culture Screen Magazine. Each number will be a complete 1,000 foot reel, published monthly, and as soon as present facilities are added to, fortnightly. The magazine will not be on a program but will be issued by territorial rights, so that the independent organization which need short subjects, can handle it.

Mr. Macfadden's plans include everything of interest in the big outdoors and amateur physical culture athletes will be shown at their training tasks, doings at soldier camps will be recorded, women's activities illustrated, and much practical information about fitness, health will be pictorialized. In addition to the "takes" of its own expert camera staff, Physical Culture Photo Plays in the market for any good negative of the above character. The concern may be reached by wire or letter at 94 Broadway, New York, where all communication with Macfadden will be handled.

J. S. Seidman, who has been long connected with educational film work and also of the Western Newspaper Union staff, is in active cooperation in the new project. He will give special attention to the reporting of athletic events, and the titles will be written by an expert in the Macfadden office who will be acquainted with the popular requirements of concise information about sports, dress, hygiene, health and diet.

Howard Kyle's First Appearance on Screen

Howard Kyle, one of the leading actors of the Actors Equity, an actors' organization, organized by the leading stars on the American stage for the purpose of arranging a more equitable contract between producing managers and actors, appears in a forthcoming World release, "Devil's Dice," with Kitty Gordon.

This is Mr. Kyle's first appearance on the screen. An old boy, it is said that his engagement was to acquaint himself personally with moving pictures, so that the Actors Equity will be supplied with practical information about product passing on questions in dispute between the actors and the film companies.

Jester Comedies Co. Makes State Sale

Announcement is made by the Jester Comedies Company of the sale of the rights to their productions in the south and eastern states of Mississippi and Arkansas will be handled by Fourquare Pictures, Inc., Dallas, Texas; Louisiana and Mississippi, by the New Orleans office of the Fourquare in North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee by R. Will Standardize Picture Industry
Claim of United Picture Theatres
Promises Members Saving of From Thirty to Fifty Percent Over Present Prices—Offices Opened on Broadway, New York

The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., a booking corporation which is founders’ claim will standardize the picture industry just as the U. B. O. has standardized vaudeville, recently formed a number of exhibitors to eliminate distribution wars and set up in its place cooperative buying, makes the first official announcement of its plan of operation this week. Among other things it promises to its members pictures on which they can make a profit at a saving of from thirty to fifty per cent over present prices.

After outlining the evils of the present system in which attention is called to the fact that at the present time thirteen selling organizations are maintained in order to serve three first run houses in Salt Lake City and that seventeen exchanges are spending a fortune weekly in seeking the business of five first run houses in Minneapolis, the announcement goes on to explain the manner in which this waste will be eliminated.

“United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., is the exhibitor’s own solution of the costly evil that every factor in the industry wishes to destroy,” the announcement reads. “We will agree on a star whose popularity and money making powers are unquestioned. We will make certain in advance that the star and the productions are big enough for the foremost theatres and therefore for all other theatres. We will then say to the producer having this star: ‘Make us six or eight pictures annually with this star and we will pay you for each negative a price that will give you a liberal and fair profit. We will make our own prints, our own accessories, and take are of the distribution of this and all other pictures to our members here and in foreign lands.’

No Salesmanship Cost

“We are free of salesmanship costs because we have an assured playing time of several thousand days guaranteed in advance by our members. There is today no profit in distribution. The United plan relieves producers of the unprofitable exchange investment and worry and at the same time gives them cash on completion of pictures, whereas now the producer must often wait a year or more for the exchanges to get back his negative cost. Producers also will receive a wider distribution for their pictures than at present. Whereas today the average good feature plays less than 2,500 days the United will give 4,000, 6,000, 9,000 days of playing time.”

The announcement then goes on to tell that the plan of the United is formed on the successful cooperative plan of the American Drug Syndicate and states that it is merely applying the well known principles of cooperative buying to the motion picture industry. In this respect the announcement states:

“Applying this principle to the exhibitors’ problem, United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., will instantly cut exhibitors rental prices for a picture thirty to fifty per cent below the price they are now paying and give them many of the very same pictures they are now showing.”

The organizers and officers of this company are Lee A. Ochs, president; C. R. Seelye, vice-president; Louis F. Blumenthal, treasurer; Charles M. Rosenthal, secretary, and Milton M. Lytell, general counsel. In referring to these organizers the announcement states:

“The founders of this company can only benefit in the same way all other exhibitors and stockholders. They have worked out a plan which many of the largest and best known exhibitors, practically all of the big producers in New York, and many of the big stars have pronounced unique and of great value to all branches of the industry.”

Within the next few weeks a United salesman—an exchange man well known and respected in his territory—accompanied by a prominent exhibitor of that territory will visit every community in which the United is not yet represented. Announcement of the names of these fifty exchange managers and salesmen will be made in about two weeks and the first list of the United members will be made public shortly thereafter.

Metro Pictures Corp.
Signs Bert Lytell
For Special Series

Bert Lytell, whose most recent appearance on the screen was in Herbert Brenon’s “False Faces,” has, it is an-
E. R. Pearson, Minneapolis manager for Universal and First National, is a firm believer in the "open booking" policy. By his own statement he went so far as to resign from one company when he was denied the right to put this policy into effect. He has issued a statement to exhibitors of the northwest which will be of interest to all owners of motion picture theatres. It follows:

"Have been actively connected with the film rental business for over seven years, with such firms as General, Pathé, World, V. I. S. E., Vitagraph, George Kleine, Laemmle and First National, and with home offices, and throughout the entire period I have consistently and persistently opposed closed bookings that do not give the purchaser his recognized right of choice.

"Even in the days of the predominance of the General, I was frequently ridiculed for having so many bookers employed, but they were necessary to make the many changes in bookings demanded by our customers. And it paid us to do it.

"World, in the days of Selznick, had closed contracts, but our branch permitted exhibitors to reject any picture they did not want.

"V. I. S. E. maintained absolute open bookings, and at the time Vitagraph adopted closed bookings, I resigned. The exhibitor gets the worst end of any deal that deprives him of choice.

"Likewise, the open booking exchange suffers a truly serious handicap as against the contract-without-choice-exchange.

"The closed-booking-exchange knows in advance just what business it is going to do on each release, be it good or bad.

Cites Cancellation Clause

"It knows that no customer is going to cancel at less than thirty days' notice and some exchanges have so ingeniously framed up their contracts that it takes an exhibitor from thirty weeks to a year to get out from under.

"Now, anybody can see that such an exchange has a great business advantage over one without such arrangements, because even if it does commit murder a few times it has time to temporarily repent and come along with a good release now and then, before a customer can show his resentment with a cancellation.

"Also, any time exhibitors are confronted with the necessity of quickly reducing operating expenses, they cannot quickly cancel such contracts, consequently they do the next only thing to be done—cancel on all their open booking contracts, set back the play dates, etc., until when something of a national calamity occurs, the open booking exchanges are forced to burden the entire business slump and the closed-contract-exchanges get away unscathed.

Cancels Open Bookings

"When a salesman comes along with a string of subjects that the exhibitor can readily see the advisability of giving early runs to, he consults his program book and, knowing that he cannot change, set back or cancel a single date given to any of these closed-contract exchanges, immediately proceeds to set back, cancel or change his arrangements, to the detriment of the only exchanges that treat him square.

"Thus again the open-booking-exchange absorbs all of that business loss and again the closed-contract-exchange gets away whole.

"In view of those facts, don't you really wonder that all exchanges have not been forced to adopt a closed-contract policy in self-protection, against having to absorb such an unfair portion of business depressions and disappointments?

"The entire industry, and you should surely thank your lucky star that some big men in the industry have had vision enough and the courage of their convictions to see that there is another day coming, and with almost marvelous faith in humanity, that business founded on reciprocity and a square deal must in the end survive, and that enough far-minded, square exhibitors still exist who recognize that were it not for the open-booking-exchanges they could not have existed and accordingly send a goody portion of their business to such exchanges, and whenever they are forced to change dates to put something very desirable in its place, as soon afterwards as possible, give that accommodating exchange an extra order or two.

Open Book Policy

"Our policy is absolutely an open book; buy what you want and leave the rest on the shelf. If the manufacturer

Where the Waste Is

By John R. Freuler

A great many gentlemen variously connected with the motion picture business have been proclaiming loudly about waste.

The exhibitor, who is really the ruler and dictator of the business, can control this.

It is a simple matter of merchandising efficiency. If the exhibitor will buy his show wisely and sell it well he will automatically remedy a great many of the complained conditions back at the exchanges and studios.

I believe it is safe to say that the average exhibitor gets only about 30 per cent of the value out of the average picture presented in his house.

Daily change of program and short runs, determined by an arbitrary policy instead of by the value and drawing power of the picture are the causes of the biggest waste in the business.

The exhibitor demand for too frequent change—in other words his refusal to really get the value out of his picture—result in many evils.

It encourages over-production.

It encourages "by-by-night" picture promotions.

It floods the market with pictures which discredit the business.

It throws away a large part of the exhibitor's own investment and discounts the possibilities of his own promotional efforts.

It forces higher rentals.

More recently there has been a tendency toward longer runs. The daily change is passing but not as rapidly as it should. I began preaching against the daily change in the fall of 1914. Experience and results have proven the correctness of the principle of longer runs.

The daily change house is destined to go the same route that the old five-cent house has gone. The daily change principle belongs right with the five-cent house. The motion picture was different sort of amusement in those days. The picture was just a novelty then. It is an art now.

The exhibitor can get more money with longer runs.

There are many reasons for this. Most important among them is that the longer runs permits more intelligent and capable advertising.

Further the longer runs permits the picture to advertise itself. This self-advertising is one of the biggest factors in creating attendance.

In this connection I may observe that every motion picture theatre in the United States which is intelligently advertising its show and which is at the same time presenting even a fair show is making money.

I am interested to note from the reports which come to my desk every week that the theatres which make the most consistent use of the advertising accessories furnished through the exchanges of the Mutual are invariably the bigger and better theatres. They use the tools we give them. They improve upon and add to the ideas presented and adapt them to their own opportunities. The exhibitor who does not use them is wasting our investment and his own.

There is another very interesting element of this business of picture buying and picture presentation. The motion picture exhibitor is very prone to judge the merits of a picture by the prices asked for it. That is a common American failing.

We are inclined to buy butter, shoes and amusement by price rather than by judgment. The exhibitor ought to know better.

But it is sadly true. Put a price of $1,000 a week on a picture and the trade will talk about it. Put a price of $25 a day on the same picture and they will pass it up.

High Rentals No Guarantee

It must not be assumed that a picture is worth a lot because it costs a lot, either in rental or in production costs. One of the poorest features I ever saw cost $150,000. It was worth about a nickel. It was rejected by the Mutual and released by a competitor. It was of course an ultimate failure, but I know theatres which paid as high as $500 a week for it.

It often happens that an exhibitor having booked a costly picture feels that he will have to advertise to get his money out. He does this after he has had a failure, and perhaps makes money. I wish that it would sometime occur to the exhibitor that he can apply the same advertising principles to his theatre every day in the year. It ought not to be necessary to ask hie the pocketbook to make him see the value of newspaper space, of billboards and of good presentation.

The first thing the exhibitor has to do is to sell himself. He requires more force than he can develop under his own conditions.

If he puts the same advertising into pictures obtained at reasonable prices, he would have far more cash in his own pockets and would foster a saner system of production.

As an illustration of the cash value which lies in proper selection and promotion, I will cite a recent experience of my own.

I was compelled to take control of a neighborhood house which had been operating at a loss for a considerable period. The neighborhood seemed a good one and the business opportunity was there.

Recite Own Experience

I placed the house in the hands of a competent manager who booked a fairly representative picture of good average quality and gave it real, but legitimate advertising. We changed the policy from daily change to two changes a week, changing Sunday and Thursday. We took the four-day run at the beginning of the week so that the heavier initial attendance at the Sunday shows would give the longer of the two runs of the week the most opportunity to mouth advertising.

This worked out just as we calculated and even better. The first four days paid all of the expenses for the week and left the receipts of the next three days as profit. The succeeding weeks have shown a consistently increasing business, which will develop until we have reached the maximum for the house and the neighborhood.

It was merely a matter of recognizing the taste of the community and of presenting the picture in adequate style.

The system under which the exhibitors work now yields only about 30 per cent of revenue legitimately to be earned by the average production.

Pictures are sold to slightly more than 30 per cent of the possible attendance and the rest of the picture's value goes to the exchange.

We hear declamations concerning the desperate condition of the film industry. What other industry in the world could have survived such handling and have retained the vitality that the film industry possesses today?

Some weeks ago I said, "When the wind blows hold your hat." I will add another word of advice:

While holding on to your hats look round and see which way the wind is blowing.
Big Demand for Special Productions
Seen by L. S. Card of U. S. Corporation

"Novelty of Five Reeler Has Long Since Vanished" Declares Official—Features Popular West of Mississippi

Circuit bookings obtained for subjeets distributed by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation indicate the increasing popularity of the special productions West of the Mississippi, according to Lynn S. Card, general manager of the Exhibitors' concern.

All of the large theatre circuits in the Chicago district have been booked for the entire output of the U. S. to date, embracing the Thomas Ince spectacle, "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," "Those Who Pay" and the Sidney Olcott drama, "The Belgian." Among those which will show the aforementioned productions are the Jones, Limnick and Shaeffer circuit; Ascher Brothers and Lubliner and Trinz.

"Daily it is becoming more evident," declared Mr. Card, "that one of the most important developments in the moving picture industry this year will be the increased output of these special productions. Reports recently submitted to me by our representatives in all parts of the country, indicate plainly that exhibitors are beginning to appreciate the value of a production and the accepted program standard that will enable them to inject new life into box offices that have been dying of the dry rot of program material.

The special production is the picture of the future. The novelty of the five reeler has long since vanished. In the case of the large theatres like the Rialto, Rivoli, and Strand in New York the exhibitor is able to augment his program with vocal and instrumental music and costume. In the case of the many of the smaller exhibitors who depend entirely upon pictures to fill their houses will tell you that now he shows two or three reeler, the demand for which has been shown one.

"In order to vary the monotony of program pictures many exhibitors with whom we have had dealings, have found it imperative to book special productions like 'The Zeppelin's Last Raid,' 'Those Who Pay' and 'The Belgian,' and others that embrace not only extra footage but exceptional advertising qualities.

"The theatre-going public is seeking something new and bigger. The spending needs of the hour are better productions and prices that will enable the exhibitor to realize a reasonable profit. The U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation has pledged itself to these purposes. We do not care what kind of pictures, we have set a high standard in our first three subjects and intend to maintain it."

Gerard's Book-Film
To Be State Righted

"My Four Years in Germany," the Gerard photoplay on the Ambassador's famous book, will be one of the biggest productions in the field when it is publicly shown, it is said. It may not be less than ten reels in length and is designed to contradict the belief that pictures of this length have had their day.

On the contrary, said film men say, "If your story is big enough, nine and ten reels are not too long."

"My Four Years in Germany" is having much direct and indirect publicity. Ambassador Gerard's book is to be followed by a second volume, "Face to Face With Kaiserism," which is being published in New York.

Prior to its distribution on the State Rights plan, "My Four Years in Germany" will be given a run at a Broadway theatre and special music will be written for it.

It is announced that the story, as presented, is a narrative drama not a propaganda effort, unless it be, of course, that it predicts the ultimate victory of the Allies, but widespread interest in the exact way in which the subject is treated. People who have read the book will go to see the picture just to discover for themselves how the producers handled their theme, the producers contend.

Of course, purely as a narrative drama, the offering is one of the largest ever submitted to the public and has taken months of strenuous work in its preparation.

Milton Sills Will Support Miss Young
In "The Reason Why"

Announcement is made of a change in the cast of "The Reason Why" which Lara Kimball Young and company is preparing to give for release pictures. In the Milton B. Sills, not Conway Tearle as previously stated, will be Miss Young's leading man.

Mr. Sills is an actor of established reputation both on the legitimate stage and on the screen. He appeared in "The Seven Sins" in support of Shirley Mason, also with Mrs. Vernon Castle in "Patricia," and as star in "The Honor System," the Fox presentation of prison evils. He is admirably fitted to play the role of Lord Tancred in the new production, it is said, and brings to Miss Young's support, ability, years of experience and an admirable screen personality.

Work has been launched in the New Rochelle, N. Y. studio on the picture and the first scenes are well under way. Robert G. Vignola is directing the piece and the photography is being handled by Lewis J. Physioc.

E. H. Hulsey, Dallas, Made Vice President Of Metro Pictures

E. H. Hulsey of Dallas, Tex., has been elected vice-president of the Metro Pictures Corporation. Mr. Hulsey is owner of a chain of ten motion picture theatres in the foremost cities of the Lone Star state. He has been a director of the Metro company for some months.

Only a short time ago the new Metro vice-president, one of the originators of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit was elected a director of that body.

The Metro and First National Circuit are operated jointly in Dallas, with offices in Lubbock, Grand, San Angelo, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas are supplied from this source.

Camp Yaphank Boys
See 'Lest We Forget'

As a result of arrangements made by William Atkinson, business manager of Metro Pictures Corporation, and Ben Ennis, publicity director of the Petrov Picture Company and McClure Picture Company, one hundred soldier boys from Camp Upton saw the Petrov patriotic film special entitled "Lest We Forget" on February 16 at the Lyric Theatre, where it is enjoying an extended run.

"The Crucible of Life" is to be screened for the entertainment of the entire body of men quartered at Camp Upton on February 21 and 22 through the courtesy of Arthur H. Sawyer at Herkimer, N. Y., and the Enterprise Inc., which firm is distributing the picture on a state right basis.

Ella Hall Starring in "Beauty in Chains" Heads Universal Program for March 11

The Ella Hall production "Beauty in Chains," in which Emory Johnson, Ruby Lafayette and Miss Lederer are features, and Miss Hall, is the Universal feature for the week of March 11. It is founded upon a Spanish novel written by B. Perez Galdos. The title of the original novel in Spanish was "Dona Perfeccita."

"Beauty in Chains" tells the story of a Spanish girl betrothed in infancy, who won her heart's desire in spite of the treachery of her own grandmother, a woman whose outer appearance was all benevolence and piety, but who hid beneath the mantle of charity a nature grasping, bigoted and vindictive.

The Nestor comedy for the week is entitled "I'll Fix It," and introduces a Tone M. Mix play, in a new role. "I'll Fix It" deals with a chivalrous young man who attempted to assist a beautiful girl in taking her dog into a hotel where dogs are not permitted. This starts a chain of trouble for the young man.

The L-KO comedy is entitled "Ambrose.

Oscar C. Apfel Signs With World Film Co. Directs Kitty Gordon

Oscar C. Apfel, who directed J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Turn of a Card" and "A Man's Man" and also William Farnum, Bessie Barriscale, Dustin Farnum, Thomas Ross, Leonore Ulric and other well known screen stars, has signed a contract with the World Film Corporation as producer and director for Kitty Gordon. Mr. Apfel with Miss Gordon and her company will leave immediately for the South, the World announces, to take exteriors for a new production which bears the working title of "Her Great Moment."

Mr. Apfel is one of the really big directors in the industry. He has been connected with motion pictures from their infancy. For seven years he has grown with the industry, watching the trend of pictures, building productions that appealed more and more to the film going public. In World Pictures, Mr. Apfel expects to achieve the greatest successes of his career, it is said.

At one time Mr. Apfel was associated with Thomas A. Edison in experimental work on talking pictures. After this he was with the John E. Suppose company, and then went to the Lasky Company where he made their first pictures and inducted Cecil DeMille into the mysteries of the art. After this he was with Mosoros, Dallas and then Fox.

For the past few years Mr. Apfel has been on the coast and declares that he is glad to be back in the city, where he says, "I am enjoying myself more and more."

Announcement has been made from the headquarters of the Petrova Picture Company that a special service and accessory department has been established for the benefit of exhibitors presenting the special productions starring Madame Olga Petrova. This step has been taken, it is said, as the result of the demand already registered by exhibitors, both large and small, who have expressed their desire to exploit to the fullest extent possible the various stars in vehicles in which the famous Polish actress is now appearing.

In order that the theatre managers may obtain the greatest possible benefit from the advertising given in each Petrova production, it has been decided by the executives of the Petrova Picture Company to furnish an exploitation service covering individual programs of the eight Petrova special features.

The new accessory department will become effective in sufficient time to give the exhibitor complete advertising aid in the "The Life Mask," the third production slated for publication next month on the star's calendar. A survey of the field has resulted in a knowledge of the exhibitors' wants and the Petrova service department will supply all theatre managers presenting their pictures with single and double matrices, together with electro, suitable for reproduction in newspapers or programs, and photographs, press sheets, etc. As a special aid to the Petrova showman, the organization has prepared a "Star" exclusive photographic spots which will be loaned as a lobby display during the Petrova presentation.

Max Linder Seeks Location for Studio

Max Linder is already making his preparations for his return to America in April. He has communicated, through T. E. Letendre, his American representative, with the secretaries of several Chambers of Commerce, in cities of high altitude, with a view of locating there. M. Linder feels that if he works in a high and healthy climate, he will be less apt to be troubled with stomach ailments which have bothered him in the past, due to injuries received while serving with the French army in the first year of the war.

Several Arizona cities have made tempting offers to induce the French comedian to come. Some of these offers are so far as to offer to build a studio for him. However, this matter will not be decided until M. Linder's arrival in this country.

When Rudyard Kipling wrote "The Naulahka," the world accepted it a masterpiece and Pathé's screen adaptation of it extracted nothing from the original verdict. It stands out distinct in the annals in Truistory, just as George M. Cohan did to produce this, goes the credit for the faithful reproduction of Indian architecture, Hindu life, and the atmosphere of the far East which combine to throw over the whole an enchanting cloak of oriental mysticism. Antonio Moreno, Doralinda and Helen Chadwick form a happy combination in the leading roles of the very capable cast.

The story: Nicholas Tarvin, a young surveyor, is intent upon nailing a western mining town a metropolis and he believes by getting the Three C's railroad to terminate there this can be accomplished. Kate Sherif, with whom he is in love, is impressed by the plea of an Indian missionary and determines to go to the sid of the women in that country. Mrs. Murrie desires possession of the "Naulahka," a jewel of great value, and promises Tarvin that she will induce her husband to put the railroad in his town if he will get the stone for her. He goes to India at the same time Kate does. They meet there but she resents his presence.
He is finally successful in obtaining the jewel from Sitabhai, favorite of the Maharajah, but is persuaded to return it when he learns she is to be put to death for its loss. Kate, meanwhile, has failed utterly in her work with the natives and begs Nicholas to return to America with her. When they arrive at their home they are just in time to witness the ceremonies attendant to the entrance of the railroad. Kate renounces her missionary ideas to become the wife of Nicholas.

Interesting, full of action and pleasing throughout is J. Warren Kerrigan's second Paralta production, "The Turn of a Card." The wonderful photography contributes in a large measure to the success of the picture. Kerrigan as "Jimmy Montgomery Farrell," oil prospector, chauffeur, and millionaire, in turn, is perfected fitted for the role to which he is assigned. Lois Wilson is a pleasing heroine.

The story: Jimmy Farrell has struck it rich in the oil fields.
Also possessed of a wonderful winning streak he has stripped "Ace High" Burdette, a gambler, not only of his money, but of his estate on Long Island. While in New York disposing of his oil properties, Jimmy goes to inspect his estate. While there Burdette's daughter, Cynthia, returns from France and rather than enlighten her as to the passing of the property into his hands he becomes her chauffeur. Through William Phelps, a crook, Cynthia is told that Jimmy is the owner of the home and technically guilty of the death of her father because of his suicide following the loss in gambling. She refuses to have anything to

"A Soul in Trust" is one of the most interesting productions of the year. The story is none too clearly told, though worked out somewhat differently.
There are a number of events which have been told and retold on the screen, all woven together which give it a new aspect.

The direction is good, the settings fine and the photography excellent. Belle Bennett, always charming, is cast in the lead.
Other important players are Darrell Foss, J. Barney Sherry, Irene Hunt and Grover Franke. G. P. Hamilton is responsible for the direction.

The story: At his death, Dabney Carter confesses to his wife that he was formerly married and that there is a son by his former marriage. Courtney adopts the child and learns to love the boy as her own. Dabney, Jr., becomes secretary to Senator Franklin and when the Senator meets Courtney he falls in love with her. The Senator has drawn up plans for a naval base wanted by another faction. Nan Parker, the mother of Dabney, Jr., is sent to the Senate to secure the papers. She relates a tale of woe to Dabney, Jr., which leads him to believe that the Senator is not a fit companion for his mother. However, when it is found that Nan has smuggled the papers, Dabney, Jr., realizes his mistake and forgives the Senator. And Nan learning from Courtney, that she is indirectly harming her own child, returns the papers and allows herself to be denounced by her son.

Though the theme has been used many times, there is always plenty of amusement and entertainment in the story of a young American who suddenly finds himself king of a revolting province and who eventually marries a royal princess. Carlyle Blackwell has handled the leading role of "His Royal Highness" in a pleasing manner and it provides five reels of good diversion.
With Mr. Blackwell are Evelyn Greeley, Bert House, Kate Lester, Lionel Belmore, Kitty Johnson and Herbert Harrington.
One of the interesting bits of the picture is the Yale-Harvard
duction. It is a thrilling moment when Bert House falls off a high cliff into the water and Carlyle Blackwell dives in to save him. There is effective lighting throughout and some of the exterior scenes are beautiful.

The story: Jack Christie, hero of the Yale-Harvard game, accepts the invitation of his "pal," Victor Bordon, to accompany him to Europe. Victor is injured while trying to elope with Lizette, an Apache, with whom he is in love. Through this incident Jack learns that Victor is the king of a small country who has overthrown a king in a revolution. Sadly in need of a king Jack offers to play king until Victor recovers. Jack succeeds in quelling the revolution and marrying the pretty princess, whom he had met aboard ship and with whom he had fallen in love. Jack receives a telegram from Victor telling of his marriage to Lizette and their departure for America, so there is nothing for Jack to do but rule his province, assisted by his beautiful wife and Jack, Jr.

For an evening of light, but very enjoyable entertainment, "Powers That Prey" is an appropriate offering. Mary Miles Minter, pretty and charming as usual, makes of Sylvia Grant a pleasing character and one not easily forgotten. Alan Forrest accords her good support as does Harvey Clarké, Clarence Burton and Lucille Ward. The photography is excellent and settings have been appropriately chosen. There are some good scenes laid in a newspaper office and the manner in which Sylvia handles her father's newspaper during his absence furnishes much of the humor.

The story: Threatened with arrest because he has exposed Jarvis McVey's system of graft, Burton Grant, owner of the Daily News, leaves town. His daughter, Sylvia, takes full command of the newspaper. She runs the paper as she believes it ought to be run, exposing the various merchants who do not do business in a manner she believes to be correct. Though she almost ruins the business, she is successful in preventing McVey from furthering his graft policies, and wins a fiance in Frank Summers, city editor.

As Constance Talmadge’s Next Select

Constance Talmadge has completed her second Select Picture, "Up the Road with Sallie," and is now ready to begin work on a new production.

"Up the Road with Sallie" is by Frances Sterrett with the scenario by Julia Crawford Ivers, and directed by William D. Taylor. It is a story of adventure, romance and comedy, mixed with bits of pathos, and is said to be an ideal evening's entertainment. As a story it was signally successful and there is every reason to suppose that on the screen it will prove a highly attractive offering.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.

"The Moral Law" presents something novel in dual roles. Something which has not heretofore been attempted, that of an actress kissing herself upon the screen. It is so naturally done that at the time one does not realize the work entailed to accomplish the feat, but the remarkableness strikes one after the scene has faded into others.

Gladys Brockwell makes of her two roles such different characters one forgets she is playing the two parts. The story, too, is interesting and provides live reels of excellent entertainment.

The story: At the death of her father, Isobel De Costa sets out to find her half sister, whose mother was divorced from De Costa. She arrives at his home to find both the mother and daughter owners of a notorious gambling resort. Her sister Anita endeavors to murder her undesirable husband and when the police come to arrest Anita, Isobel is taken into custody. In the role of Isobel, Anita returns to Isobel's Florida home and tries to hurry plans to marry Isobel's sweetheart. Then the investigators in South America learn that they are holding the wrong girl. Isobel is released and returns to her home to find Robert and Anita married. But the husband Anita tried to murder was only injured, returns and claims his wife. With the marriage declared illegal Robert is free and he and Isobel are married.

Exhibitors contemplating booking "Within the Cup" should feel perfectly sure their audiences will approve of the sort of entertainment this latest Paralta offers. There is no question as to the perfectness of production. As a matter of fact, from a technical, directorial and acting standpoint it has few equals and when Bessie Barriscale's Thisbe Lorraine is viewed, spectators will be given an insight into some real screen acting—something that is quite out of the ordinary, really worth seeing, and long to be remembered.

While the story is along unconventional lines, the masterly manner in which it has been handled and the interesting appeal which it contains easily outbalances its unconventionality. The story is from the pen of Monte M. Katterjohn and the direction by Raymond West. Edward Coxen, George Fischer and Aggie Herron have important roles in the supporting cast.

The story: Her faith in mankind shaken through the flimsy promises of Ernst Faber, Thisbe Lorraine becomes a member of the Greenwich Village, N. Y., set, determined to get everything out of life which it has to offer. In Le Saint Hammond, an artist for whom Thisbe pines, finds her love, but when she reveals to him her past, he refuses to have anything to do with her. Being weak and unable to stand the strain, Le Saint gives up his work and sinks lower and lower until he forces himself back to Thisbe, ready to forgive and begin a new life together.

Although the story does not start out with a great deal of "pep," after the story has progressed for a while, it develops into a most humorous and interesting one, with plenty of laughs both in the subtitles and action. It starts on a ranch, gives a peek at a rodeo and the roping of steers, swings to a cafe in San Francisco and thence onto a boat. From there it goes to a desert island and ends in a dream. Molly Malone has the leading female part.

The story: "Cheyenne" Harry and his cowboy friends, bent on helping their pal, Rawhide Jack, attend a rodeo in an endeavor to win the prize for roping steers, the money to be turned over to Jack. Harry is the successful winner and after the rodeo the boys go to a cafe, where they imbibe too freely in the flowing wine and fall asleep. Harry dreams that he is robbed, that he and the boys are shanghaied and put aboard a ship. They mutiny and Harry becomes the captain. A fire causes them to land on a desert island, where the Queen of the Blackanwhites falls in love with Harry, but he dodges her and runs off with her daughter, just as he is making love to the daughter, he awakens to find himself making love to one of the sleeping cowboys.

Better see William S. Hart in his old role of stage robber than in such a role as is afforded him in "Blue Blazes Rawden." There is plenty of roughness about the story, but there isn't the usual amount of pleasing entertainment which has been a characteristic of Hart's productions. There is a possibility that Hart admirers will enjoy the denouement of the story, but from the standpoint of production, it is just an average picture, poorer than any the reviewer has had the opportunity of seeing. Maud George, new to Hart pictures, plays an important part.

The story: Blue Blazes Rawden and his men come to the town of Timber Cove, outwit Ladyfingers and win from him his gambling resort. In a fight between the two, Ladyfingers is killed. Ladyfingers' mother and brother arrive from England and the trust and confidence which the mother puts in Rawden arouses him from his savage instincts and, unable to longer face the little mother, he strikes out for the Lone Trail, alone.

Gladys Leslie is a most charming young person with that rare personality and winsomeness that draws audiences to theatres, a pretty girl with girlish grace and the production will undoubtedly please, for Miss Leslie is a "comer."

The Vitagraph Company has selected a somewhat light but nevertheless interesting subject for Miss Leslie's debut as a star. It has, however, been handled in a capable manner, the exteriors are splendid, interiors well selected and the photography clear and pleasing. J. Frank Glendon and Charles Kent are among the important members of the cast. The direction is by William P. S. Earle.

The story: Prince Eric contemplates declaring war on Paxtania. The news grieves the Grand Duke of Paxtania and as a peace offering he arranges a marriage between his daughter Pat and Eric. Pat throughout her young life has been petted and spoiled and rebels at the dictation of her husband. Count Ladislaus, himself in love with Pat, sends word to Pat's father and brothers that Eric is brutal in his treatment of Pat. Disregarding the dangers of war, the father and brothers set out to protect their sister and when they arrive at the castle they find that the story is untrue and that Pat really loves Eric.

Seldom is more wholesomeness, real pleasure, entertainment and artistic photography condensed into six reels of film than in this Goldwyn production, "The Beloved Traitor," starring Mae Marsh. Miss Marsh has become a national institution and in this latest picture the reason for it is very apparent. As Mary Garland, a fishermaiden, who loses the love of her fisherman to a woman of the city and regains it when she shows him the artificuality of his surroundings, the star's portrayal is inimitable. In fact, in strength of story and in finished production, it stands out as among the best of photoplays in recent months.

The story: Judd Minot, a fisherman, is held somewhat in derision by his townsmen because of devoting his spare time to making "mud dolls." He is in love with Mary Garland and at the death of her uncle promises to watch over her. Henry Bliss, a wealthy art patron, recognizes his ability, and with the entreaties of the patron's daughter, Myrna, he agrees to go to the city to perfect his art. Once in the city, he forgets Mary and transfers his love to Myrna. She in turn gets him into a fast set, and his work suffers accordingly. Mary then comes to the city, and Judd finds her the object of curiosity of the "crowd" in his studio. Her presence brings him back to his better self and she regains his love.

Ivan Mozukin in his previous productions has demonstrated his genius in the portrayal of strong character roles and in "The Inner Voice," his work is of the same sterling quality. The story revolves about the battle of a man with the dictates of his conscience and is produced with the same deep emotionalism of former Russian Art Film Company productions.

The story: Ivan Ermloff, a student, leaves his home to enter the University of Moscow. He becomes popular with the students and is elected treasurer of the club. His gambling propensities cause him to lose not only his own money, but the funds of the club. His attention to other women is the underlying cause of the death of his youthful sweetheart. He accepts money from the wife of the man whose boy he is tutoring. At the age of forty, still battling his conscience, he buys his way into the Duma by agreeing to appoint a crook to a high position. Finally, when the time comes and he can no longer conceal his defalcations he realizes that those who have sinned must pay the penalty.

"Revenge" is a mystery drama laid in the west where frequently murders occur and the murderer walks about freely without arousing suspicion. It is told in an interesting fashion, has a great deal of thrilling horseback riding, some good desert scenes, a number of well-laid dance hall scenes with the attendant gamblers and dancing maidens, a girl in search of revenge and an enjoyable love story. It is an offering appropriate for any class of audience where western dramas are enjoyed. Edith Storey, as usual, handles her part very well and she is ably supported by W. O. Baker and Jack Conley.

The story: Alva Leigh, whose fiancé has sent for her, arrives in the west to find him dead. She is determined to find his slayer and is assisted in her search by Dick Randall. Duncan, owner of a dance hall, is anxious to get Alva in his power and leads her to believe that Dick killed her sweetheart. Dick, in love with Alva, prepares to cross the desert to record the deed to the mine which he and Alva's sweetheart owned. For revenge Alva cuts the canteens and allows the water to leak out. After Dick has been gone for a couple of hours, Alva learns that he is innocent and rushes into the desert after him. After she travels many miles and falls exhausted she is found by Dick, who forgives her and all ends well.

Barbara Connelly in "LITTLE RED DECIDES"
Triangle drama; five parts; published February 24
As a whole: Mediocre
Interesting: Poor
Star: Fair
Support: Poor
Settings: Poor
Photography: Poor

The tale of a little orphan who is adopted by rough cowboys and who immediately reforms them from their rough and uncouth ways is the gist of "Little Red Decides." Barbara Connelly is the star of the production and is a most appealing younger and her work will undoubtedly please the critics. The production is but an average one. Other members of the cast are Goro Kino, Frederick Vroom, Jack Curtis, Walter Perry, Alice Davenport and Betty Pearce. The direction is by Jack Conway.

The story: At the death of his father, "Little Red" is taken into the home of Colonel Aliso, where he immediately becomes the favorite of the cowboys. The lady villagers believe the child should have a mother's care and as a result the child is taken to the parsonage until one of the boys consents to marry. Little Red given his choice settles all disputes by claiming the China man, who precedes over the kitchen, as his mother.

Enid Bennett in "THE KEYS OF THE RIGHTeous"
Paramount drama; five parts; published February 18
As a whole: Mediocre
Interesting: Poor
Star: Fair
Support: Fair
Settings: Fair
Photography: Fair

The role of Mary Manning, which the Paramount Company has chosen to introduce Enid Bennett, is a very inappropriate and unbecoming one and all her charm and pleasing personality is lost. The story is an ordinary one with too much sentiment and not enough human appeal. The photography is excellent and the exteriors are beautiful and well chosen.

It is a story of the timbers, interwoven with touch dance halls, painted ladies and police raids. There is a court trial that carries with it a touch of pathos. Supporting Miss Bennett are Earl Rodney, George Nichols, Josef Swickard and Carl Forms. The story was written by C. Gardner Sullivan and directed by Jerome Storm.

The story: Mary Manning finds it difficult to be happy under the constant nagging of her grandfather who accuses Mary's father, the champion, of bankruptcy. It is only when the weak-willed man comes home, a beggar, his father turns him out. Mary brings him back, but the shock proves too much for the mother and she dies. Mary's father, finding that no one cares for him, returns to the city and on drinking habits where Mary comes to bring him back. While in the cafe with him the place is raided and they are arrested. Mary's bravery wins the confidence of the judge and melts the heart of the irate grandfather. The family is happily reunited.

Bessie Barriscase Has Versatile Role
In Second Paralta "Within the Cup"
One of the most complex parts ever played by Bessie Barriscase is that which she portrays in her second Paralta play, "Within the Cup." It is said that it is. In this picture Miss Barriscase as "Thibe Lorraine," an art student and writer, undergoes a complete change, which taxes the star's versatility to its extreme.

At the opening of the story, Miss Barriscase portrays a serious minded American girl who is studying art in the Latin Quarter of Paris. Her life is fast becoming a tragedy, yet, in the face of starvation, she shuns the care-free frivolous life of the other students to love her. A young man, a son of a noble family, who is studying art merely as a means of idling his time, tells Thibe of his love, and she believes in him. Then she discovers him to be untrue and she leaves for America.

In New York, her character occurs. Miss Barriscase takes the serious paddling character of "Thibe" and transforms her into the gayest of the gay Bohemians, living the very life she has detested in the past, in New York's Greenwich Village.

"Within the Cup" is a seven reel feature which will follow in release Miss Barriscase's picture, "Madam Who." It is entirely completed and is practically ready for distribution through the W. W. Hodkinson Service.
Olive Thomas in "Heiress for a Day" Tops Triangle’s Program for March

Triangle announces eleven features for March. Olive Thomas opens the month’s program in “An Heiress for a Day,” a new comedy drama directed by Jack Dillon, in which she is supported by Joe King, a leading man new to Triangle. Miss Thomas has a role as a Warwick, whom Jack fortune trifles.

The second feature for the week of March 3 is “The Shoes That Danced,” an adaptation of John A. Morosco’s magazine story dealing with life on the fringe of New York’s underworld, in which Pauline Starke, Wallace MacDonald and Dick Rosson are featured.

A story by Frederick Bechdolt, “The Hard Rock Breed,” is the next for the week of March 10, showing J. Barney Sherry and Jack Corsis as the two typical hard rock men, and including in the cast Margery Wilson and Jack Livingston. The other feature is “The Sea Panther,” an elaborate costume picture with William Desmond in the title role, as a swashbuckling pirate of the days of Captain Kidd. Mary Warren makes her initial appearance as leading woman.

For the week of March 17 Roy Stewart stars in a new Western thriller, “Faith Enduring,” by Kenneth B. Clarke.

Title Changed on Phillips Film

“The Risky Road” is the title decided upon by Universal for the Dorothy Phillips production, previously known as “Her Fling.” “The Risky Road” is from a story by Katharine Liser Robbins which appeared in Live Stories and was adapted and produced by Ida May Parks.

The work of producer, star and supporting company has proven exceptionally good and the picture is to be published as a special production. Dorothy Phillips is supported in “The Risky Road” by William Stowell, George Cheeseman, Edwin Cecil, Joseph Girard, Juanita Hansen, Claire De Brey and Sally Starr.
China Offers Big Film Market

There are three motion picture theatres in Harbin, China, known, respectively, as the Orient, in the New Town; the Modern and Decadence, in the Friestan. There is also a motion picture theatre at Shilung, Manchouli, owned by the proprietors of the Harbin enterprises.

Of the three Harbin houses, one has a capacity of 600 seats, and the two others have 500 each. The prices vary according to the decoration of the seat from 35 kopecks for the cheapest to 150 rubles for loge seats. In ordinary times this is the equivalent in United States currency of 18 cents for the cheapest and a little more than 75 cents for the most expensive seats. At the elocution at the end, the depreciation of the ruble, it means from 2 to 10 cents gold.

Russian Dramas Are Popular

Most of the films shown at present are either Russian dramas, acted by companies in Moscow or Petrograd, or war pictures and scenes from distant lands. Ninety-five per cent of the spectators are Russians, who read only their own language, and who understand the emotion depicted may be placed near the truth that there is hardly any other form of evening amusement.

All these theatres are owned by one firm, Alexieff & Co., of Moscow and Irkutsk, throughout eastern Siberia, especially at the cities of Irkutsk, Krasnoyarsk, Chita, Blagavestschenisk, Habarovsk, Nikolaevsk, Vladivostok, and Harbin.

Films are examined, seen, and purchased by the firm's agents at Moscow and Irkutsk, and no films are ever bought until they have been exhibited to the purchasers. They are in the market for foreign films, those of Pathé Frères being the most popular, though several American companies are represented on the screens from time to time.

Five-Reel Dramas Demanded

Some sets of American film have been purchased for 30 cents gold per foot, and others were sold for about 50 cents gold per meter. Many of the pictures exhibited are not purchased, but rented. Pathé Frères; Hanchakoff, of Moscow, and Ermolakoff, of Moscow, are the companies whose products are most commonly shown.

Four and five act dramas of the highly emotional and sentimental kind are most popular. Cowboy activities, murders, and burglaries do not appeal to these audiences. Rough comedy is wasted even on the cheapest Russian audience. They do not understand it.

American pictures, as a rule, do not appeal to the Russian taste. They want a drama woven usually around the "eternal triangle"; the hero must be a noble fellow, and the women weak but beautiful. A weeping mother or the deathbed of a beloved father is always very impressive. There must be a death in the drama, preferably the suicide of hero or heroine, with the other one among the company at the end. The ideal picture play for Russian popular audiences must not, under any circumstances, have a happy ending.

The Russians use a great deal of descriptive and explanatory material on the films in showing their own dramas. They depend upon it largely for the "action." They do not care nearly so much for action in the pictures as for postures indicating emotions. Amatory and deathbed scenes should always be photographed to the last detail, but nearly everything else is written and read. American firms which desire to find a Russian or Siberian or Manchurian market must have the script translated into the Russian language.

As Moscow is the city in Russia to which all theatres and motion picture companies send their agents to select plays, American companies should send their representatives there to exhibit their products.

June Elvidge in "The Way Out"

June Elvidge, the World Pictures' star, will make her next appearance in "The Way Out," scheduled for March 23. This play deals with a question of international marriage, and the story owes its creation to the characteristic credulity of Americans who are prone to become interested in any individual who claims for himself a prominent position in Burke's peerage or the Almanach de Gotha.

"Powers That Prey" Mutual Feature

Starring Mary Miles Minter March 4

Mary Miles Minter, the dainty little optimism of the screen, will be seen in a country-draught vibratory with action entitled "Powers That Prey," on the Mutual program for March 4. The play, based on a story by Will M. Ritchey, was produced by the American Film Company under the direction of Henry King, and is a story of newspaper life involving the conflict of a scrupulous editor and unscrupulous politicians.

Miss Minter is cast in the role of Sylvia Grant, the pampered daughter of Burton Grant, editor of the Daily News, who is fighting the attempted stealing of a love-lie by crooked politicians working in the interests of a railroad.

When Grant is compelled to leave the city, Sylvia assumes the editorship of the paper and proceeds to be brutally frank in condemnation of McVey, the leader of the political gang and also some of the Addison society leader of the town. The inside workings of a newspaper plant are realistically shown, and the actual process of getting out a newspaper is tinctured with delightful comedy that relieves the tension.

Included in the cast are Alan Forrest, who plays lead, Clarence Burton, the crooked politician, Lucille Ward, Emma Kluge and Harvey Clark.

The first issues of the Screen Telegram, the Mutual's twice-a-week news film, is scheduled for March 3 and March 6. The Screen Telegram supplants the Mutual Weekly, which has been for long the news reel of the Mutual.

Up-to-the-Minute News

Elaborate and comprehensive plans have been perfected for the gathering of real life, up-to-the-minute and interesting news features. An extensive system of foreign camera correspondence has been arranged, which will serve war news from some new angles.

The last picture taken of Capt. Vernon Castle, who was killed at Fort Worth, Texas, Feb. 14, in a heroic attempt to avert disaster to an approaching machine while teaching the cadet to fly, will be shown in the first issue of the Screen Telegram.

Billie Rhodes appears in a Strand Comedy, "Watering Acre," March 5. Billie gets her chum's husband in the scenes when she volunteers to teach him how to step through the latest dances so that he can surprise his wife with his accomplishment at the next club dance. Believing he is philandering with another woman, she tracks him on several suspicious clues, and finally runs him to earth in her own parlor where Billie is showing him the intricacies of the "Honolulu Wiggle."

Gaumont-Mutual Weekly No. 9 Presents Interesting Phases of the Great War

Fourteen different news subjects are shown in the current issue of the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly, No. 9, which was published Sunday, February 24. In keeping with the spirit of the times a great number of the subjects deal with matters pertaining to the war.

The training of the American army has been rapid but scientific, and has progressed so rapidly that no apology for four soldiers is necessary. Many of the pictures show that the boys are having quite an enjoyable time in camp. Other pictures show what is being done outside of the training camps in connection with the war, women who are taking the place of men in laboratory work; the Salon Balivon in Red Cross nurses ready to start for France; the pleasant lives led by the Germans who are so fortunate as to be interned in this country, and many news events not pertaining to the war.

On the news subjects show the graves where rest the first American soldiers who fell on French soil; French soldiers in the trenches and on the fighting line and a remarkable engineering feat which has made possible a drawbridge so nicely balanced that it can be operated by one man.

Violet Palmer Farnum's Leading Lady

Violet Palmer, who was co-starred by William box in "Thick Streak," is cast at the present time in the new Farnum production, "Rough and Ready," which is scheduled for March 24. Others in the cast are Alphonse Ehrich, Jessi Arnold, David Higgins, Frank Newton, Mabel Bardine, and Franklin McGlynn.

Ramsaye Explains the Luminous Paint Scandal

The luminous paint - for lightless nights - row having reached the status of an open scandal and disturbance of the public peace and public order, Terry Ramsaye, reputed author of the paint idea, has issued a formal statement on the matter, with a view to setting it at rest. His statement follows:

"On the occasion of a recent outing during which I was 'roughing it' on Broadway I was invited to a luncheon held by the Associated Viewers, an organization of which I am a charter member - due for quarterly quarter paid.

"I was naturally eager to hear the news from Chicago, the great American metropolis. I told them a number of things, and since it has always been pointed to me to the reception accorded to amuse rather than educate, I illuminated the occasion by the new classic tale of the luminous paint.

"Following my return to Chicago an early dog train mail from the New York frontier brought me an official communication from the A. M. P. A. which said in part:

The Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, Inc., desire to express their thanks for your suggestion regarding the use of luminous paint, made by - filling - for entertainments.

"Our investigating committee reports that Fox & Co. regard that experiments have shown Chicago to be the only city where a piece of luminous paint might be used for night advertising. It seems that the luminosity will last only for an hour after sundown, which makes this paint absolutely worthless in any other town. In cities where folks stay up later than seven o'clock, luminous paint, to be concise - an - for the poet so aptly remarks: "This joke that lies in Luminous Paint Is rare and rich, elusive and faint."

But the light that lies dark and brown Fore the lies that light when Terry's turn."

In response to this communication, which I note was not signed by any officer of the A. M. P. A. of record, I received the following:

I am deeply touched and keenly appreciative of the wealth of attention and publicity which you have accorded me in connection with the matter of "luminous paint."

"But there is something in the situation and your skeptical attitude which reminds one of the great investigative reporter, Theodore-the-Great, when he returned from South America with a map of the "River of Doubt."

"It is an axiom of fate that the servants of science shall be martyrs. I love to be a martyr on page one."

"Humdrum Brown" Next Walthall Production

"Humdrum Brown," Henry B. Walthall's second Paralta play, made by his own producing company, has been completed. This production is of a type which stands out as being entirely different from the kind in which Walthall has previously appeared, it is said. It is a tense drama with touches of excellent comedy. Mr. Walthall's delineation of the part of "Humdrum," the struggling, ambitious youth, who has grown up in a small town, will be a revelation to those who have followed his career.

The story deals with the adventures of "Humdrum Brown," who despite his efforts earnestly to attain a place among successful men, meets hard luck at every turn. At length, forced by circumstances he goes to the metropolis of the west where he takes up the profession of adversity. Here he meets with a series of thrilling adventures that carry him back in memory to the happenings of his home town and then throw him into the darkness of available adventure.

The picture was made from an original scenario by H. B. Daniel and was produced under the direction of Rex Ingram. Mary Charlie, who appears in the leading role opposite, Mr. Walthall, and the remainder of the cast includes Joseph J. Dowling, Kate Price, Ida Lewis, Dorothy Love, John Clark, Joe Harris and Howard Crampton.

Farnum and Company

Return From Port Henry

William Farnum, the William Fox star, and a large company of players appeared in the forthcoming production, "Rough and Ready," returned to New York last week from Port Henry, N. Y., where they were filming the show.

They were gone about three weeks, and Director Richard Stanton, who is in charge of the third picture Mr. Farnum has appeared in, reports exceptionally fine results from the trip to the Adirondacks.

Mr. Farnum began work on the re- enactment of the story which appears in the studios in New York City. The subject will be published as a standard picture on March 24.

Universal Co. Gives Luncheon at Rector's

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, in cooperation with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, tendered a testimonial luncheon to Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo of New York, at Rector's, New York, on Friday, February 22, in appreciation of the suggestion by Mr. Hugo and his cooperation in the production of a feature film for the Safety First campaign to be conducted throughout the country.

Among the guests, in addition to Mr. Hugo, was J. Curran of New York State Automobile Bureau, Henry Goldsmith, Edwin S. Babcock, J. G. Robinson, C. D. Studebaker, C. H. Mac- Gowan, Carl Laemmle, Joseph Brandt, Paul Gulick, Harry Levey, Hal Hodes, and some forty to fifty other guests.

R. M. Simril Promoted

R. M. Simril, for a number of years sales manager of Goldsmith Film Company, has been appointed manager of the company's Atlanta office. He was at one time manager of the old General Jackson office, but lately has been traveling out of the Atlanta office, of which he now assumes charge.

Wholesome to Make Two Features a Month

Matinees, from which parents will be barred unless accompanied by children, will be a feature of many leading motion picture theatres, according to M. J. Weisfeldt, general manager of the Wholesome Films Corporation. Speaking along this line, Mr. Weisfeldt says:

"There is a big advantage in a matinee exclusively for children, especially in neighborhood theatres or those in smaller cities, as it gives the exhibitor an opportunity to change his program for the younger patrons who attend the afternoon show.

"As a result of box office returns from juvenile matinees, the demand for suitable productions for such occasions on the increase. The Wholesome Films Corporation, specializing on pictures of this character, will eventually publish feature exclusively for children and more of them should be shown. I believe that they would con every week when they did last Saturday. I intend booking one of these every week and I feel very confident that they will go over big in booking them in the way. I run them at the matinee only think that better in accordance with the double attraction on the day."

Mary Miles Minter

In "A Bit of Jade"

Mary Miles Minter has completed the seventh production of her present series, entitled "A Bit of Jade," under the direction of Edwin Sloman, who secures many beautiful scenes, it is said, at His Ranch lake, heretofore unavailable for picture making.

Miss Minter's new story by Jean Judson is under way, the working title being "The Church Window Angel." This is the first of a new line of stories to selected by Will M. Richey, senior editor of the American Film Company. In the same line of development, Another My Heart has Alan Forrest as her leading man. Vera Lewis, a new addition to the American staff, will have a part in the play and Alfred Ferguson, Clark Burton and David Howard will continue the cast.

Another new story which was secured at considerably with the Wind Film Compa- any's announcement, for Miss Minter is "Ghost of Rosy Taylor," a story which attracted much attention when it appeared in the recent issue of the Salesman Evening Post. It was written by Joseph Daskam Bacon.
Exchanges Already Burdened With Taxes Not Asked to Stand Fuelless Day Charges

The Exchanges's Association of Ontario and Quebec have been holding important meetings during the last week or so. Starting with Saturday, Feb. 9, a special meeting was called of the Exchange's which resulted in every exchange being represented and the meetings extended well into the next week.

The most important decision reached was in regard to the five heatless Mondays during which all theatres will be closed. After looking at the situation from all angles it was decided that the exhibitors are in a better position to say the rental for films for Monday (which ordinarily would be used on Monday and Tuesday) than exchanges could afford the loss entailed by each exhibitor refusing to pay for this show as day.

During the last year the exchanges have had extra tax burdens. The tax of 5 per cent per foot placed on film by the United States government was covered in the states by the people paying the tax in addition to their admission out in Canada the exchanges stood this extra tax without raising the rentals to be charged exhibitors.

As most of the smaller exhibitors run serial on Monday and Tuesday, it was pointed out that they would get the wrong on Tuesday, and thus the money which would materially help to pull up their receipts for the week.

Officers chosen for the ensuing year are: General Manager, Reginald O. Mitchell, Invited president, and James Travis, manager of the Mutual Film Company, Toronto; secretaries include J. Allen, of the Famous Players Film Service Limited, and Claire Hague, general manager of the Universal Film Company Limited.

Alberta Exhibitors Annoyed
By Long Collect Telegrams

Some association signing itself the Committee of Motion Picture, Vaudeville and legitimate and Film Exchanges, is guilty of sending telegram to Alberta exhibitors advising them of the rumor to close all theatres in Canada for three days a week. The Alberta exhibitors know who they are.

The telegram consisted of 101 words and was sent collect, causing the exhibitor to expend $2.00, while the international association of theatrical stage employees and opera union wired only twenty-five words to their respective Edmonton locals, which told the same story and saved considerable expense.

The recent draft under the Military Service Act took several musicians from the St. Denis orchestra, which is composed of nineteen players under the leadership of Milton Blankstein. However, Mr. Blankstein has been successful in securing new musicians to fill the vacancies and has not reduced the size of the orchestra.

A novel use of the motion picture theatre has been made in the case of a young woman in Toronto who lost her purse with considerable money in it. The young woman visited all the newspaper offices in the hope of getting an advertisement in the evening paper, only to find that she was too late, that the forms were all closed. A few moments later while passing a motion picture theatre the bright idea occurred to her to see if the manager and assistant could find her purse on the screen. To her delight the manager did and it was not very long after that a smiling youth brought the purse to the box office.

Muir Graham, formerly shipper of the Vancouver office of the Canadian Universal Film Company, recently decided that he needed out-door exercise so he hired himself to a farm in Saskatchewan. Jim Patterson, formerly connected with the Fox Film Company, has filled the vacancy very capably.

All the theatres and amusement places are closed in Charlam, Ont., due to snow, which is breaking out. It is likely the public places will be closed for at least one week.

Hon. Walter Mitchell, provincial treasurer, gave his opinion in the Quebec Legislature on February 8 when the question of supervision of moving pictures was taken up, that the censorship in that province was more severe than in any other province in the dominion. Mr. Sauve, representing one of the Quebec constituencies opposed the Hon. Walter Mitchell, stating that he would ask for stricter supervision as in his opinion some pictures encouraged individuals to break the law. No action was taken by the Legislature, however.

Manager Mills of Loew's new theatre in Montreal, invited 500 officers and men of the 2nd Quebec Depot Battalion as his guests at the evening performance on February 10. There was plenty of room to accommodate these 500 soldiers in the large auditorium and Mr. Mills made arrangements whereby the soldiers paraded to the theatre in a body, were welcomed by his managers and mingled with friends and relatives in the house. The friends, of course, were not admitted free.

Minister Flays Exhibitors;
Theatremen Ask Apology

Rev. Basil Thompson of Manitoba gave a stirring address to his congregation in Winnipeg on the attitude taken by the theatre men in connection with the three days closing. Mr. Thompson demanded of the theatre managers action and questioned their patriotism. He made the comparison "Nero Fiddled While Rome Burned" and stated that moving picture magnates in Manitoba "would fiddle while Winnipeg froze." He made the statement that the moving picture business had never been so prosperous since the war started and said that the hours were lengthened so as to let more people see the war pictures and the price was not reduced. He also intimated that war pictures were brought into the country at inflated prices and that enormous profits were made.

Rivalry between church and theatre should not be compared of those as to sacrifice or patriotism is absurd," was one of his points.

Rev. Thompson made the suggestion that the theatre managers or three theatres free for the entertainment of next of kin to brighten up their lives than to keep the moving picture taxes.

All through Mr. Thompson's speech he used such arguments as given above and it is understood that the theatre men of Winnipeg have asked for a public apology from him for many of his statements.
Inflated Prices are Greatest Evil
Opinion of Arrow Film Corp. Head

The motion picture producer who sells his product to the buyer at inflated prices is not only murdering his own organization, but he is forcing the buyer into film suicide, according to W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation. According, are very Shallenberger the majority of the film buyers throughout the country are paying too much for their pictures and all of them are overbuying.

"The trouble," said he, "can be traced directly to the producer and the inflated prices he has been placing on his negative. The producer comes into the market heralding the fact that his picture cost him so many thousands of dollars to make.

This is the cream of his selling talk, the amount of money he has spent in completing the film and the larger he can make this amount the more pleased he is. He places an exorbitant price on the picture and expects to make a handsome profit for himself. The point is he doesn't.

If the producer who be satisfied with selling his picture at a fair and equitable profit the entire business would be on a much better basis and there would be less failures reported in the producing field, but he isn't. Two large a number of producers are trying to squeeze every penny they can from every picture they make and in this squeezing process they are not only murdering their own organizations, but are forcing the buyer to commit film suicide.

"The buyers today are paying too much for their pictures. This is apparent to anyone who watches film conditions throughout this country intelligently. There is too much competition and too much overbuying and because of this, and the inflated prices, buyers are not only killing themselves off, but are clogging the industry.

"It is possible today to manufacture, sell and exhibit pictures so that everyone along the line will make his fair share of the profits. That this doesn't happen more frequently is due to the inflation of prices. Economic conditions during the war in general the box motion picture industry in particular is bringing about a new state of things which will automatically eliminate the man who inflates prices.

"The intelligent buyer who knows what pictures to buy and when to buy them and who isn't forced to pay exorbitant prices has an opportunity to make a 'turnover' and get his second picture from the profits he made with the first one.

"Conditions will readjust themselves, but in the meantime more intelligent attention will have to be given to prices placed on pictures if the industry is to be kept on an even keel."

Uses United States
To Try Out Pictures
For Foreign Markets

America, called the "Melting Pot of the World," with its conglomeration of nationalities, affords an excellent field, according to Mr. G. Hall, president of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, in which to gauge the value of a motion picture production for the foreign market.

If a distributor is desirous of finding whether a picture will interest people of the Latin-American countries he has only to screen his production in the Southern section of California or in Texas or Oklahoma. If he should want to know whether Orientals will like he subject he can show it to Chinese or Japanese in the settlements of San Francisco or, for that matter, right here in New York City.

In order to obtain this information we booked "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," declare Mr. Hall, "has been sold in many foreign territories. We desired, however, to know how it would appeal to the people of the Orient, whether the Chinese and Japanese liked spectacular subjects or whether they preferred a strong dramatical subject, like our second production, "Race for Speed."

"In order to obtain this information we booked "The Zeppelin's Last Raid" in the Verdi Theatre in San Francisco a theatre conducted solely for Oriental entertainment and gave us just the information we sought for.

The production was a gratifying success and proved to us that spectacle embraces strong appeal for peoples of the Oriental nations."

Hon. H. W. Adams and
Rev. J. B. Cox Elected
National Board Reviews

The Hon. H. W. Adams, mayor of Beloit, Wis., and Rev. James Boyd Cox, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, St. Louis, have just been elected members of the National Advisory Committee of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures.

Mayor Adams has shown a very intelligent interest in the subject of regulation of motion pictures. Soon after entering office he invited the proprietors of the motion picture houses to meet him at his office for a conference on the subject of regulation. At this conference he told them of the city's desire to co-operate with them in placing their business upon a basis that would deserve public confidence and respect, and added that it was the city's intention that only acceptable pictures should be shown.

He then invited the exhibitors to inform him of any picture about which they had any doubt as to the desirability of exhibiting in Beloit.

"We found," said Mayor Adams in describing this plan, "that they were all willing to co-operate, and this voluntary censorship was established. I believe the city has been doing a wonderful job in that we have this plan and practice here, and we are careful as to what pictures they bring in."

The Rev. Mr. Cox is one of the leading clergymen in St. Louis and has shown great interest in the subject of motion pictures.

World Film Corp.
In Market for Big Stories for Screen

The World Film Corporation announced several changes in its scenario department and in the production end of the business. These changes are in the interest of better cooperation and coordination in the securing and filming of highest quality of stories, stories that have the biggest possible box office value to exhibitors.

The World scenario department under the management of Charles Sarver will operate on the principle that the subject matter is sixty percent of screen success. In other words, the story is of vital importance.

Mr. Sarver is getting the box office for the exhibitors, and it is for the very best stories obtainable that Mr. Sarver and his assistants are now diligently searching.

Following the acceptance of a story by the World scenario department, the story will be given to one of the staff of scenario writers for the preparation of the working script. This script will be passed on by five high officials of the company, and after all differences have been settled, the script is made up in picture form. And after a script has once been put in work there will be no rewriting, no changing by the director.

In the production end of the department the cost estimates of a production will be carefully checked. The whole work of production will be conducted just as efficiently and as carefully as possible, making every dollar spent mean more money for the exhibitor at the box office.

Recent Fuel Embargo
Helped Film Business

A. S. Kirkpatrick, representing the sales department of the Mutual Film Corporation, has just returned from a ten days' trip in some of the eastern cities. Mr. Kirkpatrick says that the recent fuel embargo was beneficial rather than detrimental to the film business.

"The embargo actually increased the business one-third in the territory involved," said Mr. Kirkpatrick. "This was due to the fact that every man in our service was spurred to greater activity by what most of us regarded as the beginning of a possible calamity. Under the impetus of this idea everybody worked unceasingly to overcome the handicap, and the result was big gratifying."

"During my trip I visited the Mutual branch offices at Albany, Washington, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. I found the organization working mirably and may say that I believe I have a more efficient sales force. The film managers and their staffs have been carefully selected. They are good men, full of gumption and go. They are doing their work for itself.

"They work without friction and good results. "Discussing matters with the exhibitors in all the cities I had a feeling of confidence in Mutual's business attitude. The thing that particularly impressed exhibitors, I judge from their comments, was Mutual's attitude, which relieved it of a serious and endless embarrassment.

First Screen Telegram Shows Vernon Castle

The last appearance before the camera of Captain Vernon Castle, of the British Royal Flying Corps, who gave his life in averting a collision with another airplane above the flying field at Dallas, Tex., will be included in the first Screen Telegraph, the twice-a-week news film of the Mutual Film Corporation. This picture of the noted dancer who entered the service of his country and made an enviable record for daring in more than 150 fights on the German lines, was posed for the Screen Telegraph's Dallas correspondent on the flying field where he met a heroic death a few days ago.

Bookings on the Screen Telegraph, which is issued on Sunday, March 9, have exceeded all expectations, it is announced. The number of prints originally ordered by the sales department of the Mutual Film Corporation have been more than trebled to take care of the contract business on this new news feature.

Blaine McGrath, editor of the Screen Telegraph, has moved into offices at the American Film Company plant, 6335 Broadway, Chicago, where the laboratory work on the news films will be done. Mr. McGrath has organized a large staff of cameramen who are stationed at advantageous points throughout the country for covering every news happening of pictorial importance.

In addition a corps of camera correspondents in smaller cities will contribute to the making of the Screen Telegraph. Arrangements have been concluded for obtaining the latest war happenings abroad and pictures showing the activities of American troops in France will be a regular feature of the Screen Telegraph.

Harry Rapt Adds
Fourth Feature to Independents' List

Harry Rapt, one of the eight independent producers who have determined to market their pictures direct from producer to exhibitor, announces that Capt. Robert Warick and Elaine Hammerstein in "The Accidental Honeymoon," will be distributed in accordance with the directions of the producers by the Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated.

Robert Warwick is now a captain in the United States Army, attached to General Pershing's staff in France, and his services are in demand as an interpreter owing to his exceptional linguistic ability.

"The Accidental Honeymoon" is a romantic comedy. It is written and directed by Leonce Perret and embodies many of the same characters that were used in his earlier production "The Mad Lover."

The picture is the fourth feature to be added to the list announced by the Producers & Exhibitors, Affiliated, "A Woman Eternal," with Elaine Hammerstein, a Rapt feature, "The Struggle Everlasting," starring Florence Reed, and "Le Juge," produced by Rialto Film Corporation.

Homes and MacLane
Features in Demand

Bookings on George K. Spoor's Ultra features continue to manifest the popularity of both Taylor Holmes and Mary MacLane, the authoress-actress it is said.

"Men Who Have Made Love to Me," written and acted by Miss MacLane, is enjoying successful runs in many theatres and is the subject of successful two weeks' run in the Chicago Band Box theatre, the manager booked the Taylor Holmes Feature, "Uneasy Money." Both this and "Men Who Have Made Love to Me" are also "going good" in various cities through the country.

"Ruggles of Red Gap," with Taylor Holmes as the star, is to follow "Uneasy Money."

"A Pair of Sixes," the newest Holmes vehicle by Edward Peple, is now completed and the advertising matter is being prepared, Essanay announces.

Jester to Enlarge
Cliffside, N. J. Studio

William Steiner of the Jester Comedy Company, has just placed his O. K. plan for extensive alterations at his studio at Cliffside, N. J., also for the building of an additional wing in order to increase the floor space of the interior studio.

At the present time the combined outdoor and indoor studio measures seven thousand, five hundred square feet and with the new addition it will raise the capacity to twelve thousand square feet. The laboratory also will be greatly enlarged, which will give him capacity of two hundred thousand feet of film per week, or double what it is at present.
New Douglass Films

Make Impression at New York Showing

New York City.—Leon Forrest Douglass, of San Rafael, Cal., has perfected a new style of colored motion picture. The subbing ones and those who were merely curious were present at a private presentation at Wurlitzer Hall recently when some samples of the new pictures were projected on the screen.

The advantages of the new Douglass process is that the pictures may be projected by an ordinary machine. No color screens are necessary, as the colors are the film itself, although the films appear to be merely black and white. Just as with that feat is accomplished is known only to the inventor.

Mr. Douglass first mastered the laws of sound, and it was due to his inventive mind that the Victorola has been brought to its present perfection. The same theories he applied to color, and the new motion pictures are the result of these experiments.

The picture opens with a scene called "sunset," and closes with a sunset on the Golden Gate. All of the changing colors of the sky are shown in these pictures.

A bathing girl pageant is a most active feature of the showing. There is a continuity in the process for the pictures, as shown, were simply intended to demonstrate the wonderful possibilities of the colored films. There are the Liberty Bell, the American Eagle and Flag, scenes from the Yosemite Valley and Yellowstone Park, the Hopi Indian dance in the Grand Canyon, scenes of forest fires, and scenes which show Mary McLaren and Vivian Reed at work and play.

The pictures are not only colored, but they are not color, it is said that the cost of producing these pictures is likely a little more than that of the ordinary film.

Florida Exhibitors
Re-elect C. D. Cooley
As State President

Tampa, Fla.—C. D. Cooley has been re-elected president of the Florida Motion Picture Exhibitors league. The meeting was held at Jacksonville. Mr. Cooley is president of the Strand Amusement Company of this city. Patriotic spirit was prevalent at the meeting and the president was instructed to offer the services of the picture men to the government and assure the authorities that every screen in the state of Florida is open to the government for running any pictures it may ask to be shown.

Considerable attention was given at the meeting to the matter of exclusive contracts and the handling of films. Another meeting of the league will be held at Daytona in May and possibly one in Tampa.

The meeting was largely attended by motion picture men from all over the state, those from Tampa in addition to Mr. Cooley being Al H. LaBelle and Fletcher Catron. Mr. LaBelle was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Stop Sunday Shows:
Proves Boomerang

Kearney, Neb.—Considerable chagrin is evident among those prominent in a movement here which resulted in a Sunday closing order being adopted by the city council. The nature of the law is such that it prohibits Sunday entertainment of any sort to which admission is charged.

The drive of the church forces, as declared, was directed simply against the motion picture theatres of this city but the measure will have the effect of closing baseball parks on Sunday and will not permit of chautauqua entertainments on that day.

Superior, Neb.—E. C. Preston, proprietor of the Sterling Theatre here, has sold the Empress from Mrs. A. J. Deorr and will operate both motion picture theatres.

Calumet, Mich.—John D. Cuddihy, manager of the Calumet Theatre, has been served with a temporary city order that place of amusement, the city council granting the permit. The lease is for $3,000 per year, an increase of $500 per year over the terms of the old lease.

Grant City, Mo.—The Gem Theatre here changed hands last week when the lease held by Simmons and Kinkade was transferred to Ira Martin and Sayle Robertson, who took possession immediately.

Candence, Tenn.—The motion picture theatre here operated for the last year by Chandler and Chandler of Gold Knob, Ark., has been sold to Wyle B. Davidson of the firm of B. F. Davidson & Sons.

David City, Neb.—Manager McGaffin of the Lyric Theatre here has disposed of this property to W. W. Hughes, owner of the Community Theatre. It is the ultimate intention of the new owner to close the Lyric and operate only the one theatre in this city.

Missoula, Mont.—Construction of Missoula's new theatre will begin just as soon as plans can be prepared, the directors of the Missoula theatre company have decided after hearing the report of Manager Gil J. Heyron, who has just returned from an extensive inspection of eastern theatres.

Torrington, Conn.—Fire recently damaged the Strand Theatre building in East Main street. The loss totals about $2,000.

Lonoke, Ark.—J. X. Cobb, owner of the Princess Theatre at Batesville will open a picture theatre in this city in the near future.

"Zepplin's Last Raid"

Scores in Bridgeport

A unique record has been established by the Thomas H. Ince spectacle, "The Zepplin's Last Raid," according to Frank G. Hall, president of the U. S. Mutoscope Company, which will operate motion picture shows, has been filed. The capital stock will be $50,000. Incodorporators mentioned in the application were J. W. Blair, F. G. Martham, W. A. Dupree, Ralph W. Northcutt, D. B. Bradley, A. H. Gilbert and J. M. Austin.

Philadelphia.—The moving picture theatre at the southwest corner of Fifty-third street and Lansdowne avenue has been sold by Jay Emmanuel to Samuel Segar.
NOTE: Below is printed a blank form which exhibitors may use in keeping records upon which to base tax reports on admissions. It is essential that a daily record be kept in order that the Government may be able to obtain the information it requires in each case. Chicago Concern Wins Fight for Sunday Theatres

Cadillac, Mich.—The Fitzpatrick-McElroy company of Chicago, owners of the Lyric Theatre, this city, a motion picture house, have been successful in their legal fight to keep their playhouse open on Sunday. The Lyric, which cost $50,000 and seats 1,000 persons, was opened here recently by the Chicago newspaper.

A monster petition was circulated through the churches of the city to prevent the theatre from opening on Sunday. The management ignored the petition and a real fight was fought in the Recorder’s court.

In his decision the judge rules that the showing of motion pictures on Sunday did not constitute any disturbance of the peace nor did they interfere in any way with those who did not see it to attend them. The jurist further held that such pictures were not in any way detrimental to the morals of the community but, on the other hand, had served many purposes in educational, scientific, industrial and vocational lines.

The prosecuting attorney conceded during the hearing that the conduct of the theatre was above reproach and that the only statute under which the case could be prosecuted were state laws which had been in existence for more than forty-seven years.

The court stated that his ruling was in accordance with the decisions of the supreme court of the state of Michigan. Municipalities, he said, were not empowered to enact legislation which prohibited greater penalties for offenses than those provided for in specific statutes.

E. Schwartz Begins Drive in Behalf of Special War Feature

An intensive campaign in behalf of the war feature “Thirty Nations at War,” being distributed in the central western states by the E. S. Film Exchange, is being planned by E. Schwartz. The drive will center in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Mr. Schwartz has appointed C. L. Pafrath to take care of operations in Illinois and Indiana while Stephan Bandrowski, well known Polish playwright and producer, has been assigned to the Wisconsin territory.

It is the belief of Mr. Schwartz that once the campaign is under way the picture will meet with the same success it has already enjoyed in Chicago where many theatres are playing return dates. The war feature is in seven reels and contains many battle scenes taken on all fronts “over there.”

Chief Wm. J. Flynn Guest of Honor At Chicago Dinner

William J. Flynn, for twenty years head of the New York City department of the United States secret service, and five years in charge of the same department at Washington, was the guest of honor at a dinner given by F. J. Flaherty, manager of the Hoffman Foursquare Film Exchange, Chicago, at the Illinois Athletic Club, Monday evening, February 25.

Mr. Flynn furnished the material from which the scenario was written for the twenty episode serial, “The Eagle’s Eye,” now being produced by the Wharton Bros.’ studios at Ithaca, N. Y.

The former chief of the secret service disclosed many interesting facts regarding German intrigues in and around New York. He explained how they planned to blow up munition ships, how they spent millions buying up munition plants, attempted to spread discord among friends, and in various ways hamper the government. When war was declared Mr. Flynn said Germany knew that just how much chlorine was manufactured in the United States, how much acetic acid, how much steel and where; how much wheat and cotton was grown and by whom bought. And during the war the Germans purchased millions of pounds of cotton and wheat and exported them to the Scandinavian countries and from there brought them into its own homes.

Those present as Mr. Flaherty’s guests besides Mr. Flynn were Mr. and Mrs. Robt. McQueen, Miss Jennifer, Mrs. F. J. Flaherty, L. W. Albright, R. D. Lawhead, G. A. Witte, F. E. Zinder and J. R. Murray.

Paramount-Arcraft To Move Exchange From Loop District

Paramount and Arcraft pictures will soon have a new home in Chicago in the Newbury building at the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Ninth street. Max Goldstine, Chicago representative of the companies, has purchased the property from N. B. Jenney of New York and has secured a ground on which it stands for a term of ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $7,000.

It is announced that the five upper floors will be used by the picture companies who are now located in the Consumers building and that the United States government will continue to occupy the three lower floors as a labor employment bureau. The price paid for the building, which is of fireproof construction, is $100,000 and it is said to have been a substantial sum.

Jones, Linick & Schaefner

“Tarzan of the Apes,” the most recent purchase of the First National Exhibitor’s Circuit, a filmization of Burrough’s weird tale, will be marketed in the Chicago territory by Jones, Linick & Schaefner during the month of April, according to an announcement by Aaron J. Jones.

Another announcement made by Mr. Jones is that the Brenon picture “The Fall of the Romanoffs,” having to do with autocratic aristocracy in Russia, will be given as the first local performance at the Orpheum Theatre the week beginning Monday, March 18. It is in this feature that Ilidor, the confidant of Rasputin, is introduced. It was through the secret documents smuggled into America by this monk that Mr. Brenon obtained valuable information for the purpose of this feature.

Miss Mabel Condon Entertains Press At Noon Luncheon

Miss Mabel Condon acted as hostess at a luncheon given in honor of Miss Edna Earle, at the Congress Hotel, Tuesday noon, February 26.

Among the guests present, in addition to trade press representatives, were Mr. Scerber, father of Miss Earle, Miss O’Raney of the “Leave It to Jane Company,” and Betty Shannon.

Miss Earle, accompanied by her father and Miss Condon, is on her way to California, where she has signed with a motion picture company. Announcement of her other pictures is to be made later. Miss Earle has just finished an engagement with the Pathé Company and hopes to renew work in her new connection shortly after her arrival in the west.

PERSONALS

By “Mac”

A recent rumor has been officially confirmed regarding the acceptance of the renewal R. O. Proctor, manager of Pathé, as a full-fledged member of the “Scribes” Den,” Chicago Film Club, No, we can’t say as to Ralph being a competitor of Ring Lardner or B. T., but take it from us, the club will soon appreciate the fact that another regular guy is with ‘em.

H. A. Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Film Corp., just returned from his extended Eastern trip chuckfull of splendid results attained, having practically disposed of the state rights to “The Frozen Warning” for the entire territory.

M. J. Weisfeldt, general manager of the Wholesome Films Corp., will surely knock 'em cold down along ole Broadway with the frivolous gray sartorial creation we saw him climg in' on the train with, Friday p.m., February 22.

Some has been asking us who that great big handsome chap is disputing himself about the various exchanges all covered up in that million dollar fur coat. Positively nay, he is no cattle magnate nor gold prospector from the Yukon; he is the man in the south side managing the Hyde Park Theatre and comes to the name of A. Gordon Francis, ahem!

"Si" Greiver, of G. & H. film fame, is off his "Tint Can 6 limo" for awhile. So busy on their new release, "The City of Purple Dreams," that "Si" and his partner, Lee Herz, are arranging to sleep in their double a full time period to catch up on the slumber stuff.

That new arrangement of the Central Film suite rounded up out of entering the sacred portal of some railroad or packing monarch's hang-out. And take it from us with pal R. E. Seery located as he is, we'll say the direction is ample. Next?

That Jack Schwartz, formerly of Detroit, is certainly there with an armful of contracts for the local Goldwyn offices, cleaning up everywhere in the Indiana field.

They tell us that Ed Mordue of the Standard Film Corp. has been taking his evening stums to the Fullman store here of late. What's it about, Eddie, can't you get enuff in the city between that theatre you're booking and the local contracts for Standard.

Someone tells us the Pathé office had did away with its direct by mail service in J. W. Brickhouse's territory. Why shouldn't they, Gosh, ole "Dean" Brickhouse knows 'em all.

That soft like jazz that has been discovered attempting to grasp a foothold in Chris Whelan's dome is an acknowledged fact. Chris was caught last week copping a gallon or two of 3-in-1 oil from the George Kleine store room and saturating his cranial parts with same. Good work, ole top, we won't hold that agin yer.

Will H. W. Peters please note? In the future if you are in doubt as to the speediest route to 63rd street and environs from the Unity Photoplays office hail a Yellow cab. (Free "Ad," if you please.)

Some one tells us that Art Frillman has been elected sbr, at arms for the Unity in addition to his duties as salesman. Just take a slant at those shoulders of him and forevermore hold your peace.

A. J. Gallas of the Select sales squad is being watched very closely for the past week or so by the boys of the Consumers Building. Don't need a style magazine for info—just watch A. J., he has it all.

The latest film organization to become effected in our Loop was finally put over some time last week, to be known as the "Boil Sympathy League." Frank B. Rogers was unanimously elected president, J. A. Salter, of Vitagraph, treasurer, and Geo. Berg of Amalgamated Film Service headquarters the stewards at the present are taking their meals by way of the mantelpiece. Such is life, but knock wood, you wise guys.

W. H. Englemann, special representative for the production, an a feature, lit up like the veritable busy bee and full of money huns. It sounds from the local garden of Exhibs like the "Carmen of the Klondike," the recently purchased feature, was ageing to be a real find.

William Russell Has Commenced Work on
His First Production

William Russell, action star of the motion picture drama, famous athlete as well as film favorite, is at work on his first production with the new William Russell Productions organization at his studios in southern California.

Mr. Russell, who arrived on the coast from New York only a week ago jumped right into hard work on the first of his new productions under the working tile of "Adrienne Gascony.

The drama is based on a story of the same tile written by William Hamilton Osborne. Mr. Osborne also wrote "The Red Mouse," a stage success, dramatized as "The Prosecutor"; "The Running Fight," produced for the New York stage in 1910; "The Right Way hit of 1911: "Blue Buckle," a magazine story published in 1911; "Boomerang," 1915, a motion picture success, and "The Seal of the Navy," a 1913 serial that had a re-markably successful run.

Mr. Osborne's story, "Adrienne Gas-coby," is said to be one of the strong-est stories he has at hand. Under the efforts of a pair of South African crooks to win a fortune in America out of the old and exploited crucible scheme of making millions they hold the elements of dramatic action they sought. The play is tense with strong situations, it is said, and works up to a climax, splendidly and effectively on the screen for sensationalism.

Modern Features Buy
Tucker Film "Mother"
For New York State

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin, of General Enterprises, Inc., announce that the New York City has acquired the rights to "Mother" for New York City and state. The arrangements through which the sale of both George Loake Tucker film production becomes part of the Modern program were handled by Herbert Lubin for General Enterprises, Inc., and Charles H. Sawyer, managing director of the Modern Feature Film Company.

It is planned by Mr. Striemer to extensively exploit the star right offering. "Mother," and due to the fact that Elizabeth Risdon, who stars in the film, is at present appearing in the stellar role of "Seven Days Leave," a current Broadway success, street shows throughout the York City and state will be enabled to capitalize on the publicity value of this connection.

Immediately following the sale, Mr. Striemer reported that his exchange has also contracted for the new "Oro" series of six part feature productions, the first two of which, "Loyalty" and "Humility," will soon be issued to exhibitors in this territory.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin stated that the disposition of their state special "Mother" to the Modern Feature Film Company leaves but 17 per cent of the territory for this picture unsold. Considering the short time General Enterprises, Inc., has been exploiting the George Loake Tucker feature, this is regarded as a remarkable sales record. At the present time following territories are still being offered by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin on the basis of territorial allotment: New Mexico, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, Eastern Pennsylvania; Washington, Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia; Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, North and South Carolina.

Select Manager for Pittsburgh District

Leo F. Levinson has been chosen by Select Pictures Corporation to manage the company's exchange in Pittsburgh succeeding Harvey B. Day, who resigned to go into business for himself. Mr. Levinson entered upon his duties a Branch Manager February 19.

In the Pittsburgh territory there is not a more experienced man than Le Levinson. He has for some years been one of the most prominent exchange managers in Pittsburgh. In order to accept the position offered him by Select Pictures, Mr. Levinson resigned from the position of Branch Manager of Pathe Pittsburgh Exchange.

Sydney E. Able, executive office representative for Select, spent a week in Pittsburgh prior to the transfer of the Select branch from the management of Mr. Day to that of Mr. Levinson. Mr. Levinson will remain another week with the new manager. However, Mr. Levinson well able to take care of the affairs of the full exchange as he has held in 6 past with exhibitors in the Pittsburgh territory. Prior to his connection with Pathe, Mr. Levinson was with the World Film Corporation, over whose Pittsburgh branch he had charge during 1914 and 1915. Previous to his entering the picture business, Mr. Levinson was a newspaper advertising and sales cner.

Military First Aid
Shown in Universal Screen Magazine

The American Red Cross and the Universal Film Manufacturing Company cooperated in the production of a special film of Military First Aid and The Saving.

Commodore W. E. Longfellow, head of the Saving Corps of the Red Cross personally directed and acted in the film, which was produced by the Industrial Department of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. Commodore Longfellow is recognized as an authority on the subjects shown. The film is being shown serially in the Universal Screen Magazine.

Among the many instructive scenes shown in this film are the recently developed methods of carrying the wounded, the use of the stretcher, methods of stopping blood, and the use of bandages. Scissors are seen going out into No Man’s Land, under fire, and bringing in helpless men, single handed, and without exposing either their injured comrades or themselves.

A unique carrying trick is demonstrated by which one man carries, in unison, two men who are injured worse than himself. The fireman’s carry, sit-tail carry, and sailor’s carry, all especially favored by military men, are clearly pictured in such a way that they can be readily learned by the layman on one viewing on the screen.

Another section of this picture is devoted to proper handling of a cannal, the way to break death grips of drowning persons, the best strokes for life saving, and the way to rescue them from the water and the easiest carry for getting them ashore, are some of the points judiciously illustrated as they only can be in the movies. Commodore Longfellow’s own latest invention called the t-point carry, used in rescuing a girl in the water, is also incorporated in this picture. A graphic demonstration of the Schaefer method of resuscitating nearly drowned persons. This is but one of the many educational motion pictures on the subject of first that is being produced by Universal’s Industrial Department.

Plans are being at present prepared by the company depicting the various laws of traffic laws, and the cure; fire prevention methods, especially necessary in the present “speed-up” conditions; the proper sanitary rules of conducting the modern factory, particularly the employing women who are gradually filling the places left open by men going their country’s service.

“The Bride’s Revenge”
New Title Chosen
For Select Feature

has been decided to call the new picture which Alice Brady is making for the Select Feature, “The Bride’s Revenge,” a title replacing “Ruthless Russia.” The working title by which the production has hitherto been known.

“Bride’s Revenge” as a story may have a somewhat melodramatic flavor, the producers state that they feel it is peculiarly suited to the picture in much as the story is a gripping tale of love and adventure in modern Russia, just before that unhappy land was plunged into chaos by revolution and internal strife of today’s stories are laid in Petrograd, and the spirit of unrest and mood of the moment is reflected by the by-play of incident and happening with which the picture abounds.

Alice Brady, whose heretofore scored in Russian stories, and whose “Darkest Russia” was one of her most popular successes prior to becoming a Select Pictures star, has received the role of Vera Soroff, it is said. Opposite her plays Frank Morgan, who was her leading man in “The Knife.”

Vladimir G. Tilleman, an expert on Russian art and customs, has been working as special advisor on the filming of “The Bride’s Revenge.”

Magnet Film Exchange
Enters Independent Field in New York

A new independent film exchange to be known as the Magnet Film Exchange, with offices at 71 West Twenty-third street, New York, has been organized for the purpose of booking big productions. They have already acquired the rights to W. H. Production Company’s first art feature, “The Two-Gun Man,” and have secured a first run Broadway booking for the week of February 11 at the 1st Street Theatre.

The Magnet Film Exchange intends to acquire the rights from time to time of first-class features and has inaugurated a plan by which exhibitors in New York will secure a service to help them put over each of the productions handled by this organization.

The New York City territory will be handled by Mr. Levine who has been connected with the World Film Corporation, the Vitagraph Company, and is leaving the New York Metro Film Exchange for his new position.

Ten Judge Brown Films
Have Been Completed

Ten of the twenty Judge Brown stories being distributed by General Film Company being filmed at Los Angeles by the Boy City Film Company, of which Judge Willis Brown, noted children’s advocate and author of the moving picture successes, is the head, have been completed. Plans are well advanced for the filming of the remaining stories in this series.

Director King W. Vidor and Director McQuarrie are engaged in preparing Judge Brown’s stories at the studios of the Boy City Film Company at Culver City, Cal. Both are noted for their ability in handling boy actors, who comprise the greater part of the casts used in these pictures. All of the persons appearing in these stories are boy types, chosen as carefully for appropriateness as the adult characters in the past pretentious productions. The result has been some very natural and effective acting, which is one of the chief assets of the Judge Brown stories.

The stories being distributed or ready for distribution are: “Bud’s Recruiting,” “Chocolate of the Gang,” “The Lost Lie,” “Ted’s Swimming Hole,” “The Preacher’s Son,” “Their Own Angel,” “Marianne Off Dad,” “The Accusing Toe,” “Frank’s Endorsees” and “The City of Boys.”

McKenna Furnishes
‘Musical Score for
‘Crucible of Life’

“William J. McKenna, the author of ‘Rebel Without a Cause’ and ‘Mandy Lane,’ and other song hits, will furnish an original musical setting for ‘The Crucible of Life,’ which stars Grace Darmond, Jack Sherrill and Frank O’Connor. McKenna has so devised the various music cues which accompany ‘The Crucible of Life’ it is said, as to be used with equal ease by a small orchestra or one containing several pieces. The various patriotic melodies, both old and new, which contain such a rousing appeal to the average audience during the present world crisis have been cleverly introduced throughout the entire musical score.

In addition to the entire musical setting compiled by Mr. McKenna, arrangements have been entered into between the F. B. Haviland Publishing Company of New York City and General Enter-

California Militia
Prominent in New Louise Glauin’s Film

Stirring scenes were witnessed at the Paralta studios in Hollywood last week when several hundred members of the California National Guard worked for the entire day in a series of episodes laid in a French village, forming a part of the latest Monte M. Katterjohn story, “The Iron Beast,” which marks Louise Glauin’s initial appearance as a Paralta star.

In addition to the large body of soldiers, the company was fortunate in obtaining the services of the military band from Ft. McArthur, at San Pedro. Permission to use the band was obtained only after Mr. Katterjohn had gone personally to the Fort and had read the entire story of “The Iron Beast” to the officers of the post.

Several French streets were erected at the studio for this production, and the completed picture will show an endless stream of American soldiers completely equipped, even to the steel trench helmets, marching through the town on their way to the battle front.

The entire cast of actors including Carl Anderson, John E. DeWolf, Herman Katz, Fernando M. Guinzberg, Nat I. Brown, Frank Kane, together with hundreds of extras and spectators during the filming of the scenes and announced themselves as delighted with the absorbing action which is to be transferred to the screen.

To Interest Theatregoers in Depiction
Of German Intrigue

A definite determination of the value of a national advertising campaign in daily newspapers for a motion picture production will be possible for the first time when the final results are available on the nation-wide drive starting this week in behalf of “The Eagle’s Eye,” the twenty-episode serial revelation, by William Flynn, recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service, of the Imperial German Government’s spies and plots in America.

In the major papers, the newspapers employed in this campaign is the greatest that has ever been used by the producer to exploit a motion picture.

Newspapers are being used exclusively for advertising to theatre patrons. Other campaigns have usually been carried out in both national magazines and daily newspapers. As a general rule, the entertainments to arrive at a fair conclusion of the worth of the space employed in the newspapers have been hampered by the claims of the magazines.

Campaign Excites Interest

The campaign is exciting the same interest in the motion picture field that it has already received among advertising men. It is a clean cut test upon which a reliable computation of the value of newspaper promotion picture industry can be based, because it will not be supplemented by any space in national magazines aside from the trade journals.

The campaign has been arranged to test the power of the daily press in arousing an interest in a picture, and then keeping that interest alive. About half the space contracted for will be used before the first episode of “The Eagle’s Eye” is released, and the remainder will be used in behalf of the following episodes.

The smallest contract which has been placed with any newspaper calls for 1,000 lines. In larger cities, and especially in those where the Foursquare Exchange, which will do the distributing of the serial, has branch offices, the space used is much greater. The style of “ad” can be described only as startling, because the text is based upon Chief Flynn’s revelations of the activities of the Imperial German Government’s spies. The copy is designed to take full advantage of the wide publicity which has been given the German menace in this country, and, with a widespread knowledge of Chief Flynn’s work as the head of the Secret Service.

Ample Space Bought

The “ad” copy is interest compelling and attractive. Every advantage has been given the newspapers in the preparation of the campaign to give them a fair opportunity of proving their drawing power in the motion picture field.

Ample space has been given for a good number of advertisements, and the schedule of insertions has been arranged so that they will be co-incident with the showing of the episode to which they apply in the territory covered by the newspaper.

In previous campaigns of the same nature the space has been used for the advertising of a certain brand of pictures. Never has a national campaign of the magnitude planned for Chief Flynn’s serial been made for a single picture, with every advertisement applying directly to the one picture. Other motion picture newspaper advertising related more or less indirectly to a series of pictures, so that no particular production could be taken whose success or failure could be attributed directly to the newspaper.

In the campaign planned by The Whartons there are none of these conflicting elements to cloud the issue. Every line of copy will be devoted exclusively to “The Eagle’s Eye.” The subject matter is timely. It will seem that the box office receipts of the exhibitors of “The Eagle’s Eye” would be a fair standard by which to judge the value of newspaper space to the motion picture industry.

France Factory
Of Pathé Offered
U. S. Government

Will Furnish Army Cinematographic Division With Quarters

It was announced this week by J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathé Exchange, that Pathé in France has extended to the United States Government a contract to furnish complete film factories, with every up-to-date appliance for the developing, printing, etc., of motion pictures and “still” photographs. This offer would render it unnecessary for the U. S. Government to build the structures hitherto deemed necessary for the work of the Cinematographic Division of the Signal Corps and will save the very considerable expense entailed by a new installation.

In the letter to Mr. Berst announcing the offer, Chas. Pathe says in part: “The American Cinematographic Service will have at its disposal the entire factory and our most complete and devoted co-operation. We are happy to thus give you so quickly a favorable answer to the request which you have made of us. And we derive additional pleasure from the fact that we thus can aid in a most efficient manner the Photographic and Signal Corps. Much of our friends and allies, the Americans.”

The many Americans who have visited the vast Pathé plants in France will remember their marvellous completeness and modernity, excellence, it is said, by none other in the world. They are convinced models which have required very large expenditures. In the various units are not only motion pictures made, developed and printed, but the stock of projection and motion picture appliance, cameras, projectors, machines, etc., manufactured. In some of these is also made the Pathé phonographs which constitutes a large business by itself. That the privileges accorded by the Pathé Company will save the United States much time, labor and expense, goes without saying.

To Mr. Berst, it is understood, goes the credit for the suggestion which resulted in this new proof of the cordial feeling between France and the United States. Charles Pathe, president of the Pathé Company, is the pioneer of the motion picture business, having started in it twenty-three years ago, and having built up his business to such an extent that today it is perhaps the most widely known of all large corporations, with branches in all parts of the world. For his success to the motion picture business, he was made not long ago a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. He has on many occasions given proof of his liking for America and the Americans.

General Film Has Distribution Rights
To “Shame” Picture

General Film Company announces this week that it has taken over the distribution of “Shame,” John W. Noble’s seven-reel drama of life. All United States rights, with the exception of New York City, are included in this deal, and an energetic sales campaign will be launched immediately by General Film Company.

The tremendous success scored by this production in New York City gives promise that it will be one of the money makers in the feature class this year.

“Shame” is a story of the world’s unjust condemnation of a girl whose motives were of the best. Zena Keefe is the star and Niles Welch her leading man. Miss Keefe plays the part of an innocent victim of circumstances in the prologue. Then Miss Keefe reappearing as a girl of another generation, the picture unfold an effective train of adventures, mirror faithfully a graphic ordeal of tear and sacrifice, enkindle sympathy for the heroine. The theme involves the attitude of society toward the innocent children of the name.

The film is perhaps the masterpiece of Director Noble who produced such features as “Roméo and Juliet,” “The High Road,” and “The Awakening of Helga Ritter.” It is an original creation. The cast of some sixty players and all the busy work we spent in producing the film, editing, preparing it for presentation, New York critics have conceded it to be one of the artistic events of the year. The fact that it has been borne out by the box-office record it has already established.

A wide range of advertising aids, including post cards with 3 x 5, 3 x 6 and 8 x 10, eight 11 x 14 and two 22 x 28 in, and three styles each of one in two-column cuts is available for exhibitors, besides other material.
Essanay yields to popular demand from showmen all over the country and announces an immediate weekly release of the world famous single reel Western BRONCHO BILLY subjects.

No other character ever enjoyed the phenomenal success on the shows that was afforded BRONCHO BILLY, the first exponent of the drama of the hills and plains, as well as the greatest. He appeared every week in a thrilling Western picture for years, to the delight of millions of "fans." Every single reel BRONCHO BILLY has more action, story, plot than the present day five reel features. The best of the famous BRONCHO BILLY pictures only will be offered. All re-edited and re-built.

Motion Picture Proprietors of the Nation, Now is the Time to Assert Your Collective Buying Power

You owe it to yourself to study carefully the difference between the present out-dated distributing system and the new way which we outline.

The most trusted leaders of exhibitor-activity and exhibitor-organization are concerted in this plan. Co-operation cannot proceed from the producers or distributors—that has been tried and failed. The only true and economical co-operation is among yourselves—in the exercise of your united buying power.

We are in this campaign with good will to all and malice toward none. Producers will experience the benefit of the plan because the enormous waste due to the present hurried and mechanical manufacture and the present uneven, unscientific and unsatisfactory method of distribution will be eliminated. The producer will always find an excellent market for his standardized product with us, a product that will be distributed in all sections of the country with equal thoroughness, and the prompt payment for which will enable the producer to do away with financial worries and the making of pictures by the clock or the calendar.

"Know Your Neighborhood"

The entire motion picture industry revolves about the exhibitor. The producer and the distributor are entirely dependent for their income upon the efforts of the exhibitor. The exhibitor is the general collector for the industry—it is through the box office that all the money for maintenance and profit must come.

These are not newly discovered facts but facts which have characterized the business since its inception and are recited here to draw attention and to waken the exhibitor to the absolute necessity that his progress be proportionate to the progress being made in other branches of the industry.

The exhibitor to discharge properly his duties as collector for the industry obviously must have a thorough understanding of the sources from which revenue may be drawn. Unfortunately, in a vast number of cases exhibitors have not this understanding.

We frequently have inquired of exhibitors information regarding the various classifications of their patronage and in many cases we have learned that the theatremen have little or no information about the people in the district from which they are seeking to draw their patronage.

One of the chief reasons why the success or failure of pictures cannot be accurately forecasted is that it is impossible for the human mind to conceive a composite picture of the various classes that go to make up the theatre-going public. Another reason is that a success in one district often is a rank failure in another district.

But the theatremen in the selection of a program for a particular theatre has a definite neighborhood and a definite patronage to which to cater—and it is his business to know what that neighborhood and what that patronage want. And the price of a picture—if it is within reason—makes little difference if it is a picture that the public wants.

The first step in knowing what your public wants is to know something definite about that public—not merely that they reside in a certain district and that they are men, women and children, but something concrete about their amusement likes and dislikes, what they read, both in the way of popular periodicals and also as to books, what other popular amusement is attended, what is their general political complexion, what their church affiliations are and if the district is a "foreign" one what are their old country tendencies.

On the financial side the question is a big one by itself. An investigation as to the earning power of the various heads of the families gives the real exhibitor the one definite indication of what his box office charges should be, because a real exhibitor, once he has found out that the money is there will not be content until he has obtained his share via the box office. If the neighborhood is financially able to pay for the best, it is then simply up to the exhibitor to supply the best and compel the neighborhood to pay the bill.

In one of the "better" neighborhoods of Chicago there is a fine, large theatre charging ten and fifteen cents admission. The exhibitor in this case would like to increase his charges, but does not dare, notwithstanding the fact that a very large percentage of his people are accustomed to pay two-dollar admissions at downtown stage theatres. In this case the exhibitor simply has not the courage to compel payment of what he is entitled to, because there is no doubt that people acclimated to paying two-dollar admission prices downtown will not abandon a theatre showing the best pictures because of an additional charge of a nickel. This exhibitor does not know his neighborhood and does not know how easy it would be for him to increase his admission charges.

To know his neighborhood, not merely in a general way, but thoroughly and accurately from every respect is the exhibitor’s most important work.

Contracts

For the commercial welfare of the business it is essential in many quarters that contracts come to be regarded as something to be carried out and not as mere “scraps of paper.”

There is probably no branch of the business that cannot be charged from time to time with a wilful repudiation of contracts, a thing which can retain no permanent place in the modern world of business.

This scrap-of-paper attitude toward agreements has been a big factor in discouraging outside investment in the film business and has done much to make a certain class of dealings in the trade appear in the light of mining camp operations.

Casual Comment

An all-pervading spirit of optimism, routing the gloom of January and February, seems to point unswervingly to Spring, 1918, as an era of unprecedented prosperity for the film business.

* * *

Exhibitors who decline to co-operate with the government in the exhibition of patriotic pictures will one day have an outraged public to answer to.

* * *

An indication of what appreciation some exhibitors have of the importance of advertising: A Chicago exhibitor opens a $300,000 theatre and for the premier exhibition distributes a "souvenir program" which would make a fair throw-away for a traveling medicine man.

* * *

Again, speaking of advertising, another Chicago exhibitor is building up an almost city-wide following for a neighborhood theatre by running daily a three-line item in his newspaper advertisement describing the metropolitan nature of his enterprise.

Martin J. Quigley
Post Office Department Increases
Weight Limitations on Films
Effective March 15, Shipments to First, Second and Third Zones May Be 70 Pounds

The order of Postmaster General Bur- ceson increasing the allowable weights of parcel post shipments effective March 5, will result in of esthetic value to the motion picture industry, as the present limitations on weights have tended to re- duce the volume of business which oth- ers have been diverted from express companies to the parcel post.

The new order of the department will permit film shipments in the first or sec- ond zones for delivery in the first, sec- ond or third zones to be as heavy as 30 pounds, where they are now restricted to 50 pounds. The weight limit for all other zones will be increased from 20 to 30 pounds.

The film exchanges are utilizing the parcel post for shipments in the first and second zones in the Eastern territory, while in the West they extend into the third and fourth zones so that the indus- try will be materially benefited through this course, as both exchanges and exhibitors would thereby effect a saving in transportation charges, aggregat- ing hundreds of dollars daily.

N. A. M. P. I.'s Recommendation

The Transportation Committee of the National Association of the Motion Pic- ture Industry at a meeting held a year ago went on record in favor of increasing the parcel post weight limitations for film shipments and the order just issued at Washington is undoubtedly based upon the committee's recommendations which were filed with the Post Office Department at that time.

The Transportation Committee was instrumental in securing the order ad- mitting film shipments to the parcel post service in 1931, and since then the adoption of every recommendation which it has made, although some con- siderable time has elapsed in this in- stance, has no doubt, to the entry of the United States in the war, as well as the desire of the officials to give the parcel post regulations a full year's trial before putting any new rules into effect.

The new order eliminates the chief difficulty which has been found in the past in making shipments by parcel post owing to the weight limitations and zones at a time when the film interests will be decidedly benefited, owing to the fact that there have been frequent re- ports of delays in express deliveries, due to the increase of business which the express carriers are handling, most of which is for the Government and has precedence over everything else. It is obvious that this would seriously inter- fere with the dispatch of the mails and if the exchanges and exhibitors plan to utilize the parcel post or the transportation of films they will be assured of prompt deliveries and at- tates considerably under the cost of ex- pressing.

Group Shipments of Films

The Transportation Committee of the National Association will now seek to have the Post Office Department per- mit the giving of a receipt for group shipments of films so as to have an offi- cial record of all shipments. At the present time a receipt can be secured is by insuring the film at a cost of 10 cents and each shipment must have a separate receipt.

This offered a chance will be made to the department in due course and it is confi- dently expected that it will be granted, as by so doing the handling of film shipments will be expedited, and a great amount of time saved in the issuance of receipts for insuring parcels as required under the present regulations. The exchanges further contend that the large increase in the volume of film shipments by parcel post will many times offset the loss in insurance and that the Government will be benefited by a large- ly increased revenue derived from this source.

"Birth of a Race"
Promoter Admits Law Violation

Giles P. Cory Fined $1,000
Under Illinois "Blue Sky" Act

Rather than delay the production of the photoplay, "The Birth of a Race," Giles P. Cory of the stock brokerage firm of Colquhoun & Cory, Chicago, pleaded not guilty before Judge Wells to a violation of the new blue sky law prohibiting the selling of unlisted stocks without license and was fined the $1,000, the maximum un- der the law. Cory was so anxious to get clear of the case he agreed to pay the $1,000 without further argument, al- though offsetting fees.

W. Sherwood, another stock broker prosecuted by the state for violation of the law, is to contest the constitution- ality of the act. His case was continued till March 9.

In entering the plea of guilty former Judge Henry C. Beiter, counsel for Cory, stated that his client had no in- tention of evading or violating the law and has sought legal counsel in the mat- ter and was told that the stock he was sell- ing was exempt because a majority of it had been sold before the new law went into effect also and because it had been extensively advertised in the public press and in several so-called standard manuals.

"I believe a nominal fine only should be imposed in this case," said Mr. Beiter, "because Cory believed he was not breaking the new law and is not morally guilty of its violation."

Drastic Virginia
Censorship Bill Passed by Senate

Jake Wells and Associates Obtain Number of Concessions

The drastic motion picture censorship bill drawn by the Rev. James Cum- ber, Methodist minister and head of the Pro- hibition party in Virginia, has passed the State Senate by a unanimous vote. It now goes to the House of Delegates for concurrence. It is generally predicted that the House will pass the bill. Advocates of the measure are officers of various social uplift organizations, Baptist and Methodist ministers.

Jake Wells and the Virginia Exhibiti- tors' League have waged a determined fight against the bill since it was intro- duced. They succeeded in getting sev- eral concessions before the bill passed the Senate. The amendments obtained by Mr. Wells and his friends would reduce the fee to be exacted from $2 for a cer- tificate for each original film to $1, and from $1 for duplicates to 50 cents. The general effect of these amendments is to reduce the gross tax on the motion pic- ture exhibitors of the State from $50,000 a year to $5,000, estimated.

The exhibitors bear the total cost of maintaining the censorship. The board will consist of two members, and it is left optional with the Governor, who ap- points the board, to name a woman as one member. In case of disagreement between the censors the superintendent of public instruction is to be called in to cast the deciding vote. Before the amend- ments were obtained by Mr. Wells the membership was three.

Governor Davis may veto the measure. many of the exhibitors think, and there is another faint hope—the bill may fail to get through the House because of the rush of other business in the last week of the term. Opponents of the bill will make a final effort to hold up its passage in the House until the day of adjourn- ment, March 7.

Don't Pay War Taxes
To Fake Collectors

Commissioner Daniel C. Roper, of Washington, has sent a warning to Collector of Internal Revenue
Charles V. Duffy, Newark, N. J., that impostors representing them- selves to be collectors. Collectors are attempting to collect the war admission tax from various motion picture theatre proprietors through- out New Jersey. The Commissi- oner warns exhibitors not to pay over taxes to persons representing themselves as collectors unless they show the proper credentials.
Renewed Building Activities
Mark Termination of Long Slump

Samuel Levin to Erect Theatre in Richmond District of San Francisco—Los Angeles to Have New House

The most substantial sign that the industry has passed the chaotic stage so apparent at the outbreak of war, is the renewed theatre building activity in widely separated parts of the country. Two on the west coast, two in the central states, one in the east and one in the south are the new theatres reported this week.

What is described as "destined to be one of the most beautiful photoplay houses of San Francisco" is to be erected in the Richmond district by Samuel H. Levin. The building will cover an area of 75x150 feet. It will have a seating capacity of 2,200, the balcony seating 750.

The main entrance is to be from Clement street, through a vestibule 30 feet wide to the outer foyer, from either side of which the balcony entrances are located, starting with broad easy steps to the mezzanine foyer and then by gradual incline to the center of the balcony where the aisles diverge.

Illuminated Marquise Entrance

The main entrance vestibule is protected from the elements and made the central feature by an illuminated marquise extending over the sidewalk. The vestibule leads through the outer foyer directly to the center of the large inner foyer which, in turn, is semi-detached from the auditorium by arches and porticoes.

Absolutely fireproof, with steel frame and reinforced concrete walls, the roof supported by large steel trusses, being also of concrete with asbestos outer covering, the proposed playhouse is a worthy addition to San Francisco's amusement houses.

Following several months devoted to the study of plans, work on the new Miller Theatre in Los Angeles has begun. The new building when completed will have approximately twenty-five hundred seats, every one of which, it is said, will give an unobstructed view of the screen.

It is the aim of F. A. and R. G. Miller and their associates in the enterprise to make this the most complete and up-to-the-minute motion picture theatre on the coast.

Studied Other Theatres

For several months Harry Leonhardt, who is one of the partners in the venture, has toured the east and central west, studying the latest designs in playhouses and the most appealing and practical of these will be embodied in the new theatre.

Large and beautifully appointed ladies' parlors and rest rooms, smoking rooms for the men, playrooms for the children and a promenade on the mezzanine floor are a few of the efforts toward patron comfort included in the plans.

The theatre was designed by A. B. Rosenthal, architect, and will be erected by Winters and Nicholson, and it is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy about September 1.

Installation of opera chairs in the Grand, "the new million dollar theatre," which Harry Davis is shortly to open in Pittsburg, for the presentation of motion pictures, is proceeding rapidly. Twenty-six hundred seats are being located on the ground floor and single balcony, upholstered in rich leather to harmonize with the tones of the Italian renaissance decorations.

The house is very near completion and Mr. Davis expects within a short time to announce the exact date of its opening and the list of feature picture plays which will comprise its program.

More than four thousand people attended the opening of the new Theatre Wilbert, erected at the cost of $100,000 in Plaquemine, La., despite weather unusually severe. A. Wilbert's Sons Company built the theatre as a monument to themselves and for the amusement of the public of Plaquemine.

Modern Equipment Installed

Lionel Delcroix is the lessee of the theatre and in addition to the building cost, he has installed an $8,000 American Fotoplayer and a $3,500 electric plant: two Powers' 640 and drive machines, projection 122 feet, picture 17 by 21. There are 900 seats installed with a capacity of 400 more.

A. H. Blank, already owner of a chain of theatres in the middle west, is said to be contemplating the erection of a new theatre in Des Moines, la., where he now operates one photoplay house. He is now constructing the Rialto theatre in Omaha.

Lady Bosten and Walter Carroll, owners and managers of the Amus-u and Gaiety theatres at Muscatine, Iowa, have practically settled upon a location in Fort Madison, Iowa, for the erection of a new theatre.

Germany to Seek World Film Control

According to word which has filtered through to Amsterdam, German producers of moving picture films have effected a combination with a view to capturing control of the world market from Americans after the war. The new German film trust has a capital of more than $5,000,000. The Kaiser-controlled Lokal Anzeiger says:

"The main object of the new enterprise is to make our film industry independent of foreign influence. Once this is achieved we may depend upon German enterprise and organization to conquer the foreign market as well. Steps have now been taken which insures that the moving-picture business, hitherto only the handmaid of pleasure and entertainment, shall become a well disciplined and organized power, which can do a great deal to propagate German kultur and knowledge of German strength throughout the world."

Represents Move to Enable Company to More Fully Execute Policy of Film Distribution, President Freuler Announces

The Mutual Film Corporation announces from the office of John R. Freuler, president, in Chicago, the election of a new board of directors, including five new financier members, representing and connected with several of the larger banking and investment houses of the middle west.

The new board of directors includes also J. M. Shilling, chairman of the Board of Directors. H. Davis, George W. Hall, Dr. Wilbert Shallenberger, J. W. Smith, banker of Fargo, N. D.; F. E. Kahn and Crawford Long, on the special rates which they propose for each of the classifications. The pictures, for the purpose of fixing rates, as will be recalled, will be divided into groups according to their age. The rentals will be graded at three or four prices and include a list of free films which will be provided for camps which cannot afford to pay for entertainment, and for entertainments for the military forces at which no admission charge is made.

The rates are to be far below those ordinarily charged to commercial theatres. The companies are beginning to report upon the special rates which they propose for the different classifications. As soon as all the reports are in, which will be within a few days, the announcements will be made to the exchanges. It is probable that some form of credential will be issued to the representatives of the various women's agencies in the training camps in order that they may be recognized at the exchanges as entitled to the special rates.

The exchanges will be provided with the rate classifications by their respective companies and will thus be enabled to serve the camps within their territories on the basis established by the mutual directors, enabling us to the execution of our firmly established policies of film distribution on a business-like and effective basis,” said President Freuler.

War Camp Motion Picture Committee Will Soon Announce Distribution Plans

The War Camp Motion Picture Committee, which has just been formed by the industry, upon the invitation of Raymonde E. Fosdick, chairman of the Federal Training Camp Commissions, to cooperate in providing wholesome motion picture entertainments in the training camps of the Army and Navy, will soon be able to announce to the various agencies directing the social activities in the camps the plans for the distribution of the pictures.” P. A. Powers, chairman of the committee announced last week.

“Letters have been sent to the various companies asking them to state what rates they propose for each of the classifications. The pictures, for the purpose of fixing rates, as will be recalled, will be divided into groups according to their age. The rentals will be graded at three or four prices and include a list of free films which will be provided for camps which cannot afford to pay for entertainment, and for entertainments for the military forces at which no admission charge is made.

The rates are to be far below those ordinarily charged to commercial theatres. The companies are beginning to report upon the special rates which they propose for the different classifications. As soon as all the reports are in, which will be within a few days, the announcements will be made to the exchanges. It is probable that some form of credential will be issued to the representatives of the various women’s agencies in the training camps in order that they may be recognized at the exchanges as entitled to the special rates.

The exchanges will be provided with the rate classifications by their respective companies and will thus be enabled to serve the camps within their territories on the basis established by the mutual directors, enabling us to the execution of our firmly established policies of film distribution on a business-like and effective basis,” said President Freuler.

New Theatre Owner Must See That War Tax Is Paid

According to a recent ruling from Commissioner Daniel C. Roper, of Washington, an exhibitor who buys a theatre must see that the war taxes have been paid.

A western picture theatre changed hands a few weeks ago and the original owner collected for it and gave title. At the end of the month the government filed for its admission tax and on being informed the new owner had failed to see that the tax was paid.

Outlines Future Plans and Policies
Organization Takes Offices in Mecca Building, New York—President and Vice-President to Tour Country
To Organize Branches

The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., have taken a floor of the Mecca building, 1600 Broadway, New York, and have embarked on a campaign of lining up the motion picture exhibitors of the country to buy films co-operatively.

The head of the new organization is Lee A. Ochs, President of the National Exhibitors League, and the Treasurer, Louis F. Blumenthal. Charles M. Rosenthal is secretary and Milton M. Goldsmith is General Counsel. C. R. Seelye, former sales manager for Pathe, is executive vice-president of the company.

Mr. Seelye will leave New York March 6 on a nation-wide tour in the course of which he will plan the distribution branches of the co-operative agency. On March 9 President Ochs will begin a tour of the more important cities where he will add his adherents to the plan. Harry Crandall of Washington, D. C., and Frank A. Keeney of New York, have already voiced their approval of the movement and have enlisted in it to the number of all their theatres.

Outlined in detail, the method of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., is explained, is to divide the cost of film negative pro rata among as large a proportion of the exhibitor forces of the United States as it may be possible to align in the organization.

Exhibitors are to be graded in five classes, according to first and second runs, etc., having earning capacity and the like. The first grade will pay one-tenth of 1 percent of the cost of the negative. Each lower grade will pay proportionately less until a unit in the last grade pays only one one-hundredth of 1 percent of negative cost.

If any profit on these transactions remains to the United Picture Theatres, it is paid back to the individual theatre proprietors who are stockholders in the general enterprise. The organization pledges itself not to start business until 2,000 booking days are secured. The idea is borrowed from the American Druggists Syndicate in buying co-operatively for its 32,000 members.

British War Office Requested
Producer to Make Picture

W. E. Burlock, who has been in Los Angeles as a representative of the Cinematograph Committee of the British War Office for the purpose of seeing D. W. Griffith's latest picture, left this week on the return trip to London. Mr. Burlock, speaking of the circumstances surrounding the origin of the idea of making the Griffith picture, on the battle front in France had the following to say:

"Mr. Griffith was about to take the boat for America when the British War Office concluded that the director of 'The Birth of a Nation' and 'Intolerance' was the one man who had the genius to film a historic drama of the great war. It was decided a motion picture of the quality which Mr. Griffith could produce would be of immeasurable value for propaganda work.

"Lord Beaverbrook, who is the head of the British War Propaganda, was enthusiastic over the possibility of interesting Mr. Griffith in the enterprise. When the producer conferred with these emotional men and saw their intense enthusiasm and how great was the importance of the service they wished him to perform, he cancelled his reservation and went to work. No other citizen has been given the opportunities to visit the battle fronts which Mr. Griffith has."

Regarding the picture itself Mr. Burlock said:

"It is not becoming to me to discuss the picture. But I will say that it is a triumph of motion picture work and I believe the story will live forever. I have never been so thrilled nor so interested in any form of dramatic art as I have been with this picture. I think Mr. Griffith has more than proven worthy of the confidence the British War Office placed in his genius and high purpose."

It is believed the Griffith picture will receive its initial showing in New York within the next three weeks.

Fox Film Corp.
Soon to Publish
"Mutt and Jeff"
Arrangement Completed on Eve of Bud Fisher's Departure to Front

On and after March 24 Mutt and Jeff comedies will be published by the Fox Film Corporation. The arrangement between the film company and Bud Fisher, originator of the famous pair, was completed this week. The comedies will be issued at the rate of one every week and will be approximately 500 feet in length.

Under the new arrangement Mutt and Jeff not only will have a new home, but a greater degree of freedom. As of yesterday the comic strips, newspaper cartoons, they are known from one end of the country to the other, appearing regularly in the New York World and being so widely syndicated that there is scarcely an important town in the country in which they are not published.

They were introduced to the screen more than two years ago under the auspices of a corporation promoted by Bud Fisher and since that time they have firmly established themselves as screen stars. Now, they are to have the benefit of a larger distributing organization—become a regular feature of the William Fox output along with Standard Pictures, Fox Features, and Fox Lehman Sunshine Comedies.

There will be no change in the plan of publication or the general style of the pictures, according to Mr. Fox, and assurance is given that there will be no delays in service in consequence of the new arrangement. Contract blanks and all other necessary arrangements are in the possession of the Fox branch office or may be obtained at the home office.

"When Mr. Fox contracted with Bud Fisher, according to Mr. Fisher, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, "he paid a premium as an additional inducement to Mr. Fisher to make Mutt and Jeff cartoons greater and funnier than ever before."

Mr. Fisher, who until recently was a lieutenant in the United States army, and who now is a captain in the British army, will be in France within a comparatively short time. He has made all necessary arrangements for continuing his art work while abroad and it is not unlikely what he does while abroad will have the flavor of trench life and conditions in the immediate vicinity of the front.

Select's Exchange
Destroyed by Fire

Fire which started on the floor above, destroyed the Select Exchange, 1910 Main street, Dallas, Texas, on Washington's birthday. Many subjects of the Select's Star series were destroyed and the building was a complete loss.

Manager C. C. Ezell got in communication with Select branches in Kansas City, St. Louis and New Orleans and had special messengers sent to Dallas with enough extra prints to supply the exhibitors in his territory without interruption to the service.
N. A. M. P. I. Renews Campaign
For Coinage of 15-Cent Piece

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has renewed its campaign for a fifteen-cent coin. The American Newspaper Publishers' Association is now agitating for the issuing of a two-cent coin and it is not improbable that the national motion picture and newspaper organizations will co-operate in their respective efforts.

Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, is in communication with the executive officials of the American Newspaper Publishers Association with a view toward an active cooperation in this respect.

The recent advance in prices of practically all newspapers of the country to ten cents is the cause of the publishers' drive for the new coin as a convenience to the public. The government has provided a two-cent piece in the past and a turn to this coin would really be a return.

The motion picture interests first launched the agitation for a 15-cent coin about a year ago. The war tax has since made the 15-cent piece a practical necessity in handling crowds quickly and satisfactorily. It is a theatrical proverb that the popular and successful admission price is the one that can be paid at the ticket office without a turn to the public.

The N. A. M. P. I. in presenting its letter to Hon. Roy Baker, Director of the Mint, referred to the following recommendations, as adopted by its Executive Committee:

1. That the public generally would be greatly benefited by having a coin of this denomination between the dime and the quarter.
2. That the fifteen million daily patrons of the two thousand motion picture theatres in the United States would be greatly benefited by the having of such a coin.
3. That it would facilitate the handling of these millions of motion picture patrons who are put to great annoyance and inconvenience in crowded theatre lobbies while waiting for change.
4. That the motion picture patrons, in many localities, are obliged to wait in line, and the sidewalk during inclement weather, owing to delays in making change at the box office, which condition is greatly worse since the advent of the war tax.
5. That along with the general trend towards increased prices of admission to the better class of picture entertainment comes a demand for the new coin.

The Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures.

It is towards this end that the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association would be in a position to co-operate most effectively.

The motion picture industry has a special interest in the two-cent coin movement as well as the publishers of newspapers. Such a coin would aid materially in handling the war tax, where the tax is levied independent of the price of the ticket. Many theatres are meeting the problem, by including the tax within the total price of the ticket, making the full price of admission 15, 20, 25, etc., including the tax. These houses need a 15-cent coin.

World Opens New Exchange in Boston

The new exchange building erected by World Pictures to house its Boston branch, was dedicated and opened on February 23. A large crowd turned out to assist in the event.

Carlyle Blackwell, the World star, who with World officials came to Boston to assist in the ceremonies, was the center of an admiring throng from the time of his arrival. He was met at the station by a delegation of film fans and exhibitors who presented him with an immense floral offering. He was escorted to the exchange building by the orchestra of the Park Theatre and at the exchange held an informal reception.

Ricord Gradwell, vice president and general manager of World Pictures, who headed the delegation of World officials, expressed himself as more than pleased at the reception of World pictures by New England exhibitors.

Exhibitors of Fourteen States Organize To Handle Independent Producers Films

Pettijohn Reports Successful Trip for Producers and Exhibitors Affiliated Plan—Contract for Twenty-One Other States Being Completed

C. C. Pettijohn, General Manager of the Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated, has issued a statement to the eight independent producers who have formed the direct booking plan giving in detail an account of all proceedings, the territories which have been acquired and the exact progress up to date.

Fourteen states have been organized, according to Mr. Pettijohn, and are ready for distribution. Contracts in twenty-one states are being completed, and fifteen are being canvassed and the direct sales proposition presented to them. Mr. Pettijohn also reports that it will require at least from thirty to sixty days before the exhibitors will be sufficiently organized to handle their own distribution.

Mr. Pettijohn states that before these units are completed a meeting will likely be called of representative exhibitors from over the country to meet the original exhibitors’ committee and independent producers, so that they can cooperate and iron out the permanent contract of the Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated.

Suggestions that will work to the mutual advantage of both producer and exhibitor have been received from exhibitors throughout the country and have been recommended for insertion into the permanent contract.

Amongst those who have suggestions to offer are Messrs. Black, Maine; Herrington, Pittsburgh; Hamlin, Minnesota; Herman Brown, Boise, Idaho; Frank and Hopp, Chicago; Lustig, Cleveland; Rembusch, Indianapolis; Craver, North Carolina, and Randall, Washington.

Their suggestions and recommendations on what these contracts should finally provide, were gone over at a meeting on February 27, by Harry Randall, Louis L. Levine and C. C. Pettijohn.

All suggestions were considered and made note of, to be presented at a joint meeting between the producers and exhibitors before the final draft of the contract is drawn.

Carlyle Blackwell Renews Contract With World Corp.

Carlyle Blackwell, having recovered from his recent indisposition, has renewed his contract with the World Film Corporation for an extended period of time, and will shortly be co-starred with Evelyn Greeley in a new production, to be directed by Dell Henderson. Mr. Henderson will direct Miss Greeley and Mr. Blackwell, it is announced, in a series of features.

Record Booking Marks Debut of Screen Telegram

Twice-a-Week News Film Makes First Appearance March 3

Six million Americans, it is estimated, will see the news of the world in 1613 Screen Telegram picture theatres next week.

Mutual’s Screen Telegram, with improved facilities for handling news events in picture form, has passed all previous records, it is claimed, of sales for the first week of its publication, March 3.

Mutual’s Screen Telegram is being served by over 100 correspondents in the United States. These correspondents are cameramen. They are in touch with headquarters.

Chicago, it is declared by Mutual, is the geographical and commercial center of the United States, and distribution of film from that point is easier by 44 per cent in actual working availability than is distribution from New York.

Among the theaters in the country which have booked Screen Telegram are Grauman’s Theatre, Los Angeles; Butterfly and Whitehouse Theatres, Milwaukee; Orpheum, Gold and Alcatraz Theatres, Chicago; Royal Theatre, Kansas City; Clinton Square Theatre, Albany, N. Y.; Plaza Theatre, San Diego, Cal.; all Keith houses booked out of Atlanta, Ga.; Perry Field Theatre, Detroit; Plaza Theatre, Sioux City, Iowa; Hippodrome Theatre, Columbus, Ohio; Palace Theatre, New Orleans.

Captain Vernon Castle, noted dancer and hero of the British flying corps, staging his last flight before sacrificing his life to save that of a fellow aviator is portrayed in the initial production of the Mutual Film Corporation’s Screen Telegram of March 3.

At virtually the same hour the correspondent of the Screen Telegram was shipping the pictures to Chicago, Captain Castle fell to his death. A positive grim of Captain Castle’s final flight will be presented to Mrs. Castle.

While Chicago was suffering for want of sugar a fast freight train was wrecked near Congress Park, Ill. Exclusive pictures of the wreck are shown in the Telegram. In addition, it contains scenes of the farewell celebration in honor of soldiers enlisted in Chicago for service with the British army; activities of a huge government shipbuilding foundry on the Pacific coast; official French war films, showing American soldiers playing the role of Saint Clodius French war orphans at Noyon and St. Maixent; former President William Howard Taf refereeing a boxing bout between Jackie at the Great Lakes Training Station “Doug” Fairbanks staging a radio a Ewing Field in California for the benefit of the war camp community fund, and several others.
What’s Wrong With the State Rights Game

By James R. Grainger

The motion picture field is a good one or those who know their business, for those who do not it is distinctly unprofitable. To the latter I have this to say: he quicker they get out the better it will be for all concerned.

The independent picture is the Moses’ that will lead both the producer and exhibitor to fertile fields in the future.

We read daily of this and that producing corporation closing its plant and going out of business. Why? The reason is simple. They were producing a class of pictures that the public does not want.

“Open” booking must come. There is no reason why any exhibitor should be forced to take a poor picture and choke quality. With this class of producers he only question presenting itself is How much can we make in profit?

More than two million dollars has been lost in the past two years in state right productions. When I say two million I mean it, for you can count on your hand the pictures that have made money or their owners in the past two years.

This great loss is caused by the “soft” money that has rolled in on state right sellers, for in no other industry has there been money promoted so easy as in the picture business. It has always seemed strange to me that a business man will put a large sum of money into a motion picture to be booked as a state right proposition without even looking into the proposition.

If you asked the same man to put this amount of money into any other business he would thoroughly investigate it before consenting to come in. But if it is a picture he will take the advice of a few men who usually know nothing about what they are going into.

I can cite you several examples and can name the pictures if necessary where statements have been made of what a picture would draw. The conclusions are laughable. I once heard an employee of a state right seller advise a prospect ive buyer that the picture in question would net him $1,000 in Moline, Ill.

I asked him if he had ever been in Moline or knew anything about the local conditions there and he told me he had not but had figured out the amount of money every picture should bring in every city in the state of Illinois.

With a lead pencil and paper you can create more profits in the motion picture business than in any business in the world.

When the producer of independent pictures comes down to a basis where he is satisfied to make a reasonable profit, then will the state right buyer be able to purchase pictures and get back a profitable return on his money. Until it down his patrons simply because he is doing business with any one concern. In no other line of business could this situation obtain. But under the unfair program contract the exhibitor is forced to take the bad with the good.

But the independent picture is not entirely flawless. There is one angle which must be eradicated at once and that is the over-selling of state right features and the poor class of pictures that are put out with the object of selling rateable return on his money. Until it down his patrons simply because he is doing business with any one concern. In no other line of business could this situation obtain. But under the unfair program contract the exhibitor is forced to take the bad with the good.

World Corp. Drops Stock Companies; Will Employ Actors for Each Picture

Cost of Films to Be Estimated by Special Bureau—No Skimping on Productions Is Promise

World Film Corporation has issued the following statement concerning changes made in its policies regarding the manner in which productions will be produced in the future:

"In continuation of its avowed policy of giving the World exhibitors the greatest possible value for their money, the World Film Corporation has organized its studio accordingly. Wastage has been cut out wherever possible, and, instead of crediting these gains to the profit side of the ledger, all is being put back into the pictures themselves. It is not for the purpose of immediately increasing its own earnings that the World is eliminating all extravagance, but for the purpose of making better pictures—thereby building a solid foundation for bigger and better business.

"One of the first steps in the studio organization has been the establishment of a central purchasing department through which the material for all the various productions will be obtained. In this way all over-lapping purchases are eliminated and better prices are secured through the larger quantities bought.

Estimate Bureau Installed

"An estimate bureau has also been installed, whose function it is to estimate on the cost of a production and to see to it that the production cost is kept within reasonable bounds of that estimate. All the money needed will be spent, but it is to be remembered that no man is to be skimped in the slightest degree—but all the money will be spent to the best possible advantage in bringing out the strongest points of the story and in building dependable, consistent box office pullers for the exhibitors.

All stock companies at the World studio have been dispensed with. The actors will be hired by the picture, thus insuring constant variety and the best fitted actors for the various types. There will also be a saving in this, owing to the fact that no actors will be on the payroll while idle.

"The closest sort of co-operation between directors and stars has been arranged for. This means that both must approve of a story before work is started on it and know definitely just what they want to accomplish and how they are going to do it. The technical men and location men will, with the directors and stars, all participate in a conference with Charles Sarver before starting a new film. This will, in a sense, follow out the plan adopted in making stage productions and, it is believed, will prove most effective in turning out superior screen stories.

Preproduction Conference

"Before starting a production, the director, studio manager and technical man confer and make a list of absolutely everything needed for each scene. Then this list is given to the technical man, who is held responsible for seeing that everything is O. K. at the time the actual filming begins. Many exasperating delays are eliminated in this manner.

"The World system goes farther than this. Each actor is given a list of the clothes he or she is to wear in the play and the numbers of the scenes in which the various costumes are to be worn. Then when an actor is called for a scene he refers to this list and dons the proper costume. All delays incidental to artists making mistakes in their costumes are thereby cut out. These lists are checked up each evening with the actors. All the way through, from top to bottom, the World studio has this purpose in view, to give the exhibitor the biggest possible box office value for his money."

Kenneth Hodkinson Has Recovered From Illness

Kenneth Hodkinson, son of W. W. Hodkinson, who has been actively connected in an executive capacity with his father for a number of years, who recently suffered a light attack of appendicitis, is now on the road to recovery. Mr. Hodkinson was taken ill shortly after his father started on his western trip and it was thought at that time that an operation would be necessary. He has recovered sufficiently to be at his office, however, and physicians believe him to be out of danger.

M. J. Sullivan Takes Charge of New York Mutual Corp. Office

M. J. Sullivan, formerly efficiency director and more recently manager of production of the National Biscuit Company, has been appointed manager of the New York office of the Mutual Film Corporation and assumed charge on February 18. Since last March Mr. Sullivan has been familiarizing himself with the exchanges of Mutual, having visited all branch offices of the company in the United States and Canada as a special salesman. During this period, also, Mr. Sullivan met many of the leading exhibitors of the country and learned at first-hand what requirements are under the changed conditions imposed by the war. The new chief of the New York office is well liked by the trade, and is an enthusiastic believer in Mutual's products. Mr. Sullivan is not related to Dennis J. Sullivan, general manager of Mutual.

Jacob Wildberg Joins Foursquare; To Be Treasurer

Jacob Wildberg, capitalist and manufacturer who still retains his interests in his own concerns, will be actively identified with Foursquare Pictures as treasurer of an independent organization as well as a large stockholder, it is announced.

Mr. Wildberg becomes associated with Foursquare Pictures through George Backer, a friend and business colleague of many years standing.

As a financial expert and one of broad commercial experience, Mr. Wildberg's activities will serve to establish still more firmly the principles upon which Foursquare Pictures is founded. He will prove most effective in turning out superior screen stories, to give the exhibitor the biggest possible box office value for his money."

"Adrian Gascoyne" Chosen As Russell's First Film

William Russell has commenced work on his next with "Adrian Gascoyne," written by William Hamilton Osborne. This picture will be made at the American Film Company studios at Santa Barbara, Cal., and all the technical work will be done in the Chicago laboratories of the American Film Company. Stephen Fox will write exclusively for the American Film Company and for the William Russell productions.
Chaplin's Comedy
For First National
Nears Completion

"A Dog's Life" has been chosen as the title for Charlie Chaplin's initial production for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. Work on the comedy is rapidly nearing completion at the new west coast studios.

The famous comedian is now on the home-stretch of his story, working day and night on what he claims will be the greatest comedy ever turned out by him. Chaplin is carrying out the same policy with his present contribution as he has in the past, that of not giving the public the slightest nature of his story until the subject is well on its way to the exhibitors.

The story is of a nature entirely different from anything the star has herebefore attempted, it is said, and besides his comedy antics he has also added touches of pathos similar to those evidenced in "Easy Street" and "The Vagabond."

Several new faces will be seen in the forthcoming Chaplin picture as well as the beautiful Edna Purviance. Fred Starr shoulders the character that usually fell to the late Eric Campbell and Zasu Pitts, the little artist who won many admirers with her portrayal of the sympathetic slave in Mary Pickford's "Little Princess," will be new to Chaplin followers.

One hundred people have been used in the making of the picture and the greater part of the action takes place in interior "sets," affording the star wide scope for unique comedy situations.

Following "A Dog's Life" it is planned to issue a Chaplin subject on an average of about every six weeks until the eighth, as contracted for, will have been made.

Knickerbocker Will Have First Showing
Of Gerard Picture

The Knickerbocker Theatre, Broadway and 38th street, New York, will on Sunday, March 10, stage the authorized film version of "My Four Years in Germany." The production, which will approximate ten reels in length, has had special music written for it by Hugo Riesenfeld, who is responsible for the music at the Rialto and Rivoli Theatres. A large orchestra will interpret the music.

It is probable that Ambassador Gerard, should his state of convalescence permit, may be present at the first showing of the production and address the audience.

The occasion will also be made the opportunity of inviting a large number of guests prominent in military, naval, civil and patriotic life.

"My Four Years in Germany" was adapted for the screen by Charles A. Logue and was directed by William Nigh.

Character Actress
Aids Billie Rhodes
In Strand Comedies

Eugenie Forde, numbered among the screen's best character actresses, is supporting Billie Rhodes in the series of one-reel Mutual-Strand comedies.

Miss Forde's stage career includes engagements with William Faversham, Chauncey Olcott, George Munroe and Blanche Walsh, and her career before the camera dates back to her appearance in "Sheridan's Ride." She has appeared in many motion picture productions, the latest being with William Russell and Mary Miles Minter, in American-Mutuals.

Miss Forde makes her first appearance in Mutual-Strands in "Finishing Mary," the publication of March 12.

Utah Theatremen Print
Unique Monthly Program

The Western Amusement Company of Eureka, Utah, of which G. C. Lindsay is manager, is publishing a 32-page program that is unique in theatre advertising. The booklet is profusely illustrated, each page containing full information regarding the daily attractions at the Crescent and Star theatres for the month of March.

The house policy and a complete index of the program's contents make it a compact and valuable little souvenir for the Western Amusement Company's patrons. It is nicely bound and printed on good stock, and speaks well for this enterprising Utah firm.

Many New Plays in Course of Making
At Fox Eastern and Western Studios

Although the fuel situation somewhat handicapped the work in the Fort Lee studios of William Fox the two new studios in New York City somewhat relieved the situation in the east, while in the west the running of new photoplays continued without interruption.

In the Los Angeles studios Lynn Reynolds is directing Tom Mix in a new photoplay. The story is by Mix and the scenario by Reynolds. In this production Victoria Forde comes back as leading lady for Tom Mix. Miss Forde played in many of the Mix comedies. Others in the cast are Frank Clark and Barney Furey.

Edward LeSaint has finished photographing a new picture in which Gladys Brockwell is starred. The story is by Charles Kenyon. In the cast are LeSaint through Arnebrands, Bertin Grasby, T. D. Critten, Henry De Montford, and Andrew Robson.

In Los Angeles also J. Gordon Edward has secured the rights of Thea Bara super production. The story has been adapted by Adrian Johnson. The announcement is made from the Fox offices that in this new production Miss Bara does better work than she did in Cleopatra.

C. M. Franklin is directing another story in which Jewel Carmen is the star. Frank Lloyd has finished his divorce propaganda picture.

At the Fox Theatre New J. J. studios Peggy Hyland has finished her first picture for William Fox. It is titled "The Deed of Honor," and was directed by O. A. C. Lunde. This picture has a touch of the spy interest. It is set for one of the March publications.

William Farnum and his company of players returned from two exteriors at Port Henry in the Adirondacks, are at the Biograph studios in New York City, finishing work on a Willaim Farnum de luxe production "Rough and Ready." At the Biograph studios also R. A. Walsh is at work on "Woman and the Law," the story of which is based on a real life story. At the Lee, Jane and Katherine, are busy on a new picture to follow "American Buds."

A Victor studio Virginia Pearson is finishing "A Daughter of France" and Harry Millarde is directing June Caprice in a picture which will be one of the April releases.

Goldwyn Practically Completes Foreign Distribution Plan

During the week distribution contracts have been signed with John Olsen & Co., the largest cinema firm in Scandinavia, for the publication of Goldwyn Pictures in Sweden, Norway and Denmark. The Olsen organization has its headquarters in Copenhagen.

Similar contracts are about to be signed with other large organizations for the distribution of Goldwyn Pictures in Italy, Spain and France. In its present state, Russia's disorganization has brought the film industry to a temporary standstill. Until the end of the war Goldwyn's only open spots will be the lands of the Teutonic Allies and Russia.

Contracts were also signed last week by Goldwyn with the Co-operative Film Corporation of New York for the distribution of its productions in Chile, Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador. This organization controls a number of the leading theatres in those four South American countries. These contracts were signed through M. A. Shein, of Goldwyn's export department.

That Goldwyn is becoming increasingly active in reaching out for the world markets, as well as extending the exportation of its North American business, is indicated by the fact that within three weeks it has announced the consummation of plans for leasing its productions in Australia through J. C. Williamsons Films, Ltd., in New Zealand and Australia through the New Zealand Pic- ture, in South Africa through the South African Film Trust, which absolutely controls all African territory south of the Equator; for India and Pakistan through J. B. & Co.; for Argentine Republic and Uruguay through Messrs. Saez & Gonzalez; for Porto Rico and San Domingo through Agencia General Cinematografica.

Modern Features Co.
Books "Mother" Film
For Loew Circuit

Following the announcement made last week by Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin that the New York City and state rights to their production, "Mother," had been acquired by the Modern Feature Film Company, Charles H. Striener stated last Monday that the picture had been booked by the Marcus Loew Circuit. It is considered a tribute to the film that within a week after its disposition for the New York territory it has been selected to appear in one of the largest chains of photoplay houses in New York City.

Mr. Striener, manager of the Modern Features Film Company, with offices in the Godfrey building, New York, states that arrangements have been made whereby "Mother" will open on the Loew time on Thursday, March 14. The initial presentation in New York will occur at the New York Theatre.

Mr. Striener has arranged to distribute several other productions of the issue of the Ladie's World, containing a complete novelized version of the story. In addition, the film will be extensively advertised throughout the New York district by twenty-four sheet stands. Following the New York Theatre screening of "Mother," the feature will appear in all other houses which make pp the Loew Circuit in New York and Brooklyn.

"The EXHIBITORS HERALD is a paper with a punch on every page."—Frank Vanston, manager of the Temple Theatre, Elgin, Ill.

Raymond W. Pauley
Made Treasurer of W. W. Hodkinson Corp.

Raymond W. Pauley, who was treasurer of the Paramount Pictures Corporation during the early years, has been appointed Treasurer of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

Mr. Pauley is one of the early pioneers of the motion picture industry. Before the forming of Paramount he distributed the productions of Famous Players in "The Twelfth Episode," which had its Jersey territory. When Mr. Hodkinson founded the Paramount Pictures Corporation Mr. Pauley was made treasurer and worked there until Mr. Hodkinson tendered his resignation when he went with Mr. Hodkinson to Triangle.

Mr. Pauley is one of the best known figures in the industry and his connection with the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation brings together once more two men who are known from coast to coast as advocates of a square deal to the exhibitor.

Geo. Dubois Proctor
Joins World Staff

George DuBois Proctor, well-known newspaper man and scenarist, has joined the scenario staff of the World Film Corporation. Mr. Proctor is one of the best known men in the business, and comes to World films with a long line of success to his credit. He was born in Danvers, Mass. and educated at Andover and at Yale. Early he felt the call of adventure, and, after leaving college, decided to devote all of his time to it. He first joined the Metro staff, then became scenario editor for Gaumont. He served with Lasky for a year and then with Thomas H. Ince.

Jaxon Serial Ends

The entire gamut of German spy activities in the United States is run in "A Day in U.S. Intelligence," the latest of the Jaxon Patriotic Serial. Each of the twelve episodes presents one or more phases of the attempts of enemy agents to hamper America's participation in the war. The most recent instalment of this action usually found in a two-reel episode into a single-reel chapter has proven popular according to the General Film Company. When each of the twelve has been completed, the story itself, it shows the complete breakdown of the Hun spy system in the United States.
Mitchell Lewis in
"THE SIGN INVISIBLE"
Edgar Lewis drama; six parts; published First National Exhibitors' Circuit
As a whole........... Well produced Story ................ Strong Star ............. Capable Support ............... Excellent Photography .... Harmonious

Edgar Lewis' "The Sign Invisible" lives up to the high standard set by this producer in "The Barrier" and "The Bar Sinister." This picture is more psychological but no less dramatic than the others.

The story has been splendidly arranged by Anthony Kelly and the settings are particularly characteristic of the great North, where the action takes place. The direction is excellent throughout, the name of Edgar Lewis being a guarantee of unusual merit. No better evening's entertainment could be offered audiences in first class motion picture theaters.

The cast is especially capable, Mitchell Lewis gives a wonderful performance and acquires himself nobly as Lone Deer, the half breed, Victor Sutherland, who plays the young doctor, displays unusual talent in the difficult role. He is called upon to rise to great dramatic heights and holds his audience spellbound. Mabel Julianne Seibert shows a beautiful piece of work as the youthful heroine. She has remarkable charm and fascinating beauty as well as histrionic ability. William Williams and Edward Roseman also contributed excellent bits of acting.

The story: Dr. Robert Winston has performed several operations with apparent success, but the patients have lost their lives. He has become very nervous and begins to lose faith in his skill. He is to operate on his mother, who is in a critical condition. He implores Janet, his nurse, to remain with her and promises to take good care of her. Janet refuses and on the dread day he prays to God to spare his mother's life. He also makes a bundle of the young surgeon's mail and signs it to the minister of a small town. The daughter of the minister, Janet, saves the minister's life and gives him warm food. The minister returns and in the first few moments of their acquaintance the doctor scoffs at religion. Janet rebukes him and finally turns him out. He goes from bad to worse. Lone Deer, a half breed, saves him from the jeering crowd of drunkards who come to burn the church. Winston is determined to sleep off his drunk undisturbed and so unconsciously protects the church. The girl thanks him. The saloonkeeper, who secretly loves Janet, becomes jealous. He runs after her and tries to escape, falls in the water. Lone Deer saves her, but the saloonkeeper shoots Lone Deer. Winston is called upon to probe for the bullet. He begs God to give him the sign by sparing this man's life. The operation is success and the man recovers. The physician regains his faith and his self respect and incidentally wins Janet.

Alice Brady in
"THE SPURS OF SYBILL"
World drama; five parts; published March 4
As a whole........... Good Story ................ Pleasing Star ............. Well cast Support ............... Sufficient Settings ............. Faithful Photography .... Clear

Although "The Spurs of Sybill" lacks dramatic action it affords a goodly amount of pleasing entertainment. Alice Brady is enjoyable throughout as the niece who endeavors to prove to her wealthy uncle that she can earn her own way in life. John Bowers is a fine Dr. Alger and John Davidson an excellent lounge lizard. Other members of the cast are Eugenic Woodward, Herbert Barrington, Richard Clark, Iseth Munro and Justine Butterfield by Travers Vale.

The story: Sybil Drew goes to New York to earn her own way, leaving the luxurious home of her aunt, with little knowledge of the world. She stops at a fashionable hotel immediately after her arrival and becomes a future detective. She goes from one place to another seeking employment and finally becomes companion to an eccentric old maid, but when she starts an affair with her employer's nephew she is discharged. Dr. Ross Alger falls in love with her from the very first, but he too suspects her. However, when she is trapped in the gambling den of people who pretended to be friends she comes to her rescue and forthwith becomes her protector for life.

Clara Kimball Young in "THE HOUSE OF GLASS"
Select Pictures Corp. drama; five parts; published March 4
As a whole........... Excellent Story ................ Gripping Star ............. Splendid Support ............... Very good Settings ............. In keeping Photography ....... Very good

"The House of Glass" gives the beautiful Clara Kimball Young an opportunity to distinguish herself as a thoughtful, psychological actress. She does some of the best work of her brilliant career as Margaret Case, the unfortunate heroine of Max Marvin's play. The picture is unique in suspense and novelty. It is thrilling and teaches a great lesson as well. The direction of Emilie Chautard is responsible for much of the effectiveness of the weaving of delicate scenes into a powerful fabric. The picture is one the reviewer unhesitatingly recommends to exhibitors.

In Miss Young's support appears Corliss Giles, who accords her excellent support as the young railroad magnate.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG AND SUPPORT IN A TENSE SCENE FROM "THE HOUSE OF GLASS"

Pell Trenton also deserves special mention for a fine characterization. Others in the cast are Edward Kimball, James T. Laffey, Josie Sadler, Norman Selby, Wm. Waitman, Peggy Burke and Doris Field.

The story: Margaret Case, a stenographer, is engaged to Burke, a chauffeur, who tells her that he has inherited a fortune and that they must go to Chicago to take up their social life in the town where the uncle had lived. Margaret gives up her position and is packing when Burke brings her a diamond necklace. She packs the necklace in her trunk. Detectives surprise them, find stolen goods and arrest them both in spite of the fact that Burke protests the girl's innocence. After a year in prison Margaret is paroled. She eventually goes West, where she meets Harvey Lake, who employs her and learns to love her. They are married and live happily together.

Burke finishes his term in prison. Later he meets her in the West and warns her to stay away from New York because she has broken her parole. She learns that her husband has accepted a position in New York and her life becomes unbearable. His husband is prosecuting a young forger and one of the detectives in the case recognizes Margaret. She realizes that she must give herself up, but through the understanding of a close friend of the Governor's she is taken up and she is granted a pardon. With her innocence restored and her husband's happiness saved she realizes her first free joy.
Kitty Gordon in

"THE WASP"

World drama; five parts; published March 11

As a whole: Timely
Story: Well developed
Star: Fine
Support: Adequate
Settings: In keeping
Photography: Good

There is a timeliness about "The Wasp," which in addition to its interesting story and popular star should augur well for its success as motion picture entertainment. It is the story of German spies working against the successful operation of government manufacturers and their unexpected capture by the pretty daughter of one of their victims.

Kitty Gordon, as usual, is pleasing and well gowned. In her support appear Rockcliffe Fellows, Victor Kennard, Lionel Belmore, Charles Gerry and Sadie Burbank. The direction is by Lionel Belmore. The "Wasp" was written by Willard Mack and what it lacks in plausibility is more than made up by swift-moving incident.

The story: Grace Culver has been dubbed "The Wasp" because of her stinging tongue and clever satire. Her father is desirous of having her marry Kane Putman, but when Grace learns the true nature of the man, she rebels and leaves home. Harry Cortland, who first saw Grace at a football game, is determined to make her his wife. He becomes her chauffeur and when angry strikers from her father's factories, inspired by a German agent, Carl Wagner, attack their machine, Cortland tries to save her. However, they are made prisoners. Grace manages to get word to soldiers. She and Cortland escape into a tunnel where they are trapped when the German agents set off a bomb. Grace learns that Harry Cortland is a millionaire's son and in love with her and after their rescue by American soldiers, they make a hasty trip to a nearbyparsonage.

Ann Pennington in "Sunshine Nan"

Ann Pennington will appear in "Sunshine Nan," a Paramount feature, March 11. The story was adapted to the screen by Eve Unsell from the novel, "Calvary Alley," by Alice Hagan Rice and was produced for Paramount by Charles Giblyn.

Emmy Wehlen in

"THE SHELL GAME"

Metro drama; five parts; published March 4

As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Interesting
Star: Well cast
Support: Ample
Settings: Suitable
Photography: Good

There is good entertainment in "The Shell Game" and it is a desirable offering. The plot has been handled with the idea of keeping the suspense up to a high pitch and it has a number of original twists that gives one a surprise at the end. Considerable praise is due George D. Baker for the manner in which he has handled the story and Emmy Wehlen does her role full justice. She is ably supported by Henry Kolker. This proved a particularly interesting production to patrons of Chicago's Orpheum Theatre last week.

The story: Convinced that she is bringing happiness to a broken down father, Alice Sheldon is persuaded by Silk Wilking, a crook, to represent herself as the long lost daughter of Lawrence Gray. The scheme works successfully until Wilkins demands money for become too insistent, when the truth is revealed. Gray knew that Wilkins was a crook and in order to amuse him had invented the story of his daughter being lost in a good cause. However, he thinks it fitting for his little scheme as it has brought him his future wife. After a little coaxing Alice, who had gone to New York to study music, gives up the idea to become Mrs. Gray.

Margery Wilson in

"THE HARD ROCK BREED"

Triangle drama; five parts; published March 10

As a whole: Carefully handled Story: Exciting
Star: Pleasing Support: Fine
Settings: Splendid

This is one of the best western productions the reviewer has had an opportunity of seeing for some time. It is splendidly done, every detail of direction has been given careful attention and the story is fast moving and full of excitement.

In the smaller towns and outlying theatres where audiences enjoy these tales of western life, exhibitors can book it confidently as a good production of its type and advertise it strongly. While Margery Wilson hasn't a great deal to do, she is the feature in a pleasant and winsome manner. Jack Livingston and J. Barneys Sherry are among the supporting members of the cast. The direction is by Raymond Wells.

The story: In order to save his son from ruin Bill Naughton sends him to become foreman of his lumber gang. The men whom young Naughton are to "boss" are of the hard rock breed and refuse to be lauded over by a pampered son of the idle rich. However, the methods Donald Naughton employs are entirely different from what had been anticipated and within a short time though many brawls and fights had been indulged in, Donald becomes master of his men and they admire their new leader. While working Naughton has had time for some pleasure. This he has found in Shielas Dolan, whose father at first proved to be one of his strongest opponents. With his success in ruling men Donald succeeds in ruling the heart of one of Snowslide's fairest maidens.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.

"Ann's Finish" is the tale of a boarding school girl who gets herself into all sorts of scrapes. An appropriate subject for the neighborhood house where patrons enjoy pictures of a lighter vein.

Miss Fischer is especially pleasing in her role of Ann Anderson and makes the most of every opportunity. She is accompanied by Jack Mower, Adelaide Elliott, David Howard, Robert Klein and Perry Banks. The direction is by Lloyd Ingraham.

The story: After being expelled from practically every fashionable boarding school Ann Anderson enters the school of Mme. D'Arcy and is in line for expulsion when she claims a burglar, as her husband in order to save him from arrest. She discovers a list of burglaries which are to be committed and goes out to notify the next victim. While doing so she is trapped by robbers and held prisoner. She escapes and is pursued by her guard. Her burglar-husband chances to be riding by and rescues her. She finds that he is not a burglar, but an author endeavoring to secure atmosphere for a story. His mother was to have been the next victim of the burglars. The arrival of love smooths many barriers.

Concerning the efforts of a band of Chinese to obtain from a girl a ring known as "the green seal," which will entitle the leader of the Celestials to return to Tibet as a monarch. The Girl in the Dark" furnishes an average brand of entertainment. Ashton Dearholt, a newcomer to the Bluebird company, plays opposite Miss Myers and performs satisfactorily. The cast includes Alfred Allen, Frank Deschon and Betty Schade.

The story: Bruce Ferris rescues a girl from a band of Chinnamen who have attacked her. He discovers a Chinese idiograph tattooed in the flesh of her neck and on her finger is a ring of similar design. He is visited by a stranger who wants to see the girl. In the meantime she is attacked by Ferris' Chinese valet but he is fought off. In the fight, the stranger falls into the hands of the band. The girl is also lured to their headquarters and held captive. Working with the police Ferris is able to break up the band, rescue the girl and the stranger, who tells the story of the mysterious mark on the girl and declares himself her uncle. In the meantime the friendship of Ferris and the girl has ripened into love.

"Headin' South" should prove quite welcome to theaters where Douglas Fairbanks is a favorite and to those who enjoy subjects containing western atmosphere, swift riding and "shoot-em-up" brawls, flavored with wholesome humor, excitement and thrills, the reviewer recommends this picture. The story is quite different from anything recently done by Mr. Fairbanks and while it is true that he does just as much jumping, climbing and running, stunts with the different atmosphere, his work has a new flavor. The story gives Fairbanks' agility and smile full play. Catherine MacDonald appears opposite Mr. Fairbanks.

The story: Known only as "Headin' South," a forest ranger goes forth in search of "Spanish" Joe, a Mexican who has been responsible for a great deal of the treachery and outlawry along the Mexican border. He gains quite a reputation as he goes along and finally believes himself worthy of joining Joe's band. This is the beginning of a whirlwind finish in which Joe is captured. "Headin' South" meets one of Joe's near victims and falls in love with her.

"The Triumph of Venus" aroused an invited audience at the Strand Theatre, New York, last week, by its very ludicrousness and at one point in its unreeling drew hisses from those present. The production, which is uninteresting, long drawn out, and contains not the slightest punch, is the work of Edwin Bower Hesser and is described as a "mythological spectacle.

The result shows the utter lack of knowledge of the subject matter, technique, lighting effect, acting, direction or grouping. The whole is a jumbled mess with here and there a few beautiful water views and mountain gorges.

An incident which caused roars of laughter was the throwing of a character from a high cliff. A dummy was seen to fall some distance, but immediately get up and walk back to the top of the cliff with a new net, which he placed over the other two characters, with nothing to explain where he got the net.

Many of the scenes show wood nymphs dancing in more or less abbreviated attire; young ladies swimming and diving in pools and rivers a la Annette Kellerman and a fine piece of work is furnished by one character floating over falls. From a box-office standpoint the picture may draw a few curious ones on the title, but these are due to disappointment if they are looking for anything resembling a coherent story.

That they just had to fill the five reels is the feeling one gets after viewing "Daddy's Girl." Marie Osborne and the youngsters who surround her are interesting enough and undoubtedly as a production for children it will have a wide appeal, but there seems past the stage of adolescence we find the tale boresome. There is a little dairk in the cast who is full of fun and his little comedy touches furnish much of the entertainment. A circus gotten up by the children and in which many of the characters do delight the hearts of youngsters. The story of the father and mother who separate when they become wealthy and who are reconciled through the efforts of their little daughter is an old one and not overly interesting.

The story: At the death of her uncle Helen Standlaw's daughter, Marie, becomes heiress to his estate. Sudden wealth weakens Helen's husband and ere long he is spending much of his time with the wife of his senior partner. Helen, unable to longer stand the strain, becomes ill and in the middle of the night Marie rushes to the house of the woman where she finds her father and brings him back, whereupon the wife shows signs of recovery.

Because it has a certain appeal, because it is interesting and because it is a well done production, "One More American" should prove a good attraction for any class of audience, and especially so for admirers of George Beban. He gives his usual enjoyable interpretation of an Italian and his pathos and humor are well blended. Supporting Mr. Beban are Raymond Hatton, Camille Ankewich, Helen Eddy, Jack Holt, H. B. Carpenter, Hector Dion. The direction is by William C. DeMille.

The story: After five years' separation Luigi Riccardo learns that his wife and daughter are going to join him in America. Although legally not a citizen, in his heart Luigi regards his adopted country with reverence and his refusal to pay graft to Boss Regan results in his wife and daughter being left in Ellis Island upon their arrival. Through the assistance of Detective Beban, the district attorney's office and a newspaper reporter, the Regan scheme is exposed and Luigi's wife and daughter are permitted to come to him.

"CAVANAUGH OF THE FOREST RANGERS"
Vitaphone drama; five parts; published February 25

As a whole: Fair
Story: Disconnected
Stars: Good Support: Excellent Settings: Excellent
Photography: Good

The story of "Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers" is not at all times clear. In the filming of the tale continuity has been forgotten and appeal in the narrative is lacking. Alfred Whitman has a great deal to do and does it well. Nell Shipman is pleasingly cast as the sweetheart of the Ranger. Otto Lederer and Laura Winston perform interesting bits of character work. The out-of-doors scenes are splendid and the photography is clear. These latter are the two outstanding features of the production.

The story: After an absence of many years Virginia Wetheredge returns home unexpectedly and finds her mother the owner of a restaurant catering to forest rangers and sheep herders. The dirtiness of the place at first disgusts Virginia, but under the kind influence of Ross Cavanaugh, chief forest ranger, she overcomes this disagreeable feeling and within a short time has completely cleaned the establishment while it pleasing. Cavanaugh is daring in his work and succeeds eventually in cleaning up the band of pasture and sheep thieves. Mystery regarding the sightseeing of Virginia for a time acts as a barrier between the two, but Cavanaugh's love for Virginia finally wins.

Pauline Starke in
"THE SHOES THAT DANCED"
Triangle drama; five parts; published March 3
As a whole: Well done
Story: Appealing
Support: Sufficient
Settings: Appropriate

For its type "The Shoes That Danced" is a well done subject. It deals with the life led by New York East Side gangsters and is chock full of human interest. Comedy and the more sombre note of tragedy lend excitement and interest to this somewhat out of the ordinary tale. Pauline Starke makes an appealing and sympathy-inviting figure in the role of Rhoda Regan. She is given good support in Wallace MacDonald, Dick Rosson, Anne Kromann, William Dyer and Anna Dodge. The direction is by Frank Borzage from John Morosco's story.

The story: Rhoda Regan loves the Harmony Lad, leader of an East Side gang, but a number of murders makes Rhoda fear for the safety of the Lad and she persuade him to become a cabaret entertainer. He secures an engagement in vaudeville. Another murder is committed by Stumpy, a new leader and pies are put on the trail of the Lad. He buries himself in New Jersey and Rhoda takes up a flirtation with Stumpy intending to turn him over to the police. Though nearly precipitating her love affair with the Lad, she is successful in clearing him of the murder charge, and eventually straightens matters with the Harmony Lad.

Story: Fair

There is plenty of action in "Nobody's Wife," a tale of the northwest dealing with the search of a member of the mounted police for a crook who has evaded justice for five years. Hart Hoxie is none too convincing in the leading male role, however, perhaps due to the weakness of the vehicle. As a whole it offers a fair program production.

The story: Jack Darling is assigned to capture Alec Young, wanted for a murder. The fugitive's girl has been seen around Nugget. On his way to the place Jack runs across a pretty girl, who is alone in a cabin with a baby. He volunteers to go to Nugget for milk. In the saloon he finds "Dancing Pete," Alec's girl. He is warned by the sheriff to stay away from her. While calling at her cabin he is mysteriously shot. Through a photograph found in her cabin he identifies the sheriff as the hunted man. Through a hoax he shows up the sheriff as a crook and arrests him. He then explains his association with "Dancing Pete" to the girl in the cabin, who, in turn, tells him that the child is her sister's, and the two come to an understanding.
Mutual Presents Margarita Fischer in
"Ann's Finish" A 5-Reel Comedy Drama

Mutual announces another Margarita Fischer production for the week of March 11. It is titled "Ann's Finish," and was produced by the American under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham. The scenario was written by Elizabeth Mahoney from a story by Beatrice Van. It is a comedy-drama in which the elements of mystery and comedy alternate, it is said.

The scene of the play is in the select finishing school of Madame D'Arcey, which Ann Anderson (Margarita Fischer) attends. As soon as she arrives the said school is aroused by sundry happenings of an exciting nature. A mysterious burglar is caught by Ann in her room and makes such a touching appeal that she passes him off as her husband to the matron who comes to investigate the rumpus. He is only a novelist, however, in search of realistic "atmosphere," but Ann doesn't know it.

A real burglar appears the following night, and Ann is the heroine of the hour when she succeeds in holding him until the watchman arrives, but not until she is punctured with a bullet. Having secured a husband, Ann is nonplussed when she is called by her former suitor. She decides to give up widowhood and become reconciled to her realistic novelist-husband.

Display of Pretty Gowns

Miss Fischer's role is said to give her wide scope for her versatile talents of mimicry. She wears many beautiful gowns made after her own designs, while the production, Mutual announces, is lavishly mounted.

Jack Mower is Miss Fischer's leading man, playing the mysterious burglar. Others in the cast are Adelaide Elliott, David Howard, John Gough, Robert Klein and Perry Banks.

The New York Herald Tribune for March 13 and 17 will cover happenings of interest in the United States and Europe. The organization of the Screen Telegram correspondents embrace every state and territory on the continent, as well as foreign correspondents in the war zone and its sympathizers. The World Telegram scored a decided "scoop" in the first issue, showing the last photograph ever made of Captain Vernon Castle.

Billie Rhodes will appear in a one-reel Strand comedy, March 13, entitled "Finishing Mary." Billie is threatened with being expelled for giving a pickle party in her room and inviting all of her schoolmates. She redeems herself by capturing a second-story man who has hid under the bed, and is made the model student by the principal.

Five Features Announced by Fox
To Be Issued During March Month

Five special features are scheduled by William Fox for publication during the month of March. On March 3 Jewel Carmen was offered in "The Girl with the Champagne Eyes." In this production Miss Carmen takes the part of a girl pickpocket. She sends an innocent man to jail, repents, earns her forgiveness and finally reforms and marries him.

The next to feature presents Peggy Hylan in "The Debt of Honor." This is the first picture Margarita Fischer has made for Fox. It has a spy interest and a timely war plot.

March 17 Fox offers Gladys Brockwell in "The Devil's Wheel." Many of the scenes in this production are laid in Paris and the story revolves around a system evolved by a marquis to beat the roulette wheel. The daughter of the marquis is played by Miss Brockwell, who is made the heroine of a series of Paris and London adventures.

Virginia Pearson, in "A Daughter of France," is the feature for March 24. As the title would indicate it is a war play. The scenes are laid along the battle front and Miss Pearson plays the part of a beautiful French girl, who is attacked by invading soldiers.

Five features for March 31 is George Walsh in "The Kid Is Clever." This, it is said, will be one of the best pictures George Walsh has made. Announcement from the Fox offices is to the effect that it is full of sparkling comedy and surprise situations.
Louise Glaum’s First Paralta Play
Will Be Called “The Iron Beast”

Announcement has just been made of a change in the title of the Paralta Play in which Louise Glaum will soon make her debut as a star at the head of her own company. The picture which has been tentatively called “Intelligence” will be published through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation under the new title “The Iron Beast.”

Work on the photo-drama is progressing rapidly at the Paralta Studios in Los Angeles, Cal. The story which is being directed by W. A. Walling of Hollywood is the life of the famous Russian Mar. Katterjohn and deals with the Great War from an angle which has as yet not been touched upon by the dramatic world.

Miss Glaum plays the role of a girl raised in Germany and educated in Wilhelmsstrasse. She is placed in the Intelligence Department of the Central Powers, and is given weighty responsibilities and sent to America to obtain information which will tend to wreck this republic. In this unique situation, spying for the Central Powers, but feeling no enthusiasm in her work, Miss Glaum enters into many thrilling and complicated incidents which comprise this gripping drama.

Three New Photoplays Titled by Fox
To Be Published in March and April

Three new photoplays were titled last week by William Fox. One is the divorce propaganda picture which is tentatively set for publication as a Standard production April 7th, and the others are special features.

“The Blinding of Divorce” is the title decided on for the divorce propaganda picture. This picture was made in Hollywood, Cal., by Director Frank Lloyd and the announcement is made by the Fox offices that it will preach a powerful sermon on the evils of the present divorce laws and the injustice that they work.

In the cast Bertha Marr plays the part of the neglected wife of a rich man. She is divorced by him and becomes Chairman of a prosperous farm colony. The part of John Langdon, her husband, is played by Charles Clary. The part of the couple’s daughter, Florence, who has been raised in the belief that her mother is dead, is played by Rhea Midge. Bertram Graysby plays the unnamed corespondent in the divorce proceedings.

The new picture Gladys Brockwell has made has been titled “The Devil’s Wheel.” This picture is the special feature for the week of March 17th. The title is based on the story of a system devised by a French Marquis to beat the roulette wheel. The scenes are laid in France and the love of Gladys Brockwell for the leader of Apaches figures prominently.

“A Camouflage Kiss” is the title selected for the new picture June Caprice is making and which is scheduled for publication as a special feature April 7th. “Hooverissies” and “food barons” figure in this new play and the plot hinges on a kiss in the dark, or, as it has been called, “A Camouflage Kiss.”

Mary Garden in “The Splendid Sinner”

Mary Garden’s second Goldwyn production, “The Splendid Sinner,” will be published on March 24, instead of on April 7, as was first anticipated.

It is the story of a woman who sacrificed her honor but won a dramatic and sensational redemption, with martyrdom and the affecion of a nation as her final reward.

This alteration of Goldwyn’s schedule brings, as first announced, Mabel Normand back in her second Goldwyn feature, “The Floor Below,” by Flaine Sterne, on March 2.

This week comes the most unusual production in which Madge Kennedy has appeared since she made her screen debut for Goldwyn. The first of this new picture is “The Danger Game.” It is being directed by Harry Pollard, who joined the Goldwyn organization when Director Edward Dillon met with an accident recently.

Marie Walcamp Slaps Lion’s Face;
Director Gets Some New Ideas

An attack by one of the lions upon Marie Walcamp while working on the first episode of “The Lion’s Claws,” the new Universal adventure serial, announced for release April 1st, resulted in the actress receiving a scar she will carry for life; provided a new idea for a number of scenes and incidents in the plot to Director Jacques Beaudet and led to the change of title to “The Lion’s Claws” instead of “The Moon Girl,” the original title.

In the first episode of “The Lion’s Claws,” Marie Walcamp as Beth Johnston, the daughter of a British army captain stationed in Africa, is kidnapped by a tribe of natives and carried into the wilderness. While in camp the party is attacked by five lions—the natives naturally run away and leave her.

“Plot Thickens—A New Lion”

One of the new lions—additions have recently been made to the Universal menagerie—was in a particularly ugly manner all day and it happened that he was not only released from his cage first but a little earlier than expected—and he anticipated his cue, arriving while Miss Walcamp was still running in a supposed hunt for a safe hiding place.

Just as the lion arrived on the scene the actress tripped upon a tree root and fell heavily.

“Know How Infuriated a Lion Gets”

The sight of a human being on the ground and moving invariably infuriates a wild animal and the lion made a flying leap at the little lady, landing on her back as she was arising, tearing her blouse to ribbons with his claws, lacerating her face and as subsequently discovered, leaving a scar that she will carry for life.

As serious as the result might have been an element of humor was injected into the incident in the plucky actress standing up and landing a neat uppercut with her bare hand on the jaw of the lion, at the same time shouting a command at him. The command or the uppercut were effective for he ran for his cage pursued by his keepers with a varied assortment of weapons that had rushed to the aid of the star.

Theda Bara’s Play “Soul of Buddha”
To Be Published by Wm. Fox April 7

Following “Rough and Ready,” the William Farnum production which is scheduled for March 24, there will be published April 7th, “The Soul of Buddha,” a Theda Bara feature.

This play was written by Miss Bara herself. Briefly the story is told of a half caste East Indian girl who renounces her crotch as a sacred dancing girl, dedicated to the worship of the Good Buddha, thereby incurring the displeasure of the High Priest who vows vengeance.

After marrying a titled English Army officer, the former dancing girl leaves for Paris where she makes a sensation as a dancer. Deserting her husband for the stage she gets ready to make her debut. On the eve of her triumph, her husband seeking a reconciliation, kills himself at his wife’s feet. The High Priest, finding the former novitiate in Paris, disguises himself as a Buddha idol, and as she performs her dance on the stage, he comes to life and kills her before the audience.

It is claimed that Director J. Gordon Edwards has constructed an unusual interior set in this production.

Miss Minter in “Church Window Angel”

“The Church Window Angel” is the title of the picture on which Mary Minter is now at work. Jeanne Judson wrote the story and Karl Coolidge arranged it for the screen. Edward Sloman will direct it.

Miss Minter in this picture plays the role of Florence Hope, raised in ignorance of the fact that she is an heiress Alan Forrest and George Periolat will have important roles in the picture.

“House of Hate” Date Changed

Pathé announces that “The House of Hate,” the new Pearl White serial with Antonio Moreno, will be issued March 18 instead of March 3 as originally planned.
Owing to general financial conditions and the consequent lack of activity in film stocks the department devoted to film stock quotations and market comment will be temporarily discontinued beginning with this issue.

Manitoba Passes Amusement Tax Law; Places Heavy Burden on Theatregoers

Law Becomes Effective April 1—Special Stamps to Be Used—Theatremen Cannot Raise Prices and Pay Tax Themselves

The new Amusement Tax Act, which became a law in the Province of Manitoba on February 22, becomes effective April 1. The bill which was introduced by Hon. Edward Brown, Provincial Treasurer, was adopted by a vote of 25 to 3 upon its final reading before the Legislature.

Attempts to secure an amendment whereby the stamps on all admissions up to 25 cents be made one cent instead of two, failed. The tax on admissions as it now stands is as follows: Five cent admissions, 1 cent tax; 6 to 15 cents, 2 cents; 16 to 25 cents, 3 cents; 26 to 40 cents, 4 cents; 41 to 75 cents, 5 cents; 75 cents to $1., 10 cents; $1.01 to $1.50, 15 cents; $1.51 to $2., 20 cents; $2.01 to $2.50, 25 cents.

Special regulations for the collection of the admission tax are being printed and will be posted by the hands of all theatre owners and other places of amusement by April 1.

The tax will be collected by means of war revenue stamps which theatre patrons must buy at the box office. These stamps can be purchased in large quantities if desired from the theatres and be used as needed. Special receptacles are to be provided at each theatre for the stamps, which patrons will drop as they pass.

Theatre managers are not allowed to assume the war tax for any or all patrons. Theatre goers must pay the tax themselves and all holders of passes, such as newspapermen, etc., are required to buy war revenue stamps, the amount being fixed for the highest priced seat in the theatre.

F. J. Dixon, who moved to have the committee consider a reduction of the tax, pointed out that the burden of the tax will be absorbed by the patron who seeks low-priced amusement, as the average percentage of taxation on tickets up to 15 cents is twenty per cent. On tickets costing 25 cents the percentage of taxation is 15 per cent, while it varies from 12.5 to 9 per cent on tickets above 25 cents.

J. H. Willoughby, who for a number of years has acted as a member of the Manitoba board of Censors, has been appointed administrator of the law and will have charge of the enforcement of the Act outside of Winnipeg. Walter Deering, formerly connected with the Walker theatre, will look after the collection of the tax in Winnipeg.

Exhibitors Seek to Amend Drastic Law

A deputation representing the motion picture theatre owners of Toronto waited upon Hon. F. W. McCarty, provincial treasurer, at the Parliament buildings, Toronto, on February 23, seeking an amendment to the law which prohibits children under 15 years of age from entering a motion picture theatre when not accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The case of a prosecution was recited when recently an owner was fined. It took place when a small boy was admitted into the theatre with a guardian, but during the performance the guardian moved to the rear of the theatre for the purpose of seeing the picture up to a better advantage, while the child remained at the front of the house. The provincial treasurer promised to consider a measure that would cover such cases.

At the Board of Control meeting in Toronto on Feb. 26, Controller S. McBride moved that owing to the relief from fuel scarcity, brought about by the Fuel Controller at Ottawa be asked to rescind the order requiring theatres to close one day a week. Controller McBride pointed out that the theatres were already burdened by war tax and suffering heavy financial loss. The motion carried unanimously.

Film Men Ask Relief From Assessment

A committee of four exhibitors of Winnipeg, Man., representing the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association of Manitoba, waited upon the Market, Licensed and Relief Committee of Winnipeg on February 19 to ask the city to reduce the municipal fee for moving picture theatres.

"Motion picture theatres are not the gold mines that many people suppose," declared one of the deputation and they stated that half of the local theatres would be compelled to close unless some relief from license, taxes and other assessments was afforded. It was suggested by the delegation that the civic fees be reduced, and further that exhibitors be permitted to pay them in quarterly instalments.

The Ministerial Association of Quebec is endeavoring to rescind the law recently passed in that Province allowing theatres to open on Sunday.

T. Cooper, auditor of the General Film Company, was in St. John recently, closing up the St. John Branch of that company.

Finding that closing the theatres by order of the Fuel Controller one day a week eliminates the entire profits of a week's performances, the Canadian Theatres Limited, have decided to close the Francois Theatre, Montreal, Que.

The Bijou Theatre, Calgary, which runs Fox and World subjects, have booked the Universal serial "The Bull's Eye," featuring Eddie Polo. The manager, T. D. McKenzie, says that Universal serials are very popular in his theatre and are the means of netting him a considerable amount of revenue.

A meeting of the executives of the Ontario Exhibitors Association and the Exchanges' Association was held last week for the purpose of getting a National Board of Trade that will cooperate for the better protection of both parties. A deputation from both associations was elected to go to Ottawa to further into this matter.

M. H. Hoffman of New York paid a visit to Toronto, during the past week, while on a visit to Foursquare Exchanges. M. H. is looking as well as ever and all his friends were glad to see him in Toronto again.

Cedar Cottage Theatre, Vancouver, B. C., is building up a splendid business. This theatre is controlled by ex-soldiers and is using Universal service exclusively, running two serials, Bluebird and Butterfly Features.

The Princess Theatre, Ottawa, formerly under the management of Mr. Kaufman, has been turned over to Mr. Schugerman.

It is rumored that Manager Thomas of the Strand Theatre, Omaha, and president of the Nebraska Exhibitors League, who recently made a business trip to Toronto, will take charge of the chain of theatres consisting of the Regent, Toronto, St. Denis, Montreal, and the Flower Theatres, Ottawa, commencing with the month of May.

Mr. Morris, of the Temple Theatre, Toronto, has proved himself a very capable theatre manager. Mr. Morris took over the management of the Temple Theatre when it was a losing proposition and has been successful in making it one of the best paying suburban houses in Toronto. He claims as part of his success the fact that he makes the patrons his friends, having a friendly chat of a few minutes each show with them, telling them any changes he has made and announcing the next week's program. At any rate, it looks as if the patrons appreciate the information he gives out at each performance.

Joseph Block has leased and will assume the management of the Globe Theatre, Main and Duthul streets, Montreal. It is announced that the policy of the Globe will be a twice weekly program twice each week. The Globe Theatre under the management of Mr. Block will be open daily from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. and the admissions will be 5 and 10 cents.

Elaborate Sets for Clara K. Young’s “The Reason Why”

The Clara Kimball Young studio in New Rochelle, N. Y., is this week housing one of the most elaborate dwelling interiors ever shown in pictures, it is said. It will furnish the background for a number of scenes in Miss Young’s new Select production, “The Reason Why,” which is now in the process of making. The sets have been designed and assembled under the direction of J. M. Voshell, Miss Young’s studio manager, is really five in one. It embraces the drawing room, music room, boy’s bedroom, conservatory, and a large dwarfed hall and conservatory of a modern London mansion, and takes up over half of the main studio floor. There is a noticeable lack of any tendency to overdo in the matter of furnishing. The set has the appearance of being actually lived in, its rugs are slightly worn, the great fireplace in the library has the ashes of an earlier fire and the furniture looks old and worn.

From the high leaded windows of the dining room, light is diffused through stained glass, and from the floor to the graceful French period fittings of the drawing room, it is a correct presentation of a livable English home of wealth and refinement.

“Heroic France,” taken from Elseor Glyn’s novel of social life on the continent, is being produced under the direction of Robert G. Vignola. It has been arranged for the screen by Mary Murillo and deals with the love affairs of a beautiful and a fascinated English nobleman whom she marries. Miss Young will be seen in the film. It is being booked at their houses.

The photography is in charge of Lewis J. Physioc.

French War Veteran Engaged by World Appears in “The Wasp”

Maurice Fallet, a young French war veteran who, before the war and since the outbreak of the great conflict, has appeared with great success in Pathé, Eclipse and other French motion pictures, has been secured by World Pictures for some of its productions. His first appearance will be with Kitty Gordon in “The Wasp.”

Young Fallet has a really notable war record. He was gassed at Verdun, after killing a German officer in a revolver duel, and for three months during the time that the Germans were making their supreme effort to pass by the great fortress he was one of the men engaged in handling one of the gigantic guns massed by the French to defend Verdun.

Fallet has many trophies of the conflict, among them being a German rifle captured during some of the fighting with inscriptions written by the former owner during lulls in the battle; a German helmet and an officer’s belt and bag. He prizes these souvenirs immensely and has been offered a large sum for them.

It is possible that Fallet will have an opportunity to use them in one of the new World Pictures in which he will be seen.

Coast Exhibitors Use Billboard Space

Los Angeles exhibitors are making an extensive use of billboards in the exploitation of their pictures. Twenty-four page, stand, especially made for their houses, are being used in the theatres of the southern California city in their aggressive advertising campaigns.

During the recent showing of “Heroic France,” there was considerable space allotted at their houses. Twenty-four page sheets, especially made for their houses, are being used in the theatres of the southern California city in their aggressive advertising campaigns.

The Alhambra Theatre put up twenty-four page sheets, especially printed for the production. The Los Angeles theatres back up their big billboard advertising campaigns with extensive newspaper advertising and make special efforts to secure merchandising publicity.

Sennett’s theatre’s extensive advertising of “Beauty and the Rogue” is significant in that the Minter productions were booked for the house after Mack Sennett, the producer, had personally previewed her recent picture, “The Mate of the Sally Ann,” and pronounced it an unusually good production.

General Enterprises Sells New England For “The Liar” Film

Considerable activity has marked the past week at the offices of Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, which organization has been responsible for the distribution of several of the leading state-right features for the United States and Canada. Despite the so-called depression which various producers claim for the present state-right market, the above named firm executives report that their offer of the different pictures which they control for the various territories is meeting with general favorable response from state-right purchasers.

A deal has been consummated this week between General Enterprises, Inc., and the Federal Film Company of Boston, which gives to the latter concern the entire New England rights to “The Liar.” This is a six-part society melodrama, starring Jane Gail and Stanley Walpole, directed by William H. Haddock.

Following close upon this sale, Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin closed negotiations for the disposal of their seven-part feature, “Mother,” to the Regal Films, Ltd., of Toronto, Canada. This organization, which also controls the entire Canadian territory for the General Enterprises, Inc., picture, “The Warrior,” will exploit the George Loane Tucker film in the eastern and western parts of the Dominion. The Loew Circuit also closed this week for the showing of “Mother” in their chain of theatres.

Various buyers of “The Warrior,” starring Maciste, the hero of “Cabiria,” have found it necessary to order additional prints of the Italian war spectacle in order to take care of requests from exhibitors for repeat bookings. The Westcott Film Corporation of Minneapolis has requested a third print of “The Warrior” for this purpose, as has the Jordan-Brewer Film Corporation of Seattle, Wash. The latter mentioned concern remarks that it has booked five additional houses to play this feature from two to four days in the city of Portland.

Government Requests

Special Showing of "Crucible of Life"

General Enterprises, Inc., which organization is sponsoring the patriotic film spectacle, "The Crucible of Life," received a request from the Bureau of Public Information, at Washington, D.C., for a private showing of the film before the members of the government organization. Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin arranged for this exhibition, and "The Crucible of Life" was shipped to Washington and will be shown on Thursday of this week.

Inasmuch as the General Enterprises, Inc., state-right feature visualizes many of the important phases of the present conflict, it is possible that the Bureau of Public Information may be able to use the production in connection with their publicity work. The picture contains many motifs which also upon the work of the German say system in America. It features Grace Darmond, Jack Sherrill and Frank O'Connor in the leading roles, and was adapted for the screen from the stage melodrama, "Fairfax," being produced under the direction of Captain Harry Lambert.

Mes. Sawyer and Lubin have also arranged with Tom Moore, one of the leading exhibitors of Washington, to give a special screening of "The Crucible of Life" in Washington. Important war committees now working at the capital. Recently Colonel George Vidmer, commanding officer of the 30thth Infantry, Camp Upton, Long Island, granted special permission to the Camp Upton Quartet and Private Frederick Rath to appear in conjunction with a showing of this military feature.

The patriotic atmosphere of "The Crucible of Life" has been worked out in the extensive line of lithographs, which has been prepared for the exploitation of this feature by the Greenwich Lithograph Company of New York. A particularly attractive four-sheet stand will be used in advertising the film throughout the country.

Select Comptroller Completes Visits to Several Exchanges

J. A. Derham, comptroller for Select Pictures Corporation, returned this week, after a visit to several of the branches of that company, and reports a very satisfactory financial system in operation throughout.

"Business is picking up all along the line," said Mr. Derham, "and Select's exchanges the managers are seeing to it that we get our full share, 'and a little bit more.' Otherwise, I certainly did have a most exciting trip. On two occasions the train just preceding mine was wrecked completely. At Niles City, Neb., we were held up six hours while the wrecking crew cleared the tracks of a derailed train; and on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas the engine of the train before mine ran off the tracks, killing the conductor. I met the conductor, but none of the passengers. My only fear was that I was going to be done in on this trip."

His month's trip gave Mr. Derham an opportunity to see at first-hand the attendance of theaters that show Select Pictures and to hear from many exhibitors whom he met expressions concerning the service given them by Select Pictures Corporation.

Alice Brady to Appear in "The Phantom Feud"

Alice Brady has just completed "At the Mercy of Men," the story of Russian love, adventure and intrigue, which will be distributed by Select Pictures Corporation. Her leading man in this production is Frank Morgan, who appeared with Miss Brady in "The Knife."

Her next picture, upon which work will commence in a few days, is tentatively known as "The Phantom Feud." It was adapted for the screen by Paul West from the story by Edmund Goulding. The directors and major cast for Miss Brady have not yet been selected.

Book Billy West Films

Julius Singer, in charge of the booking of the Bee-Hive Exchange, selling Billy West King-Bea Comedies in Greater New York, announces the bookings of the Billy West "Bea" reclusors in all the theatres of the Consolidated Amusement Enterprises, which includes the "Tiffany," "Penn," "Village," "York," "Drury Lane," 72nd Street, "Playhouse." All these theatres are in Greater New York and will show all of the Billy West King-Bea Comedies.
Operators Held In Indianapolis Theatre Blaze

Geo. G. Swain, Manager, had Considerable Trouble With Union

Indianapolis, Ind.—As a result of the fire which destroyed the Annex Theatre, 74 South Illinois Street, Willard West, Arthur McLosky and Charles Hoffman, motion picture operator at the Crystal Theatre, have been held by the police as witnesses. The fire was the result, the police say, of trouble between George G. Swain, manager of the theater, and the operators’ union.

At one time the union posted men in front of the theater, who distributed cards asking the public not to patronize it because it was not employing union men. Some time later a rear door was opened and the screen slashed. These and other disturbances, Swain declares he is responsible for.

He declared that at the time of the fire some one broke into the theater, stole parts of the machine, wrecked the booth and set fire to some films. According to one of the witnesses, Swain signed the union contract recently and for a time he trouble ceased. The union operators, however, the witness said, refused to work for Swain and trouble was renewed.

West is said to be one of the operators employed at the Circle Theater, while Hoffman and McLosky are employed at the Crystal. Hoffman and West are under $2,500 bonds and Hoffman is being held at the County jail.

Vote of People to Decide Sunday Shows In Birmingham, Ala.

Birmingham, Ala.—The question of Sunday motion picture shows in this city will probably be left to a referendum vote. This was indicated by a statement issued by the board of commissioners in reply to a request for a ruling on the subject made by Phares Coleman, attorney for the exhibitors. The attorney pointed out that theaters of the city would be compelled to cease Sunday operation on April 14 unless a referendum vote the people will otherwise.

“It is the unanimous conviction of this board that it is not best that moving picture shows should be operated on Sunday in Birmingham,” read the statement of the commission.

“However, in order that no injustice be done to the operators because of a misapprehension as to the law on their part, and ours, and that the people may be afforded an opportunity to express themselves on this question, if they so desire, we have decided that the picture shows shall be closed on Sunday after April 14, 1913.”

Immediate steps are being taken in having a petition signed calling for a referendum on the question early in April.

Panic Averted When Burning Film Fills Theatre with Smoke

Baltimore, Md.—Three hundred women and “marauders” coolly from the Leader Moving Picture Parlor, Broadway, near Gough Street, when smoke from a blazing film filled the place.

That there was no panic was due largely to the coolness of a fireman who was in the audience, and to Harry Bowen, assistant manager of the theatre. An alarm was sounded by Patrolman Schaeffer, Eastern District, who was passing the picture house at the time. He ran to the Eastern Police Station and called out the apparatus. A boy noticed an engine company on Gough Street and that company responded also.

The only person hurt was David Seaman, 4718 Locust Avenue, the operator of the machine. He was burned slightly on the face and hands, and his hair was singed. He refused to go to a hospital.

No Censors for South Bend City’s Executive Rules

South Bend, Ind.—This city is not to have a censor board for motion picture films, at least for the present. This decision was reached by Mayor Carson recently. Exhibitors had assured the city’s chief executive that they were willing such a board should be appointed.

“I believe that the police department can look after the moving pictures the same as they are looking after many other things in the city,” said the mayor.

“I do not believe that the theatre owners would exhibit unseemly or immoral films, and for the present I will not appoint a censor board.”

Exhibitor’s Briefs

Knoxville, Tenn.—Fire of incendiary origin destroyed the motion picture theatre here, Red Men’s hall and a tipple of the Lignite Coal company at Logan- mount, Ky., near Middlesboro at an estimated loss of $10,000. There was little insurance.

Lincoln, Neb.—Frank Zehrauf has retired as manager of the Oliver theatre here. He will be succeeded by Frank Eager.

Dallas, Tex.—Explosion of a film in a motion picture distributing agency here blew out the front of the building and injured three persons. The damage will amount to several thousand dollars.

Fairbury, Neb.—C. W. Bartlett, manager of the Majestic theatre here, has completely redecorated the playhouse and it now has a very attractive appearance.

STRIKING POSTER FOR "A PAIR OF SIXES"

PHOTO OF ONE OF ESSANAY'S 24-SHEET POSTERS ADVERTISING TAYLOR HOLMES IN "A PAIR OF SIXES," WHICH IDEA IS ALSO CARRIED OUT IN ITS TRADE PAPER ADVERTISING, SLIDES, WINDOW CARDS AND OTHER ACCESSORIES. (Essanay)
Forest City, Pa.—S. L. Rothafel, managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres of New York, was a regular visitor here with a number of men and women well known in motion picture circles. Motion pictures were taken of some of the buildings that are linked with Mr. Rothafel’s career.

Judsonia, Ark.—V. H. Beals and Paul R. Bulm were slightly burned when fire started through the roof of the Electric theatre here recently. None of the audience was hurt despite a hurried exit from the building.

San Francisco—Management of the Jewel Theatre here caused a vote to be taken among the feminine patrons of the house as to whether they should be admitted to the showing of "Birth" picture. The vote was overwhelmingly in the affirmative and many men saw the film.

Cleveland—The Ray Theatre here has been reopened under the management of M. Schell who has assumed charge and made arrangements for the showing of Metro, World, Mutual and General films.

New York—Francis Joseph Belcher, who was a pioneer in the small motion picture theatre business in this city, but retired for the past several years, died recently at the Polyclinic hospital.

Negauance, Mich.—The McDonald Opera House block and a number of stores were damaged to the extent of $10,000 in an early morning fire here recently.

Lancaster, Pa.—Charles A. Yecker, manager of the Fulton Opera House, was arrested here when a poster he had in his lobby advertising a motion picture production was declared indecent by an inspector of the state board of motion picture censors.

Springfield, Minn.—The Grand Theatre has again changed hands and has opened for business after being closed for several weeks. G. C. Stoner has disposed of the business to E. Nedrey of Kellier, Minn.

Allen, Neb.—Ralph Brownell and Eldon Kepford have taken over the management of the Rex Theatre here. Ed Trube who has been operating the playhouse anticipated an early call to the colors and was forced to dispose of the property.

Jester Comedy for May Is Nearing Completion

The fourth Jester comedy for May, entitled "The Wrong Flat," featuring Tottie-Don, the international mirthmaker, is fast nearing completion. This is a story that will take those who see it back to the old days of stagemad, it is said.

One of the scenes in "The Wrong Flat" will be enacted in a complete set-up theatre in order to carry out the real effect. A replica of the old Times has been built. The situations surrounding the story also demand the use of some of the old-time performers and many of the popular favorites of the old days gone by will be seen in this picture.

Strand Theatre, N. Y. Unveils a Tablet For Employes at War

A patriotic ceremony took place in the lobby of the Strand Theatre, New York, February 18, when the management unveiled a tablet in bronze in honor of the employes who have served in the armed forces, and the first to answer the call of their country when the United States declared war on Germany.

The ceremony was opened with a patriotic rendition by the Strand symphony orchestra, after which Dr. J. Victor Wilson of the Strand staff made a short address and introduced Samuel Speden, who unveiled the tablet while the orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner." The following names appear on the tablet: Bruce Weakeman, Harry Johnson, Francis Sutherland, William Leibish, Arthur Depew, Jr., William Dobbs, Jack Faeder, Roy Whitelaw, Walter Blumenthal, James J. Keating, McFetridge, Arthur Burnett, Jack Fosket, Bernard Skahill, James Murray, Percy Eleman, James Clark, Robert Bustinoby, Vincent Cruise and Robert Fosket.

Gaumont News Gets Fifth Avenue Parade

Countless pictures of parades have been shown in the news weeklies but Editor Pell Mitchell, of the Gaumont News Weekly, realizing the unusualness of the following: "New York's Own" marching down Fifth avenue, New York, photographed and preserved it for posterity in an unusual manner.

When his cameramen photographed the parade from various points, under special permit a giant tripod extending above the heads of the marches and onlookers was set up at the intersection of Fortieth Street and Fifth Avenue, the most advantageous point along the line of march, in front of the Public Library, and directly opposite the reviewing stand.

This enterprising coup enabled the Gaumont Company to secure the most intimate and realistic pictures ever made of a parade. While other photographers small lies were allowed to use this special location, Editor Mitchell granted permission for the photographers of the Signal Corps to share the stand for a number of scenes which will be preserved in the government archives.

Exhibitor Constructs Novel Lobby Display For "The Planter"

Novel advertising methods were adopted by Manager S. P. Totten, of the Star Theatre, Everett, Wash., in exploiting Mr. New York's "Chief Planter," for a three-day run. "The Planter" proved one of the big box office successes of the season in Everett, it is said.

Manager Totten arranged an unusual lobby display, using to much effect the stock three-sheet for a cut-out, carrying out the tropical idea with palm trees and a Mexican plantation scene in the distance on a background drop. In the center of the lobby he used the stock lobby display.

In "The Landlower" Harold Lockwood Has A Lighter Vehilc

His last two Metro pictures, "The Avenging Trail" and "Broadway Bill," having offered him in vigorous stories Harold Lockwood has now turned to the production of a way of sharp contrast, in a lighter screen romance in his next Metro vehicle. The story is an adaptation of Holman Day's "The Landlower." And the production is now being made in Florida under the direction of George Irving.

Under the Metro banner Mr. Lockwood has been presented in a number of screen romances and the success he registered in each was the means of adding considerably to his reputation. Some of his biggest bits, such as "Mister 41," "The River of Romance," "Paradise Garden" and "The Square Deceiver," were romantic tales told in a lighter vein. The Landlower is the story of a wealthy young man who wagers that he can leave for a tour of the country and live comfortably without sacrificing any of his ideals, huts such as "Mister 41," "The River of Romance," "Paradise Garden" and "The Square Deceiver," were romantic tales told in a lighter vein.

His travels take him to a little mining town where he meets Kate Gilgour and also becomes involved in the affairs of the Consolidated Water Co. and his political, to compel them to continue the supply of impure water which he has demanded and the landowners and the Consolidated Water Co., and his political, to compel them to continue the supply of impure water which he has demanded and the landowners and the film's characters develop a relationship.

The landowner's fight for the town's water supply is a dramatic element between the people and the landowner, and at the end of the film, the landowner is victorious.

Unusual Bookings Received for "Eagle's Eye" Series

First bookings of "The Eagle's Eye," the Wharton Releasing Corp. state, give abundant proof of the confidence exhibitors feel in the drawing power of the twenty episode serial export of plots and situations and adaptations of the United States Secret Service. Among the cities in which each episode has been booked for a week's run are San Antonio, Tex., with less than 100,000 population. The Modern Theatre, Providence has established a precedent in booking "The Eagle's Eye" also for a run of a week, for it is the first series which has been shown there.
Essanay Loans Film For Stage Women’s War Relief Affair

The Essanay Company contributed its "hit" to the Stage Woman’s War Relief County Fair, held at the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago, March 1, and 2, by loaning three of the series of "Doll comedies" as a novelty feature of the two-day session. Various members of the stock company also were present.

These doll pictures, directed by Howard S. Moss, producer of the Essanay Perfection Picture, "The Dream Doll," have not been put on the market as yet. They were greeted at the County Fair with cheers and hearty laughter. The pictures show the frolics of two little animated dolls.

Essanay actresses who contributed their time to the good cause were Frankie Raymond, Virginia Valli, Jane Thomas, Frances Conrad and Betty Harris.

C. W. Bunn in Charge Of Chicago Offices For United Theatres

Headquarters for northern Illinois of the United Picture Theatres Association have been opened in room 1306 of the Consumers building under the management of C. W. Bunn, former manager of the Chicago Balaban Exchange. Associated with Mr. Bunn are T. G. Meyers, S. C. Bestar and Milton Simon.

The territory to be covered by the Chicago contingent extends as far south as Springfield. The remainder of the state will be worked from the St. Louis office of United Picture Theatres. Although work has hardly been begun in behalf of the new venture, Mr. Bunn reports progress and a keen interest shown by exhibitors.

Embryo Ministers Make Tour Through American Film Plant

Fifty students from the McCormick Theological Seminary were interested visitors at the American Film plant in Chicago last Thursday. Following the showing of "Powers That Prey," a new Mary Miles Minter production, the party was taken through the plant and afforded an opportunity that was much appreciated to see every step in the development of a picture from the raw film to the finished product as thrown upon the screen.

Richard R. Nehls, general manager of the film company, made an address on Motion Pictures In The Making," which led to a discussion as to the relation of the minister to the motion picture exhibitor in his community. The discussion brought out the fact that a number of young ministers were ardent "fans.

Four-Minute Man at Odds with Exhibitor Over Speaking Date

Misunderstanding between a four-minute speaker and the owner of the motion picture house will be aired before the state council of defense. Prof. R. L. Lyman, University of Chicago, was assigned by George R. Jones, in charge of the four-minute men, to speak at the Fifty-eighth Street, the evening of February 22.

When his time came to address the audience, Lyman claims, he was asked by H. N. Ortenstein, proprietor of the house, to postpone his talk to some other night.

Ortenstein was considerably surprised when he learned that the state body was investigating.

A. had already had two speakers in my theatre that week,” he said. "It is customary to send only one speaker to each theatre a week. I explained the circumstances to Prof. Lyman and asked him to postpone his talk. He seemed satisfied after the conversation. I am surprised that he made complaint to the state board.”

Triangle Asks Writ To Permit Showing Film in Chicago

A petition for mandamus to compel Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, Chicago censor of motion pictures, to issue a permit for the "Flame of the Yukon" has been filed by the Triangle Film Corporation through its attorney, Lewis F. Jacobson.

The censor bases his objection to the picture on the ground that it includes scenes of dance halls, saloons and gambling places in Alaska during the winter of twenty years ago.

Attorney Jacobson charges that the major’s criticism is "hypocritical, uncalled for and entirely prejudiced."

PERSONALS

Dan Michalove has headed the call of the puttees and khaki and has left for N. C. where he hopes to enter the service of his Uncle Sammy, via the National Army. If Danny puts the zip into his army work that he did in managing the Chicago Triangle Office, it will be a problem to Army that the w. k. Kaiser will think that the last syllable of his name is a misnomer. But—

What was that old saying about "clouds having silver linings?" Well right along in this line comes Ralph Bradford and slides into the chair left warm by Danny. We don’t know who does the picking for Triangle but he’s certainly got some perception as to what the exhibitors in this district want.

Manager F. J. Flaherty of the Hoffman-Foursquare exchange, just returned from Minneapolis where his magnetic personality and disarming smile had the exhibitors helpless. He booked the "Cast-Off" so many times that he had to cast off from town to avoid having more prints of the picture made. And, oh yes, he also did some business in Chicago on that film. As for "Their Brother’s Keeper", Lubliner & Trinz, Balaban & Katz, being among the names on the contracts.

Speaking about business, J. L. Leserman, general sales manager of the Universal exchange, admitted grudgingly the past week that never in the history of the Chicago exchange has a greater volume of business been done as was the case during the month of February.

J. Von Roukle, former manager of the Universal, was a visitor at the exchange recently but had nothing to say concerning his business intentions. He did intimate, however, that he would have something to spring shortly. Go to it "Ike"—we’re for you.

E. Thomas Beatty, president-elect of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association, was in Chicago recently just long enough to get his breath before starting to California for a sojourn of a couple of months. He came here from Hot Springs. Of course Beatty’s been sick but, gosh, lookit the trips he’s gettin’.

While we’re on the casualty list, we might mention that our old friend Maurice Chouyuski is again able to be about, although he still is under a hard siege and his fellow exhibitors are all glad to see him gaining the upper hand.

Of course we don’t know Bayley over to Vitagraph very well, but maybe he isn’t above taking a warning from any source. He’s got a habit of clapping his hands when he is in trouble and some day when Vitagraph runs a picture that draws applause from the assembled motion picture magnates, he’s going to have a crazy operator in the coop.

U’s thinks that Max Goldstone of the Paramount office is a pretty crafty fellow. He’s going to move the exchange to new quarters over the U. S. labor agency. Think those birds working for you will get the habit, Max?

Ralph Proctor of the Pathe office is having a sweet time trying to convince Punkie that "Load Heat" will make the best let us have a writer permit. If loaded dice don’t get him, Ralph, old top, why don’t you try a hand of deuces wild?

"The EXHIBITORS HERALD is a paper with a punch on every page."—Frank Vanston, manager of the Temple Theatre, Elgin, Ill.
Schoenstadt & Sons
Open The Atlantic
Newest Playhouse

Friends of the owners, picture "fans" and others interested in the growth of the motion picture industry in Chicago, gathered en masse at Crawford avenue and Twenty-sixth street last Saturday night to witness the opening of the Windy City's newest photoplay palace built by H. Schoenstadt & Sons, at a cost of approximately $300,000.

Named the Atlantic Theatre, seating nearly 1,800 all on one floor, absolutely fireproof and combining all the latest and most modern ovaions, this newest contribution of the Schoenstads to the amusement loving public stands on a par with the highest achievements in theatre building.

Universal Offers
Colonel Roosevelt
Motion Picture Show

Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt may have a daily motion picture show in his room at Roosevelt Hospital, New York, during the remainder of his convalescing period, if he accepts Universal's offer.

Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has offered to install a complete motion picture equipment with operator, at the disposal of the Colonel, with his own program of films from the vaults of the Universal Company.

Mr. Laemmle's letter to Col. Roosevelt follows:

"It is with keen personal pleasure I note the reports of your continued recovery in the newspapers.

"I also learn from the same source that you will be compelled to remain in the hospital for several weeks with limited means of passing the time and I would be particularly pleased to place at your disposal during this period, a motion picture projecting equipment with operator, for any number of hours daily that you may desire and give you your choice from our large library of films."

Exhibitors Pleased With World Offer

The World Film Corporation announces that hundreds of messages have been received from exhibitors indicating the World's plan of giving for the duration of the war, gratis bookings each week equal in number to the bookings contracted for.

Following are extracts from some of the letters:

The World plan shows that at least one corporation in the game realizes the position of the exhibitor.—Empire Theatre, Winchester, Va.

A wonderful step. It sure will be a life saver to me. I wish to extend my thanks and appreciation.—Bijou and Ironquoits Theatres, Bridgeport, Ill.

Better than any other film company has done.—Fox Theatre, Buhl, Idaho.

World plan is a life saver.—Natt A. Cram, Pittsfield, N. H.

This is a remarkable offer. I never before heard of such a thing in the motion picture business.—Orpheus Theatre, Klamath Falls, Ore.

Resolution: Whereas, we believe their motive prompting this action was for the sole purpose of helping the exhibitor in this unprofitable period of war times, therefore, be it resolved, that a vote of thanks be extended to the World Film Corporation for this spirit of generosity.

Daniel Frohman Objects

To the Editor, Exhibitors Herald

In reference to the enclosed editorial from Exhibitors Herald:

"The Birth of a Race" has been using the names of Charles Frohman and Daniel Frohman in a specious way in their circulars to attract purchasers. Neither of us has ever had any connection with that company or firm in any possible way and I hope you can state this fact for us.

Very truly,
Daniel Frohman.

Influence of the Screen

To the Editor, Exhibitors Herald

In your December 15th issue is an editorial headed "Screen influence" and you say that you believe that you must have had in mind The Eagle's Eye as a potential factor for patriotic propaganda in behalf of the Government.

This recognition of the screen coming from without as director and mover of public thought and opinion remains to be justified by some specific example of the possibilities of the screen as an agency of that character. The example best suited to the purpose should be a specific one.

The subject of 'The Eagle's Eye' is essentially specific because it concentrates entirely on the subject of Imperial Germany's spies and their plots and crimes against American lives and property. I am sure that you will find it interesting to watch the development of a more intense aersion to war now exists against the German rulers by Americans, as the full extent of their depredation is revealed.

This increased intensity of feeling, which is certain to result after the serial has been on the market for several months is going to provide positive proof of the power and influence of the screen as a factor in forming and moulding public opinion.

Very truly yours,
Wharton Releasing Co., C. V. Henkel, Manager.

Exchange Ethics

[To the Editor, Exhibitors Herald]

After I have stated the facts in the case will you please tell me if this was a square deal? I have asked several exchange men and a couple of exhibitors and received as many different answers, some saying I received the advantage and some that I was treated rather rough.

After being turned down by a house twice as large as myself and within one block of me, a certain exchange sold a series of six war pictures entitled, "The Retreat of the Germans." After spending about fifty dollars advertising the series I got a fair crowd. Now on the day that I run the last of the series the same exchange booked to my competitor another war picture entitled, "The German Curse in Russia." Regardless of the fact that the other house has the better location and prestige was this a fair deal?

I have stated the fact as briefly as possible and would like your answer as soon as possible, either through the pages of your publication or by letter.

Yours truly,
A. Gordon Francis, Hyde Park Theatre, Chicago.

REPLY: It is our opinion that in the case described the exchange should have accorded the exhibitor proper co-operation by not booking another war picture of a similar nature in the opposition house while the first exhibitor was running the war series. However, the exchange was within its rights in accepting the second booking.—Editor.

Bessie Barriscale Completes Film

"Maid O' the Storm" at Paralta Plant

"Maid O' The Storm" has been completed at the Paralta studios in California, where it was staged under the direction of Raymond B. West. Both the play and the screen version of the story are from the pens of J. Grubb Alexander and red Myron, who collaborated in writing it.

In the "Maid O' The Storm," Miss Barriscale undergoes complete and striking transformation in costume and character. The story opens with her as a castaway on the coast of Scotland and at the climax she is the première danseuse of the London Opera Company. The production gives Miss Barriscale an opportunity to display a wardrobe more varied and beautiful than any of her previous Paralta productions, is said.

Miss Barriscale will commence as soon as preparations are completed upon her next play which is to be undertaken in the Paralta studios. The story was written by R. D. Kidd and Jane Holly and was prepared by Julian Louis Lamothe the Paralta staff. In the production also, Miss Barriscale portrays the role of a Scotch girl. As "Patricia Haldine," a rôle with patriotic sympathies, she is found in a situation which will admirably with love and war.

Charles Gurin, well-known screen devotee, will support Miss Barriscale in this production. Raymond B. West will direct the picture. It is expected that the filming of this production will commence next week.

Niles Welch to Appear in "Reclaimed"

Niles Welch has signed a contract to co-star in a new picture to be made by the Harry McRae Webster Productions. He will appear opposite Mabel Juliene Scott of "The Baroness" and "Sign Invisible" fame. The title of the new piece is "Reclaimed," and the scenes are laid in Mexico and the United States. The author is Richard F. Carroll.

Mr. Welch plays the part of a young American who falls in love with a Mexican girl, the latter being portrayed by Miss Scott. Production started on March 1 at the Hudson Studio under the active direction of Mr. Webster. The new Welch-Scott picture, on its completion, will be published on a state rights basis.

Select Changes Title of Film

Another change of name has been decided in regard to Alice Guy's latest Select production, which has been going forward under the working title of "Ruthless Russia." The new title will be "At the Mercy of Men."

"At the Mercy of Men" was arranged for the screen by Paul West and was directed by Charles Miller. It is a story of modern Russia in the days preceding and following the Russian revolution. Miss Brady, it is said, has a powerful, emotional role in which she is ably supported by Frank Morgan.

General to Issue Five Comedies

The sixth series of Jaxon Comedies concludes this week with "Which Was Lucky?" a one-reel subject dealing with the adventures of two trouble finders. General Film announces a new series of Jaxon Comedies consisting of five subjects: "The Official Maneuver," "What Occurred on the Beach," "An All Fools Day Affair," "Beating Him to It" and "Forced Into Matrimony."
Film Exports from U. S. for 1917

Show Decrease of Million and Half

Greatly Reduced Shipments to France and Great Britain

Mainly Responsible—Figures Exceed

Those of 1915

Considerable falling off in the value of films exported from the United States during the year 1917, is shown in a recently issued report of Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce. Figures compiled by this department show $1,500,000 decrease in the shipment of films exported as compared with the 1916 shipments.

The decrease is charged to the greatly reduced shipments to France and the United Kingdom according to the bureau's records. In 1915 France took 2,528,369 feet valued at $105,214; in 1916, 15,088,194 feet valued at $874,900, but the last year took only 10,599,786 feet valued at $287,699.

Practically the same condition obtained in the United Kingdom. The total exports of 1915 were 50,771,783 feet valued at $1,903,575, were increased in 1916 to 79,609,753 feet valued at $851,361, but fell off in 1917 to 58,483,100 feet, valued at $327,274.

Unexposed Film Figures

Exports of unexposed film have been falling steadily for more than two years. The total exports of that commodity in 1915 were 125,822,304 linear feet with a value of $2,857,400. In 1916 the exports had dropped to 60,301,466 while the value decreased to $1,883,427. In 1917 a still further reduction is noted, the exports being 54,719,973 feet valued at $1,204,574.

Censor Board Cuts

Physical Culture Feature "Zongar"

The Pennsylvania State Board of Censors has ordered nine changes in the Physical Culture Photo Plays feature, "Zongar." These changes, according to the shipping the struggle between the characters, the gag in the mouth of the abducted heroine, the close-up of a man after being maimed in a fight and two subplots, of "the voices of Sin" and another referring to a sculptor's model's figure as being superior to that of Venus.

Mr. Macfadden has called the physical preparedness drama, "It teaches a lesson of splendid manhood, strong, capable womanhood. The National Board of Censors praised this play in New York not only without criticism, but we were congratulated because of the splendid character of the play throughout.

Mr. Macfadden has addressed the attention of the board to the fact that the elimination would impair the financial success of the film. He also says President Wilson was favorably impressed with the physical culture work as to publish his health message in the Physical Culture Magazine, which should convince the Pennsylvania board of the Macfadden sincerity and honesty of purpose.

Mr. Macfadden has asked the board to go over the rejections again, viewing the play in the light of patriotic drama, when he believes they will find little to criticize.

Two Governments Approve

Jaxon Patriotic Serial

The official stamp of approval of two governments has now been given "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," the Jaxon serial, reports General Film Company. A few weeks ago the United States censor's office witnessed a run of the first few episodes of the serial and passed it with the department's approval.

The Canadian chief censor press, Col. Ernest J. Chambers of Ottawa, has gone a step farther, it is said, and broken an office record by issuing a letter highly recommending the General's spy serial. This is the first picture ever to receive an endorsement from the Canadian government, and Canadian exhibitors are extremely interested in the result of the official stamp of approval. Reports from Canada indicate that "A Daughter of Uncle Sam" will be one of the best selling features in that country.

Foreign Church Woman Praises "The Belgian"

Sister Mary Ignatius O'Kavanaugh, said to be one of the most prominent church women of Belgium and a special representative of Cardinal Mercier enroute, is in this country, was the guest of honor at a special presentation of Sidney Olcott's production "The Belgian," given for charitable purposes in Cleveland, Ohio, under the joint auspices of Mr. Olcott and Frank G. Hall of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, by which the picture is being distributed.

Sister Mary was stationed in a little border town in Belgium when the Germans invaded the kingdom and she lived through the bombardment of Liége. During the attack on that city she suffered in the same way as did thousands of other women and children. The scenes of the invasion depicted in "The Belgian" so impressed Sister Mary that she sent a lengthy letter to Mr. Olcott expressing her keen enjoyment of the spectacle.

Mr. Olcott is also in receipt of a letter from a British war correspondent, in which he too, complimented the director upon the accuracy of detail with which he has shown the scenes of the invasion of Belgium to the screen.

Record Sale Reported

For Jester Comedies

By William Steiner

One of the fastest selling campaigns ever made has been achieved by William Steiner, founder of the Jester Comedy Company, it is claimed. Mr. Steiner has distributed many films, with the exception of the District of Columbia in twenty-one days, closing contracts for the Jester comedies, featuring Twede-Don, the international mirth-maker, for one year. Mr. Steiner declares he would have cut off two days of this time had it not been for adverse railroad conditions.

Not alone did he succeed in disposing of his comedies, he says, but found time to call on many of the large exhibitors, and gave them screening, which has developed into very gratifying results, as the comedies have been signed up by a number of the first-run houses, including William Seivers' New Grand Central Theatre at St. Louis, Mo.; the Empress Theatre at Omaha, Neb.; the Strand Theatre at San Francisco, and all the S. A. Lynch houses throughout the southern territory.

21 Productions to Lis

H. R. Ehester, manager of sales for the Sterling Picture Corporation, of which Arthur F. Beck is president, has left New York for a ten-weeks trip covering all exchange centers, during which time he will place the production handled by the Sterling Corporation. These are to be placed with independent exchanges of the United States and abroad, under the "Sterling System."

It is not the intention of the Sterling Pictures Corporation to confine its operations to the distribution of feature films only. They will handle other features on the basis of an outright territorial sale.

In addition to the Alman Hanlon series and the Jean Sorensen series, consist of six productions each, they have added to their list a Star Series of three features, each starring Clara O. Williams, four feature production each starring Catherine Calvert. They have also taken over the George Loar Tucker production. "I Belonged," from the France Films, Incorporated, "The Natural Law," featuring Marguerite Courtot.
"RUGGLES OF RED GAP" Called Greatest Picture

E. C. BOSTICK, of The Merrill theatre, Milwaukee, Wis., says: "'Ruggles of Red Gap,' with Taylor Holmes is, without doubt, one of the greatest pictures I ever saw. It is my opinion that this picture will be a bigger attraction than the Skinner pictures, which up to this time held the record for attendance at the Merrill."

Wm. A. Brady Stages Spectacular Fight Between Aircraft

Visitors along the boardwalk at Atlantic City last week were treated to the spectacle of a fight between a Zeppelin and an aeroplane half a mile off shore. Both aircraft were the property of William A. Brady, who operates the "Stolen Orders" and has a picture plant below Atlantic City.

For hours there were banging away at each other with machine guns at a height of 100 feet, Grace Hoffman launched herself gracefully from the aeroplane into the water.

Her lofty dive was registered by a photographer in a second aircraft, piloted by Beryl Kendrick of the Airplane Reserve. Miss Hoffman lives in New Rochelle and is a daring swimmer. She was pulled out of the water by a boat crew of the U. S. Coast Guard.

Mr. Brady's Zeppelin, built as closely as possible on Germany's, is 150 feet long and 30 feet high. It carried seven men.

For the past several weeks Atlantic City had been in a state of excitement. Rumors of unusual happenings at the Longport end of the island, of a gigantic balloon securely anchored in an immense hangar somewhere on the deserted dunes, and of a sudden flight to sea, were rife.

Visitors who ventured to the end of Longport found it fenced off and a guard on hand to enforce the frequent "No Admittance" signs. All they could see was a large balloon, probably the largest in America, 150 feet long and 30 feet high, and into which at that time was being forced 25,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas necessary to fill it.

Inside that hangar was a balloon, probably the largest in this country, America. 150 feet long and 30 feet high, and into which at that time was being forced 25,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas necessary to fill it. "Stolen Orders" will have in its cast Kitty Gordon, Carlyle Blackwell, Montagu Love, June Elvgard, Madge Evans and George McQuarrie.

It will be the first of Mr. Brady's big spectacular feature productions recently announced. "Seized Orders," when produced at Drury Lane and later here in the Manhattan Opera House, was replete with action and possessed unusual pictorial values and the screen version promises many unique and highly interesting features.

Mr. Brady has been at Atlantic City supervising the production of "Stolen Orders" and giving it to every detail his personal attention. With him have been Harley Knoles, Montagu Love and June Elvgard.

Leading Man Signed For Doris Kenyon Play

Doris Kenyon's leading man in "The Street of Seven Stars," the Mary Roberts Rinehart story, which will be the initial offering of the New York Pictures, Inc., will be Hugh Thompson.

Mr. Thompson signed a contract last week to appear in Miss Kenyon's coming play. He is now working with a leading man in a picture in which Virginia Pearson is the star, his most recent screen appearances having been as leading man with Theda Bara in two of her most successful pictures, with Annette Kellerman, Edna Goodrich, and others.

Peggy Hyland's First For William Fox Is "The Debt of Honor"

The William Fox Special Feature for the week of March 10th is "The Debt of Honor," the first production Peggy Hyland has made for Fox. The spy element enters strongly into this picture.

Supporting Miss Hyland are Irving Cummings, Frank Goldsmith, Hazel Adams and Eric Mayne. The story is by Eve Underhill, directed by C. A. C. Lund and the photography by Joe Ruttenberg. Many of the scenes in "The Debt of Honor" were taken at New Orleans.

"I am sure that exhibitors will welcome Peggy Hyland to the list of our stars," says an announcement from the Fox offices. "She has been on the stage in England and began her motion picture career there. She made so big a hit that an American producer searched for her to do some pathological films here. She got a big welcome on this side of the water. Mr. Fox watched her for a long time and was so well pleased with her that he signed her as soon as her old contract was up."

Pathe News Weekly Shows Moroccos in Rush to Join French

In the Hearst-Pathe News No. 16, issued Feb. 20, are some striking scenes dealing with military and incipient events which are very rarely seen in this country. They depict the rush of the natives of Morocco to join the French army. The great picturesqueness of the scenery, the unusual costumes, the life and the action of these scenes make them of a kind to be remembered. Their importance is further emphasized by the fact that some 223 feet of the issue is devoted to them.

The previous number of the Hearst-Pathe News showed American soldiers in France wearing for the first time gas masks and undergoing training from French officers as to their use. These scenes are all the more interesting since recent newspaper dispatches refer to German gas attacks upon the sector held by the Americans.

No. 15 also showed the review of an entire division of the National army at Camp Gordon in the South. This is perhaps the first time that such a large number of soldiers of the new army have been caught by the camera in review. The "shots" are excellent and most impressive, it is said.

"Woman and the Law" Based on Recent Case

"Woman and the Law," the new play by R. A. Walsh, is making for William Fox a stir which will enhance Mr. Walsh's reputation for staging thrilling, realistic productions. The story, a sensational and unusual case in which a wealthy and prominent young woman killed her husband and was acquitted after a trial, the proceedings of which crowded the war news off the first page of metropolitan newspapers for several days.

Frank A. Keeney Co. Leases Pathé Plant to Produce Features

Frank A. Keeney, head of the Frank A. Keeney Company, has leased the Pathé studio at 1334 St. Park Avenue, New York, one of the best equipped motion picture plants in this section of the country. Hereafter it will be known as "Keeney Studios." The lease was taken out in the name of the Frank A. Keeney Distributing Corporation.

The studio was originally built for a dance hall and was later fitted up as a studio by Eugene Sanger, who used it for a time and then turned it over to the Pathé company. Recently the Edison company spent about $15,000 in installing a thoroughly modern lighting system.

"A Romance of the Underworld," which is to be the first feature of the Frank A. Keeney Company, is being completed in the new studio. It will present an all-star cast, headed by Katherine Calvert, the widow of the late Paul Armstrong, author of the play from which the picture is taken.

As soon as "A Romance of the Underworld" is complete the cast will begin the production of a new feature entitled "Marriage," by Guy Bolton, co-author of "Oh! Boy!" "Oh! Lady! Lady!" and other stage successes. James Kirkwood will continue as the Keeney director.

Film Agents Support Chinese Censors in Better Films Fight

The faith of the Chinese in democratic institutions is freshly illustrated by the plans now being put into effect for the purpose of raising the average of quality of the motion pictures exhibited in the interior of China. A committee of leaders of the best Chinese agents to the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures in this country reviews the pictures at Shanghai. The letter from S. E. Eilam, an executive secretary of the review committee for China, the methods of this reviewing board are described in this fashion:

"The Film Review Committee, composed of 70 representative Chinese and foreigners in Shanghai, has for the past two years undertaken this work (that of the framing for recommendation of suitable films to schools and other individual film users through China) on a voluntary basis. The committee renders the hearty support of two leading film agents in Shanghai, and on four afternoons each week a group sits for two hours reviewing films. The committee stands for the showing of only the best films and earnestly hopes to be instrumental in raising the tone of films shown in the Far East. In addition to the support being given by the film agents and the renters of films, the committee invites the moral support of the public. We believe this work is to be undertaken to review films specifically for Shanghai, its recent adverse report regarding an ill-known American picture showing the nude, was supported by action of the municipal government."

Why buy at retail when you can secure wholesale price with

The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

If you have only two or three days to offer, you pay the maximum prices and are compelled to accept any terms or conditions that may be imposed. If you have a circuit of 30 or 40 days, your terms are better and the prices are lower.

But—

When you as a member of a national cooperative organization buy nationally, you are then part of a unit that controls 2,000, 3,000 or 4,000 booking days, and your purchasing power in the market is increased several thousand fold.

Isn't it obvious that you can cut the price of film 30 to 50 per cent., at the same time obtaining favorable terms, checking waste and extravagance, and thereby enabling the producer to make you better pictures.

“Tremendous subject, well handled — has unforgettable characters and incidents: holds interest throughout.” — Wid’s.

“Truth is not often so dramatic as fiction, but in this story of the most remarkable by-product of the war, all the essential historic and histrionic elements were present, awaiting only the skilled hand of a producer like Mr. Brenon to fuse them into the most impressive pictorial form.” — New York Sun.

Billy Sunday—A Great Showman

BILLY SUNDAY, who is one of the greatest showmen since P. T. Barnum, is now staging an event in Chicago and this fact suggests to us the appropriateness of directing to the attention of exhibitors the work of this great advertiser for popular favor, his publicity methods, his sense of the theatric and his general all around showmanship.

This strenuous individual who bills himself as an evangelist has created a tremendous interest in his work throughout the country. He has advanced himself into the class of positive headliners; his name in incandescents out in front of his showhouse means absolute capacity on all occasions.

All this has been accomplished through advertising and showmanship, together with a splendid ability for organization and system. Billy Sunday does not believe, like many exhibitors, that all that is necessary to attract throngs to his show place is to merely hang out a sign and let it go at that. It is true that big crowds would now come to the Sunday events without much outside effort, but this has not always been the case and if he was now content to sit back idly he would be attracting probably a few thousand people and not forty and fifty thousand people to a single meeting.

Billy Sunday, like the excellent showman that he is, goes out after the people and encourages them with a thousand different schemes to come to his shows. His methods in a measure resemble those of the big successful circuses. He does not dash into a territory unannounced or only quietly heralded. His advance men over a period of weeks carefully cultivate the territory with tons of publicity matter, small meetings of various kinds which create interest in the coming big show and other preparations along similar lines.

This showman realizes that the public does not know what it wants, but that it is ever on the anxious seat to have some one come along with something original and tell it that this is what it wants. He also realizes that the public must be led and must be driven.

This attitude of Billy Sunday is in great contrast to the attitude of a great many exhibitors who merely announce in a half-hearted manner their coming attractions and then sit back and wonder why their theatres are not crowded. They do not appreciate the Sunday plan of going out and getting the public—suggesting, urging and leading them on.

Before Sunday opens a show, his entire organization numbering hundreds of people, has carried on a comprehensive campaign of publicity. They have gone to the people of the community direct; they have enlisted the aid of every organization and society within reach to bring at a single stroke large units of people to his event.

Contrast this with the attitude of exhibitors who run, for instance, a picture with an especial appeal for club women and do not even go to the extent of sending notices to the officers of the women's clubs in the district.

It is true that the Billy Sunday shows are given a slight complexion of religion, but civilized human beings do not go in for religion to the accompaniment of brass bands, flaring posters and orations which are more acrobatic than oratorical. The great mass of people attracted to the Sunday meetings are attracted by the theatric manner in which it is all presented. They are attracted by the showmanship of the star.

There is in the Sunday plan of going out after the crowds and not waiting for the crowds to come in, in his determined and persistent publicity and in his ability to put on a show with great clamor and hurrah, a big lesson and example for motion picture exhibitors.
Censor’s Powers Defined

THE United States District Court of Appeals in Chicago has rendered a vitally important decision on the question of censorship; in fact this decision is probably the most important that has been handed down since official censorship has been introduced.

While the opinion of the court specifically refers to the Chicago censorship ordinance and the Funkhouser situation its effect is so far-reaching that it undoubtedly will influence the conduct of censor boards wherever they exist in the United States.

The ruling makes it very plain that under the Chicago ordinance the censor is not the ordained custodian of the city’s morals; that he has no discretionary powers in deciding what shall or shall not be exhibited and that his function is that of a police officer and not that of a judge.

Probably the most striking section of the entire opinion is that which declares that the censor is required under the ordinance to consider a picture in its probable effect upon the community as a whole and not upon any particular class or upon individuals of any particular age. In other words, a picture to be refused a permit must be one that is obviously harmful to the community as a whole.

Under the existing Funkhouser plan of censoring if one per cent of the population of a certain community consisted of feeble-minded persons that might be adversely influenced by the depiction of violence then any picture depicting violence would be refused a permit. This attitude, the court holds, is not justifiable under the law. The community must be considered as a whole and unless a picture is harmful to the community as a whole it is entitled to a permit and the censor is compelled to issue the permit.

Again, the decision points out what has long been claimed by intelligent persons who have investigated censorship—that the censor has no discretionary powers, that it is not his duty or his right to consider and analyze various elements of the production. He is required only to find out if the picture appears to be harmful to the community as a whole. If it is immoral or obscene. If it is calculated to create prejudice against any class of law-abiding citizens. His authority stops there.

This ruling reduces the censor’s work almost to a mechanical basis and in so doing it will eliminate many of the glaring inconsistencies and injustices that have characterized the work of censors everywhere.

New Film Company Is Incorporated For $2,500,000

Indianapolis Named as Place of Business—To Produce Pictures

Indianapolis, Ind.—Articles of incorporation for a $2,500,000 concern known as the Capital Film Company, which gives Indianapolis as its place of business and its business as the manufacture and distribution of films, have been filed with the secretary of state. An incorporation fee of $2,501.50 was paid.

The only local man connected with the concern, so far as can be learned, is O. W. Moore, manager of the Unicorn Film Exchange, 129½ West Washington street. Other incorporators are Edward A. Spray, banker, of Frankfort; William H. Miller, grain dealer, of Flora; Lewis R. Barnes, sheriff, of Crown Point, and Charles J. Daugherty, banker, of Crown Point.

The concern has not yet established offices in Indianapolis. The stock of the company, according to reports, has all been subscribed and paid in. The assets of the company are said to consist of films invoiced at $1,281,000.

According to plans which have been announced, the concern will set up studios and manufacturing plants in Indianapolis as soon as a location can be obtained and the active work of producing films will be taken up.

According to statements of the incorporators, distribution stations will be established in the following cities: Boston, Buffalo, New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane, Denver, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Detroit and Omaha.

T. H. Ince Produces Big Special Feature

Thomas H. Ince has just completed special feature production at Culver City, entitled, “The Mid-night Patrol.” It is said to be a very elaborate picture, depicting the police officer in a favorable light as an answer to the ast number of pictures which have hounded the police crook and the police rater.

It is understood that the production is to be released independently and will or be issued on the Artcraft program.

It is learned also that Mr. Ince is at work on plans for a big patriotic spectacle which is to be made at the request of the United States government. J. Reade, personal representative of Mr. Ince was in Washington recently discussing plans for the picture with government officials that are to have immediate supervision of the production.

J. A. Berst Resigns From Pathé; Joins United Theatres Is Report

Paul Brunet Succeeds Retiring Vice-President And General Manager—Cause of Berst’s Action Not Explained in Official Announcement

J. A. Berst, whose resignation last week as vice-president and general manager of Pathé came as a distinct shock to the entire motion picture industry, is reported to have aligned himself with the new exhibitors’ organization sponsored by Lee A. Ochs, C. R. Seelye and Louis F. Blumenthal, incorporated under the name of The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

What position Mr. Berst will occupy in the new organization could not be ascertained nor could any statement relative to the rumor be obtained from him. No official announcement has been issued by United Picture Theatres.

J. A. Berst

Simultaneous with the announcement of Mr. Berst’s resignation, issued by the directors of the company following a meeting on March 7, came the notice that Paul Brunet, comptroller, had been appointed to succeed him. A eulogy of the retiring vice-president and general manager but very little information concerning the cause of his severing relations with the company is contained in the announcement, which follows:

Directors’ Official Statement

“J. A. Berst resigned as vice-president and general manager of Pathé Exchange, Inc., at a meeting of the board of directors held Thursday, March 7. It is known that he had contemplated this action for some time.

“Mr. Berst is generally recognized as one of the biggest and ablest men in the industry. His long experience in the business in this country, dating back to 1904, combined with remarkable executive ability and foresight, has given him a mastery of all phases of the business, including manufacturing, producing, distributing and administration.

“A fair deal to all has been Mr. Berst’s policy and there is no man more respected by his employees and business associates.

Comments On Career

“Mr. Berst was born in Paris, France, and began his business career as a boy with Charles Pathé, then just starting in the business of financial and exchange. His stock was identified all over the world. In this, Mr. Berst’s first position, he was called upon to do everything from manufacturing to selling, for up to 1906 he was Pathé’s only employe.

“In 1906 he was sent by Charles Pathé to the United States to develop the market here for Pathé films. The stock of films which he brought with him was small and some of them were only about fifteen feet in length. He rented offices on 23rd street, New York, and sold his stock himself. His infant business prospered so much that he engaged a cashier and office boy. His effort brought such results that in 1908 it was decided to install a factory equipment at Bound Brook, N. J., where the main Pathé American factory has been located ever since. The year following the big studio in Jersey City was built and the production of pictures on a large scale was begun.

“In December of 1913 Mr. Berst resigned and became treasurer of the General Film Company. Early in 1915 he accepted the vice-presidency and general management of the Selig Company. Then he became the president of the General Film, which office he resigned early in 1916 to become vice-president and general manager of Pathé.”

Brunet’s Efficient Record

Mr. Brunet’s connection with the Pathé Company dates back three and a half years, at which time the productions of the company were being distributed by the Ecclectic Film Company. During this time his efforts have been concentrated upon the financial and exchange end of the business and a system of exchange control, of which he is the originator, has made for increased efficiency.

For the past two years in addition to his duties as comptroller, Mr. Brunet has been assistant treasurer, and director of the company. Concerning his new duties he had nothing to say relative to the activities which followed other than that Pathé Exchange, Inc., will act in closer co-operation with the world organization of Pathé to its advantage.
A slight misunderstanding which has existed between motion picture theatre owners and the Four-Minute men organization in Chicago will be cleared up, it is believed, by a communication read at the meeting of the Chicago branch of the American Exhibitors' Association last Friday. The letter was signed by George R. Jones, state chairman of the Four-Minute men.

Mr. Jones corrects the impression held by some exhibitors that an agreement had been reached whereby the patriotic speakers were to appear but once a week. At the meeting of representative motion picture men and the Four-Minute men, he says, it was agreed that speakers should be allowed the use of the theatres twice a week.

"Some of the theatres have the idea," the communication reads, "that at the meeting which we held some time ago with representatives of future theatre owners, it was agreed that the Four-Minute men were to speak but once a week.

Letter Corrects Impression

"I write this letter to correct that impression. You will recall that one of the owners stated that once a week was in his opinion sufficient, but that he was overruled by the motion picture people present, and it was decided at the meeting that Four-Minute men should be allowed twice a week in the motion picture theatres.

"It should be understood, I think, that twice a week means twice a calendar week. In other words, our assignment committee might find it necessary to send men to a theatre on Thursday and Friday nights of one week, and the next week on Monday and Wednesday nights. This would make more than two talks in seven days, but would stick to our understanding that only two talks will be given each calendar week. It should also be recalled that a great many theatres have given us special permission to speak oftener, many of the loop theatres, indeed, every night.

"Lightless" Nights Discussion

Some discussion arose among the exhibitors present at the meeting as to when the "lightless" nights restrictions would be removed. It was pointed out by some that with the milder weather which has lessened the coal scarcity, darkened theatres two nights a week were no longer necessary.

Louis Frank, treasurer of the organization, said that he had been in informal communication with the state fuel administrator and that the official had held out no hope for revocation of the order for the present.

"He did want this made plain, however," said Mr. Frank. "The 500 watts allowed by the fuel administration on lightless nights, includes the wattage consumed by your emergency light." A number of routine matters were also taken up. Vice-President-Elect George Henry, president in place of President Beatty, who is at present in California recuperating from illness.

ROTHAPFEL RESIGNS AS FIRST NATIONAL CIRCUIT PRESIDENT

Owing to the pressure of other work, S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rivoli and the Rialto theatres, New York, has been compelled to resign his position as president of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

His recent appointment as chairman of the Motion Picture and Film Industry Division of the Liberty Loan Publicity Campaign in New York, together with the task of presenting new programs at two theatres each week made it imperative for him to give up some of his responsibilities. His resignation as president of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, however, will make no difference in his securing First National attractions for either of the theatres under his direction, it is said.

N. Y. Legislature Considers Regulations for Operators

Albany, N. Y.—Senator James J. Walker's bill to compel applicants for licenses to operate picture machines to file affidavits that they have served as assistants for not less than six months was up for discussion before the senate Monday of this week.

Another feature of the measure is that permits must be obtained from the license authority to act as an assistant, and that the license bureau may require corroboration of the affidavits.

Funkhouser Exceeds Authority
U. S. Court of Appeals Holds
Discretionary Power Not Conferred Upon Chicago Censor by City Ordinance Is Ruling of Federal Jurists on "The Spy" Film

Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, Chicago's censor, in using discretionary power in the ordinances under which he has been stepstepping his authority, according to a ruling by the Federal court of appeals, composed of Judges Baker, Kohlhaas and Evans. It is expected that the ruling will have a far-reaching effect upon the censorship of films in Chicago, which, to a certain extent, affects the entire state.

The decision was handed down as the result of an appeal on the part of the city against an injunctive order issued by Federal Judge Samuel Alschuler re-stricting the censorship with the showing of a Fox production, "The Spy." Judge Alschuler held in his ruling that the censor had no discretionary powers under the ordinance and that that power was definitely fixed by the provisions of the city ordi-nance respecting motion pictures.

"The Spy" depicted the efforts of a young American citizen to keep Germany a list of the German spies in America and his capture, torture and death at the hands of a firing squad. In its appeal from the ruling of Judge Alschuler the city held that:

The action of the play, where great drops of sweat stand out on the face and chest of the hero as he endures torture and faces death is too harrowing for the possibilities of minors.

The recent court appeals in its opinion handed down this week states:

Federal Court Decision

This appeal from an order refusing to dissolve a pendente lite injunction involves the construction and application of the following provisions of the ordinances of Chicago:

"Sec. 1027. If a picture or series of pictures for the showing or exhibition of which an appeal from the permit is taken, is immoral or obscene, or portrays any riotous, disorderly or other unlawful scene, or has a tendency to disturb the public peace, it shall be the duty of the general superintendent of police to refuse such permit; otherwise it shall be his duty to grant such permit.

"Sec. 1 of amendatory ordinance of July 1, 1921. That in all cases where a permit for the exhibition of a picture or series of pictures has been refused under the provisions of Section 1027 of the Chicago Code of 1921, as amended, because the same tends towards creating a harmful impression on the minds of children where such tendency as to the minds of adults would not exist if exhibited to persons of mature age, the general superintendent of police may grant a special permit limiting the exhibition of such picture or series of pictures to persons over the age of twenty-one years; provided, such picture or pictures shall not be exhibited to such children, in order to create contempt or hatred for any class of law-abiding adults.

Appellants refused to grant a permit under Section 1027 for the exhibition of anpeeple's moving-picture, "The Spy," but offered a permit for "theatrical only" under amendatory Section 1.

No Ordinance Violation

From the pleadings and affidavits, the following may be acccepted as the situation, pending final hearing: The photoplay depicts a young American's efforts to obtain in Germany the list of German spies in America, his capture, torture and death at the hands of a firing squad; there is nothing obscene or immoral; no portrayal of any riotous, disorderly, or other unlawful (nos-ciitura socitisc) scene; nothing tending to disturb the public peace; but the action of the play where great drops of sweat stand out on the face and chest of the hero as he endures torture and faces death, is too harrowing, in the honest judgment of the city's administra tors, for the possibility of minors; and for that reason and that alone, the permit under Section 1027 was refused.

Apend to injunctive order will not be reversed unless there was an abuse of discretion: and this can only appear from an obvious oversight of the facts or a palpable misapplication of well settled rules of law on the part of the trial judge. The only misapprehension of facts is that the case is that of the city's administra tor with respect to the discretion committed to him by the ordi-nance, Section 1027 sets up a standard, but allows no discretion. If a photoplay conforms to that standard, "it shall be his duty to grant such permit.

If it does not, he must refuse the permit. In deciding the question of fact the trier must of course take the viewpoint of old and young, and polishe and finish, and ignorant; but a picture either is or is not obscene, by the one standard, including all the public. Amendment Section 1 brings in the matter of discretion. If a permit under Section 1027 is refused, the administrator nevertheless "may grant a special permit," limiting the exhibition to adults. The discretion goes only to permitting a nonconforming picture to be exhibited to adults. On the adminis-trator's belief that such exhibition would not undermine the settled moral and peaceful character of adults.

The "harmful impression on the minds of children" must be an impression caused by the obscenity or other factors. It is not characteristic of the picture—not an impression which the administrator on non-legislative defined grounds may deem harmful. Since Europehere it has been mooted in the dramatic and other arts, how far the depiction of terror and anguish may properly be em-ployed for the purification of the passions of the observer. If the grlycerine tears and beads of sweat of the moving-picture are too horrifying for children, it was not for the administrator of these or-dinances to say that it must first be declared by the law-making body—if constitutional restrictions permit.

Attorney H. J. Friedman, who repre-sented the Fox Film Corporation throughout the entire legislation con-cerning the picture in question expressed himself as well as the outcome. He characterized the decision as a distinct victory for the film industry in general.

Essanay Company Has Novel Plan
For Future Plays

To Pattern Production After Method Used By Theatrical Enterprises

Convinced that the film business is now in a transitional stage and that the successful pictures of the future will be produced more on the line of theatrical productions, President George K. Spoor of the Essanay Film Manufacturing company, has announced that his organiza-tion will proceed in this manner in its future activities.

The company will not adhere to a strict publication date for program houses, except in its shorter subjects. Its features will be put on the market from time to time as completed.

"The film business now is in a transi-tional stage," said Mr. Spoor. "This, in my opinion, is due to the general development of the industry and the new demands that are constantly being created and partly to the abnormal condi-tions of a country at war. But there is no question that there is a real field for good pictures. Manufacturers need only to adapt themselves to the new conditions. Essanay has been watching these conditions, and it believes it has anticipated them."

"It is my belief that the successful pictures of the future will be produced more on the line of theatrical productions. That is, the manufacturer will hunt for the story of exceptional merit. Selecting capable players is not necessarily what are generally called stars, but first class actors."

"Essanay now is working on this plan. It has obtained the rights to several large productions and is now preparing them for release in the near future. The company will not attempt to adhere to a strict release date for program houses, except in its shorter subjects. Its features will be released from time to time as completed."

"I believe that under this system Essanay will be enabled to produce still greater pictures, giving the most careful attention to detail required by a finish production. The company now is pre-paring to make additions to its staff to carry out this plan, which has been laid out for months ahead."
Geo. K. Spoor Emphatically Denies Truce With Stanley Booking Company
Charges Mastbaum Concern Has Made Capital of Form Letters Received Through Error of Essanay Booking Department

Flat denial that the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company has modulated in any way its stand against the Stanley Booking Company of Philadelphia or its determination to fight that company to a finish in an effort to establish an "open booking" policy in the Pennsylvania city, is contained in a statement issued this week by George K. Spoor, president of the film organization.

According to reports received by the president of the Essanay company, the booking concern, headed by Stanley Mastbaum, is making capital of two form letters received by them through an error of the Essanay mailing department.

The form letters, one signed by Mr. Spoor and the other by the manager of sales and distribution, were general in nature concerning Essanay productions and were sent to exhibitors at large. Through an inadvertence the circulars were mailed to the Stanley Mastbaum Company at Philadelphia.

Company Misleads Exhibitors
Since that time, according to Mr. Spoor, representatives of the Mastbaum company have approached exhibitors of that city, produced the letters and intimated that they were overtures from Essanay and that practically a truce had been declared. Nothing could be more absurd, Mr. Spoor asserts.

Colonel E. M. House
Presented Gold Pass
Col. E. M. House, President Wilson's personal friend and unofficial emissary, was presented last week with a perpetual pass, engraved on gold, admitting him with Mrs. House and party to The Rivoli and The Rialto Theatres, New York, at any time. The pass bears S. L. Rothapfel's signature and the explanatory note that it was presented in appreciation of Col. House's presence in the presidential box at the opening of both the theatres for which it was issued.

"On Feb. 19 and 26," declared Mr. Spoor, "a form letter addressed to the various exhibitors throughout the United States left our studios, calling attention of our two late releases, 'A Pair of Sixes' and 'Ruggles of Red Gap.' One of these letters was over the signature of George K. Spoor, president of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, and the other over the signature of W. Fay Lynch, manager of sales and distribution.

Mailing Error Responsible
"Owing to an error in our mailing department, the Stanley Booking Company's name was left on our list of exhibitors. Like the rest of the exhibitors the Stanley Booking Company received a copy of these letters.

"I am informed by our Philadelphia office that the Stanley company has shown these letters and discussed them with several exhibitors in Philadelphia and pointed out to them the fact that Essanay was still recognizing the Stanley Booking Company and wished to continue to do business with them.

"Our attitude in respect to booking organizations has not changed. The communications received by the Stanley company were form letters and were decidedly not personal appeals to that concern."

Paralta Plays Inc.
Occupy New Offices
In New York City
Paralta Plays, Inc., are now settled in their new offices on the twelfth floor of the building at 6-8 West 45th street, New York City. After moving from the old quarters at 729 Seventh avenue, Paralta was forced to make temporary arrangements due to the fact that the new offices were not yet completed, and it was not until this week that the members of the organization took possession of their new home.

In their new quarters Paralta have the entire twelfth floor as well as a projection room, scenario department, and film vaults which have been erected on the roof. The arrangement of the offices and the connection with the private projection room affords the best possible layout for efficiency, it is said, and this will be enhanced within a few months when the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, through which Paralta Plays are being published, will move into the same building and occupy the eleventh floor, which is directly beneath the Paralta offices.

The offices of the Mastercraft Photoplay Corporation are also on the same floor with Paralta in the new building.

William Brady Has All Star Cast in "Stolen Orders"

"Stolen Orders," which will be the first of the feature productions sponsored by William A. Brady and made under his personal supervision, is said to abound in big scenes and tense situations. In point of magnitude it is said to rival many a Hollywood production, and to possess a universal appeal through a succession of intensely dramatic episodes interspersed by scenes as unusual as they are spectacular.

The story is laid in London, Paris and America at the outbreak of the Great War. Kitty Gordon as the wife of an Admiral of the American Navy has a role in which she is said to add another to her long list of remarkably successful screen personations. Playing opposite her as a sinister figure whose every action is directed and dominated by Wilhelmstrasse, is Montagu Love. June Elvidge appears as the daughter of this arch spy, as does little Madge Evans. Carlyle Blackwell, as a young American naval officer, has a romantic role, and George McQuarrie is admirably cast as the American naval officer.

N. Y. Exhibitors Launch Campaign To Amend Sunday Closing Law Form Allied Motion Picture Committee to Further the Passage of New Measure

The allied interests of the motion picture industry have launched a vigorous campaign to amend the state penal laws of New York to permit the exhibition of motion pictures on Sunday. A bill is about to be introduced into the State Legislature.

An Allied Motion Picture Committee of the State of New York was organized at the offices of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, 310 Broadway, New York City, March 14. This committee is already pushing a strenuous campaign throughout the state to gain the passage of the measure.

This allied committee numbers: John M. Heiney, chairman; Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry; and Trinity; C. A. Zeisler, Charles H. O'Reilly, assistant secretary; Max Spiegel, secretary, Mitchell F. Mark Realty Corporation, owners of the Strand Circuit; Max Cohen, president of the state, treasurer. Mr. Manheimer is resident of the Motion Pictures Exhibitors' League of New York State, Local No. 1, and Mr. Cohen is vice president of the same organization.

Executive Committee Formed

The following vice chairmen were named for the committee: The members of the executive committee of the Exhibitors' League of New York State, the residents of every producing, distributing, and supplying company; the presidents of all trade papers and such additions as Sydney Cohen, president of the Exhibitors' League of New York State, may name. The executive committee of the Exhibitors' league of New York State numbers its officers: Sydney S. Cohen, of New York, president; Samuel Suckno, of Albany, vice president; Walter A. Zeisler, chairman; Henry Cole, of the Bronx; George Cohen of Poughkeepsie; R. McCarty of the Tri-City branch; and M. Gerson, of the Queens; M. S. Silverman, of Schenectady; Benjamin Apfel, of Albany and Troy; G. J. Sheer, of Cohoes; Fred Elliott, of Albany, were also present at the meeting.

The committee is lining up every one of the 1,200 exhibitors of the state behind the bill. At the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany, on March 14, an important get-together meeting will be held. At this meeting the complete organization of the state campaign will be mapped out. Already an active newspaper campaign is under way. The related committee is making a systematic effort to put every important newspaper in the state behind the bill to amend the laws regarding Sunday motion picture exhibitions.

Similar to Old Bill

The allied committee makes it clear that the bill, as proposed, presents the opening of Sunday motion picture theatres as a matter of local option, specifying 2 p.m. as the opening Sunday hour, any possible conflict with religious services is eliminated. The bill, as now proposed, is substantially the same as the bill introduced last year in the State Legislature by Assemblyman Clarence J. Welsh of Albany. This bill had the emphatic approval of the State Senate of mayors.

Another important point in the new campaign for the amendment of the penal laws is the fact that the whole industry is behind the move. The allied committee directing the campaign includes every branch of the industry.

The organization of the allied committee and the launching of the campaign follows closely upon action taken at a recent meeting held at the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry's headquarters. At this meeting the Sunday closing committee, consisting of William A. Brady, Adolph Zukor, represented by Arthur S. Friend, Walter W. Irwin, and Lee A. Ochs, approved of the introduction of a measure into the state legislature to legalize the open Sunday screen theatre.

The presentation of the proposed bill will have an entirely new and complete argument for its passage this year. There are 1,300 motion picture theatres in the state and half of these are closed on Sunday. This closing means the positive loss in war taxes to the government of $500,000 in a year. Aside from the item of war tax loss, the closing of theatres on Sunday means that a direct channel of communication between the government and the people is cut off. The importance of the screen theatre in handling the Liberty Loan drives, the war saving stamp campaigns, and in aiding the Food Administrator, Hoover has been proven. The closing of theatres on Sunday means a direct blow to government propaganda.

United Picture Theatres President
Starts Tour of Entire United States Addresses Meetings in Large Cities and Explains Plan of Company—System to Effect Immense Saving
It Is Said

Lee A. Ochs, president of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., addressed several meetings of motion picture exhibitors of New York state, eastern Pennsylvania, Ohio, western Pennsylvania, and the Middle West last week and is now beginning a tour of the west and south that will not bring him back to New York until after August.

Mr. Ochs will meet groups of exhibitors and explain to them the program for exhibitor co-operation in the purchase and production of film features that has been devised by the executives of United Pictures. This week Mr. Ochs is scheduled to visit Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, spending four days in the metropolis of the middle west.

Beginning with a day in Indianapolis, Mr. Ochs will spend two days this week in Cincinnati, St. Louis and Memphis, going on for the week of March 25 to Little Rock, Dallas and New Orleans. He has arranged to give three days each to the exhibitors of Texas and Louisiana before starting north the first week of April by way of Atlanta, Charlotte, N. C., and Washington. The end of that week will find him in Pittsburgh, after which he will head west again and reach Kansas City on Monday, April 8. Oklahoma City and Hutchinson, Kan., follow and then for the week of April 14, Lincoln, Neb., Des Moines and Minneapolis.

Butte, Mont., is the next stop and Mr. Ochs will spend April 21 and 22 there, before traveling down to Boise, Idaho, and on to Spokane. The last few days of April and the first week in May will find Mr. Ochs in Seattle and Portland. From Monday May 6, to Wednesday, Mr. Ochs will meet the exhibitors of San Francisco and vicinity before going to Los Angeles for the longest day scheduled for him and after ten days will meet both producers and exhibitors, explaining to them the system under which United Pictures expects to effect a vast saving annually in the motion picture industry. Mr. Ochs states that these important groups of the industry are the ones to be benefited by the program which United Pictures has evolved.

Distributing waste is the objective of the new co-operative association, it is said, and by its elimination Mr. Ochs is prepared to prove the producers will receive greater returns for their features than they now obtain under the program system. The products will know in advance what his margin will be when dealing with Rothacker Film Co.

Gets Record Order
For "Tarzan" Prints

W. R. Rothacker
Makes Study of Feature—To Supply Novel Color Effects

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film laboratories in Chicago, paid a flying visit to New York last week to witness an exhibition of "Tarzan of the Apes" for the purpose of deciding upon appropriate methods of bringing out the striking and exotic scenic features of the big production through effective color printing.

Rothacker's initial order for supplying the First National Exhibition Circuit with positive prints of the "Tarzan" film exceeds by fully twenty-five prints any order that has been placed heretofore on a first-run feature.

As soon as the executives of the new co-operative circuit had closed the deal for the general distribution of the picturization of Edgar Rice Burrough's popular novel, Rothacker was asked to come to New York and see the picture during its Broadway run. As a result, the Chicago laboratory wizard spent the better part of two days taking careful notes on the production, studying its lighting, mass effects, atmospheric conditions, etc.

He also made a careful record of the reactions that different scenes produced upon the big crowds filling the Broadway theatre, as he was of the opinion that this is a first-class way to get live hints on solving some of the technical problems of printing. He will utilize those particular hints and use them to intensify the emotional and aesthetic effects aimed at.

During Rothacker's visit to New York he also looked over the new Petrova picture, "The Life Mask," and spent considerable time in consultation with First National executives regarding the printing of the first of the new Chaplin comedies.

Select Co. Appoints
H. G. Till Manager
New Orleans Branch

Select Pictures Corporation has appointed H. G. Till, manager of its newly established New Orleans branch, to take effect immediately. Mr. Till, who is one of the youngest managers in the business, has also had one of the most remarkable rises to this important position.

He was four years in the sales department of the Magnolia Petroleum Company in Dallas, receiving valuable training in salesmanship. In 1917 Mr. Till entered the ranks of the motion picture industry. As a salesman attached to the staff of C. C. Ezell, manager of Select Pictures in Dallas, he had remarkable successes on the road. This led to his promotion in the Dallas branch, and finally to his selection for the position of Branch Manager in New Orleans.

New California Corp.
Buys Lynch Reissues

An addition to the ranks of state right distributors on the Pacific Coast has been made through the organization of the Sunset Film Corporation which has just been announced. The initial purchase of the new company is the list of Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talaladji reissues which the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, are selling through the Wilt, Inc. In addition to the reissues, the Sunset company has secured the California rights to the Evelyn Nesbit Thaw picture, "Redemption."
Twelve Killed; Twenty-three Injured
In Winchester, Ky., Theatre Holocaust
Falling Wall Crushes Out Lives of Patrons, Majority of Whom Were Children. Panic Among Survivors Follows

Winchester, Ky.—Twelve persons were instantly killed, ten of whom were children, and twenty-three others were injured, some probably fatally, when a wall of a burning building adjoining a moving picture theatre, here, collapsed, crashed through the roof of the playhouse and buried patrons under an avalanche of brick and mortar.

Winchester's worst theatre horror occurred Saturday night when the motion picture playhouse was crowded to capacity. That the death toll was no higher is attributed to the fact that the entire roof did not collapse, thus confining the death dealing debris to a restricted section of the theatre.

News of the holocaust spread rapidly throughout the business and residence section of the city and it was necessary to throw a cordon of police about the theatre to restrain frantic relatives of those known to have attended the performance from rushing into the wrecked structure.

Others Injured Slightly

In addition to the twenty-three seriously injured who were rushed in ambulances, commandeered automobiles and other vehicles to the Clark County hospital, thirty other persons were slightly injured by flying glass, pieces of timber and bits of stone from the falling wall.

Six of those taken to the hospital are believed to be fatally injured. The majority of these, as well as those not so seriously injured, were children, several hundred of whom were crowded into the moving picture theatre when the crash came.

The wall which collapsed was also used as one wall of the theatre, but projected considerably above the roof of the building. When it collapsed a part fell on the roof of the playhouse. The wall’s collapse at the same time removed the support from under the roof on that side and it crashed down into the theatre.

One Section Struck

The greatest force of the roof’s fall was spent upon one section of seventy-five seats and it was here that all of the fatalities and serious injuries occurred. A considerable number of persons seated in other parts of the house, however, were cut and bruised by flying debris.

Immediately following the crash, patrons of the theatre were plunged into a panic. Hundreds of children and many grown persons engaged in a struggle to reach the entrance. What is considered remarkable is that no one, apparently, was injured in the wild scramble for safety. The wide doors giving entrance to the theatre yielded easily to the struggling mass and it is believed that all reached the street safely.

Exhibitors Units In Thirty-two States Approve Co-operative Plan—Pettijohn

General Manager of Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated Issues Statement—"Direct Sales Arrangement a Movement" he Asserts

Through a statement issued this week by Charles C. Pettijohn, general manager of the Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated Direct Sales Plan, addressed to the exhibitors of the United States and Canada, it became known that the arrangements for this exhibitors' booking plan, which has claimed the attention of exhibitors of the country for several weeks past, is nearing completion.

In speaking of the work that has been done during the past sixty days by Louis Levine and himself, Mr. Pettijohn says:

"We are now able to assure the exhibitors definitely that the plan will be in practical operation on a scale of vastly greater magnitude than was at first contemplated, within a very short time.

"Exhibitors' units in thirty-two states have definitely approved this principle of co-operative booking and completed arrangements to participate in the benefits to be derived from the undertaking. The balance of the states, which have not yet been reached, constitute only twenty-four percent of the total days of booking necessary to assure the successful completion of the plan."

Styles It a Movement

"This remarkable alignment of forces has been due to the fact that the Producers & Exhibitors Affiliated Direct Sales Plan, is a movement and not a commercial enterprise, a movement which even the veriest schoolboy can appreciate as being so fundamentally right in principle that it is an absolute guarantee of relief for both exhibitors and producers.

"Up to the present time eight independent producers of known ability have been granted franchises to produce under this plan, but within the immediate future, four of the most representative companies in the field will be embraced in this arrangement, giving a product, not only of the first quality, but of such volume as to ensure exhibitors of a supply sufficient to take care of their every requirement, regardless of how frequently they may change their program.

"In other words, the principle back of this plan is so comprehensive that it has been found big enough to embrace many new additions, both in ideas and forces.

"These additions have presented themselves as a result of considerations which challenge the attention of every man interested in the motion picture business.

"The following statement is a broad one, but it will not be denied. If it is not true, let it be denied:

"All producing companies now doing business are compelled to make more pictures than they really want to make. This is necessary because they must each independently maintain a so-called program of pictures. Everyone of these larger companies would be delighted if they could make one-half or one-third as many productions as they are now making, and they could make them better, and we repeat here they will not deny this fact. This would enable these same companies to make money instead of losing money, as they are now doing. They are producing themselves out of business."

"Such co-operative relationship of producing interests is assured when every exhibitors' unit in the United States, complete their exhibitors' booking units, and own and control their own co-operative booking power."

"It is not necessary for motion picture exhibitors to buy their own co-operative booking powers, nor is it necessary for the individual exhibitor to put up any sum of money at all to realize and utilize that which is already his own. It is simply a case of mustering and marshalling the rights and powers of this branch of the industry which heretofore has been utilized and manipulated by other branches of the industry for their own aggrandizement. As soon as these units are completed in the United States exhibitors will be able to not only frame the policies of their own branch of the industry, but exercise a powerful influence on behalf of the entire industry."

Notable Cast in "The Splendid Sinner"

The cast chosen by Goldwyn to support Mary Garden in "The Splendid Sinner," is one of especial excellence. Goldwyn announces. While the production is an elaborate one, it is said, there is not a conflict of principals. Goldwyn's casting director considered a long list of available players before entrusting them with the work of portraying characters calculated to tax the resources of any actor.

Hampton Revelle appears opposite the star, Anders Randolphi, noted for his excellent "heavy" work on the screen, plays Mary Garden's evil genius in "The Splendid Sinner," a role which demands finesse and power.

Others in the cast are Roberta Belle, Eric Mayne, and Henry Pettijohn. "The Splendid Sinner" will be published throughout the country March 24.

Peggy Hyland's Debut As Fox Star March 10

"The Debt of Honor," Peggy Hyland's initial production as a Fox star, was published March 10. There is a spy plot and war atmosphere to the play. Irving Cummings plays Hyland. Others in the cast are Frank Goldsmith, Hazel Adams and Eric Mayne. O. A. C Lund, who directed Miss Hyland in "The Debt of Honor" will have charge of her second production on which work has already been begun.

Lieutenant Leon Horstman has just received his commission from the war department, donned his uniform and is off to the camp. Best of luck, Lieut., and may you return with silver leaf on your shoulder.

Henry MacMahon has finished his "Zongar" work and is now furnishing big ideas for the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., for which company he is the Generalissimo of advertising and publicity.

The famous J. J. Dingwall is now the V. P. of the Burwell Special News and Letter Service. Aaron McBurk is president of the company and by joining Bur and the Wall we get the Burwall. What becomes of the Aaron-Burr?

Alice Howell has just returned to her home from the hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. There was no comedy in that.

Burton Rice and Raymond Cavanagh are linked up in an art service in the Times building. Since people always abbreviate Raymond's last name, it is easy to see that now we will have Caviar and Rice.

The Rothacker scenes are making a great hit at the Rialto this week, and when the "Old Reliable Gusher" was shown the applause went as high as the steam.

Charley Burrell has joined the forces of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, not as spiritual adviser; he is simply helping the Chaplain.

Wally Van has just completed a society pageant picture at the Hotel Biltmore. There were more than a thousand people in the ball room scene. Miss De Jersey Moor Hackensack Too played the lead, assisted by Coooley d'Brathwait McCafferty.

Frank A. Keene has placed the "Girl With the Beautiful Eyes" on the most conspicuous corner on Broadway. By and by he expects to have her on all the leading signs of the city as "The Girl With the Beautiful Lamps."

United Pictures Adds Many Exchange Men To Selling Staff

C. R. Seelye to Tour Country To Enlist Others Under Banner

C. R. Seelye, vice president and general manager of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., has started on a tour of the principal exchange centers of the country to enlist 100 exchange men under the United banner.

A. S. Abeles, formerly New York exchange manager for Pathe and more recently special representative, is now in charge of the New York office, with A. V. A. Hagopian, Mr. Abeles' assistant, in charge of the Paramount after two years of successful service.

H. M. Osborne has opened a United exchange in Philadelphia. Stanley Hand, after three years as World Film exchange manager in Boston, will handle the New England territory for United. Mr. Hand and members of his staff have covered the Albany, N. Y. section for years, now represents United in Northern New York.

D. W. O'Connell has transferred his activities in Washington from Pathe to United. He will have in the Virginia and Maryland territory two of the best salesmen in those states. C. W. Bunn has opened offices in the Consumers' building, Chicago, to promote the United propaganda in the section which depends upon Chicago for film distribution.

During his tour of organization Mr. Seelye will spend several days in Los Angeles in conference with stars who have indicated their desire to co-operate with exhibitors in the United association.

Cast of "Eagle's Eye" Makes Conservation Film for Committee

The Whartons have made arrangements for producing a special picture for an Empire State Conservation Committee in which will appear all the members of the company now working in "The Eagle's Eye," the twenty episode serial on view of the German government's spy system in America.

The Conservation Committee has not prepared the scenario, but will leave it to The Whartons and members of "The Eagle's Eye" company to put over the idea they have in mind. King Baggot and Marguerite Snow, who are featured in "The Eagle's Eye," will have the leading parts and King Baggot Jr., for whom there was no part in "The Eagle's Eye," will appear in the feature.

Both Miss Snow and Mr. Baggot have taken an active part in preparing the script. The State Conservation Committee informs the Whartons that they wanted anything that would show the public, especially the farmers of upper New York State, the necessity of saving coal, or any other fuel, in compact form. The suggestion is made that the public use wood in place of coal or oil.

The Whartons have planned a thousand-foot film and special attention has been given to scenes showing essential industries which have been closed down on account of lack of coal during the coal shortage. Scenes of ships and locomotives receiving their supply of coal will be used to emphasize the great demand the war has made for fuel.

Several unusual scenes showing the pleasure and enjoyment that can be gotten out of log fires, will have prominent places in the picture. A romantic story has been prepared by the principal of "The Eagle's Eye" Company, to make the Conservation Picture interesting as well as instructive.

Lou Burstein Goes West To Visit King-Bee Plant

Lou Burstein, president of the King-Bee Films Corp., left New York last Wednesday on the "Twentieth Century," bound for Hollywood, Calif., to visit the King-Bee Studio.

During his four days' stay on the train Mr. Burstein expects to write two new scenarios for Billy West, which he will start making immediately upon his arrival in Hollywood.

On March 23 Mr. Burstein will return to New York and will take with him the two King-Bee comedies just completed entitled, "The Scholar" and "The Messenger." These he will edit and cut on his way back to New York and upon arriving there a trade showing will be given.

California Troops In Louise Glaum's First Paralta Play

Three hundred members of the California National Guard, headed by the Coast Artillery band from Fort MacArthur, were mustered at the Paralta studios in California last week to aid in creating a patriotic atmosphere in some of the war scenes in Louise Glaum's picture, "An Alien Enemy," in which this star will make her debut in Paralta Plays.

These scenes gave the companies their first opportunity to train with complete uniforms, guns and helmets and they depicted the entry of a contingent of American troops into a French town behind the lines. They were staged under the direction of Wallace Worsley. While the soldiers who took part have been organized for two months, all having been enlisted in the "Bears," a regiment of California National Guardsmen, they have not yet been called into actual service, but have been carrying on regular training in Los Angeles without uniforms or equipment.

For the battle scenes in the film they were uniformed and equipped by the wardrobe room and "prop" department of the Paralta studios. Regular army officers from Camp Kearney were present at the maneuvers to inspect the troops, which will soon be mustered into active service. Not only did the companies get their first drill in uniform and steel helmets, but they also were given a glimpse of what they may expect in France, as much as the scenes were staged in the streets of a French town built in replica at the studios from the design of Robert Brutton, manager of productions.

There is that in "The Unbeliever" which should make it a picture that every one will want to see. There are many spectacular moments in it, the fighting scenes are realistic and impressive and the whole stands out strong and appealing.

It is primarily a story of little touch of the social prejudice existing between those of the higher and lower classes, and the feeling which comes with the hatred of our enemies. An interesting account of how the unbelievers on the rim field of battle, are forced to realize there is going a little interesting little love story at the end make the production well balanced.

The picture has the endorsement of United States war officials and while it endeavors to bring to the people a realization of the onerous "over there," at no time is there any gruesomeness or my over amount of pathos found. It is an impressive story old in an interesting manner containing more truth than power supporting Ray McKee are Marguerite Courtot, Kate Lester and Jarvis Karr. The direction is by Alan Crossland.

The story: Phillip Landicott has always held the people of the lower classes as being far beneath him; he is prejudiced against everyone with German blood in their veins and is an unbeliever. He joins the Marine Corps and goes to France where constant association with the various members of his battery and nearly answering the call of above make him see things differently and he returns to his home, crippled, but with a broader knowledge of God and man. During a Belgium raid he saved a young Belgian girl who is then sent home to his mother. When he beholds a beautiful girl in his mother's home it is the old story.

"The Brass Check" comes up to the standard of recent Bushman and Bayne productions. It contains sufficient interest and entertainment to make it an acceptable offering for audiences interested in comedies. Both Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne make their roles capably with a sufficient touch of appeal and humor to make them pleasing. In their support appear Frank Currier, Augustus Phillips and Rudolph De Cordova. The direction is by W. S. Davidson, a story by Clovis Coates and Mary Missiman.

The story: Ordered out of the house by his father because his refusal to marry the girl of the father's choice, Albert sets himself in the world without funds or means of earning any. In producing "The Sea Panther," Triangle has brought to the screen a romantic tale of the early days of navigation when pirates infested the high seas and preyed upon shipping with reckless abandon. While in a sense a costume play this feature does not predominate. An engrossing story of the love of the pirate chief for a girl captive, combined with good photography, make the production an interesting entertainment. William Desmond as the head of the "sea bandits" scores a success as does Mary Warren in the role of Molly Tarpley.

The story: Paul Le Marsan, with his pirate band, boards the British ship Lady Devon and in a successful coup comes into possession. Among the captives is Molly Tarpley with whom Le Marsan instantly falls in love. He takes her to the pirate town, where his affection increases. He determines to see that she reaches home safely, and with his pirate crew sets sail. When off the coast of the Carolinas his band learns of his determination and in the fight that follows members of the crew of the Lady Devon set upon the brigands and Le Marsan is put in chains. Molly, grateful for his kindness toward her, while unable to return his love, sets him free.

"The Floor Below" presents six reels of enjoyable screen entertainment, interspersed with little touches of pathos and a sufficient amount of humor to make it an exceptionally attractive offering. Mabel Normand has a role that offers a wide range of acting and she shows her versatility at every turn. Tom Moore accords Miss Normand excellent support and Helen Dahl, Wallace McCutcheon, Lincoln Plumer and Willard Dashiel make the most of their roles. The direction is by Clarence Badger. "The Floor Below" is taken from Elmer Harris's story.

The story: Patricia O'Rourke, copy girl on a daily paper, is discharged, but is given another chance when she is sent to get a "line" on some thieves who seem to be lodging in the mission kept by Hunter Mason. The manner in which she breaks into the presence of Hunter makes him believe she is a crook and he proceeds to reform her by taking her into his home and surrounding her with wealth and refinement.

William Desmond, friend of Hunter and a crook, plans to steal some money which Hunter has collected for the erection of a mission. Patsy is accused of the attempted theft, but her "tip" to headquarters results in Monty's capture and Hunter's confession of love.

A quick and successful remedy for the removal of worry-wrinkles from the faces of patrons is "Huck and Tom," the sequel to Mark Twain's famous story, "Tom Sawyer." Motion picture theatre goers who enjoyed the first half will find equal pleasure in the rest of this humorous and entertaining story of a young boy who, reared by a pious aunt, scoffs at the conventions of life as prescribed by this same aunt.

Every foot of film is full of fun and enjoyment. Each scene shows careful direction, good acting, suitable sets, wonderful scenery and excellent photography. The work of Jack Pickford is flawless throughout. Robert Gordon, in the character of Huck, gives a good interpretation of a young lad who has never known any other home but a woodshed and who considers it a nuisance to have to wash his face and comb his hair. Edythe Chapman, Clara Horton, Tom Bates and Frank Lanning handle their roles well. The direction is by William D. Taylor.

The story: While in a graveyard trying to rid themselves of their many woes, Huck and Tom witness a murder. At the trial their repetition of the story clears Muff Potter, an innocent suspect and victim of Injun Joe's plot. Injun Joe escapes to the Painted Cave, where the next day Tom and Becky are lost. After a four-day search the missing ones come home and the entrance to the Painted Cave is sealed. Tom tells the judge that Injun Joe is hiding in it. The seal is broken open and the dead body of the murderer is brought out. Huck and Tom are the possessors of a treasure which they found and with this fortune they plan to become great and fierce robbers.

The theme of "Lest We Forget" is indeed an impressive one and it will undoubtedly have a strong appeal where war subjects are in favor. Many of the big episodes have been seen in former productions written around the war and while they will always arouse a generous amount of applause, they will not create the amount of enthusiasm that new material would. It seems as if the producer has tried to do something big, but each time just missed it. The production was well received by patrons of Chicago's Ziegfeld Theatre last week and drew large crowds.

The work of Rita Jolivet is never affected. She screens well and has a pleasing personality. Hamilton Revelle and L. Roger Lytton, in the leading supporting roles, were very effective. The French settings were realistic and a number of trench scenes interesting. Leonce Perret is credited with the director, although the film has been re-edited since originally produced.

The story: Rita Heriot, at the outbreak of war, comes to America to appear in operas with the thought that her sweetheart, Harry Winslow, is dead. As a matter of fact Harry, believing Rita dead, joins the French army to avenge the death of his sweetheart. At the close of the opera season Rita returns to England on the ill-fated Lusitania, though warned by Harry Von Berger, a spy, and apparently a friend of Harry's, not to sail. When Von Berger learns that Rita has reported him as a German spy, he endeavors to attack her, but Rita kills him. She locates Harry and goes to him, but he, believing her unfaithful, because of a letter from Von Berger, refuses to have anything to do with her. She relates what has happened to her since their separation and Harry finally forgives.

A pleasing vehicle, with a pleasing star and pleasing story sums up "The Girl and the Judge." The story has been handled in a true-to-life manner and should prove an acceptable offering to theatres where pictures depicting realism are in demand. Miss Tell does some good work and has a winning way about her. John Powell, a dependable personage, gives his usual good characterization. The various other members of the cast have been selected with care as to types and the direction has been carefully handled.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.

"CARMEN OF THE KLONDIKE"

Selsetar drama; seven parts; published state rights
As a whole: Splendid Story: Strong Support: Strong Photography: Exceptional

Probably the outstanding feature, the thing uppermost in the thoughts of those who view "Carmen of the Klondike," will be the recollection of one of the most impressive fight scenes ever filmed which comes as a climax to a picture dealing with the Klondike gold rush; the struggle of men in a country which knew no right but might, where broken heads and shooting affrays were part and parcel of the day's routine. Photograph has it that the producers waited six weeks for the torrential rains and the knee-deep mud in which the memorable struggle was waged, and it was worth it. As a whole it is a strong production, fascinating in its intensity.

Clara Williams is superb in her characterization of Dorothy Harlan, a vaudeville singer who, through a plot, is led to believe her lover unfaithful and becomes a singer and dancer in a mining town cabaret. To remarkable camera work is accredited the realism of the silent, frozen north which envelopes the picture.

The story: Dorothy Harlan is on her way to Alaska to join her fiancé, Cameron Stewart, a young attorney who has opened an office in Prospect City. On the boat she incurs the enmity of Silk MacDonald, boss of the mining town, who makes her life miserable. He learns her love is for Stewart, and on his arrival at Prospect City, through a ruse, he attorney and makes it appear as though he was living with a woman of ill repute. Dorothy denounces Stewart and becomes an entertainer in a dance hall. Following a rush to a new field, Stewart learns of MacDonald's plot against him and a terrific bare-fisted battle follows which is ended when the "boss" of Prospect City is shot by a man whose wife he has wronged. Dorothy and Stewart are reunited.

There isn't a great deal to the story of "The Great Adventure," and yet it contains sufficient material to hold one's attention. It has been handled in an appealing fashion and the fact that Bessie Love is the star, will undoubtedly make a great deal toward its success. Miss Love is back in full swing and is entertaining as ever. In her support appear Flora Finch, Donald Fall, Chester Barnett and Florence Short. The screen version was adapted from the story "The Painted Scene" by Henry Mitchell Webster.

The story: "Rags" and her aunt journey to New York where "Rags" hopes to become a great actress. From Billy Hake she learns that one has to hold up the managers to get a position. "Rags" tries it and is booked for the chorus, but when her leading lady refuses to play opposite her husband "Rags" leaves the part. Sheen, the leading man, endeavors to force his attentions on "Rags," but the girl proves too clever for him and leaves in disgust while "Rags" and Billy make preparations for a happy future.

For a dramatic offering with plenty of human appeal and fairly interesting story lines "The Soul" is a representative production. It's little touches of pathos and mother love, as interpreted by Alice Joyce, stand out realistic and true. Miss Joyce handles her role in a manner most pleasing and at times rises to exceptional emotional heights. Her supporting cast consisting of Stephen Carr, Percy Standig, Walter McGrail, Edith Reeves and Barney Randall, was well chosen and capable. Shannon Fife is the author of the story and the direction is by Tom Terris.

The story: Ann is persecuted when she is tricked by a mock marriage to Fenton and learns that her child is nameless. She is driven from the village and the baby taken from her. Coming a nurse, she meets Dr. Evans, who falls in love with her and promises to marry her. Ann refuses and returns to the village, from which she had been ejected, to be near her boy. Her identity is disclosed and she is again driven away. Finally yielding to the persuasions of the doctor she marries him and is also successful in getting the doctor to adopt her son, although she withdraws from him the joy of true identity. Fenton, learning that Ann is now Mrs. Evans, threatens to expose her past if she does not interfere with Dr. Evans and secure permission to maintain a gambling den in one of Evans' houses. Ann refuses, writes a confession of her past and is about to leave when the doctor enters, orders Fenton out of the house and forgives Ann.

A most extraordinary production is "The Curse of Iku." It presents something entirely original in plot and has been done in such an appealing and interesting manner that one's attention is immediately attracted and held during the telling of the story.

Not alone is the story an excellent one, but the work of Tsuru Aoki is something out of the ordinary. In addition to being an actress of sterling qualities, she is every inch an artist, and her make-up depicting lapse of fifty years is something meritorious. Her work throughout the production is fascinating. Frank Borzage, too, does his role successfully, as do the other members of the cast. The story is laid in Japan and America and the settings are excellent. The production was made at the west coast studios of the Essanay company. The acting is first rate, the dialogues natural.

To those who have admired the work of little Madge Evans in the past, "Wanted A Mother" will undoubtedly have a strong appeal. The story is slight in structure with an obvious plot but withal has been done in a pleasing manner. The work of Miss Evans, as well as her two principal co-workers, George MacQuarrie and Gerda Holmes, is very good. The picture has been well produced, is wholesome enough for children and should have a certain appeal for grown-ups. Happy Knories directed.

The story: Little Eileen Homer longs for the love of a mother and her busy father, Dr. Homer, cannot seem to appreciate what his daughter has done to his little girl. When the doctor advertise for a governess, little Eileen changes the advertisement to read, "Wanted—A Mother," and the doctor, learning what his daughter has done, appreciates her longings. A mother finally comes to Eileen in the person of Dr. Thelma Winters, who performs a successful operation on the little girl when she falls and injures her head.

"Hungry Eyes" is a repetition of a previous Bluebird feature entitled "The Desire of the Moth," in plot and locale. Its subject-matter may prove entertaining to audiences that have not seen the former picture. Monroe Salisbury gives a finished interpretation of the "hoss" thief and is accorded good support by Ruth Cliford and a capable cast.

The story: Dale Reveral, known as a bad man and horse thief, becomes a member of Appleton's cowboys and soon wins the heart of Mary Jane Appleton. Her father is desirous of having her marry Jack Nelda, his neighbor. Mary Jane tells Dale of her unhappy life and tries to make him see that he loves her, but Dale urges her to obey her father. Nelda and Dale engage in a fight, in which Dale is wounded. Nelda and his accomplice are killed. Dale's sister comes in search of Dale and at first Mary Jane is jealous, but soon everything is explained and the dark clouds pass and Mary Jane is made happy.

The best piece of work Taylor Holmes has done thus far for the screen is to be found in "A Pair of Sixes." He is right at home in this rollicking farce adapted from the stage success of a few years ago and his latest effort under the Essanay banner should prove a "knock-out." From beginning to end there is one laugh after another. The writer unhesitatingly recommends "A Pair of Sixes" to theatres looking for high class farce-farce-comedy.

Mr. Holmes excels in his presentation of the character of T. Boggs Johns. Maude Eburne, in the role of Coddles, gives a highly amusing interpretation of comedienne art. Edna Phil lips Holmes, Alice Mann and Robert Conness gave the comedian excellent support. L. C. Windom is responsible for the splendid direction.

The story: T. Boggs Johns and his partner, George Nettleton, couldn't agree on many matters of business and so a friend decided that they play a game of poker, the loser of which was to become butler and valet for the other. T. Boggs is the loser and is immediately installed in the Nettleton home and finds it most personal and gracious. His master has a reputation. The arrival of his sweetheart at the Nettleton home for a visit brings things to a swift climax. When Florence learns the whole story she evolves a plan whereby the jealousy of Nettleton is aroused and he finally agrees to release T. Boggs from his agreement.

The exhibitors desirous of showing audiences beautiful scenes will find that "Beauty in Chains" fills the bill very nicely, but for diverting screen entertainment it misses the mark by a wide margin and gives a dizzy feeling at its conclusion. It is about as poor a subject as has been offered followers of the silent drama for some time. There is a large cast of players with names that are popular, but they are mere figures before the wonderful scenery in which the picture abounds.

When the nephew comes for a visit Donna Perfecto gives him food and when she finds that Rosarita is in love with him, she makes his life unbearable. After becoming involved in an affair with three young ladies the aunt orders him out. Rosarita begs him to remain and before the eyes of his aunt he effects a daring elopement.

"The Girl With the Champagne Eyes" contains plenty of heart interest and melodrama to make it an excellent subject of its type. The story has been well handled and carefully directed by S. A. and C. M. Franklin. In addition to Jewel Carmen and L. C. Shumway, Francis Carpenter, star of the Fox "kiddie" pictures, has quite an important part and handles it with all the eagerness and sincerity which has marked his previous screen work. Charles Eldred, and G. Raymond Ney do their roles justice.

The story: James Blair becomes the innocent accomplice of Nellie Proctor in one of her pickpocketing adventures and later she helps him to escape from prison. They go to the gold fields of Alaska and all efforts on Nellie's part to win Blair's forgiveness are futile until Blair learns that she was about to sacrifice her chastity to save him. This brings him to a realization of the woman in Nellie and the depth of her love for him. The story has a pleasing ending.

Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation Finishes "A Romance of Underworld"

Having completed "A Romance of the Underworld," the cast of the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation has begun the production of another picture, "Marriage," by Guy Bolton author of "Oh! Boy", "Oh! Lady! Lady!" and other stage successes. Like "A Romance of the Underworld," it will star Catherine Calvert.

In "A Romance of the Underworld" I have tried to present an intimate, accurate, interesting picture of New York life, said Mr. Keeney. "The entire picture has to do with life in Gotham. It has scenes and incidents which will be unfamiliar to the average New Yorker. Take, for instance, the dope scene in Chinatown, with its real Chinese opium smokers, the queer sights on the Bowery after dark; the big revels at the East Side dance hall, with its impromptu set-to between two heroes of the fistic arena impersonated by Kid Broad and Kid Lewis; the court room scene and the incidents set in the surroundings of the criminal court building, the Tombs and the 'Bridge of Sighs.' I am confident that the picture will be a revelation to New Yorkers, who are, for the most part, too busy to take the time to see the sights of their city.

"It is a fact that since the war began New York City has taken on a greater importance in the eyes of the world and therefore, everything pertaining to it will be received with greater interest everywhere. This is one reason why I have selected as my first picture a graphic presentation of New York life. It is, moreover, an up-to-date presentation, numerous special features having been introduced for the screen version of the famous Paul Armstrong play."
"The Decoy" First Mutt and Jeff Cartoon to Be Published by Fox

"The Decoy" is the title of the first Mutt and Jeff animated cartoon which will be issued under the distributing arrangement recently completed by Bud Fisher with the Fox Film Corporation.

It is the story of a big game hunting expedition in which the cartoon characters alternate as decoy and hunter. The decoy camouflages himself in the skin of a wild animal and goes forth to lure real wild animals within range of his partner.

Mutt and Jeff are announced, that is, the plan is that actually happens that the wild animals resent the effort to impose upon them and give the perpetrators of the plot some of the liveliest moments in their sketchy lives.

The date of publication of "The Decoy" is March 24, there will be subsequent releases, all of an average length of 30 feet, at the rate of one each week. The second feature is titled "Back to the Balkans" and shows Mutt and Jeff, particularly Jeff, on a flying trip—airplane— to Turkey and elsewhere. Mutt is routed during an attempt to kidnap the Sultan, but Jeff comes back bringing the desired prisoner and incidentally two or three other samples of royalty, including a saser and an Emperor.

"The Freight Investigation," "The Leak," "On Ice," "A fisherless Cartoon" and "Helping McAdoo" are the names of the other animated cartoons that have passed the Fox reviewing board and been set down on the release calendar. In all, it is announced, ten subjects have thus far been approved and several others are in process of completion.

"All arrangements for handling the Fisher productions are completed prior to public announcement of the new releases," Mr. Fox said last week. "Contrary and details regarding prices and dates are now available in every Fox ranch office in the world. Copies of the prints of the first two also are in the branch managers' hands and they are expected to make bookings as of March 24. Reports thus far received indicate that the demand is going to be decidedly heavy."

essel Barriscale Has Strong Role

In Paralta Play "Within the Cup"

One of the strongest and most gripping dramas in which essel Barriscale has yet appeared, it is said, is her second Paralta Play, "Within the Cup," which will be offered to the public within a short time. The story is set in the Latin quarter of Paris and in Washington Square, the artist section of New York City.

Miss Barriscale plays the difficult role of a woman who is said to love because of a curse which she feels has been placed upon her soul. As "Thise Lorraine" she undergoes several complete transformations of character which afford her ample opportunity to display the remarkable versatility which has prompted the best critics of the silent drama to hail her as one of the most convincing emotional actresses appearing on the screen.

The story was written by Monte M. Katterjohn and the screen version was prepared by Tom A. Geraghty, both of the Paralta staff of authors. Raymond B. West, who directed Miss Barriscale in her first Paralta Play, "Mam'dam Who?" also pervised the production of this picture.

World Pictures Announces Five Films for Publication During Month of April

World-Pictures announces its list of photoplays for the month of April. Montagu Love comes first on the list with "The Cross Bearer," in which Mr. Love impersonates the monsieur character of Cardinal Mercier of Belgium, the outstanding personage of the great conflict. The Cross Bearer's pubic date was advanced two weeks to bring it to Easter Monday.

Ethel Clayton in "The Witch Woman," Alice Brady in "The Trap" and Kitty Gordon in "Devil's Dice" follow, and on April 29 comes the final feature for the month, Carlyle Blackill and Evelyn Greely in "The Leap to Fame."

Hats Off to Mr. Laemmle

Far be it from us to, in a manner of speaking, pat ourselves on the back, but we cannot help from feeling a certain measure of satisfaction in noting that our campaign against extravagant claims and in the interests of the conservation of advertise has at last, after persistent pounding, born fruit.

Putting aside all precedent, Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal company, has, in one fell swoop, put a ban on what is, for observation, half the vocabulary of the average press agent. These obsolete, meaningless, trite, over-exerted, moth-eaten words and phrases have been put in the official discard: "Camouflage," "Intensive," "Psychology," "Efficiency Expert," "Somewhere-in-France," "Cinematographer," "Greatest on Earth," and "Hit of the Season."

In giving our thanks to Mr. Laemmle, our heart goes out to the Universal P. A. who, deprived of his choicest weapons, must needs seek the dictionary to learn the many ways of expressing a thought there is provided in the English language.
New Grand Theatre Pittsburgh
Opened by Davis Enterprises

Impressive in its beauty, grandeur and sumptuousness and marking a milestone in the progress of the city toward real metropolitanism, the New Grand, Harry Davis' "million dollar photo play house," was opened to the theatre-going public of Pittsburgh last week.

No expense has been spared to make the New Grand a perfect photoplay theatre, rivaling in its appointments as well as in the magnificence of its equipment, its interior, is said, the Rivoli, the Strand and the Rialto, New York's most important and costly motion picture theatres.

The Grand is built on the lot formerly occupied by the old theatre of the same name, which it supplants, and becomes the focal point of a recreation building which probably has no counterpart in America, for the beautiful, ornamental marquee which graces the Fifth avenue facade links to the theatre all the allied interests of the Harry Davis Enterprises in this location, joining the new building with the older one and forming an arcade through from Fifth avenue to Davis street, its best business street, and become one of the main arteries of travel in downtown Pittsburgh.

Special attention to the musical accompaniment of pictures has been arranged for by Mr. Davis. In the plan perfect co-ordination between picture and orchestration is the primary feature. Mr. Davis intends that the story of the picture shall be conveyed to the ear as well as to the eye—conveyed by musicians who are virtuosos and who will interpret the works of masters skillfully arranged to coincide with every step in the film narrative.

Photoplays at the new theatre will be censored as carefully as intelligently and as prudently as Mr. Davis censored his theatrical performances. He has arranged his scale of prices with the idea in mind of attracting to his "shrine of the silent drama" all classes of people. Seats on the first floor will be sold at 25 cents and in the balcony at 15 cents.

There are loge and private boxes which may be had for 35 cents and children under twelve years of age will be admitted for 10 cents. Considering the quality of entertainment, the scale of prices seems incredible, but it is in keeping with Mr. Davis' policy of presenting amusement of the best class at the lowest possible prices.

In all there are approximately twenty-six hundred seats in the Grand. They are all wide, comfortable leather-cushioned opera chairs, giving ample room for absolute comfort. The seats are arranged upon a graduated floor, which gives a perfect view of the screen unobstructed by any post, pillar or other object. The graduated seating is also used in the single balcony.

Fox to Publish "A Daughter of France"
Starring Virginia Pearson March 24

A war drama, the action of which is laid chiefly in an old French chateau, is Miss Pearson's next starring for William Fox. It is "A Daughter of France," and was directed by Edward Lawrence. It was Mr. Lawrence's first play for Fox. In the company are Hugh Thompson, Herbert Evans, Ethel Kuntz, Rudi Hill, George Moss and Naida Gaye.

"A Daughter of France" is scheduled for March 24 to give a strong preachment on the evils of the present divorce system is "The Blindness of Divorce," scheduled for April 7. Circumstances condemn a guiltless wife. Found guilty in the eyes of the law she becomes a society outcast.

"The Soul of Buddha," starring Theda Bara, is scheduled for April 21. This play is based on the death of Mata Hari, the French spy.

Cohan to Produce "Hit the Trail Holliday"

George M. Cohan's next motion picture vehicle will be an adaptation from his own play, "Hit the Trail Holliday," to be published under the Arcturus trade-mark. This will be Mr. Cohan's third Arcturus picture, his former features being "Broadway Jones" and "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

"Hit the Trail Holliday" is a farce in which George Cohan dramatized Billy Sunday, the noted evangelist, and called him Holliday. It was produced in September, 1915, at the Astor Theatre, New York.

Olive Tell In "Girl and the Judge"
Leads Mutual Schedule Week March 18

Olive Tell, who is appearing in the Empire All Star productions of Frohman stage successes, is announced in a photodrama titled "Girl and the Judge," to be published by Mutual March 18. The picture was made under the direction of John B. O'Brien and is the third of a series in which Miss Tell has appeared for Mutual-Empire.

The action of the picture is intense in character and Miss Tell is given ample opportunity for emotional acting of a high order, it is said. Physically and temperamentally the role is a grateful one for her.

Winifred Stanton, (played by Miss Tell), a girl of refinement and lovable qualities, discovers that her mother is a kleptomaniac, and uses all means in her power to prevent exposure.

When a friend of the family loses a valuable pin at their house, Winifred, believing her mother has again yielded to the mania, assumes the blame for the theft when a pawn ticket for the pin is found made out in her mother's name.

The judge before whom the case is tried, has met Winifred and fallen in love with her. Unaware of the mother's name, but firmly convinced that Winifred is shielding some one, he prompts the prosecutor to go deeper into the case and the result clears Mrs. Stanton while establishing the identity of the real culprit. There is a surprise in the climax which is strongly in keeping with the story.

Mutual's Screen Telegram March 10

The Screen Telegram, the new-news-seria inaugural by Mutual, in its second week of issue will be ready March 10 and 13. The contents of the first week's issue of the Telegram augers well for future issues. Probably the most interesting subject was the photograph of Captain Vernon Castle, the famous dancer who won renown as an aviator by his daring and skillful over the ocean in 1919, and was decorated by the British government for his bravery. This is the last picture taken of Captain Castle before his ill-fated flight in which he met a heroic death while instructing a cadet at the aviation grounds. Billie Rhodes, in a Strand comedy, "His Quaker Girl," is announced for March 19, which completes the Mutual schedule for the week. Billie is playing the part of a Quakeress in a motion picture production, and is wooed and won by Jack, who thinks she is a real Quaker. Jack gets mixed up with another girl the night before the wedding, and when she turns up at the bridal festivities, believes he's in for a real hot time, but it's Billie, who has won him in both guises, and he promises to be faithful to both.

Russian Art Film on Pathe Program

Pathe's program for March 17 is headed by a five-reel Russian Art Film starring Ivan Mozukin and Mme. Lesienko and the second episode of the new Pearl White serial, "The House of Hate," as well as Toto in another of his amusing comedies.

"The Beggars Woman" is the title of the feature and it is said to be one of the most remarkable dramas yet published on a Russian Art Drama program. It features Mme. Lesienko as a songbird.

"The Tiger's Eye" is the second episode of "The House of Hate," While "Fare, Please," is the name of Toto's two reel Rolin comedy.

“An Alien Enemy” Is Title Chosen
For Louise Glau’m’s First Parla Play
Since the announcement made last week that Louise Glau’m’s first Parla Play would be known as “The Iron Beast” instead of “Intelligence,” the executives of the Parla organization have again changed the title.

It is now definitely decided that this production will be published as “An Alien Enemy.” The picture is at present in the course of filming at the Parla studios in Los Angeles. “An Alien Enemy” will mark Miss Glau’m’s entrance into a new field of drama, as it will be her first screen play of importance in which she does not appear in the role of a vampire. “An Alien Enemy” was written by Monte M. Katterjohn and is being staged under the direction of Wallace Worsley.

Tom Mix Writes Own Story
Lynn Reynolds is directing Tom Mix in a new photoplay which is being made for William Fox in the Hollywood, Cal. studios. In this production Victoria Forde comes hack as leading lady for Mix. She will be remembered in the Mix comedies. Others in the cast are Frank Clark and Barney Furey. The story is by Mix and the scenario was prepared by Mr. Reynolds.

THIS WEEK AT DOWNTOWN CHICAGO THEATERS

BIJOU DREAM—Select, “The House of Glass,” with Clara Kimball Young.
ROSE—Select, “The Knife,” with Alice Brady.
ZIEGFELD—“Let We Forget,” with Rita Jenlevet.
Roth, San Francisco
And Two Denverites
Join Hodkinson Plan

Among those who have recently entered into a co-partnership with the W. W. Hodkinson company in its plan which includes, it is said, a distribution system which will eventually cover the United States are Mr. Roth of the Market Street Theatre Company of San Francisco and Messrs. Greves and Ellision of Denver. It is intended that the distribution shall be controlled by exhibitors.

This announcement, which was issued from the home office, 327 Fifth avenue, New York, is the first report on the success of Mr. Hodkinson in his coast to coast trip in the interests of his venture. It is also announced that the Salt Lake section of the west as well as the Indiana section in the middle west are also lined up but the names of those who have act for the company in these territories have not been made public.

Greves and Ellision, well known to the film industry in the vicinity of Denver and owners of the Rialto and Princess theatres, will center their activities chiefly in Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico. Through this arrangement the Hodkinson company states, its productions will be shown in the best houses in Denver and the surrounding territory.

Through the co-partnership agreement with Mr. Roth the new Californian theatre, recently completed in San Francisco will be available for first showings of the Hodkinson service on the coast.

Mr. Roth’s sphere of influence, as far as the Hodkinson plan is concerned will center about San Francisco and northern California.

While for business reasons Mr. Hodkinson has not yet announced publicly the full details of his plans which are well defined and thoroughly tested, it is said, it is stated that his organization brings the exhibitor to an unusually prominent place in the distribution and consumption of films.

As a matter of fact, so far forward is the move that through the control of distribution and consumption will in turn enable him to control production, it is declared, insofar as necessary for the continued turning out of quality product to be distributed at an equitable price, which is one of the basic principles of Mr. Hodkinson’s plan.

Chandos Brenon Will Market Productions
P. & E. Affiliated

Chandos Brenon, brother of the producer, Herbert Brenon, paid a hurried visit to New York last week and returned to Montreal after consulting with the executives of Producers’ Exhibitors Affiliated. He submitted a proposition for marketing productions in Canada on which the producers and exhibitors affiliated are working in the United States.

Chandos Brenon represented his brother at the executive committee meeting. He has complete charge of the exploitation of Brenon pictures in the Dominion.

French Comedian to Return to America

Max Linder, the French comedian, who was compelled to terminate his Essanay contract because of a physical breakdown, after only three productions were made, has recovered his health and will return to the United States in April, it is said.

He will make a new series of pictures, which will in all probability, be written especially for him by Tom Bret.

At the time M. Linder was signed by George K. Spoor of Essanay, to make a series of twelve comedies for that company, much publicity was given his coming here. His first three productions were well received, but the strenuous work at the Chicago studio and peculiarities of the climate did not suit him, as he was at the time still convalescing from serious injuries received during the first year of the war, while serving with the French Army. It was decided to make future Linder productions in California.

city, very quick service can be given the exhibitors in the western Connecticut territory.

Taking over the new district, Branch Manager Henry Siegel made such arrangements that there will be no interruption whatever in the exhibition service. L. W. Adler, office manager of the New York exchange, has been on several days in Boston going over records and making arrangements necessary to the transfer.

Love-sick Gorilla
And Police Sergeant
In Newest O. Henry

A romance of stage life, with the climax cleverly concealed until the last flash, makes "The Song and the Sergeant," the current General Film O Henry picture, a tempting short-length production for feature showings. Bernard Siegel, Stanley Dunn, Temple Saxe and others are in the cast. The half-century mark in O. Henry productions has been reached with this subject.

A dispute among the members of the Carroll Comedy Company in a Broadway restaurant resulted in being taken to the nearest police station. Members of the company insist that the big scene in which Miss Carroll has been accustomed to make a hit has been spoiled by her, and the desk sergeant consents to witness a portion of the performance and give his opinion.

In the middle of the scene—the woeing of the nymph by the gorilla—Miss Carroll stands still while the tears roll down her cheeks. The members of the company wrathfully explode a second time, but the disturbance is suddenly quieted when the gray-haired matron rushes forward with a solution of the trouble. She explains that the comedian has been wearing his heart out for the leading lady and has been woeing her in his song. The matron springs into his arms and the sergeant dismisses the case.

Fox Directors Busy
At Biography Studios
On Three Photoplays

William Fox activities in the Biography studios, New York City, have given that picture making building the busiest appearance in its history, film reports.

R. A. Walsh’s drama, “Woman and the Law,” with the sets which have been constructed lately for the prison scenes, the lavish sets which were put up for scenes in the William Parnam-production, “Rough and Ready,” and several sets which have been prepared to facilitate the completion of the unfinished vehicle of the Fox “Baby Grand,” Jane and Katherine Lee, have crowded the studio to its capacity.

Director Richard Stanton has installed fountains and plants to lend reality to his conservatory and ball-room interiors which, together with the Stanton orchestra, which is used in the staging of plays in which there are emotional scenes, giving the working floor the general appearance of a well arranged Boston trunk.

Despite the somewhat congested conditions under which the directors are forced to work, rapid progress is being made on all three photoplays.
Exchange Managers Meet and Discuss Cancellation Evil

Ontario Exhibitors Called to Account for Unbusiness-like Methods

For the last few weeks the Exchange managers Association has been having regular weekly meetings to discuss serious problems which have come up during the week, such as certain exhibitors who refuse to pay for the Monday tickets on which they were forced to close order to conserve fuel and also to scold exhibitors in which they could not cancel the cancellation evil which is becoming so prevalent.

On Saturday, March 9, a special meeting of the Exchange managers and salesmen was held in order to take up the matter further of the cancellation evil although nothing definite has been ported, it is believed that some understanding was to go into effect whereby there would be impossible for any exhibitor to contract without the consent of the exhibitors unless the exhibitors' notice of cancellation is given.

The exhibitors of Ontario have gotten to the very bad habit of booking a film for a special date when the traveler for certain film company called on him and then when another salesman called the exhibitor would get the impression at his feature was not very much better an contract would cancel the other contract and book the second veele's feature. In this way, sometimes the exhibitors would book two or three films for the same days, knowing that he could cancel whichever one wished. However, he will be unable to do this in future, as exhibitors must fill all contracts entered into.

Gaiety Reserves Seats

The presentation of special features by the Gaiety theatre, Winnipeg, has proved so successful that the management has decided to sell a portion of tickets for each performance in advance. As reserved seat policy was started the week of February 13 when the attraction was "The Honor System." This is the first instance of a moving picture theatre in Winnipeg selling reserved seats. Although the Gaiety has a seating capacity of 800 and is not the main thoroughfare of the city, extensive advertising, the instance of a good orchestra and the presentation of good pictures the theatre has become a live proposition. The theatre is giving two shows daily from Monday to Friday and four shows on Saturdays. Afternoon prices are 15 cents and 25 cents and evening prices 25 cents and 35 cents. On Saturdays the seats are reserved only for the first matinee and first evening performances.

Quebec Inaugurates New Tax Schedule; Adds Twenty Per Cent. to 5c Admissions

Without any official announcement the Cinema managers Association of Montreal and the Montreal Theatre Owners Association recently visited the box offices of Montreal theatres and took up all rolls of one cent tax tickets, leaving those of the two-cent tax variety. The exhibitors could do nothing but charge the two cent rate as designated on the tickets. Thus the assessment on five cent admission tickets became a twenty per cent charge and for ten cent admission tickets the tax has become a ten per cent charge.

The Quebec tax schedule now stands: Two cent tax for admission tickets from one cent to 34 cents; three cents for tickets from 35 cents to 74 cents; five cents from 75 cents to $1.45, and ten cents for tickets costing from $1.50 up.

The motion picture theatre managers were also warned that they must be more strict in admitting children under sixteen years of age. Montreal exhibitors now are insisting that children present a note from parents that their admission to theatres is sanctioned and approved.

The reading of these notes has wasted considerable time at the box office and also disappointed many children who have appeared without notes. However, it is interesting to note that apparently the parents generally approve of the presence of the children at the motion picture theatres because invariably the children return with notes.

Censors Arouse Ire

Of Exchangemen by Drastic Decisions

The Exchange managers of Winnipeg and the Censor Board are still maintaining an attitude toward each other. The Exchange managers point out that the Manitoba Censor Board is particularly unreasonable, as many films condemned by this board and passed on other provinces of Canada.

The case was cited of "Kick In." The Manitoba Censor Board condemned this feature until an item was carried in the Ladies Home Journal recommending it. Then the Manitoba board rescinded its previous decision. The local censor board is frequently referred to as the "slaughter house," because of the manner in which many releases are cut to pieces, making them of no marketable use.

Moving picture men declare that the Manitoba Censor Board has no mind of its own because features are frequently condemned and then later approved, such as was the case with "Queen G" and the serial "Vengeance and the Woman." Unless a change of censorship conditions is affected in the very near future exchange officials of Winnipeg state that it is their intention to close the exchange branches. Word to this effect has been presented to the authorities and to the local press.

In the case of comedies it seems that the Censor Board takes a particular objection to pie-throwing. There is nothing immoral or depraved in this form of comedy and it usually gets a good laugh. On the other hand, if a feature has passed a number of pictures which can be classified as saucy, it is stated by local film men. However, regardless of what is open there is a feeling among exhibitors that the board is over cautious, and every attempt is being made to get the censorship rules changed in the near future.

Soldiers Open Theatre

Another theatre in western Canada has opened under the management of returned soldiers. The first theatre to open was the Cedar Cottage theatre, Vancouver, B. C., and now The Veteran theatre, in Edmonton, the capital of Alberta.

The manager of the theatre is Sergeant F. H. Clarke and all male employees are returned warriors. The orchestra is composed of musicians from the Great War Veterans’ Association. Programs are changed twice weekly.

Manager Clarke is doing extensive advertising in the local newspapers and the theatre is enjoying a goodly share of patronage. The fact that the house is controlled by returned soldiers is being featured in all advertising.

Heathless Mondays Off

The broad smile appearing on all the exhibitors’ faces one happened to meet on Saturday, March 9, was the result of the Fuel Controller at Ottawa rescinding the law that all amusement, moving picture theatres must close on each and every Monday in order to save fuel. The theatres were only closed for three Mondays.

John Patrick Kiely is one of the survivors of the Florizel, which was wrecked on Cape Race during a storm a few days ago. Mr. Kiely is manager of the Nickel and Casino theatres, St. John, Newfoundland, and was on route to Montreal exchanges when he was ship-wrecked.

The new Allen Theatre, Toronto, under the management of Ben Cronk, is forging ahead. "Woman and Her Wife," taken from the book, "Jane Eyre," and featuring Alice Brady, lined the people up in the slush for nearly a block.
NOTE: Below is printed a blank form which exhibitors may use in keeping records upon which to base tax reports on admissions. It is essential that a daily record be kept in order that the Government may be able to obtain the information it requires in each case. This form has been sanctioned by officials of the Internal Revenue Department.

Evelyn Grecle Signs

Another World Contract

Evelyn Grecle, the young star who has attained considerable following among film fans since her first appearance in World-Pictures about a year ago, has been induced to renew her contract with the World Film Corporation.

“Miss Grecley’s tremendous rise in popularity has been due to her winsomeness, her beauty, her intelligence and the superior histrionic ability evidenced in all the productions in which she has appeared. A considerable number of contracts have been offered the company. ‘Starting originally as a ‘support in World-Pictures, the film fans all over the world actually forced her advancement to the position of star through their interest in her and their manifestation of this interest in hundreds of the letters written to Miss Grecley and to World-Pictures.

Just recently Miss Grecley appeared as a star with Carlyle Blackwell in “His Royal Highness,” one of the best liked pictures issued in months. Her next appearance on the World program will be in “The Leap to Fame,” with Carlyle Blackwell.

“Hearts or Diamonds?”

Russell’s First Film

Under Own Banner

The first picture to be made by the William RussellProduced at the American Film Company studios, Santa Barbara, Cal., will be “Hearts or Diamonds,” written from the William Hamilton Gibson story of “Adrian Gascoyne.”

Charlotte Burton will be Mr. Russell’s leading lady in this picture and Henry King, who has directed many of the American Film Company successes during the past year, will direct it. William Parker, who has recently been added to the Russell staff, will write the continuity.

Mr. Russell, in the role of a young clubman and diamond connoisseur is given many opportunities to display his athletic ability. Charlotte Burton makes her return to the screen after an absence of many months. Others in the cast will be Howard Duff, Carl Stockdale, John Gough and Robert Klein.

Pathe Closes Deal

To Exploit Serial

Throughout World

Through arrangements concluded by the Export & Trading Department of the Pathé organization, “The Hidden Hand,” serial starring Doris Kenyon, Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty and Mahlon Hamilton, will be shown throughout the world.

Contracts have been closed for the presentation of this picture throughout the Far East, China, Singapore, Strait Settlements, India, Philippines, East Indies, Japan, Austrialasia, Mexico, West Indies, Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay, Chile, Peru, Bolivia, and the other South American Republics, England and its colonies, France, Italy, Spain, the Scandinavian countries, Sweden, Denmark and Norway.

“The Hidden Hand” is a serial in fifteen episodes, written by Arthur B. Reeve, author of the “Craig Kennedy” stories, and Charles A. Logue. The cast is said to be an exceptional one. Pathe will also release the recently purchased machinations of the Mad Monk who was so largely responsible for the fall of the Czar.

House Organ for Those Theatremen

Booking “Eagle’s Eye”

As a part of the special campaign which he has been conducting on behalf of the exhibitor who has booked “The Eagle’s Eye,” a house organ to be devoted entirely to this twenty episode serial story will be written by William J. Shepard, retired Chief of the United States Secret Service, will make its appearance this week. The house organ is the culmination of the conference held by M. H. Hoffmann, head of the Foursquare Exchanges, which are distributing the picture, and the publicity department of the Whartons, who are producing it.

Early showings indicate that many exhibitors have seized upon the picture as a means of advertising their houses as being places where photodramas of unusual interest may be seen. In doing this, the exhibitors have used many unique ways of calling the attention of their patrons to the picture. Mr. Shepard’s expose of the activities of the Imperial German Government may be seen in their house.

The managers of the branches of the Foursquare Exchanges realize that other exhibitors who have booked the picture, but who have not yet shown the first episode, will soon see how their fellow exhibitors have had it. These have written Mr. Hoffman seeking a medium by which every exhibitor in the country can ascertain what other exhibitors are doing with “The Eagle’s Eye.”

The house organ followed as a matter of course. Staff correspondents of various trade journals and others connected with the motion picture industry have been secured as reporters and contributors to the new magazine. Each number will contain accounts of what exhibitors are doing in various parts of the country with “The Eagle’s Eye” and also suggestions which are the result of correspondence of The Whartons and the various branch managers of the Foursquare Exchanges.

“The Accusing Toe” is

Next Judge Brown Story

“The Accusing Toe,” a Judge Brown Story with a vein of boy humor, is the current publication in this General Film series. Players in other Judge Brown Stories make their reappearance. Dale Faith plays the part of the boy with the injured toe, Wharton Jones, the superstitious miller’s son, and Clayton plays the part of the boy’s mother.

The miller’s attempts to win the hand of Steve’s mother, despite the latter’s unvoiced objections, forms the basis of the story. The miller becomes aware that he is not wanted in the family circle. He decides then to carry on an unvoiced campaign to separate the two. He manages to leave the impression of his injured toe in every spot likely to be visited by the couple as a constant reminder of his objections. The accusing toe even haunts the mill, until the miller becomes desperate and baffled.

Following “The Accusing Toe” will come “Thief or Angel,” a heart interest story, in which Ruth Hampton is featured, together with a capable boy east.
Disastrous Fires

Cause Heavy Loss

Beaumont and Dallas, Texas,
And Philadelphia Scenes

Of Conflagrations

An exchange was razed and two theatres partially destroyed by fire recently which did property damage in excess of $30,000. The city of Beaumont, Texas, and Philadelphia, Pa., were scenes of the conflagrations. The Kyle Theatre, in the heart of the business district, was visited by an early morning blaze which seriously damaged the playhouse. Damage in excess of $80,000, it is estimated, was done to the building in which the theatre housed. It is a five-story structure and the fire is believed to have started in the roof, due to a short circuit in the elevator hall. The heaviest losses were the Elk's Club and the Neeches Club. The former's fixtures are valued at about $15,000 and the latter's at $20,000. The new second and third floors were damaged by water which was also the principal cause of loss sustained by the theatre.

A new and larger film house is promised to the city of Dallas by N. F. Wettimer, owner of the concern, which was destroyed by fire and an explosion recently. It will be built on the site of the former building, which stood at 1919 Main street. Ruins of the old building will be razed and the lot prepared for a fireproof structure, which will be erected as soon as the work can be begun.

A two-alarm fire which destroyed sixty-five automobiles and swept a motion picture theatre before it was extinguished, caused a loss estimated at $40,000 in Philadelphia. The blaze started in the garage, a two-story brick building, and the place was quickly filled. The blaze then spread to the Colonial Theatre, on the west side of the street, and to the home of William Ger. Gerson is the owner of the burned house. Beaumont and Dallas.

The theatre and the Gerson home were damaged by fire and water and Gerson and his family were forced to flee from the burning house in their night clothes.

atjetjohn Author

Of State Rights Film

"Carmen of the Klondike," the Selex production which has just been offered to the public in place of the initial feature, State-of-Rights Distributors, is from the pen of Monte M. Katterjohn. "Carmen of the Klondike" is a story of the gold rush years, similar to that of "Flame of the Yukon," but the plot entirely different and Mr. Katterjohn asserts it is much stronger than any skaskan picture which he has yet written.

The cast and direction of the feature are excellent, it is said, and the completed picture, which is in several tenses, is replete with suspense and action.

Exhibitor's Briefs

Middleburg, Pa.—F. F. Sechrist, proprietor and owner of the Palace Theatre, will soon begin work on a 30x40 foot extension to his playhouse.

Manchester, N. H.—Members of the Mother's Club of the First Congregational church here are making a study of the present seating capacity of the motion picture theatres. Cards provided by the pastor will be used for the making of reports.

Springfield, Mass.—Edward P. McCarthy of the New Nickel motion picture house, has plans under way to enlarge the theatre so as to include a gallery and good-sized lobby. The present seating capacity of the house is about 625 and the proposed addition to the building would make the capacity about 1,200.

Chillicothe, Mo.—The Empire theatre here reopens March 1 under the management of Sears & Jones, managers of the DeGraw opera house at Brookfield, Mo.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Old Fidelity Market House, 1234-1236 South street, which was bought by Abraham & Wright of Camden, N. J., will be demolished to make way for the erection of a large motion picture theatre, it has been announced.

Palisade, Neb.—The Clarkson building here is undergoing alterations which will convert it into a motion picture theatre to be operated by Krehmeyer & Wright. It will have a seating capacity of about 300.

Muskegon, Mich.—Carl Ray, some years ago owner of the four motion picture theatres here, is under arrest in Los Angeles, Calif., on a charge of bigamy.

Birmingham, Ala.—Marvin Wize, owner of the Osceola One Theatre here, has purchased the Alcazar Theatre from the Alcazar Amusement Company at a price said to be $12,000. No change in policy is announced by the new management.

Clinton, Okla.—The Lyric Theatre management will erect a new theatre.

Miami, Okla.—Dr. W. L. McWilliams will remodel his theatre building here.

Greenville, S. C.—The Rialto Amusement Company, organized to build and operate a theatre at the corner of Main and Coffee streets here, has been commissioned by the secretary of state with a capital stock of $10,000.

New Castle, Del.—John L. Tobin has received completed plans of a theatre which he will erect in Delaware street here. It will seat 500, be built with tappery brick front, stone trimmings and will be modern throughout.

St. Cloud, Minn.—Owners of the Miner and Princess Theatres here closed their playhouses in the afternoon recently in honor of the drafted men who left for Camp Dodge to take up army life.

Newton, Ia.—J. C. Starnes has purchased the Lyric motion picture theatre here.

Clarinda, Ia.—John Waller has purchased the Swan Theatre here and has taken possession.

Hawkeye, Ia.—Sorg & Burkhart have reopened the Cozy Theatre here.

Elliott, Ia.—Garey Smith has opened his new theatre in this city.

Storm Lake, Ia.—The Linn Grove Improvement Company has purchased the Empress Theatre here.

Manchester, Ia.—Wayne Dutton, W. W. Mathews and Robert Cooley have purchased the Plaza Theatre from Thorps Brothers.

Clay Center, Neb.—R. N. Rife has purchased the Dixie Theatre here and will take over the management immediately.

Fairbanks Performs

Daring Acrobatics for Screen Telegram

Douglas Fairbanks participated in an unusual celebration of the presentation of Mutual's initial Screen Telegram at Grauman's new million dollar theatre, Los Angeles.

The stunt was arranged by D. J. and Sid Grauman to help put over the first Screen Telegram. Jack Callicott, Joe Merrick and the Graumans participated in the event.

Mr. Fairbanks climbed one side of the entrance, walked across the projecting work above on his hands, and slid down a rain chute on the other side.

H. H. Brownell, Screen Telegram cameraman, filmed the stunt and "shot" the crowd which gathered to watch the remarkable performance.

First National to Issue Novel Press Book on Chaplin

Special press material and exhibitors' aids are being prepared by the publicity and advertising department of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit for the exploitation of the first of the new series of Charlie Chaplin comedies, which will probably be ready soon after Easter.

In making a compilation of facts regarding Chaplin's career for use in putting over his forthcoming production, it has been discovered that the $1,000,000 slapstick genius ranks third among those personalities that have received mention in the public press during the past two years. The Kaiser and President Wilson both lead him in actual amount of space, according to the estimation of the manager of a well known clipping bureau, but the film star's face is undoubtedly known to more people in various parts of the globe.

It is also a noteworthy fact that Charlie Chaplin has secured attention from many of the most intellectual critics both here and abroad. Some time ago the New Republic published an article written by the late Harvey J. O'Higgins on Chaplin's screen work. Mrs. Fiske also contributed an article to the Century Magazine on the little comedian. Gilbert K. Chesterton has written about him in the New Statesman of London; McClure's Magazine ran the story of his life not long ago, and Vachel Lindsay, the poet and play commentator, has devoted considerable attention to Chaplin in his books and special articles on the screen.

Selections from this material will be utilized in the new press book on "A Dog's Life," it is said, just to convince a few remaining skeptics that Charlie Chaplin is a real celebrity in addition to being the world's most successful buffoon.

National Board O. K.'s Sterling Production "The Hypocrites"

George Loane Tucker's production, "The Hypocrites," which is to be published by the Sterling Film Corporation under the "Sterling system" on or about April 1, was shown to the National Board at a private review last Thursday and the following report was made by that body:

Entertainment, excellent; Education, excellent; Photography—excellent. Coherence of narrative—clear. Acting—good. Technical detail—excellent. Atmosphere quality—excellent. Moral effect—good. Intelligent, artistic direction, good acting and a splendid story, it is said, are combined in "The Hypocrites," which was written by Sir Henry Arthur Jones and was originally produced by Charles Frohman at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, where its success was without doubt for the first part of the year. It ran there a whole season.

Its remarkable story, its sincerity and faultless quality to life are the outstanding features of the production which should make it a popular screen offering, it is said. George Loane Tucker adapted the scenario from the play and produced it under his personal direction.

Miss Elizabeth Risdon, now featured in the current Broadway drama, "Seven Days Leave," playing at the Park Theatre, is the featured member of "The Hypocrites." She is surrounded by a typical Tucker cast.

Kate M. Lacey Named Ohio Representative Of Wholesome Films

General Manager M. J. Weisfeldt, of the Wholesale Films Corporation, returned to Chicago this week from a tour of eastern cities. En route to Marion, Ohio, where the Wholesale production, "Little Red Riding Hood," played to record crowds at the Marion Theatre, he booked all of the Wholesale pictures as a result of the success attending the initial showing of that program, Mr. Weisfeldt.

Little Mary Burton, the star in "Little Red Riding Hood," was a guest of the theatre, on Washington's Birthday, appearing personally before the performance.

Mr. Weisfeldt announces the appointment of Miss Kate M. Lacey, of Columbus, Ohio, as the representative for Wholesale in that territory.

West Point, Neb.—Harry Plattner has purchased the Ideal Theatre here.
Chicago Censors
Pass "Loaded Dice"
With New Subtitles

After nearly three weeks of effort Ralph Proctor, manager of the Chicago Pathé exchange, and his assistant, W. W. Anderson, have been successful in getting "Loaded Dice," the drama starring Frank Kennan, through the censor board. The picture was given a white permit.

It was necessary, however, before the permit was granted, to send the print back to the home offices in New York where an almost complete revision of subtitles was made. Mr. Anderson then succeeded in having the picture viewed by the entire body of censors.

The revised production was passed by the Pennsylvania state board without dissenting vote and without a cut. This information was given to Major Funkhouser's board which passed the picture with three small cuts. According to Mr. Anderson, these are so infinitesimal that in running the film they are hardly noticeable.

Central Film Co., Shows
"Fall of the Romanoffs"

The Central Film Company gave a trade showing of the Herbert Brenon production, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," at the Bluebird projection room on Tuesday of last week. The Central Film Co. will have charge of distribution of the picture in Illinois for the First National Exhibitors Circuit. The affair was well attended by exhibitors and representatives of the trade press.

Receiver for Hamburg

The E. A. Hamburg Company, 79 West Monroe street, Chicago, manufacturers of posters, lobby displays, frames, etc., went into the hands of a receiver last week. The affairs of the company are now in charge of Howard Hews, receiver.

PERSONALS

William Jenner, who has had charge of the Kleinex destinations in Chicago for three or four years is now head of the new Fox exchange. When that human dynamo gets accustomed to his new surroundings just watch the business improve.

F. B. Warren, vice-president and chief publicity of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, was a Chicago visitor last week looking over the Goldwyn exchange and other points of interest in the "windy" city.

"The EXHIBITORS HERALD is a paper with a punch on every page."—Frank Vanzon, manager of the Temple Theatre, Elgin, Ill.

Wm. Jenner Resigns
Geo. Kleine Post to Head Fox Exchange

William Jenner, for four years manager of the Chicago office of George Kleine's distributing organization, has resigned his position to take charge of the local exchange of the Fox Film Corporation.

Before his entry into the exchange field, Mr. Jenner operated several of Chicago's larger motion picture theatres. This experience has given him a keen insight into the problems faced by exhibitors.

WILLIAM JENNER
Mr. Fox Chicago Exchange

Mr. Jenner in his new position will continue his "open door" policy, it is said, which he has worked to success during the time he was in charge of the Kleinex office.

Upon his leaving, Mr. Jenner's associates presented him with a fountain pen and assured him of their best wishes in his new circle of activities.

DELL HENDERSON SIGNS WITH WORLD PICTURES

Will Direct Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley in His 200th Production

Dell Henderson, the director, has just signed a contract with World Pictures and has been assigned to the direction of Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley. Mr. Henderson has now commenced work in the World studio on a forth-coming production. It is said to be a strikingly interesting story in which these two stars will be seen to splendid advantage.

The picture on which Mr. Henderson has commenced work will be the 200th production that he has directed and he declares that he is going to celebrate the occasion by making the picture the biggest and best thing he has ever done.

Mr. Henderson was connected with the Biograph in the old days and took the first Biograph company to California. For Biograph he directed Mary Pickford, the Gish sisters and other famous stars. After being five years with Biograph he went to Triangle, then to Famous Players, then to Frohman's Empire Company. Among the other stars, in addition to those named above, who have been directed by Mr. Henderson, are the following: John Barrymore, Irene Fennwick, Marguerite Courtot, Raymond Hitchcock, Weber and Fields, Willie Collier, Edna Goodrich, Ann Murdock, Julia Marlowe, Henry Walthall, etc. His particular forte is society drama.

Exhibitors Manifest Interest in "Shame" General Production

Announcement by General Film last week that it had undertaken national distribution of the John Noble production, "Shame," for the Duplex Films, Inc., has been followed by a display of interest on the part of exhibitors and producers.

One of the important assets of the production, General states, aside from the fact that it presents two popular and capable stars, Zenna Keefe and Niles Welch, is the sympathetic nature of the story. Inquiries have been received from Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Denver, Dallas, Detroit, San Francisco and St. Louis.

The argument which "Shame" presents for greater tolerance toward unfortunate children, General Film emphasizes, is handled in a discreet and dignified manner, although with great dramatic force. As the cold war time social conditions are also brought in by means of a prologue, without, however, touching upon any battle atmosphere.

Unique Theme for Walthall's Second Paralta Feature

Can a small town man whose mind, whose personality, whose education have been confined until the age of thirty to the advantages, or rather disadvantages, of a little backwoods community, keep up with the rush of humanity and reach the goal of success that he is suddenly thrown into in the swirl and rush of the great city?

This problem comprises the theme of the second Paralta Walthall play, "Humdrum Brown," which is soon to be produced in Chicago, has been written, according to Paralta, by Edward H. Boyce, and distributed through the W. H. Hodkinson Corporation. "Humdrum Brown" is a production of a type which stands out as being entirely different from the kind in which Mr. Walthall has previously appeared. While it is at once drama, there are none of the over-melodramatic scenes which are so prominent in a feature starring emotional stars so unconvinvying.

The story in this play, while filled with suspense, is relieved at frequent intervals by touches of comedy, and Mr. Walthall's delineation in the part of "Humdrum Brown," a struggling ambitious youth whose fight to satisfy his ambitions which are so cramped, will be a revelation to those who have followed his career.

Gertrude Atherton's "Patience Sparhawk" Petrova's Next Film

Purchase of the screen rights of Gertrude Atherton's novel, "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times" is announced by the Petrova Picture Company. It will furnish the next vehicle of eight which Mme Olga Petrova, with her own organization, is producing for the First National Exhibitors Circuit. Work on the picture will be begun as soon as "The Great Star" now being produced is finished.

Thus far the Petrova productions have each had a different director, but in the case of "Patience Sparhawk" this plan will be deviated from. Ralph Ince, at present directing "The Great Star," has been re-engaged to direct the Polish artist's next vehicle, according to an announcement from Frederic L. Collins, president of the Petrova Picture Company.

To Mary Murillo, who has been responsible for many screen successes during the past year, has been given the responsibility of putting the Atherton novel into cinematic form. It will be remodeled somewhat, it is said, to fit the distinctive personality of the star. Mme. Petrova expressed herself as well pleased regarding the purchase of "Patience Sparhawk" and believes that it offers splendid opportunities for the display of emotional talent.

"De Luxe Annie" for Norma Talmadge's Next

One of the big prizes of the present dramatic season has been secured by Norma Talmadge for one of her forthcoming Select productions. This is "De Luxe Annie," the successful drama which was written, by Arthur Hammerstein, early in the present dramatic season at the Booth Theatre in New York City.

"De Luxe Annie" was written by Scammon Lockwood, and first appeared as a two-part serial in the Saturday Evening Post. This story was assigned to Edward Clarke, and when it appeared upon the stage it was hailed by practically all of the dramatic critics as a distinct novelty.

He was confronted by the elevator man with the question: "Who are you?" "I. R. Parnass," replied the intruder. The man was sure enough, boys, 'twas he. Back with Goldwyn in Chicago and darn glad of it to hear him tell it.

George Wilson and W. E. Haines, who have been threatened with writer's cramp filling out contracts for the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, have been rescued from their dilemma by the closing of the City branch. The good right hands of Wilson and Haines are now safe but we think there will be enough for all three of the boys to keep them busy.

While all the casualties are not yet in from that Paramount cleanup, among those named to number eighteen, who went through the swinging gate for the last time on Saturday, were A. G. Spencer, Dryer, Snell and Smith.

Smith and Snell sit right side up with cards in the office of one RalphBradford and were busy the first of this week extolling the virtues of Triangle productions to as many exhibitors as could be found in their places of business.

And then to make the situation more complex we haven't been able to find yet who Spencer hooked up with. But while looking into this we found out that Bromley and Mitchell had resigned from the Triangle forces.

If this doesn't clear up the situation sufficiently we have this further report to make: Max Cutler has resigned from the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation.

Now that we know the whereabouts of all the salesmen who are changing their locations we can get back to the straight-away again. Rex Lawhead of the Foursquare forces, assigned to the Hoosier state, landed eight contracts for the Eagle's company in the five-way last week. Losing your pep, Rex? What is the matter with the other two houses?

It is refreshing to find, however, among the general confusion one salesman who is either sure of his job or knows where he can get another one he wants it. We refer to Van Gelder of Pathe who has signed a life contract with "the best little girl in the world." Well, here's luck to the newly-weds May old H. C. of L. never down them.

Walter Altdorf of the Foursquare exchange took out his little old Maxwell last week and from telegraph reports if he can ever get the bloomin' vehicle back to home pastures he's got a tonneau full of contracts.

So as not to leave our readers up in the air on the question of salesmen we will report that F. O. Nielsen is selling Triangles in Wisconsin and A. L. Normal has joined the Chicago staff for the same company.

F. H. McMillan of Foursquare, reports that many exhibitors have signified their intention of observing Irish Yom Kippur on March 17.

THREE PRODUCERS AVAL SELVES OF UNIVERSAL'S STUDIO OFFER

That Universal's invitation to all producers to close down their studios, move into the Universal City plant and start production on their present overtures, has struck a responsive chord, is evident from the statement issued by Carl Laemmle to the effect that three producers have already accepted this invitation.

The Astra company, the George Beban company and one unnamed organization, are the producers mentioned in the universal announcement. Astra has already started one company at work in the Universal City studio and plans to have three units working by the end of the month, it is said. The Beban and the unnamed organization will also be operating within the next thirty days.

It is also stated that negotiations are now pending which will, if closed, result in the closing of other large producing plants on the West Coast. The names of the companies affected by the deal will, in all likelihood be made public within the next few weeks.

Letters that have been received by Mr. Laemmle from the producers and exhibitors during the last week have congratulated Universal upon its initiative in proposing the one practical solution to the producing over-head problem. As far as the exhibitors are concerned, it is evident they are evincing a keen interest in the manner in which Universal's general plan for Universal's invitation has been set up.

In a letter which that organization has addressed to the various manufacturers, it is pointed out the fact that utilizing the Universal City resources is the first step towards cutting the cost of producing pictures. Producers are urged to put aside all pride of studio ownership and to look at the Universal offer from the cold blooded, business standpoint of saving the dollars that are now wasted in heavy individual overheads. The producers generally greet Universal's invitation. "We are urging other producers to follow the examples set by Astra, George Beban and the third company and to forget their pride in studio ownership. "A studio ownership means lessened profits. Even if the producer cannot sell such a studio to some one else for other purposes, the studio work, if by paying them to close it tighter than a drum, pay the rent, or taxes and insurance, and bring into Universal City. The saving our plant will enable him to effect will be more than off-set whatever expense he may entail as the result of closing up his own studio."

Russell Inquires
Into Public's Wants
As to Film Shows

William Russell, who has begun work on "Hearts or Diamonds," the first of his pictures for William Russell Productions, spent much of his time during his recent engagement in conference with exhibitors and salesmen in an effort to determine more exactly the most successful type of motion picture.

During his stay in Chicago the star director attended a number of exhibition problems with the sales department of the Mutual Film Corporation through which concern his new pictures will be distributed, and in New York he held several conferences with M. J. Sullivan, Mutual's New York branch manager, and the New York sales force. He took the opportunity of these visits to meet as many exhibitors as possible, discussing with them the type of pictures in public demand and gathering suggestions for improving his own work.

Mr. Russell takes a personal part in the selection of his stories, has his say in direction and spends hours editing the film before it is permitted to leave the studio. He believes in giving the public what it wants. The same thoroughness and sincerity which has marked his work before the camera, was apparent in his investigation of the conditions of the market. He went to the exhibitor and the film salesman to find them.

Among the things he found was that pictures of the calibre and type of his last few features, "Snap Judgment," "New York Luck," "In Bad" and "The Midnight Trail," are big demand, that they are the sort of pictures which most delighted the public and brought the biggest returns at the box office.

"Heart or Diamonds," which comes from William Hamilton Osborne's novel, "Adrienne Gascoyne," will be a red-blooded play of the Russell type. It is now in the course of production under the direction of Henry King.

Mastercraft Corp.
Produce "One Woman"

"The One Woman" will be the first picture to be offered to the public by the new Mastercraft Photoplay Corporation. It is now in the course of production at the Paraleta studios in Los Angeles, California.

The scenario, which was prepared from Thomas Dixon's book by Harry Chandler, was the third on "The One Woman" to be submitted to Mr. Dixon for his approval. Mastercraft is planning to film practically every novel which Mr. Dixon has written, that contains dramatic possibilities for the screen. It will also, in the course of time, make feature productions from the best works of other famous authors. It is understood to subordinate the stars and place the emphasis of production upon the story.

Two N. Y. Houses Show "Carmen of Klondike"

"Carmen of Klondike" is a Selex art production featuring Clara Williams and all of the scenes are laid in the Klondike mines and mining settlements far away from civilization. She deals with the prospectors who went to this desolate country during the gold rush days and defied the barriers of snow and ice to write the treachery of gold hidden beneath the frozen earth.

The picture is being exploited by the State-Rights Distributors, Inc., and is being distributed in New York by th Pioneer Film Corporation.

Mr. Farnum's most recent film was directed by Richard Stanton in the Fox studios and at Port Henry, N. Y., in the Adirondacks. The story is of the East and West and is interpreted by a large supporting company. Mr. Farnum appears in the role of a man who seeks the solace of the snowy trail to escape thought of the woman he left behind.

During his stay in New York the star has made three photoplays, "The Heart of a Lion," "Les Miserables" and "Rough and Ready."

Third Petrova Film

"The Life Mask" is Ready for Premiere

The final stages of cutting, assembling and laboratory work have now been reached, and the production of Madame Petrova's third special feature, "The Life Mask," and the famous Polish star has placed her personal O. K. upon the film. The picture will receive its New York premiere at either the Rialto or the Rivoli, following which it will be presented in the various first run houses throughout the country.

Madame Petrova's is the leading character of a mystery story in "The Life Mask," her third starring vehicle made under the auspices of her own producing organization. As Anita Courtland, unwilling wife of Woodruffe Clay, waster and society man, the Polish star contributes one of the best pieces of screen artistry of her long career, it is said.

The picture has been scenarized by Mrs. J. R. Quirk, producer of the Photoplay Magazine, and has been written by the anonymous author of the celebrated novel, "To M. L. G.", which created a literary sensation some years ago. As is customary with all the pictures in which Petrova appears, a special cast was engaged to support her in "The Life Mask." Thomas Holding appears in the leading male role; Wyndham Standing interprets the character of Woodruffe Clay; Christine Mayo has a characteristic "vampire" role and the balance of the cast consists of Lucille La Verne, Matilda Brundage, E. J. Burns, Edith Hincle and Jean Burnelle.

"The Life Mask" is six reels in length, and will be distributed through the various branches of the First National Exhibitors Circuit during the early part of March. Frank Crane, who pictured the Goldwyn success, "This," starring Mary Garden, has directed the latest vehicle. The laboratory work has been accomplished under the personal supervision of Walter R. Roper, of the photoprocess plant in Chicago, and many novel effects are promised in the way of tinting and toning.

World-Pictures to Film

A Leroy Scott Novel

World-Pictures has secured from Leroy Scott, the novelist, the screen rights to one of his best "walking" novels, it is announced, and the work of producing will begin shortly.

Mr. Scott is one of the group of noted literary artists whose work has been published by the leading periodicals. For a number of years he has lived in New York City and devoted his entire time to writing. Among his novels are "The Walking Delegates," "To Him That Hath," "The Shears of Destiny," "The Counsel for the Defense," and others. Publishing his own work exclusively, in writing Mr. Scott was assistant editor of the Woman's Home Companion and was also in newspaper work.

Chaplin Finishes

Film "A Dog's Life"

The director of publicity at the Chaplin studios, Hollywood, Cal., announces that the finishing touches are being added to the comedian's first picture for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

This will be called "A Dog's Life," and close to eight weeks have been consumed in the films. It is longer than two reels, it is announced, and is the star's own creation.

It is said to be a swift-moving, rapid-fire comedy with touches of pathos blended with a wholesome and human story. Throughout the production Chaplin appears in his famous characterization. Edna Purviance appears opposite the comedian and serves as an excellent foil as in the past.

Magazine Secures

Rights to Serial

Through an arrangement completed between the Whartons, the producers of "The Eagle's Eye," and J. R. Quirk, publisher of the Photoplay Magazine, the magazine has secured the publication rights to the serialization of the twenty-episode serial "Riley's of the Rockies," written by Cooper.

The first four episodes will appear in May. The next month, Photoplay, on sale April 1, and four chapters of the serial will appear in each issue thereafter for five months.

Arrangements have also been made for the publication of the story in serial form in the daily newspapers throughout the country.

Raise Admission Prices

To Harrisburg Theatres

Harrisburg, Pa.—Managers of motion picture theatres in the city have announced an increase in admission prices to seventeen cents. The admission for adults had been fifteen cents. This latter price was adopted when the war tax on theatres went into effect.

At a meeting of the managers it was decided that soaring costs to secure adequate release and high operating expenses, made the second increase in admission necessary. The increase of salaries and production at the studios has thrown a heavy demand on the managers, the cost said, and the control of keeping their theatres in operation, they think, warranted their increase in the admission price.

Kansas City Exchangeman

Compiles Novel Record

Publicity and advertising co-operation of a sort calculated to be of considerable value have been devised by Richard Robertson, Goldwyn Pictures' branch manager at Kansas City. He has issued from his exchange a four-page prepared release for the pictures covering the selling virtues of all the Goldwyn Pictures since the first feature, "Polly of the Circus" starring Maile Marsh, up to and including the new Madge Kennedy picture, "The Danger Game," to be issued April 7, following Mary Garden's second Goldwyn production, the "Vendetta." In his release sheet Mr. Robertson has summarized the salient box-office features of each production. The title, the star, the tickets and the number of reels in each is specified. As a whole the pamphlet makes a handbook for exhibitors which should prove of much use.

Franchise Holders

Of First National

Look over Market

During the past week A. H. Blank of Des Moines, Ia., and N. H. Gordon of Boston, two franchise holders in the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, spent several days in New York looking over the film market and giving special attention to "Tarzan of the Apes," to prepare for the exploitation of the feature in their own territories.

Robert Lieber, of Indianapolis, was also represented by his brother Herman Lieber, and S. Barret McCormick, managing director of the Circle Theatre.

Mr. Blank reports the resumption of big business throughout the middle west after a winter that has already passed into history as the most temperamental on record. During the seven years that he has been in the business A. H. Blank has built up an enviable reputation as a developer of prosperous territory and it is safe to say that there is no man controlling film distribution in any section of the country who has a better knowledge of his territory or more keen judgment in solving his particular problems.

In the state of Iowa alone, Mr. Blank owns and operates four theatres: the Garden in Des Moines, the Strand in Marshalltown and the Family, Garden and Casino of Davenport. He is also running a new theatre in Des Moines, seating upwards of 3,000 people, to be known as the Rialto. This theatre will be opened about May 15 and is said to be the best feature to date of the motion picture art. The Strand of Omaha is another valuable property that has known great prosperity under Mr. Blank's administration.

Encouraging news was also brought from Boston by N. H. Gordon, who says that the picture-going public is beginning to react normally again after the rapid spell of demand that has gripped the states. Gordon has already placed orders for special sets to be used in showing the big production to best advantage at the Circle.

American Camera Men

Film Beauty Spots

The camera men of the American Film Company's studios at Santa Barbara, Cal., have prepared a notable film consisting of beauty spots of Santa Barbara, which will be shown at the prominent picture theatres of California this spring.
Essanay's famous dramas of the hills and plains, featuring the popular film hero, Broncho Billy, already have proved the great demand for these western thrillers. If you have not already arranged your booking dates, you still have a chance. New process photography, 1000%, better.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Taking up and answering one by one the Moving Picture World’s objections to cooperative plans and its doubt as to the organization and personnel of United Pictures Theatres of America, Inc.

QUESTION. Is the United Picture Theatres of America working unselfishly for the exhibitors’ interest?

ANSWER. It is, because it is a mutual cooperative organization, legally under the control of its exhibitor membership, designed to reduce film rentals to its members from 30 to 50 per cent. and improve quality.

Q. Will United Picture Theatres engage in the making and marketing of film?

A. It will not. The plan is to buy film, not to manufacture or peddle it.

Q. Is our plan a reversion from open bookings to programme?

A. Emphatically no! We shall book by the “star series” system and such acceptable productions as the market affords.

Q. How do we expect to get the exhibitors to stick?

A. By making every member an actual benefiting partner. Twenty-two thousand druggists stick together. Why not a few thousand exhibitors?

Q. How can we please both producers and exhibitors?

A. The producers, by giving them cash and a guaranteed profit besides, for their negatives. The exhibitors, by giving them pictures that their membership prefers and by eliminating film waste of all kinds.

Rise of the Percentage Plan

The percentage plan is daily coming into more general use and it is carrying with it a solution of many vexing difficulties of the rental situation.

The scheme of the renter and the exhibitor cooperating in a speculation on the drawing ability of a picture is a thoroughly economic plan and one which has many advantages for all concerned.

Under the old plan and the one which necessarily is in more general use the exhibitor, in most cases, does not receive the protection in event that the picture does not draw well, and on the other hand if it is a good success it may be that a large part of the income is absorbed by the high rental.

The situation with the distributor is very similar. If he books a picture at a flat rental his opportunities of profit stop there and if the picture happens to be a big success he does not participate in any additional income. If, through local conditions, the renter is compelled to book the picture at a low price the transaction is unprofitable at the start and there is no possible hope of gain even though the picture be a big success.

Until recently the percentage arrangement was confined almost exclusively to a few big special features and it seemed presumed by almost all concerned that such an arrangement could not be advantageously employed on ordinary feature productions on the open market.

The percentage arrangement means a great deal to those distributors who have a picture that has convinced them of its great drawing power and which involves an investment that precludes the renting of it at low prices. The history of many of these pictures—that do not happen to have a popular star or some other concrete selling argument—is that the distributor goes ahead renting the picture regularly at a figure which means a certain loss.

With a division of the income beyond a certain figure, the exhibitor is protected and the distributor, if his picture is a success is placed in a position in which he will be able to make a profit. Again, under such an arrangement the exhibitor is not obligated to pay a large fixed rental when there is no certain indication in advance that he is going to be able to get it back.

This plan is a reversion to the practice which has been tried over a period of years in the theatrical business and found to be satisfactory to all concerned. And there are now many indications that its more general adoption in the film trade will work out profitably to distributor and exhibitor alike.

The show business in all its various ramifications contains many elements of a speculation and it is only correct that while all parties concerned are compelled by the nature of the business to participate in the speculation that all these same parties should be placed in a position that their gain will be commensurate with the interests at stake if the gamble is successful.

There is one fact that has long been recognized as an essential element in the economic success of the motion picture business: It is that the really successful pictures return big profits to the owners because the very nature of the business provides that certain pictures are destined to be failures and financial losses.

Under the percentage arrangement the exhibitor’s fixed charges are amply provided for and in event of the picture being a success his profits are even larger than under the straight purchase plan and if it is a failure he is protected.

As to the distributor, if the picture is a failure he shoulder the burden of the loss, but if it is successful he shares the profit with the exhibitor.

Daylight Saving

The Daylight Saving measure is no longer a theory in the distance; it is a fact at hand and exhibitors should now concern themselves calmly with the stern realization that they must face it for better or for worse.

In our opinion the proposition has not merited the strong opposition which has been directed against it by various elements in the trade. While in a few instances at the start it may cause the tardy appearance of patrons at the theatres in the evening we are inclined to believe that because of the uniformed operation of the measure the public will adapt itself to it speedily and that it will make little or no difference in living routine.

At any rate it is a step that comes under the classification of "Win the War" measures and there is now but one proper attitude toward it: Fullest cooperation and sanction with a view of seeing that it achieves the objective set for it by the government.

Casual Comment

The bromide about "they can't come back" was knocked into a cocked hat last week by that cinema wizard David Wark Griffith with his "Hearts of the World." Unbiased critics declare it to be "greater than 'The Birth of a Nation.'"

The exhibitors of New York state are alive to the fact that they must secure the passage of a bill to permit Sunday motion pictures, now or never. It means concerted action, energetic and unceasing and they have mapped out a plan of "personal appeal" which should bear fruit. They have the united support of the press. What they need now is legislation that will forever wipe out the old blue laws that were enacted long before motion picture entertainments were ever thought of.

Now comes the state appellate court with another clean-cut ruling on the powers of the Chicago censor. With such men as William Fox and W. W. Irwin willing to fight an issue through to the finish it is only a matter of time before Major M. L. C. Funkhouser will have his duties clearly defined.

The Virginia censorship law, one of the most drastic yet drawn up by the so-called reform element, through the fortunes of war, will lie in state for two years. Thanks to a lengthy debate on prohibition legislation, the state legislature was unable to consider the bill. It is to be hoped that the film industry will make good use of the time given them in which to enlighten the people of Virginia as to the asininity of the proposed bill.

M. J. Quigley.

No Revision of Theatre War Tax Is Forthcoming

Hope for Relief Now Based on Concerted Industries Protest

While hope has not been abandoned, the chances of an early revision of the tax as applied to admissions to motion picture theatres is very remote. This is the gist of a statement made by A. Ochs, president of Motion Picture Exhibitors League while in Chicago last week.

Mr. Ochs also revealed the fact that B. Varner is no longer on the payroll of the allied exhibitors convention and has not been for more than a month. Was found, it is said, that immediate action could not be obtained and that paying a representative in Washington is an almost needless expense.

The hope of the allied exhibitors' committee is now dependent on a large number of industries prostrating. If the volume is sufficient, it is said, Congress will probably find it necessary to reopen the revenue bill, nothing definite, however, as to when this may occur, can be obtained.

Considerable surprise was occasioned among Chicago exhibitors who were of the impression that relief from Congress would be obtained in the near future. A number of Congressmen were noted as being convinced that the present tax was too great a burden and this led to the hope that the revision would be made.

Mr. Ochs was particularly emphatic declaring that Mr. Varner's release of the allied exhibitors should not in any way be construed to reflect upon the ability of the man whom they had chosen to represent them in Washington. He had worked indefatigably, it was said, to obtain the relief sought by exhibitors and was worthy of the support of his colleagues.

The situation, however, is being closely watched and whenever any indication is given by the Capitol that the revenue bill is to be reopened for the purpose of listening to protests, representatives of the motion picture theatre owners will be on the job, Mr. Ochs assured the auditors.

Daylight Saving Bill Passed By Congress and the Senate

Will Be In Effect for Period of Six Months—Sunday, March 31, Named for Bill to Become Law

The Daylight Saving Bill under the provisions of which all clocks in the United States will be set ahead one hour for a period covering six months, has passed both the House and the Senate and will go into effect at 2 a.m. Sunday, March 31. The new time will prevail until 2 a.m. Sunday, October 27, when chronometers will be set back one hour, thus restoring the present or astronomical time.

As a result of the change Americans will rise and go about their occupations an hour earlier than has been their custom. They will finish their work an hour earlier and have an additional hour of daylight for recreation.

While a number of men and organizations prominent in the motion picture industry opposed the measure during its discussion before both branches of the government, now that the bill is about to become a law it is believed that the industry may not be the great sufferer that it was at first thought it would be.

Attendance Not Affected

When it is realized, those who favored the measure point out, that the readjustment will take place all over the country at the same time; that while it is true that industries will close an hour earlier at night, it is also true that the retiring hour will also come earlier and that the attendance at motion picture theatres should not fall off to any appreciable extent.

Along the same line of argument these men point out that the dinner hour will also be pushed forward a similar period of time and that persons who have sought entertainment at the picture theatres at 7 o'clock in the evening will automatically seek this form of recreation an hour earlier.

These men also wish to discourage a movement among exhibitors, which has gained some strength, to start their night performances an hour later. They are strongly set against an action of this kind. It would, they say, in effect cut down the average motion picture theatre to one show a night. This, it is declared, would be almost fatal.

Later Show Decided

The chief talking point of these exhibitors has been that the public will not attend the theatre when the opening hour is set for broad daylight. In, in refutation of this it is argued that in the summer months it is practically daylight at 7 o'clock in the evening as much so, almost at it is at 6 o'clock.

Then too it is argued that for years the time piece has been the governing factor in the lives of the public. In other words they are slaves of the watch. The fact is that it is daylight and the sun has not yet sunk below the horizon, if the clock or watch points to the hour of 7 o'clock, those who have been accustomed to attending the motion picture theatre, will obey its dictates.

Advocates of the plan, which has been adopted by twelve other countries, also say that lighting bills will be reduced millions of tons of coal will be saved. Exhibitors can not fail to benefit by this phase of the question, it is pointed out.

Liberty Theatres Get Latest Films At Special Rates

War Motion Picture Committee Arranges With Federal Commission and Exchanges

At a conference between Malcolm L. McBride, of the Federal Commission on Training Camp Activities, and P. A. Powers, chairman of the War Camp Motion Picture Committee, held in New York on Wednesday, March 13, it was decided that a part of the time of the Liberty Theatres in the training camps should be set aside for motion picture entertainments at which the latest films should be shown.

It is not intended that these entertainments shall conflict in any way with the exhibitions of the same pictures in the communities outside the camps, as they will not be exhibited in the Liberty Theatres until after the first runs in the neighboring towns. Special rates are to be made for these camp shows. It is expected that the plan will be in operation within a week.

The plan is this: The managers of the Liberty Theatres will be placed in possession of the lists of pictures selected by the National Board of Review from the productions of the different companies, together with the addresses of the co-operating exchanges and the names of those in charge, and the special rates named by the co-operating companies. This will enable them to go to the exchanges and arrange for the pictures they wish.

The War Camp Motion Picture Committee has sent a letter of instructions to the co-operating public and the Federal Commission on Training Camp Activities is sending to the managers of the Liberty Theatres one explaining the plan of the new service.
Associated Motion Picture Advertisers
Will Help to Stamp Out Insidious Rumors

At Meeting in New York Pass Resolution to Kill German Propaganda—To Aid Trade Papers Combat Zoning Postage Plan

The Associated Motion PictureAdvertisers held an important meeting March 14, at Keen's Chop House, New York, at which they passed resolutions and appointed committees to assist in camp Training Activities Committee, furnish camp papers with publicity matter and cooperate with trade papers in the motion picture field to combat the Federal legislation to increase the postage rates on second class matter.

The presence of Sergeant Victor Shapiro, one of the stars in the A. M. P. A.'s service flag, and action looking toward meeting insidious German propaganda in this country, as well as the appointment of the aforesaid committees, made the regular meeting of the Association one of the most important it has yet held.

The guest of the luncheon, and the principal speaker, was Sergeant Shapiro, who was formerly in the press department of Vitagraph and the Frank Seng Enterprises. The former publicity man is now top sergeant of Company I, 300th Infantry, 77th (Metropolitan) Division, stationed at Camp Upton. It is secret that the Metropolitan Division is the first of the draft army which will be sent abroad, and that it is expecting to embark in the very near future. Sergeant Shapiro made this a farewell to all of his friends and former associates.

He gave the members of the Association a very interesting account of the transformation of forty thousand civilians into an army which is certain to give a splendid account of itself when it reaches the front line. He also brought a message which found expression in definite action by the Associated Motion PictureAdvertisers.

Kill Vile Rumors

Sergeant Shapiro said that the most dangerous enemy the young draft army has to fight is not the bomb throwers and flame shooters of the hunsoldiery, but the insidious German propaganda which starts in old women's gossip, and which has for its object the destruction of the morale of the army and of the support of the army right here in our midst.

"The government," said Shapiro, "is trying with might and main to stamp out the whole work of the German spy system. Every soldier has definite orders to stamp on all rumors of peace, or reverses, of weakness, of thousands of wounded Americans, and the like; of the struggle, etc. They are ordered to repute them on the spot, and under no circumstances to spread them. The greatest weapon of the M.P.A. is to kill this propaganda in every possible way. The will to win, and the determination to prosecute the war to the uttermost and destruction of Germany is the only business which matters at the present time. If the members of the Association feel moved to give money, or support in other forms, it can be safely entrusted to the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, and the Jewish Welfare Board. These three agencies are doing a noteworthy and wonderfully efficient work. They deserve the support of every loyal American.

A motion was then passed instructing the secretary to send a letter to the editor of every screen weekly, calling attention to this insidious propaganda, and asking their assistance through the screen in stamping it out.

Electors for Camp Papers

A report was then made from the committee appointed to assist P. A. Powers' Camp Training Activities Committee, outlining a plan for supplying the weekly papers published in training camps with electors and reading matter for the pictures which are soon to be booked not only in the Y. M. C. A. and other halls, but in the new Liberty Theatres as well. The news that the Liberty Theatres were to be so used was brought to the Association by Herbert F. Sherwood, who was present at the meeting. The report of the committee was accepted, and plans will be immediately adopted for putting into force a regular service from all of the publicity departments to the training camp papers.

The extreme danger which lies in the zoning plan of postage which threatens the magazines of the country was called to the attention of the Association by Charles Barrell. This danger threatens particularly the trade papers which come under the same classification as other magazines, many of which will have to pay postage as high as fifteen cents to reach the Pacific Coast, if the Federal legislation which is under way becomes a law.

The danger to the trade magazines was so apparent to the Association, that a committee, with Mr. Barrell as chairman, was appointed to co-operate with the trade papers in the motion picture field, and give them any assistance in the power of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers in meeting this threatened danger.

W. S. Rothacker and The Whartons Confer On Serial Printing

Watterson S. Rothacker of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Co., Chicago, was a visitor in Ithaca, N. Y., last week, where The Whartons are producing "The Eagle's Eye," by William J. Flynn, former chief of the U. S. Secret Service. Mr. Rothacker went to Ithaca to confer with Theodore and Leopold D. Wharton and make provision for the quick printing of all episodes of the great spy serial, so that no railroad or express congestion might possibly result to the detriment of the distribution of any of the installments.

At the conference provisions were made against all exigencies with the result that all the Four Square exchanges through which the serial is being distributed are assured of having their prints well ahead of their publication dates.

Second Reverse to Funkhouser Administered by State Court

Vitagraph Company Wins Long Fight to Obtain Permit to Show Film “Within the Law” In Chicago

The second legal wallop within a week was handed the Funkhouser censorship regime, when the Illinois court of appeals ruled that the Vitagraph production “Within the Law” which has been shown under the protection of an injunction in Chicago, was within the ordinance governing censorship and was, therefore, entitled to a permit.

Less than a week previous to this the Federal court of appeals had ruled that Major Funkhouser had exceeded his authority in his ruling on “The Spy,” a Fox production, and limited him in his censorship to the provisions of the ordinance and denied that he had any discretionary powers.

The ruling of the state court comes as a climax to a long drawn out legal battle waged by the Vitagraph company on the censorship board to have the production, which was shown in Chicago almost a year has passed since the picture was first submitted to the censor board.

Irwin Leads Fight

Although the legal end of the battle has been in the hands of Attorney Lewis J. Jacobson, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph company, has taken a prominent part. The official has made a number of trips to Chicago in an effort to show the police officials that in attempting to eliminate several of the most important features of the picture they were not only spoiling the picture as an entertainment, but also denying the public the right to see the stage play reproduced in the same form which had made it one of the biggest money makers the stage has ever known.

Mr. Irwin then suggested that an audience of prominent citizens see the picture and pass on it. The showing was held in the Studebaker Theatre and the opinion of the audience was almost unanimous in favor of the film. Despite his, however, the censor board still remained obdurate. It was following this that Mr. Irwin determined to seek legal redress in the courts.

“Vitagraph never knowingly has released a picture to which objection could be raised,” said Mr. Irwin in discussing the decision. “Within the Law” as produced by this company is a faithful reproduction of the stage play which proved by its popularity that it was a great modern melodrama.

Exhibition Right Denied

When we were denied the right to exhibit the picture in Chicago and the people of Chicago were denied the right to see the production, we were startled, because the production is the same as the stage play, was showed- several times in the country there. We tried in every way we knew to convince the authorities if the soundness of our position and when they continued adamant we had to protect ourselves by going into court.

We contend that the picture instead of containing anything detrimental to the public interest, was decidedly beneficial and we made our fight on this basis.

“The decision of the Appellate Court naturally is very gratifying to us, but we are further pleased by the knowledge that we have caused to be set a precedent which inures to the benefit of the whole industry.”

The decision in full follows:

“This applies largely for review the overruling of a general demurrer to a petition for mandamus to compel Herman F. Schuetter, as general superintendent of police of the City of Chicago, to issue a permit under the city’s ordinances to exhibit a certain play, ‘Within the Law.’ While certain averments raising questions that need not here be discussed, might be repugnant to a special demurrer, it is enough to say, without setting them forth, that we do not think they were repugnant to a general demurrer.

“Is contended that the petition sets up mostly conclusions as distinguished from allegations of fact. While it contains surplusage and much that is subject to criticism it sufficiently sets forth by appropriate averments ground for the writ in so far as it pleads facts tending to show that the play, as represented by the film conforms to and does not in any way conflict with the requirements of the city’s ordinances, and that a permit was arbitrarily refused. We deem it unnecessary in support of this conclusion to enter into a discussion of its length and numerous averments. Hence, Appellant, having elected to stand by his demurred, the judgment awarding the writ will be affirmed.

“But it will be in accordance with practice or the spirit of the law for the court to defer passing upon the duly presented motion for appeal until after the writ had issued. Its action in that regard, however, has no bearing on the question of error in entering the judgment. Affirmed.”

“Marriage” Will Be Next Keeney Film

Director James Kirkwood has commenced work on “Marriage,” the second Frank A. Keeney production to be made at the Biograph studios, New York. The scenario was written by G. B. Webster.

Catherine Calvert, who was featured in “A Romance of the Underworld,” the Keeney Pictures Corporation’s first feature, will be starred in “Marriage.”

In her support will appear David Powell, Thomas Holding and Walter Heirs, all well known and popular actors in the company, and Robert Shallenberger, who was popular in stock in the west and also in comedy work upon the screen, will appear in Miss Calvert’s support, as well as Ida Darling, formerly with Famous Players.

DEATH ENDS CAREER
WELL-KNOWN FILM MAN

C. M. Simmons, one of the most widely known men in the motion picture industry, died of pneumonia in Dayton, Ohio, March 12.

A short time ago Mr. Simmons left the Artcraft organization to become general manager of the State-Rights Distributors, Inc., and at the time of his death was making a tour of the country exploiting the feature “Carmen of The Klondike.”

For a number of years, Mr. Simmons has been actively engaged in the motion picture industry and is well-known to thousands of exhibitors throughout the country. In 1906, Mr. Simmons left the commercial field of endeavor to devote his energies to amusement enterprises.

For more than a week before he left New York he had been suffering from a severe cold and was absent from his office for several days. He recovered sufficiently however, to start out on his trip, but when he reached Dayton he contracted another cold which rapidly developed into pneumonia. His death came as a severe shock to his business associates as word had been received the day before he died that he had passed the crisis and was expected to recover.

Shipman Sells New Territory for Series

Ernest Shipman announces the sale of additional territory for the Shorty Hamilton series, as follows: V. H. Hodupp who recently purchased the Indiana rights of the series, is planning to take out a campaign, wired for Missouri upon the same terms; Nathan H. Gordon of the Globe Feature Film Corporation, Boston, is planning on taking in additional territory, and the bookings of the Associated Theatres, Minneapolis, indicate that they will be working four prints in their district. About 60% of the territory for the Shorty Hamilton series has been disposed of, it is stated.
United Picture Theatre Plans Explained to Chicago Exhibitors

More Than One Hundred Gather to Hear Project
Outlined by Lee A. Ochs—Shares
Cost $250 Each

Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America and holder of a similar position in the newly formed United Picture Theatres, Inc., addressed more than one hundred Chicago theatre owners at the Hotel Sherman last week, outlining the plans and purposes of the latter organization.

Prior to taking up the plan in detail Mr. Ochs made a strong plea for unity among exhibitors. He announced that under no conditions would he be a candidate for any office of the M. P. E. L., at the annual convention, which will convene in Boston the second week of July.

"I realize," he said, "that many of you here disapproved of the way I ran the convention held in your city last July. Many of you do not like me, personally. But I hope you will consider it for the interests of our group, if you will not, under any consideration, be a candidate for any office at the convention. The thing it is for you to do is to select a man, go to Boston, and work to have him elected."

Attorney Urges Unity

Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, after being introduced by Mr. Ochs, also talked upon the benefits to be derived from organization. He declared that present conditions demanded that all men pursing the same line of endeavor should be joined in some sort of organization. He intimated that a problem now confronting the exhibitors of Chicago would soon call for the closest kind of unity.

The plan, as briefly explained, is a stock proposition, each exhibitor being required to hold one share of stock for each play day. The cost of each share is $550. Ten per cent of stock have been issued by the company, which is incorporated under the laws of the state of New York.

Mr. Ochs explained that he and his four associates, originators of the plan, had taken over 1,000 shares, leaving 9,000 to be disposed of. C. R. Seelye, Louis Blumenthal and two New York attorneys incorporated the company with Mr. Ochs.

Conditions of Contracts

Under the conditions of the contract 90 per cent of the money received from each exhibitor buying a share of stock will be deposited in a trust fund. The other ten per cent will be used in furthering the project. Mr. Ochs said that it would take $500,000 to swing the deal. He declared that there is no doubt, but that it would go through to a successful conclusion.

"Do you mean then that each exhibitor buying a share of stock gains a $25 on the deal being put through?" queried an exhibitor.

"Yes," Mr. Ochs answered.

He then related how he had taken the plan to all of the prominent producers and asked them to look it over and make known any flaws in it.

"They found no flaw in the plan itself," he said, "but each of them refused to enter into it principally because they feared to lose their identity. I explained to them that while the pictures would have to carry a trailer announcing that they were distributed by United Picture Theatres, the films could still carry the names of the producers."

The saving to be effected under the new plan, Mr. Ochs explained, would run from twenty-five to fifty per cent. In theory the service to be furnished to shareholders of United Picture Theatres will cost about one-half of the present price paid for film rental. To be able to distribute at this figure 4,200 play days must be guaranteed, the speaker said.

Films distributed to members of the organization, having been shown throughout the circuit, will be retired and will not, under any circumstances, be rented to exhibitors not holding a franchise in the company, the speaker said. While he denied that his company had already obtained the services of a woman star of international prominence, he intimated that once the machine was in good working order he would use every effort to obtain her services.

No Stars Signed

"But we must have the $500,000 question before we can do anything," he said. "Frankly, at the present time, we have closed no contracts with any stars. We have nothing along this line. All our cards are on the table. I want to deny a rumor that we have obtained the services of a certain star. We haven't."

Mr. Ochs announced that Harry Cran- dall and Jack Wells had both looked into his promised proposition and had signed up, the latter buying shares for both his brothers in Washington. The speaker pointed out that both these men had been opposed to him in the conduct of the national exhibitors organization.

The last half hour of the meeting was devoted to answering questions from the exhibitors present concerning various phases of the project. C. W. Bunn, former manager of the Biograph exchange and three assistants have charge of the sale of stock in this section.

Contract Not Aligned

Following the meeting, Ochs was asked if it were true that J. A. Berst, former vice-president and general manager of the Pathé company, had joined the United Theatres.

"Not to my knowledge," he replied. "You would know if he had, wouldn't you?"

They ought to tell me out of commmon courtesy," he said, smiling. "How ever, I know nothing about it."

TURNER AND DAHNKEN GET CHAPLIN FILMS; PAY RECORD PRIC

Turner and Dahnken, who hold the franchise in the First National Exhibitors Circuit for Northern California and Nevada, have arranged to buy seven of the new $1,000,000 series of Chaplin comedies through the Strand Theatre, San Francisco, instead of the Hippodrome, as originally announced. The Hippodrome will have first run of "A Dog's Life," carrying out the provisions of the contract with Turner and Dahnken, but that the picture will be shown at the Strand Theatre, together with all forthcoming Chaplins.

It is understood that the Strand executives paid a bonus of $10,000 to the managers of the Hippodrome to secure the rights to the series and that the latter are paying a rental price of $3,500 per two weeks' service on each picture. These figures establish a record price for two-reel comedies and are a significant commentary upon Chaplin's popularity on the Pacific coast, where he is said to possess the largest clientele per capita of any film star.
M. P. Committee Holds Big Meeting To Move Against Sunday Closing

Forty Exhibitors Gather at Ten Eyck Hotel, Albany, and Outline Work of Sub-committees

The Allied Committee of the Motion Picture Industry made considerable progress last week in its fight to make the New York Motion Picture Option Bill a law. The bill amends the State laws, permitting the exhibition of motion pictures on Sunday after two o'clock, except where the governing body of the community may later adopt an ordinance forbidding such exhibitions.

A big and enthusiastic meeting of the motion picture men was held at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, on Thursday, March 19. Forty representative leaders of the industry attended. John Manheimer, chairman of the allied committee of the state, which is pushing the campaign for the amendment, presided. Highly optimistic reports were received on the progress already accomplished in making public opinion of the state behind the proposed bill. Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and secretary of the allied committee, presented a detailed account of the work accomplished during the week past from the New York and Albany headquarters.

It was decided to make the divisions of the state according to the 51 senatorial districts the basis of the campaign and to appoint an exhibitor-capain for each district to direct the work in the amendment. Each exhibitor-capain in turn will appoint three other exhibitors of his section who will look after the assemblyman divisions of the senatorial district. This means a direct, personal and strenuous state campaign in every part of the state.

Exhibitor-Captains Appointed

It was further decided to call a joint meeting of the exhibitor-capains and the members of the Allied Committee at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany, Tuesday afternoon, March 19, at 3 o'clock, at which time the state-wide work will be reviewed and further plans made.

The wholehearted and thorough way in which the ground was covered at the last week's Albany meeting and the fine work already done throughout the state foreshadows the most complete campaign ever conducted by the film interests in a legislative campaign.

The Albany and other state newspapers gave wide news space to the committee's session. The newspaper accounts predict that the Motion Picture Option Bill will be entered in the senate by Senator Alfred J. Gilchrist of Brooklyn and in the lower house by Assemblyman George Blakely of Yonkers.

At the Albany meeting, J. Robert Rubin, secretary of the Metro Pictures Corporation, and Arthur S. Friend, treasurer of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, were present and made addresses of encouragement and offered their cooperation. Another enthusiastically applauded address was made by Max Spiegel, treasurer of the allied committee and secretary of the Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, controlling the Strand chain of theaters in the state.

State Officers Present

The various state officers of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of New York were present, including Sydney S. Cohen of New York, president; Samuel Suckno of Albany, first vice-president; Walter A. Zeisor of Schenectady, second vice-president; Rudolph Sanders of Brooklyn, third vice-president; L. A. Buettner of Cohoes, fourth vice-president; John Wittman of the Bronx, treasurer, and Sam Berman of New York, secretary. Others at the session were William Brandt of the New Albany Theater, Brooklyn; Benjamin Apple of the King, Troy; Louis L. Levine of Brooklyn; Henry Cole of the Royal, the Bronx; John L. Mynser of the Broadway, Schenectady; George Roberts of the Hudson, Albany; Frank X. Shay of the Pearl, Schenectady; Morris S. Silverman of the Happy Hour, Schenectady; Frank Barhydt of Troy; Walter M. Powers of the Colonial, Albany; Charles McCarthy of New, Hoosic Falls; F. Frayne of the Palace, Schenectady; F. E. Mensereh of the New Albany, Schenectady; John J. Walker of the Lincoln, Schenectady; Allan Beckett of the Lyric, Saratoga Springs; Charles O'Reilly of the 65th Street Playhouse, New York; W. H. Gray of the Rialto, Schenectady; William Fait, Jr., of the Avon, Utica; W. H. Linton of the Hippodrome of Little Falls, and of the Richmond, Herkimer, and Fred Ellett of the Clinton Square Theater, Albany.

Harry Rapf Enters State Rights Field With Two Features

“The Struggle Everlasting” Starring Florence Reed
To be Published April First

Harry Rapf, the well known independent producer, issued a statement this week concerning the publication on a state rights basis of two big productions, “The Struggle Everlasting” and “The Accidental Honeymoon.”

The first of these productions will be “The Struggle Everlasting” in which Florence Reed is starred, supported by a typical Rapf Broadway cast, including Milton Sills and Irving Cummings. This picture was originally shown at the 40th Street Theatre, New York.

The performance of Florence Reed as the central figure at the time of showing, fairly dominated the picture, the spirit she manifested and the mondaine appeal she provoked, being the cause of unusual comment. This story of Edwin H. Royle, was staged in New York by the late Henry B. Harris, and had an extended run.

In preparing the picture for state rights distribution, Mr. Rapf has made another big box office attraction, it is said which excels his two productions, “Today” and “The Mad Lover.” The date of publication in order to accommodate several long runs in and around New York, has been set for April 1st.

“The Accidental Honeymoon” is Robert Warwick’s last production prior to his enlistment in the service of the U. S. A. It was written and directed by Leonce Perret, and again offers the charming Elaine Hammerstein as support for Captain Warwick.

Director Perret has supplied a breezy story, it is said, tingling with the romance of youth with a decidedly original plot. Mr. Rapf has set April 10 as the issue date for “The Accidental Honeymoon.” Both these productions have popular stars in appropriate plays, well staged, carefully directed and stories that have a quick and wide appeal with the photoplay followers, which should make them unusually popular at this time, it is said.

Gaumont Company Enters Open Mart With News Films

After giving the matter serious consideration for the past year, the Gaumont Company states that in future it will use its production through independent exchanges. The announcement that this company, which has more than fifty branches throughout the world, will hereafter sell its output in the open market, will be welcome news to many state right buyers.

As soon as it was learned that the news service of the Gaumont Company, with its world-wide affiliations, was to be withdrawn from program booking and published semi-weekly, letters and telegrams from independent exchanges signifying a desire for this service began to pour into the Flushing, L. I. office, the company announces.

Beginning March 26 the Gaumont news service will be published twice a week, the Gaumont News every Tuesday, and the Gaumont Graphic every Friday. The news reels will be edited by Telf Mitchell, who made the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly so successful. Mr. Mitchell is an old newspaper man who has surrounded himself with a staff of cameramen who also served an apprenticeship on the daily papers.

The entire staff of cameramen who have served the Gaumont Company for so many years in the United States and all over the world, has been retained. The Gaumont Company, pioneer in the making of news reels, is now free to inaugurate, it is said, many long-planned improvements which will make the News and Graphic the best examples of pictorial news ever shown.

Barret McCormick’s Advertising Talks
Business Getters

S. Barret McCormick, managing director of the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, has during the past eighteen months forged to the front as one of the liveliest exhibitors in the United States.

A native of the west, Mr. McCormick was an editorial writer on the Rocky Mountain News, Denver, and at that time a colleague of George Creel, now official publicist for the United States, before he entered the exhibiting field.

He has put over some of the most effective advertising campaigns carried on by any motion picture exhibitor in the country of late. His success in this respect is chiefly due to the fact that he seems to possess an unfailing sense of the psychological value of every feature that is accepted for exhibition at the Circle, and has been remarkably successful in driving home the particular punch of each picture in his advertising talks to the patrons of the house.

His copy has many unique angles, and is always the kind that commands attention, whether exploiting the seductive charms of Theda Bara in “Cleopatra,” or bringing out the high lights of a timely news feature such as “The Battle of the Tanks at Ancre.”

Mr. McCormick’s backer at the Circle is Robert Lieber, one of the directors of the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit, and the keen-witted manager of the Indianapolis house is frequently called upon for suggestions in conducting the affairs of the circuit.

Wolfberg Buys Clune Films

Harris P. Wolfberg of the Harris P. Wolfberg Attractions, Pittsburgh, has bought, through the Arrow Film Corporation, the Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia rights to W. H. Clune’s big feature productions “The Eyes of the World” and “Ramona.”
Los Angeles Would Create Zones For Segregation of Film Studios

Residents Consider Present Plants Noisy and Sets Unsightly—Council Will Likely Pass Ordinance

The disension between residents of big and smaller cities about the location of film companies has reached a point at which city councils will segregate all film-producing plants to certain fixed areas and place certain regulations upon the activities of the producers. At the request of the industry, the Los Angeles City Council has taken the matter in hand, and has appointed a committee to study the situation.

The committee has taken charge of the task of organizing a plan for the segregation of film studios. It is likely that the ordinance will be adopted by the Los Angeles Council.

Of the other regulations the ones which are most important are those which restrict the places inside the studio lots to be devoted for the use of applicants for work in order to prevent crowds from gathering to the annoyance of persons in the neighborhood. Another new regulation is the prohibition of the use of explosives in the use of explosives should be prohibited during certain hours of the night.

Of the five principal zones around the chief centers of the motion picture industry, the third is located in one of the most important districts in the City of Los Angeles. This zone includes eighty-two acres of ground which is the property of the Paralta Plays, Inc., upon which the Paralta studios are located. The Paralta plant has many permanent and expensive buildings upon its property, but according to the ordinance there is no possibility of their being affected detrimentally by the ruling.

U. S. Man O' War Used For "Stolen Orders"

Wm. A. Brady's Play

Among the many interesting and unusual scenes in "Stolen Orders," William A. Brady's picturization of the Dry Lane melodrama, "Sealed Orders," and the first of the series of big pictures announced by Mr. Brady, are those taken on a United States gunboat.

These are especially unique and interesting at this time when the eyes of the world are focused on our fighting ships. It is not permitted to mention the name of the battleship which will be shown in "Stolen Orders," nor the location of the time the scenes were photographed. Suffice it to say that it was somewhere in America, and that episodes of intense dramatic interest were filmed on its deck.

The entire personnel of the crew, officers and men, alike in large numbers, and in their enaction, lending not only atmosphere but realism as a background, were in the action in which Kitty Gordon, as the wife of an Admiral of the American Navy, George McQuarrie as the Admiral; Carlyle Blackwell, as a young naval officer, and June Elvidge and Monkey Love figure prominently. Mr. Blackwell is the hero of a spectacular dozen over the rail.

In addition to the scenes referred to, there is pictured a dance given by the officers of this particular ship on the starboard deck, where the fox trot and one step are danced across the shadows cast by the big guns towering above.

Favorite Scenario Theme Knocked Out

The Chicago Medical Society last week dealt a death-blow to one of the screen writers' favorite themes for photoplays—the twin sister of the errant brother assumption of his place and passing himself off as the brother by reason of the resemblance. It can't be done. The Society says so and you can't buck nature.

Therefore, writers who have been turning out scenarios for acts with a penchant for playing dual girl-boy roles, will have to cease making twins to suit themselves. Prof. H. H. Newman, of the University of Chicago, says that in every case where twins look exactly alike they are both of the same sex. They don't look alike if one is a boy and the other a girl.

And further the Professor states if scenarioists must use this as their favorite plot, they must look for exact resemblances among the lower animals, such as the Texas armadillo. Prof. Newman is backed up by Prof. Frank Paralta, also of the Chicago University, who declares boy and girls twins are non-identical in every case.

So there you are. Another pet theory busted!

Madge Kennedy Wins Favor in Northwest

Madge Kennedy has won her way into the hearts of picture lovers in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas, according to Goldwyn. The little star's work in "Baby Mine," "Nearly Married" and "Our Little Wife" has pleased exhibitors of the Northwest and she is in high favor with theatre-goers of that territory. So emphatic is Thomas Furniss, owner of the Rex Theatre, Duluth, Minn., in the belief that Miss Kennedy is without peer in her line that he has arranged for a "Madge Kennedy Week." He will repeat "Baby Mine" and "Nearly Married" during the week that he plays Miss Kennedy in "Our Little Wife."

Among other Northwestern exhibitors who were enthusiastic over the success they had with Madge Kennedy productions is Gust. Myers, manager of the Metropolitan Theatre, Grand Forks, N. D. Mr. Myers states that "Nearly Married" proved his biggest three-day run of the year and that "Baby Mine" might have equaled it but for a storm that few of his patrons cared to brave.

Harry Chandlee Promoted

Harry Chandlee, who for a number of months has been in charge of the Eastern scenario department of Paralta Plays, Inc., has been promoted to the head of the scenario department at the Paralta Studios in Los Angeles, California. This promotion will place Mr. Chandlee in active charge of both the eastern and western divisions of this department. He left New York for the coast this week where he will at once take up his new duties.
Essanay Names
April 1 to Show
"Pair of Sixes"
Will Billboard Country in Interests of New Feature

"A Pair of Sixes," the latest George K. Spoor production, now is being shown to the trade. Many advance bookings already are reported from the George Kleine releasing exchanges. The picture is to be taken from the stage production of Edward Peple, and famous Snakeville comedian, Taylor Holmes. It is in seven parts. Critics who have seen the picture declare that it is the best play in which Taylor Holmes has appeared, and one of the best farce comedies screened. Holmes is ably supported by Maude Eburne, Robert Conness and Alice Mann, all well known on both stage and screen.

The publication date has been set for April 1, but there are several advance bookings in the larger cities so that the play will be showing the latter part of March.

In this production, Mr. Spoor is adhering to his policy of a national bill board advertising campaign on each feature subject, and the 24-sheet posters now are to be seen in all the large cities of the country.

Other Essanays for the month of March include: the Broncho Billy one-reel western dramas which began March 1, to be published one a week for ten weeks.

Two Chaplin comedies are also being put out, "The Tramp" and "His New Job." New prints and new paper have been made up on these.

The short subjects being distributed through the General Film Company include: "Wild Alg of Piccadilly," "All Stuck Up," "The Lie That Failed" and "The Jazzbox," with special comedies released. "The Lie That Failed" features Virginia Valli and Robert Connex. Don Barclay, the famous comedian of the Ziegfeld Follies takes the leading role in "All Stuck Up."

On March 23 Essanay will begin the issuance of new prints on many of its famous Snakeville comedies. In these the well known comedians, Victor Potel, Margaret Joslyn, Harry Todd and others. They will be distributed through the General Film Company.

"Great Star" to Be Petrova's Fourth Film
For First National

The Petrova Picture Company announces that "The Great Star," Madame Petrova has been working on, is now finished and ready for the assemblers and cutters. This picture, which marks the fourth appearance of the Polish actress on her calendar of eight special features, was written by George Middleton. The production has been made under the direction of Ralph Ince. It embraces a cast of well known screen performers who appear in support of Madame Petrova herself.

The leading role of Lucille Caruthers is interpreted by Mme. Petrova, while opposite her appears Thomas Holding in the part of Richard Sheldon. The "heavy" role of "The Great Star" is enacted by J. Herbert Frank, well known to screen fans for his various appearances in support of Clara Kimball Young, Marguerite Clark, Theda Bara and other leading players. Prominent among the actors in the latest Petrova picture is E. J. Radcliffe, who has to his credit forty years of experience on the legitimate stage. He is making his screen debut with Madame Petrova. The feminine contingent is well represented in the persons of Edith Hinckle, Mrs. Helen Walton and Matilda Brun-adge.

"The Great Star" is scheduled for publication through the exchanges of the First National Exhibitors Circuit during the latter part of next month following the publication of the third Petrova picture, "The Life Mask," on March 14.

Ralph Ince and a corps of assistants are now cutting and assembling the various scenes which make up the picture. The negative will be turned over to the Rothacker Film Laboratories for developing and printing under the personal supervision of Watterson Rothacker himself, it is said.

Eleven Reasons Why The Country Needs Sunday Film Shows

The following eleven reasons for the Sunday motion picture will be of interest not only to the 1,000 exhibitors of New York state, where a bill is now pending to amend the present law and permit motion picture performances on Sunday, after two o'clock, but will be of valuable assistance to exhibitors in other states where they are endeavoring to have such legislation passed. Exhibitors would do well to enjoy this out and preserve it for future reference.

1. It is necessary to the Government as a channel for war propaganda, since Sunday is the day when the whole family attends the theatre.
2. Closing the theatre, on Sunday means a big loss in tax revenues, Uncle Sam. At present 600 out of 1,200 New York State theatres are closed, meaning a yearly loss of $8,500,000, a marvelous sum.
3. Sunday recreation is necessary in war time to prevent unrest and maintain optimism. One million, five hundred thousand would attend theatres on Sunday. New York State the state during the first month and 20,000 theatres were open. Figure out the staggering amount of pessimism created if they were closed.
4. The proposed New York bill makes theatre the one matter of local option. Motion picture men are not trying to force anything on a community not desiring it.
5. The present statute, upon which all efforts to close the "movie" theatre or Sunday are based, was derived from one of the earliest laws of New York, being first enacted on Feb. 23, 1788. It is exactly 150 years old.
6. We are not doing business on the basis of the way things were done in 1788. Films were not thought of in those days. Motion picture men are simply asking for the progressive legislation.
7. From a business angle, the Sunday opening is vital to the successful management of many theatres of the state. To shut them one day a week is to lose business for all seven. Motion picture men have $600,000,000 invested in real and personal property in this state and they as for a square deal.
8. The film provides the one entertainment for the masses on Sunday. This is proven by the fact that the average Sunday attendance is 25 per cent of the week's business.
9. The daily amount of instruction provided by films is beyond computation. Is it right that the narrow-minded few should eliminate this? The same theory would shut our art galleries, libraries and museums of science on Sunday. To Sunday newspaper would cease to be published.
10. The Sunday "movie" would not conflict with church services. The proposed New York bill provides that Sunday entertainment start at 2 o'clock the afternoon of that day.
11. Progressive ministers and teachers throughout the country are motion picture enthusiasts. They are using it in connection with the Sunday school and their classes. The most ardent Sunday closing advocates prove, on investigation, to be people who know nothing about modern motion picture
Superfeatures, Ltd., Joins Foursquare To Handle Canadian Distribution

Contract with Metro Film Service Dissolved—General Manager Stevens in Accord with the Hoffman Policy

Foursquare Pictures and Superfeatures, Ltd., of Canada, have joined forces in a campaign which will have most important bearing upon the motion picture situation north of the United States border, it is claimed.

By the terms of a contract drawn a few days ago, in which M. H. Hoffman, of Foursquare Pictures and Messrs. Williams, of Superfeatures, were the active participants, the entire Foursquare product is to be handled in the Dominion by the concern which has established itself along lines which are being followed throughout the United States by the Foursquare organization.

The contract which has existed between Foursquare and the Metro Film Service, of Canada, has been dissolved: and in the future it will be Foursquare and Superfeatures.

"I regard this arrangement as one of distinct advantage to everyone in any way concerned with motion pictures," said Mr. Hoffman, just after the contract had been signed by Mr. Williams, for Foursquare and Superfeatures, and himself, for Foursquare.

General Film's Cooperative Plan Proves Success

Statement From Company Official Cites Savings Effected

When a number of months ago General Film Company threw open its exchange facilities to motion picture producers at large as the first step in conservation of costs, it was hailed as a radical step but it promised immediate result in the way of reducing service expenses which had brought about burdensome conditions in the industry.

General Film Company has issued a statement declaring that promise to have been realized.

"General Film's policy of furnishing its maximum of service at a minimum of expense has been followed with a period of progress and prosperity which as never been equaled in the history of the company," said a General Film official. "We are today handling successfully a greater variety of product than any other organization and constantly adding to our long list of releases.

"The offer made some months ago by General Film to act as the clearing house for the meritorious product of many manufacturers has been seized by the gradual increase of releases—big features down to one-reel subjects, until unusual demands seemed made upon the machinery of the organization.

"It took care of them, not only without strain, but even with improved efficiency. Indeed General Film Company's full capacity for service has never been tested nor has its usefulness fount the limit of its possibilities. This insures that General Film will be an important factor in further stabilizing the industry.

"The immediate and successful results obtained at General Film's thirty exchanges by 'Hodkinson Service' in distributing the Paralta Plays did more than any one thing to convince the industry of the resourcefulness and efficiency of the company's clearing house for product. Within a few weeks after the release of the first Paralta Plays the bulk of the whole year's contracts were lined up, without the waste of a single motion. The handling of a film properly was not delayed or interrupted a moment, and the whole service was in full swing in much less time than it would have necessitated to organize a separate exchange system. And it was in full swing at a saving of almost the total cost of building a separate system. The clearing house idea advanced by General Film as a modern plan of business is now in practice—the greatest advance made to date in solving the merchandising perplexities of the industry.

"It is due to the long experience and highly perfected condition of the machinery that it was able to give such prompt and convincing a demonstration of its scope and value."

United Picture Theatres of America Will Not Manufacture Features

Will Buy Films at Wholesale and Distribute on Cooperative Basis; Wipes Out Waste Is Claim

Rapid extension of the co-operative organization of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., was last week's answer to critics of the scheme of the exhibitors of America to combine in a gigantic film association for the direct purchase and distribution of motion picture features.

Mr. Ochs, president of the new corporation, addressed large and enthusiastic groups of exhibitors in Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago during the first week of a long tour of the country in the faces of the advantages of getting together in their own company. C. R. Seelye, vice president and general manager, announced several additions who, he says, will be one of the strongest selling forces he has ever formed.

In the absence of Mr. Ochs and Mr. Seelye, the organization of the United, Charles M. Rosenthal, made a statement in which he answered several unfounded criticisms that had been made against the organization and the people involved. Temporary are at the heart of it unless the exhibitors themselves decide to retain the present executives.

"It has been charged," said Mr. Rosenthal, "that Mr. Ochs is not animated by the best interests of the exhibitor in the organization of United Pictures. The charge has been repeatedly made by a competing publisher and the organ of the 'stand patter' in the motion picture industry. The trade will recognize the motives.

Plans Outlined

"So much for that. Let me explain as briefly as I may when the magnitude of United Pictures is considered, the system under which its organization is proposed to operate. United Pictures does not intend to make or market film, but to buy it at wholesale and distribute it as any other co-operative association would do. There is no sense of the words United Pictures a manufacturer or peddler of film features.

"Following the original announcement of the plan and scope of United Pictures a few exhibitors in Detroit, to whom Mr. Ochs had not yet explained the purpose of the co-operative association, asked that while they were not opposed to direct looking they wanted to know a little more about United Pictures and to know wherein it was not a version to the antiquated programme system.

United Pictures, which is to be controlled by the most progressive element of motion picture executives, most emphatically is not based on the principle of paying good money for indifferent features. "Sight unseen," United Pictures is designed to be a free selection of stars and productions through the organization democratically controlled.

"Collective buying after collective selection insures the purchase of the best. By making the exhibitor an actual beneficiary, United Pictures makes sure that he will stick; by paying cash and a guaranteed profit to the producer United Pictures makes sure of him, frees him from financial worries and imposes on him the elimination of waste; and by the distribution of features only among members the expensive exchange systems of existing organizations need not be duplicated.

Draws Comparison

"The best answer to the argument that the so-called 'vested interests' of the industry cannot be placated but must be crushed, is found in the present war-inspired control of the railroads by the Government. Director-General McAdoo has reduced salaries of railroad executives, lopped off useless positions, cut unnecessary trains from schedules and no one protests because the result is going to be efficiency. Such methods are badly needed in the film industry: the producers and distributors have not taken the initiative, so the exhibitors have decided to do so.

"United Pictures is prepared to prove that film rentals can be reduced from thirty to fifty per cent and the standard of production raised at the same time. Any defense of Mr. Ochs, Mr. Blumenthal, Mr. Goldsmith or Mr. Seelye appears to be unnecessary. The exhibitors upon whom they rely for support, know them. They enjoy exhibitor-confidence as does no other group in the industry.

Dixon's "One Woman" To Be Produced by Mastercraft Corp.

Work on the first Mastercraft Photoplay Corporation's production, "The One Woman," adapted from the novel of the same title by Thomas Dixon, will be commenced at the Paralta Studios in Los Angeles this week. As was announced a few weeks ago, preparations for filming this picture were started when it went to Mr. Dixon for his approval did not meet with all the requirements and production was delayed.

Harry Chandlee, who has written the continuity of the picture which has passed Mr. Dixon's requirements, is now on his way to California, and as soon as he arrives, will confer with F. Eugene Farnsworth, who is in charge of the Western activities of Mastercraft, and Reginald Barker, who is to direct the picture and work will be commenced immediately.

The cast for "The One Woman" is practically complete although the final announcement has not given all the names. Lawson Butt, an English actor of prominence, will appear in one of the to portray another of the outstanding principal roles, while Clara Williams is parts.

The Mastercraft Company, which will produce its pictures at the Paralta Studios, has made arrangements with the National Drama Corporation, which controls the rights of Thomas Dixon's books, for the screen production of the majority of that author's most successful novels. Mr. Dixon himself is deeply interested in the project and is devoting much of his time to the literary end of the business.

Michigan Exhibitors Book Paralta Plays

Exhibitors in Michigan territory will be interested to know that Col. Butterfield's circuit of houses in Saginaw, Flint and Kalamazoo, have booked Hodkinson Service of Paralta Plays. The deal was consummated by Mr. Prince of the Detroit General Film Company, and it is stated that officials of the Butterfield Enterprises expressed themselves as very pleased with the picture they had screened for them, subject to contract.

Many Foreign Buyers Attend N. Y. Showing of "Just a Woman"
Upwards of fifty well known foreign buyers attended the trade showing of "Just a Woman," the Eugene Walter six-part feature starring Charlotte Walker and directed by Julius Steger, given at the New York Theatre roof garden last week. The new Walter production is an impressive picturization of a big human story and of novel and significant entertaining value, it is stated.

The showing was held under the direction of the Robertson-Cole company of New York and London, and with branch offices in many large cities of the world. This concern is handling the foreign territorial rights to the production, the negative of which recently was purchased outright by Frank G. Hall to be distributed through the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, of which he is president.

Eugene Walter's plays are known for their ruggedness and "punch" and it was the consensus of those who attended the trade presentation that "Just a Woman" lent itself to screen treatment better than any of the previous Walter successes. Miss Edna Williams, representative of the Robertson-Cole Company, is in charge of the disposal of foreign rights.

Pauline Welch Joins Metro Pictures Corp.

Pauline Welch, formerly the wife of "Bud" Fisher, the cartoonist, and well known as headline in vaudeville, will make her screen debut in the Metro production, "Social Hypocrites," starring Mary Allston. Four Companies to Produce Pictures Under Plan of Bluebird Photoplays

An important change has been made in the line-up of the stars and productions which are to be published on its program by the executive officials of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

Starting with the week of April 8th, the stars who will appear regularly in Bluebird productions will be Carmel Myers, Franklin Farnum, Ella Hall, Ruth Clifford and Monroe Salisbury. The last two play opposite each other and therefore are to be regarded as one unit.

There will, therefore, be in the future four regular Bluebird companies, containing the stars enumerated above, instead of the greater number that has turned out the features published by this organization heretofore. These companies will provide at least forty of the fifty-two pictures for the year. Other stars, however, will occasionally appear on the Bluebird program when their productions are of the quality and standard demanded by the officials of that organization.

Friscilla Dean and Louise Lovely are stars who will provide two of the extra features required to round out the full year’s Bluebird output. Productions in which they are starring appear in the April list.

As they appear in the order of their publication, April’s Bluebirds are “Fast Company” starring Franklin Farnum, scheduled to be issued on April 1st. The story tells of how Lawrence Percival Van Horn, overcome by the handicap that great wealth and his parents’ inclination to make a mollycoddle of him have imposed upon him. His desire to be regarded as a “regular feller” by his less wealthy acquaintances lead up to a number of adventures that befell him.

“The Red, Red Heart,” is the Bluebird to be published on April 8th. This production features Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford and was directed by Rupert Julian. “The Red, Red Heart” is a story of the great southwest and shows Salisbury in his favorite character of Western that of an Indian.

Louise Lovely makes her appearance on April 15th, when “A Rich Man’s Darling,” a comedy drama, is published. Miss Lovely enacts the role of a French miss, who, while employed in a modiste’s establishment, bumps into an adventure which ends in her marriage to a young millionaire, when she dons a dress belonging to one of the patronesses of the establishment.

“The Two Soul Woman” is the picture for April 22nd. The story is by Gillett Burgess and originally appeared in book form under the title of “The White Cat.” Friscilla Dean enacts the title role. The character played by Friscilla Dean is Jekyll-and-Hyde in nature. Miss Dean has acquitted herself in such manner that there is every likelihood she will be reproducing the part on the screen according to Bluebird’s publication departments.

April 29 marks the issuance of “The Wife He Borrowed,” a five-act drama in which Carmel Myers is featured. The story is by Blair Hall and originally appeared in “Personis.” Harvey Gates is responsible for the screen adaptation, while Stuart Paton directed the picture.

Wharton Serial to Aid in Training of National Army Men

Indications are that “The Eagle’s Eye,” the twenty episode serial story of the adventures of a German Government’s spies and plots in America, by William J. Flynn, recently retired Chief of the U. S. Secret Service, will be one of the current attractions at the shows being arranged for the entertainment of the second draft of soldiers in training in the various army forts and cantonments during the next few months.

Fort Hancock, N. J., is the first of the army posts to secure a contract for an exclusive showing of the serial. Lieut. A. Arey, made the contract with New York Foursquare Exchange.

The first episode will be shown there on March 21. The remaining nineteen episodes will be shown every other Thursday night following until completed.

According to the letters of inquiry the picture is being booked as a part of the soldier’s educational training. An one with similar to a New York encampment wrote:

“It appears to me after seeing the invitation showing at the Biltmore of the future picture called “The Eagle’s Eye” that it is a pretty good picture for every man in training for work in France, and especially for those in the National army, to see. The first three episodes which I have seen, provided me with three of the very best reasons as to why we should lick the Huns, and with seventeen more to come, I think that two weeks are good enough to raise the fighting spirit to top pitch.”

World Accepts and Pays for Scenario In Fifteen Minutes

World Pictures recently added another name to its roster ofstory writers in the person of Harry O. Hoyt and incidentally made another record for reading and acceptance of a submitted manuscript. At 10:30 one morning last week Mr. Hoyt walked into the office of Charles Sarver, scenario editor of World Pictures, with the script of “The Beloved Blackmailer,” which he had just completed. In 15 minutes the story had been read, accepted and the check for payment handed to Mr. Hoyt.

“During the past nine years,” remarked Mr. Hoyt when leaving, “I’ve written more than 600 stories and have had dealings with almost every producer in the business, and this script surpasses all my previous experiences.”

“The Beloved Blackmailer” will be used as a starring vehicle for Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greely.

Gladys Brockwell in “The Devil’s Wheel” Current Fox Feature

Gladys Brockwell in “The Devil’s Wheel” is the current special feature of William Fox Pictures. The picture is based on the game of roulette which plays a prominent part in the story.

Miss Brockwell is cast as the daughter of a French officer who has lost his fortune and has retired to his chateau to work out a system whereby he can win at roulette. She is inter- ested in the game of roulette by De Guise, a dissolve neighbor, hearing that the scheme to beat the roulette wheel has been perfected, and seeing a fortune in sight, kills the father and steals the system. Defending her father Blanche is struck on the head and De Guise starts with her to Paris. An Apache, one of these Paris grooms, known as “The Stag” holds up the auto, throws De Guise out of the car and himself. Miss Brockwell

When Blanche wakes up she is in an Apache den, having lost all recollection of her former self. She becomes one of the underworld people and later restores her memory but leaves blank her recollection of the underworld.

It is the claim of William Fox that the scenes that show the interior of the old chateau are marvels of correctness and dignified beauty, and that they represent one of the places that have since been destroyed by German shells in the advance to the Marne. Every detail has been carried out to show these scenes of, plus days of the outbreak of the war, is said.

Supporting Gladys Brockwell are Lucille Young, William Scott, Bertram Grassby, D. Crittendon, Pietro Buzzi, Andrew Robson. The scenario was written by Charles Kenyon and the direction was by Edward Le Saint.

Goldwyn Trailers Aid Conservation Of Nation’s Food

In accordance with the request of the U. S. Food Administration, the Goldwyn Pictures will carry trailers urging the public to save foodstuffs. This is in line with previous Goldwyn efforts to further the Government’s program in its campaign on war savings education.

In “Dodging a Million,” starring Mabel Normand, Goldwyn took pains to show the country at large how much waste has costed the public. The only a flash, has won praise for Goldwyn from newspapers and patriotic persons throughout the country.

According to the Goldwyn Food Administration’s slogans that will be used on trailers with Goldwyn Pictures: “Keep the Home Fires Burning; But save in the Kitchen+”; “Bread and Guns Will Beat the Huns”; “Soap Is Made From Fat. So Don’t Waste Soap, for Germany Has Got to Be Cleaned Up.”

Everyone concerned in the production of "The Kaiser the Beast of Berlin," must have a deep sense of satisfaction—a satisfaction which can be obtained only through a worthy task well done. If after viewing this picture the spectator is not filled with loathing and repulsion for everything Hohenzollern it is because the last vestige of decency has dropped from his makeup. Rupert Julian's impersonation of "The Beast," wallowing in the blood of the youths of Europe, his insane frenzy of joy jumping with leaps and bounds at the report of each new atrocity committed at his dictate, is a high tribute to that screen artist's ability.

In making "The Kaiser," the producers have accomplished more than the production of a photoplay—they have been of distinct service to the government and the allied cause. Through this the real danger confronting democratic nations of the earth will be presented to the masses in such tangible form as to defy contradiction.

The story: Every incident related is founded on historical fact, the subtitles constantly referring to these, "with just enough of the dramatic added" to carry the story is the announcement of the company. It begins with the Kaiser's meeting with his ministers and the declaration of war. Then follows incident after incident, including the invasion of Belgium, the tearing up of the treaty by the Kaiser in which he guaranteed the sovereignty of this small nation; the invasion of Louvain; the subsequent atrocities; the famous Gerard interview in which the "deliberately unfriendly" ultimatum was issued by President Wilson; the final victory of the allies and the war lord's incarceration in Louvain, his welfare in the hands of King Albert of Belgium.

This is a story of Russia during the fall of the Ramonoffs and the reign of Kerensky. It has been done in a fairly pleasing manner and the production will undoubtedly find favor in theaters where melodramatic subjects are demanded. It is an unsuitable offering, however, for theaters of the higher class.

Miss Storey has a strong role and handles it well and her support includes Philo McCullough, Fred Malatesta, Charles Gerard, Pomeroy Cannon, R. O. Pennell, Clarissa Selwyn and H. L. Swisher. The story is by June Mathis and the direction by Tod Browning.

The story: Determined to lay down her life if necessary for her country Princess Marya mobilizes an army of Russian peasant women and is stationed in one of the trench lines. The Huns are about to overcome her little battery when American volunteers arrive and the Huns are dispersed. With autocracy abolished from Russia Marya consents to become the wife of the American Capt. Rodney Willard.

For artistry of acting, elaborateness of settings, good direction, excellent photography and scenic effects this screen version of Maeterlinck's book and play, "The Blue Bird," represents an extraordinary production. However, useful as the picture is, it will require an astute imagination to follow the story and much of its excellence is going to be lost on its spectators. For the children (those of fairy story years) no better production could be imagined. The two little leading roles, Robin Macdougall and Tula Belle, show remarkable talent and the cast with which they have been surrounded is large and well chosen. The direction is by Maurice Tourneur.

The story: Tytiyl and Mytyl, children of parents in moderate circumstances, envy the little rich girl who lives across the street. One night they dream they are sent in search of a blue bird, a token of happiness. Their search brings them to fairytale where they meet the soul of fire, water, bread, sugar, milk and light, while walking through wonderful castles and beautiful gardens. The following morning, still unconscious that all was only a dream, they find their own caged bird is a blue bird and that they have the happiness they so vainly sought right in their own home.

The dainty charm and petite winsomeness of Peggy Hyland is given full sway in her first production under the Fox banner, "The Debt of Honor." It is a combination of an allegorical story and a love tale, the introduction of a German spy giving it a touch of timeliness. Its odd mixture of various themes gives it originality which should make for its popularity. Supporting Miss Hyland are Irving Cummings, Frank Goldsmith, Hazel Adams and Eric Mayne. The direction is by O. A. C. Lund.

The story: Honor, an orphan, is taken into the home of Senator Middleton, educated and loved as a daughter. Mrs. Middleton, desiring more attention and attention than her busy husband can give her, accepts the attentions of Frank Schiller, a German spy, who has succeeded in getting Mrs. Middleton to give out valuable information. One night Schiller is surprised by Middleton's unexpected arrival and escapes through the window of Honor's room. Rather than hurt the man who has given her so much, Honor accepts his accusations and leaves the house. But when she learns that the safety of her country is at stake, she tells Middleton all. Mrs. Middleton and Schiller meet their death. Honor wins the forgiveness of Middleton and the love of Chester Holbrook, Middleton's secretary. And after their marriage the two plan to "adopt" Senator Middleton.

"Amarilly of Clothesline Alley" will, the reviewer predicts, conduct a successful and swift drive against worry and the "blues," for the very bit of action and every subtitle contains its laugh. The uncontrollable kind that must out. Pickford's latest is delightful screen entertainment and presents rollicking, refined comedy, artistically produced. It reaches the top notch in comedy of the better sort.

Marshall Neilan's work as director of the production is deserving of the highest praise. Each member of the cast has been carefully and wisely selected and gives a well balanced performance. Important among these is William Scott, Norman Kerry, Kate Price, Frank Butterworth and Thomas H. Wilson. And last, but not least, the work of Mary Pickford is especially commendatory. For the blase who believe Mary Pickford is not an actress, her Amarilly Jenkins should be the means of conversion.

The story: Amarilly Jenkins "keeps company" with Terry McGowan, but when she makes the acquaintance of Gordon Phillips, a wealthy artist, Terry's jealousy is aroused. Gordon's aunt is interested in settlement work and she takes Amarilly into her home to prove her theory that surroundings can "make" a person. Her attitude changes when she finds Gordon in love with her protégé and Amarilly finally returns to her home. She later convinces Terry that she still loves him. Terry is accidentally shot and upon his recovery he and Amarilly are married. The close of the picture shows Terry and Amarilly, after five years, the proud parents of two children.

"A Bit of Jade" is one of those pleasing little stories that leaves a good impression and a satisfied feeling of an hour well spent. It is entertaining all the way through, contains a bit of mystery, but never becomes too involved and is an ideal feature for audiences desiring amusement of the lighter vein. It has good photography and excellent exteriors interspersed with tasty interior sets which have marked previous Minter subjects, are also in evidence in this latest production. Supporting Miss Minter, who is as charming and lovable as ever, is Alan Forrest, David Howard and Alfred Ferguson.

The story: When her brother comes to Phyllis King with a tale of woe, she gives him all her money and then is unable to pay for her luncheon. Grayson Blair comes to her rescue. Blair is the possessor of a jade necklace which is wanted by his Hindu servant. The overcoats belonging to Blair and King become mixed and Phyllis finding the necklace believes her brother intended it for a gift for her. Blair sees her wearing it and believes she is the one who stole it. Through a newspaper article, Phyllis learns that the necklace is stolen and believes Blair a thief. The picture is on the trail of her brother and Blair believing Phyllis a thief the situation becomes serious and mysterious. Matters are finally straightened out and a romance is born.

What would have been a satisfactory five-reel production is harmed perceptibly in Triangle's effort to stretch "The Answer" to seven reels. The first five parts are merely a succession of events with no apparent aim. Practically all the action is confined to the last two reels. The picture is well cast and well produced although Alma Rubens has an almost minor part. Joe King, a recent addition to the Triangle fold, does creditable work.

Taken from front page newspaper stories of the recent DeSaulles murder, "Woman and the Law," presents in a vivid manner the trials of a divorced woman driven to distraction through love for her child. While, perhaps, not a subject for the higher class audience, it is a production that, with the proper advertising, can be made a most successful box office attraction for he theatre catering to the motion picture audience favoring melodramas. The story has been well handled by R. A. Walsh and he various roles are well handled by the capable cast.

The story: Shortly after his marriage to a beautiful South American girl whom he considered an heiress, Jack LaSalle tires of her and seeks the company of Josie, his mistress. When Blanqueta learns of Jack's unfaithfulness she applies for a divorce and is granted the custody of his boy for seven months of the year, the father to have him the other five. Jack begs Blanqueta to send the boy to him to visit his father and sister, and that night refuses to send him back. Blanqueta comes begging for her boy and when Jack refuses she shoots him. The sympathetic jury, at the trial, returns a verdict of "not guilty."

"The Life Mask" shows mastery in production, direction and acting. The story is an interesting one, is well developed, and altogether is so interesting in the working out of the various characters' problems that the whole become almost personal.

Olga Petrova has a charming role and throughout is pleasing in her part. She is well supported by Thomas Holding, Wyndham Standing, Matilda Brandage, E. J. Burns and Lucile La Verne. The story is by the anonymous author of "To M. L. G." and the direction by Frank Crane. The interior sets are luxurious in the extreme and the exteriors have been carefully chosen. The photography throughout is excellent.

The Story: To save the family from disgrace, Anita marries Woodruff Clay to whom her stepmother is indebted for a large sum of money. True, the man's life is one of mystery and when her husband mysteriously dies, she goes to Spain where she had planned to spend her honeymoon with the man she loved. Hugh Shannon comes to Spain and again the lovers are reunited, but Anita, addicted to sleep walking, has a fear for herself and child by washing. Belle learns of this and also discovers that she has a voice which if cultivated, would make her, she believes, a prima donna. She decides to get money through the MacDonalds but the sight of her child awakens her mother love and she takes it away with her. She realizes that she is not fit to rear the child and returns it. MacDonald falls in love with Belle and takes her into the circle of their happy home.

"The Desired Woman" is an average program feature dealing with the eternal triangle in a somewhat different manner, combining heart interest with simplicity that strikes a true-to-life note. If other dramas of domestic life have met the approval of your audience undoubtedly this one will. Harry Morey makes his role an outstanding feature of the production and is ably supported by Florence Deshon, Jean Paige, Charles Hutchinson, Aida Horton and Julia Swayne Gordon. The direction is by Paul Scardon.

The story: Richard Mostyn, worn out by his pursuit of the elusive dollar, goes to the mountains for a rest. His meeting with Dolly Drake forms a friendship which later develops into love. With her answer Richard returns to the city and is soon buried again in the worship of Mammon, Dolly is forgotten and Richard marries Irene Mitchell. After the birth of their little son Irene accepts the attentions of Andy Buckton, finally eloping with him. The death of the boy shatters the nerves of Richard and he returns to Dolly to find that she never really loved him but merely the ideal he represented, and that all the time she loved Richard's partner.

In addition to having an interesting story, "The Way Out," contains four World Pictures favorites, all in strong roles and all at their best. Carlyle Blackwell is the featured star, and Governs June Elvidge and Mariel Ostrich are in immediate support and Kate Lester and Jack Drumier balance the excellent cast.

The theme of the story is the old one of the ambitious mother who seeks a wealthy marriage for her daughter, but it has been given a touch of timeliness by showing scenes at the front, the two heroes engaged in the present day conflict and the exact ending is in doubt until the final. Frank Kelson directed.

The story: Alice Thornton becomes engaged to Robert Barr, but her ambitious mother brings another girl into the case and her jealousy arouses Alice to break the engagement. Alice and her mother then go to France where Alice meets and marries Count Louis de Jonville. In search of the girl he loves Robert comes to France, pays Alice a visit and the unexpected appearance of the Count precipitates a duel. In a battle both Jonville and Robert are injured, Jonville succumbing to his wounds and a year later Alice and Robert are wed.

Five Fox Productions Completed;
"Woman and the Law" Heads the List
Five new photoplays have been completed at the William Fox studios in the East, and a sixth is rapidly nearing the end.

The film which will soon be ready for the cutting room is one in which Jane and Katherine Lee are starred. The company, under the direction of Kenean Buel, returned last week from a three-weeks' stay in Georgia, where Mr. Buel was busy filming exterior scenes. The vehicle provides Jane and Katherine with exceptional opportunities, it is said, to indulge in pranks of all kinds. No title has yet been selected for the play.

Peggy Hyland's initial production as a Fox star, "The Debt of Honor," was published as a special feature March 10. "Rough and Ready," Mr. Farnum's production, is the Standard picture for March 24. Richard Stanton, who made "The Spy" and "Cheating the Public," staged this drama of the East and West, which tells the large company that supports Mr. Farnum in "Rough and Ready," are Violet Palmer, Alphonse Ethier, David Higgins, Mabel Bardine, Jessy Arnold, Frank Newton and Franklyn McGlyn.

Meatless days, next to Miss Caprice herself, have the chief part in "A Camouflage Kiss," a rollicking comedy of the lighter side of wartime. Bernard Thornton, Pell Trenton, George Bunny and May McCullough will have their work cut out in its interpretation. Harry Millarde directed the picture. Of an entirely different character is "A Daughter of France," a vigorous drama whose action is laid chiefly in an old French chateau. Miss Pearson appears as the young woman who serves the tri-color. Hugh Thompson, Herbert Evans, Ethel Kaufman, Maud Hill, George Moss and Naida Gary are in the company. Edmund Lawrence screened the play, his first for William Fox. George Walsh has also begun work on a new production.

Title for Alice Brady's Film Chosen
Alice Brady's, second production on which this star and her company are at work under the direction of Emile Chautard, and the working name of which was "The Phantom Feud," has received as its definite title "The Ordeal of Rosetta." The present name, it is said, is more indicative of the action of the picture than the working name of an Italian-American stenographer of gentle birth and breeding.

"The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit" Heads
Universal Program Week March 25
A story by James Oliver Curwood heads the list of Universal productions scheduled for the week of March 25. The production, which is in five reels, is entitled "The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit" and is based upon Curwood's magazine story, "The Quest of Joan."

Louise Lovely is starred and is supported in this feature by a strong cast which includes Philo Mccullough, Charles Hill Mailes, Gertrude Astr, Clyde Benson and H. A. Barrows. Edgar Jones is responsible for the direction. The story tells of a girl's search to run down the man who brought about the imprisonment of her father, falsely accused of murder, and sentenced as the result of circumstantial evidence.

The Nestor comedy for the week is entitled "Nothing But Nerve" and presents Gale Henry, former Joker Comedy star. Milton Sims, Charles Helly and Evelyn Selbie appear in support of Gale Henry. The plot centers about a couple who borrow a house in which to entertain an aunt to prove to her their worthiness to inherit her fortune.

The L-KO comedy with Mack Swain is entitled "Sherlock Ambrose." It is all about a hobo who is mistaken for a detective and who plays the part even to the recovery of a stolen ring through no fault or perspicacity of his own. This week brings the "Universal Weekly No. 15, Screen Magazine No. 64 and Current Events No. 46. It also signals the closing of the serial "The Mystery Ship," which features Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber. The eighteenth and last chapter is entitled "The Fight in Mid-Air" and brings the culmination of its romance of treasure seeking and spy detecting to a successful finish.

"The Bull's Eye," in which Eddie Polo is starred, reaches its eighth episode during the week. The episode is entitled "Dynamite."

The Finley Nature Special concludes the program and is combined with a split-reel comedy cartoon. The Finley picture is entitled "Wild Bowl Nurseries in Southern Oregon" and the cartoon, "How Mr. Noodle Went to a Masked Ball."

Louise Glaum Completes Paralta Play
Louise Glaum's first production which has been made since her connection with Paralta Plays, Inc, has just been completed. Twenty-six working days were engaged in the filming.

The title is "An Alien Enemy," and it was written by Monte M. Katterjohn, who also appears in the screen version. The theme is one of timely appeal dealing with international intrigue and the warnings of powerful and little known military intelligence systems whose giant arms are ever reaching secretly to every branch of human endeavor. Thrilling scenes ranging from intense emotional portrayal, in which Miss Glaum holds the center of interest, to big ensemble scenes where real United States troops are seen marching through the streets of a French village, it is said, feature the production throughout.

While having a background of the Great War, "An Alien Enemy" is distinctly not a war play, Paralta announces, but one in which human emotion is the main element. Miss Glaum will be supported by Thurston Hall as leading man and Arthur Allard in the heavy role. The remainder of the cast of supplementing players includes well-known actors as Joseph J. Dowling, Charles Hammond, J. Morley, Roy Laidlaw and Clifford Alexander. The production was staged under the direction of Wallace Worsley.

"The Rebellion" Next Judge Brown
"The Rebellion," an interesting Judge Brown Story, forms the current publication in the series of boy comedy-dramas distributed by General Film Company. The efforts of a small group of boys to escape from the reformatory home bonded by their love of the drama provides a strong dramatic element which is well worked out in this two-reel subject. Douglas Lansing, Martin Pendleton, Robert Plante and Wharton Jones, the latter an adult, are featured in "The Rebellion." The next release in this series will be "A Boy Built City."
Mutual Features for April Present
Russell, Murdock, Minter and Fischer

Mutual's schedule of April features includes productions from the studios of the American Film Company, Inc., William Russell Productions, Inc., and the Empire All Star Corporation, starring William Russell, Ann Murdock, Mary Miles Minter and Margarita Fischer.

Mary Miles Minter will be seen in "A Bit of Jade" April 1. This is an exotic mystery story built around the disappearance of a rare Hindue necklace which is said to possess a potent charm. The play, which was scenarized by Karl Coolidge from a story by Mildred Carl Graham, contains many tense and dramatic situations, it is said.

Margarita Fischer in "Primitive Woman," published April 1, will be seen in a character different from anything she has recently done. Elementary woman in a twentieth century setting is the theme, and it is said to possess the elements of strength and originality.

Ann Murdock, the popular Broadway ingune, who has been appearing in screen versions of Charles Frohman stage successes, has completed "The Richest Girl," to be issued April 15. David Powell, who supported Miss Murdock in "The Imposter," "Outcast," "Please Help Emily" and other screen successes, will again play the male lead.

William Russell, the athletic star, is putting the finishing touches to his first production made by his own company, William Russell Productions, Inc. This picture is "Hearts or Diamonds," and will be published April 22. Mr. Russell is enthusiastic over the results of his initial effort and believes it will be a real box office winner.

The play is an adaptation of the novel, "Adrienne Gascoyne," by William Hamilton Osborne. The story concerns how a gang of international diamond thieves with whom Adrienne Gascoyne, a beautiful young woman, becomes involved.

Charlotte Burton, who has appeared in several Russell successes will play the lead. The cast includes Carl Stockdale, John Gough and Robert Klein. It was produced under the direction of Henry King.

"The Return of O'Garry" Announces
Ned Finley's Return to the Films

"The Return of O'Garry," the vehicle in which Ned Finley makes his re-appearance upon the screen as a star in his favorite sort of roles, will shortly be ready for publication, according to an announcement by General Film Company, the distributors. In this story Finley plays a Northwest mounted police hero, a role made popular by him, in a series of Vitagraph releases. Marion Henry, a well known screen actress, is the leading woman.

In "The Return of O'Garry," a two-part drama written by Case Russell, "O'Garry" received orders to break up an epidemic of cattle rustling. He finds employment on the Canadian ranch to which the stolen cattle have been taken and immediately becomes involved in a series of adventures which will grip even the most thrized hardened fan. A splendid strain of romance features the story, which ends in a complete triumph for "O'Garry," in love as well as in the line of duty.

Following this subject will come "The Mountain Law" and "The Raiders of Sunset Gap," two strong dramatic vehicles.

Irving Cummings Joins World

The World Film Corporation has engaged Irving Cummings to support Kitty Gordon in "Her Great Moment," a five reel feature now in the course of production under the direction of Oscar Apfel.

"Up She Goes" Next Strand Comedy

Billie Rhodes' next Strand comedy to be published through Mutual is scheduled for March 26. "Up She Goes" is the title, and the story concerns a jealous hubby, a music "professor" who is teaching Billie the latest fad, stable "blues" on the saxophone and the whole ends in concatenated cacophonous melange according to the Mutual press agent.

Just as Congress passes the day-light saving bill which gives everyone another hour to loaf around in, New Jersey passes an anti-loafer law that keeps its citizens on the jump to avoid being pinched.

Fourth Episode of "The Eagle's Eye" Depicts Activities of Von Rintelen

Further evidence as to the atrocious means adopted by the Imperial German Government in America to hamper the Allied forces of the Entente and disrupt the country has been given in the fourth episode of "The Eagle's Eye," the twenty episode serial story of the Imperial German Government's spys and plots in America, by William J. Flynn, recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service in league with the Fourth Episode. The episode deals with the beginning of the career of Franz von Rintelen, now in Atlanta prison, as an active tenant of the Imperial German spy-army. "Eagle's Eye" is the title of the episode. It concerns an attempt made to burn the stockyards in Jersey City at a time when there were thousands of head of horses and cattle in the corral. It was a more thorough type than any of the men who had taken an active part in the Imperial German plottings up to the time of his arrival. He surrounded himself with a gang of desperadoes and criminals and was prepared to accept orders of any kind from Ambassador von Bernstorff, or Captains von Papen and Boy-Ed, or Dr. Albert, the fiscal agent of the Imperial German Government in this country.

The action of the episode is more exciting than any of the three which have been published, it is said. The setting—the Secret Service arranged against a gang of reckless cut-throats, with in the stables of old, this story being a screen millions of dollars' worth of property at stake—offers opportunities which have not been overlooked.

Incidentally "Von Rintelen—The Destroyer" provides the opportunity for each of the principals to interest the heart affairs of Harrison Grant, president of the Criminology Club, and Dixie Mason, the Secret Service operative. The efforts Dixie Mason makes in thwarting the Hans puts her in positions from high adventure to low intrigue with the Imperial German spys and plotters. King Baggot and Margaret Snow, who portray these characters, take good advantage of the situations which occur.

Triangle Announces Eight Features Adapted from Big Magazine Stories

Western narratives, society dramas and mystery stories are listed on the Triangle April schedule, which the Triangle Distributing Corporation announces. These will include eight five-reel features. In accordance with the policy of the company, many and the novel material obtained for the program to a marked degree and the recent "Triangle output bears the stamp of contemporaneous fiction.

Heading the list on April 7 is "The Love Brokers," with Alma Rubens in the leading role. This is the screen adaptation of "Another Foolish Virgin," by W. Carey Wonderley. The Beaux Arts section of New York provides the locale of the story, which portrays the adventures of Alma Rubens, a song writer, who finds herself in the power of the dissipated parasites who constitute the pseudo art circles. In the supporting cast are Texas Guinan, Lee Hill, Joe Bennett, Betty Pearce and George Pearce. E. Mason Hopper directed "The Love Brokers.

"The Boss of the Lazy Y," the second picture of the week, is a screen adaptation of Charles Alden Seltzer's novel of the same name, and features Roy Stewart in the title role. The story deals with an ancient feud which exists between two families, and the struggle of the two sons of the respective factions for the love of one girl.

Canadian Story for Margery Wilson

On April 14 "The Law of the Great Northwest," by Ralph Westfall will be published. The author collaborated with Director Raymond Wells in producing this picture. The cast are Margery Wilson, William V. Mong, William Jeffries, William Dyer and Eugene Corey. "Who Killed Walton?" which follows, was adapted from Norman Sherbrooke's magazine story of the same name. Story within the story with political circles. J. Barney Sherry appears as the typical war politician of the "Old Guard." "Who Killed Walton?" serves as a vehicle to introduce a new leading woman, Mary Mersch, who has already captured the attention of the public in the web of a ruthless artist's trap, and saved from disgrace by a ward politician after her reformer fiancé has abandoned her.

A story of the New York underworld, "The Finger Print," heads the April 21 schedule. This is an adaptation of the Collier's Weekly story, "In the Spring," by John A. Moroso.

"The Finger Print" deals with the Italian underworld and shows the inner workings of the police system in the days before the Rosenthal murder. Joe King plays opposite Margery Wilson.

William Desmond in Western Role

William Desmond has the featured role in the second feature of the week, an English society drama entitled, "Society for the Suppression of Sin, a romantic life in the exclusive circles of London, with Desmond as a young aristocrat, who suddenly finds that he has squandered his fortune and must work for a living. Gloria Swanson, who poses as a young woman of wealth, helps him solve his financial difficulties.

Another Moroso play dealing with the question of circumstantial evidence, "The Lonely Woman," is scheduled as the opening feature for the week of April 28, with Belle Bennett in the key role. The cast includes Anna Dodge, Albert Lee, Nellie Anderson, Lee Hill, Percy Challenger, John Lince and Walter Perkins.

Roy Stewart has a dual role in the concluding picture for April which is entitled, "Paying His Debt," an adaptation of "The Dilect." The support includes Josie Sedgwick, five-year-old Dixie Doll, William Ellingford, Walter Perkins, William Dyer, Arthur Miltett and Harry Yammamoto, who has a comedy role as a Chinese cook.

Mae Marsh in Detective Role

Mae Marsh is nearing the completion, at the Goldwyn studio, "For the Love of Henry," as the latest novel of Natasha Selwood. The program is scheduled to open April 24.

Henry King Directing Wm. Russell

"Hearts or Diamonds" will be the title of the first picture produced by William Russell Productions starring William Russell and featuring the unique star vehicle, made from Irvin S. Cobb's story, "The Web," retitled for picture purposes, "The Face in the Dark." The production is being directed by Hobart Henley, who produced the "Parentage." Niles Welch is Miss Marsh's leading man and prominent in her support are Alec Francis and Joseph Smiley.

Miss Marsh has a unique role, it is said, in "The Face in the Dark," a role totally unlike anything she has ever done. She is a woman who acquires secret things—the girl who has the gift of solving mysteries. How and why she could always reach at the heart of a mystery, Jane Ridgeway never knew, but from childhood she was able to trace down, step by step, with the skill of a detective, those events and persons responsible. Then came the biggest test of her life—a discovery that gripped her heart and filled her brain with fear. In her quest for a master. Why she was guilty? "The Face in the Dark" has the answer.

World Changes Title of Play

World-Pictures announces a change in the title of the picture to be published on April 25 in which Kitty Gordon is featured, "The Devil's Dice." "The Purple Lily" is now being known as "Devil's Dice" but the title has now been changed to "The Purple Lily." Director Kelson selected as the cast to support Miss Gordon, Frank Mayo, Muriel Ostrice, Howard Kyie, Charles Welsby and Clay Clement.

Ivan Film Productions, Inc., Inaugurates
Regular Monthly Policy of Issuing Films

Engages Retinue of Directors to Produce Features—“Life Or Honor” First Production Sold in Five Big Territories

I. E. Chadwick, executive head of the Ivan Film Productions, has contracted for the services of a number of well-known directors and announces that it will be the policy of the company hereafter to publish at least one big feature each month.

A pre-showing of “Life or Honor?” was held in New York last week before a number of out-of-town buyers and immediately the following territory was sold for this feature: New England states to Messrs. Harrison & Rikfin, of the New England Feature Film Co., Boston; Indiana, Missouri and Kansas, to v. H. Hodupp, Inc., with branches in Indianapolis, Ind., and St. Louis, Mo.; California, Nevada and Arizona to the M. & R. Film Distributors, San Francisco, and the state of Ohio to the Ohio Ivan Film Distributors, Cleveland. The Greater New York territory was also sold to Merit Film Corporation, 136 4th St., New York.

“Life or Honor?” is said to be a gripping mystery drama, and was directed byloyd Drummont. The production is now ready for publication.

The names of such directors as Lawrence, Humphrey and Grandon on the Red Cross, in accordance with the traditions it is claimed and “Life or Honor?” is considered by Director Lawrence his best effort up to date.

The Ivan company invites the consideration of those who are interested in distributing the product of the company. The co-operation of his distributors is earnestly solicited by Mr. Chadwick.

“Eagle’s Eye” Used

By Paulist Fathers

As Patriotism Aid

As a means of instilling a thorough understanding of causes underlying the war into the minds of their parishioners, The Paulists in New York, New Mexico, and New Orleans, have booked “The Eagle’s Eye” as a regular weekly attraction for twenty weeks beginning April 19th. The series will be run on a regular Tuesday evening entertainment in Columbus Hall, at 124 West 60th Street, the place of holding large parish events.

“We booked the serial because of the authenticity which Chief Flynn’s authorship gives it,” said Father Cассerly who is in charge of the entertainments. “It is our purpose to instill the minds of our parishioners an exact understanding of the conditions which our country is now fighting to efferce from the world. It is a means of making better and more patriotic Americans out of everyone who sees it, and out of the thousands they will tell about it. In fact, we booked it as a straight out and out patriotic propaganda picture, which in addition to entertainment, must make deeper thinking citizens.

The Paulists Fathers probably have one of the most popular places where motion pictures are exhibited in New York. The aim is to entertain as many people as possible, and last winter, during the cold weather, the hall was crowded by every family. We found it cheaper to keep warm in the hall than to attempt to heat their own homes.

Vitagraph’s Circular

Vitagraph has issued a unique circular called “A Box-office Tonic.” A reproduction of a physician’s prescription, in enlarged form recommends “A Vitagraph Serial Regularly” for sluggish patronage. It is printed in two colors and contains letters from exhibitors all over the country.

All Film Companies

To Furnish Pictures

To U. S. War Camps

According to P. A. Powers, chairman of the War Camp Motion Pictures Commission, the plans of the Committee appointed to co-operate with the Army and Navy Commissions on Training Camp Activites for the distribution of pictures by the industry to the welfare agencies in the training camps, are nearly completed.

“All of the companies have responded,” said Mr. Powers, “to the request for their minimum rates on the pictures selected by the National Board of Review for use in the camps. The National Board has prepared the first list which is to be issued by the Federal Commission on Training Camp Activities to the various agencies in the training camps desiring to use pictures.”

Together with this list will go out a list of the exchanges of the different companies throughout the country, their addresses and the names of those in charge of the exchanges who will assist the camp representatives of the welfare agency to obtain the pictures he wishes quickly and with a minimum of effort. Provided with the list of pictures, the names of the companies distributing them, the rates, the location of the exchanges where they may be secured, and the names of the persons with whom they may communicate, it would seem as if the various agencies in the camps should be able without difficulty to bring into the camp the pictures at once and entertaining.

“A number of the camp agencies, anxious to take advantage of the facilities thus offered by the War Camp Motion Picture Committee of the industry have made inquiries regarding the service,” Mr. Power further states: “It has taken a little time to secure the special rates in the various companies, but now that they have responded, the plan should be quickly in operation. One of its beauties is its simplicity. The representatives of the companies for the men in training what a patriotic industry wishes to do, that is, contribute something of value to the common cause.”

W. E. Drummond

Hart Films in South

W. E. Drummond, president of the Special Features Company, Knoxville, Tenn., which controls the rights to two of the William S. Hart features, “The Bandit and the Preacher” and “The Hell Hound of Alaska,” states that he has been successful to date in booking these two Hart features for long runs in the leading theatres in prominent cities and towns in his territory.

Mr. Drummond, who, by profession, is an attorney, by connection with a number of enterprises, has brought to the film exchange business in the southern territory, business principles that are meeting with success. He has gained his confidence by the clean, systematic and intelligent method in which he exploits the features he contracts.

1. Beaune Elected
C. M. P. A. Secretary

The Canadian Moving Picture Association, the exhibitors' organization, has opened headquarters in the Imperial Theatre Building, Montreal, where meetings will be held several times a week. Albert Beaune has been elected secretary of the organization and is busy seeing new members and handling the business affairs of the C. M. P. A. The duties to the association are to be based in the seating capacity of the theatre location, and amount of business they are doing.

This is thought to be the solution of the attitude formerly held by smaller theatres and neighborhood houses that a commission that compelled them to pay the same amount as a downtown house of big capacity that run a continuous performance was unjust.

On the new scale the theatres are divided into seven classes, and the dues in from $2.50 to $6.00 a month. Several new members have been added during the last two weeks, and the association expects by the first of April to have practically every theatre manager in the province of Quebec a member.

A. Stronge, who was manager of the Oakwood Theater, Toronto, from opening until up to the present time, has been appointed manager of the Garden Theatre, Toronto. The Garden Theatre is already looking up under Mr. Stronge's management. He has installed three-piece orchestra and states that he has several plans under way for the improvement of this popular house.

Motion picture machines have been installed at the armory and on Partridge Island, C. B., through the efforts of the M. C. A., and same are being put to good use. Pictures are shown with these machines every Tuesday and Friday evening at the island, and every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evening at the armory, and these exhibitions are thoroughly appreciated by the men.

The exchange managers of Ontario are still working hard trying to get the cancellation evil straightened out. Several exhibitors are booked up solid for months, due to the raking up of contracts which have been cancelled by them and which are now forced to honor.

The manner in which this matter is being handled certainly speaks well for the Exchange Men's Association.

George Moran, who has been sales agent for the Goodyear Tire Company for any years, has recently joined the superfeatures sales staff. Superfeatures recently opened an office in St. John, and before long they anticipate opening offices in the western provinces.

The Rialto Theatre, Yonge Street, Toronto, is carrying out an immense advertising campaign on Stanley new production, "The Price of a Good Time," which has been booked for the next week. Large newspaper spaces in the Sunday editions have been booked, as well as heralds, special lobby display, etc.

J. Mastbaum Assumes Management of Late Brother's Interests
One of the Pioneers Exhibitors of the Quaker City - Well Known Throughout the East

Jules E. Mastbaum has assumed active management of the Stanley Booking Corporation and the Stanley Co. interests in the various motion picture theatres and booking exchanges that the late Stanley V. Mastbaum had in Philadelphia prior to his death, March 7.

Mr. Mastbaum will become president and managing director of the Stanley companies and will take over the positions as well as the duties formerly held by his brother.

He has announced that he will continue the policies which have made the Stanley organizations the foremost in the United States, and particularly in the east.

Jules Mastbaum was closely connected with his late brother in his many business interests and has made a careful study of the motion picture field. He comes well equipped to take charge of the Stanley Co., being well known throughout the east.

Together with Harry Davis, of Pittsburgh, Jules Mastbaum established the first motion picture theatre in Philadelphia at the corner of Eighth and Market streets. This was followed by another theatre at Ninth and Market streets, both 5-cent houses. Later property was acquired on Chestnut street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth, where he opened what was then one of the handsomest theatres devoted to motion pictures in the country.

Mr. Mastbaum later built the Bijou Dream, the Bijou Dream, and the Victoria—all successful downtown houses, and, with his brother, Stanley, and Al Boyd, erected the Regent. The Stanley Theatre, New York, is the same house, at Forty-ninth and Madison avenues, is also one of the Stanley houses.

Jules Mastbaum is also part owner of the Garden Theatre at Atlantic City, which it is said, cost more than $1,000,000.

City Officials Held to Blame For Death Toll Failed to Condemn Wall Which Caused Winchester Theatre Horror

Winchester, Ky.—Rigid investigation into the causes of Winchester’s theatre horror, which cost the lives of eleven persons, mostly children, and injured more than one hundred, has been begun by a representative of the state fire marshal’s office.

The dead were crushed in their seats when a wall, left standing following a fire in a hardware store next door to the Pastime Theatre, gave way under a six-mile wind and crashed through the roof of the playhouse. The casualty list taxed to the uttermost the capacity of this city. The two undertaking establishments were crowded, and the injured were taken care of in the hospital and private homes.

Considerable criticism is being directed against the city administration for its failure to prevent the motion picture theatre from opening its doors on the night of the fatality. According to stories in circulation a number of bricks from the charred wall had fallen on the roof of the theatre during the afternoon.

Fonda Minor, who is associated with Vic Bloomfield in the management of the theatre, upon returning home on Saturday night, said that Mayor H. B. Scrivener and Councilman Wheeler, who is also an architect and member of the city building committee, had both given him permission to run on the night in question.

Another story is that Wheeler told Minor that there was no fear of the walls caving in on Saturday, the night of the disaster, but that "they ought to be pulled down the first thing Monday morning." The fire in the hardware store occurred the Thursday previous.

Already a relief fund for the victims of the holocaust is under way, with $2,500 thus far subscribed. The management of the theatre has donated $500, in addition to this Vic Bloomfield, father of one of the owners of the theatre, has contributed $100. Contributions taken up at the churches holding memorial services totaled $500.

Jack Pickford Forsakes Pictures for Aviation

Jack Pickford, brother of Mary and star in Artemcif productions, has set aside his screen career indenitely and determined to go into the service of the government. He has chosen the aviation branch, but, failing in that, he has announced his intention of getting into any arm of the service for which he may be eligible.

"A man has to do it if he is to reconcile his own conscience," he said. "It's up to us all. We can't whip the Hun by talking about it—or by waving the Stars and Stripes in a stirring motion picture."
Goldwyn Announces

"Billy's Predicament"

First Capitol Comedy

Final arrangements have been completed by Goldwyn for the distribution of Capitol Comedies, starring "Smiling Bill" Parsons. Prints of the first two pictures, "Billy's Predicament" and "Bill's Baby," have been shipped to Goldwyn branches throughout the United States and trade showings will be had at an early date.

Goldwyn believes that the demand for clean, interesting comedies, trading on the foibles of human nature and utterly devoid of slapstick, is greater at this time than ever before and expects the Parsons comedies to fill an exhibitor need. Each runs about 2,500 feet. One will be issued every other Monday, beginning with "Billy's Predicament." Exhibitors desiring to book the first year's output, or twenty-six comedies, will be given the preference in placing of contracts.

Believing that there is not a heavy demand for the usual accessories to the showing of two-reel comedies, Goldwyn will issue but two posters for these productions—one one-sheet and one three-sheet. Special attention has been given to the selection of the material for these, however, and unusually attractive paper has been prepared, it is said.

Marjorie Daw Signs

To Star in Feature

For Big Productions

Marjorie Daw, for several years with Lasky, and more recently leading lady with Douglas Fairbanks in "The Modern Muskater," has signed with Big Productions, Hy Goldwyn, as the star of a new state right feature, now in preparation, entitled "The Sunset Princess." The picture is being filmed in the heart of the Big Production mountains, and on the Circle C ranch, near Butte, Montana.

It will be published on the state right plan, in March. Already 22,000 feet of negative has passed through the cutting rooms of the Big Productions Company, it is said, and the picture in its final form will be in six reels.

The story is adapted from Wallace Coburn's "Yellowstone Pete's Only Daughter," as published in the book, "Rhymes of a Round-Up Camp."

Petrova Seeks Rest

At Palm Beach, Fla.

Following the filming of the final sequences of "The Great Stocker," the fourth picture in which Madame Petrova is now working under the direction of Ralph Ince, the Polish actress left for a short vacation at Palm Beach, Fla. During her stay at the southern resort, Madame Petrova will give herself up entirely to relaxation, it is said, in order to recuperate from the strenuous activities of the past five months of studio work.

Following her return to New York from Palm Beach the latter part of this month, Madame Petrova will immediately commence work on her fifth story, "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times," from the pen of Gertrude Atherton. This production will be also directed by Ralph Ince. The scenario adaptation is to be made by Mary Murillo in cooperation with Madame Petrova herself.

"The Cast-Off" Proves

Winner for Foursquare

That a clean picture with an excellent cast and interesting story, with lighting and photography of the highest character, finds ready acceptance by exhibitors is being proved in the case of "The Cast-Off," the latest Foursquare Pictures photoplay. Every Foursquare exchange manager reports that this feature is being viewed with the utmost satisfaction and he feels that the public will be seeking something different from the strenuous drama now dominating so many of the war pictures, and the calassquant features which still continue to be offered.

Hy Gainsberg, of the New York Foursquare exchange, Frank J. Faherty in command at Chicago, Samuel V. Grant of Boston, G. W. Erdmann of Cleveland, E. T. Lux of Cincinnati, Joseph Horwitz of Detroit, A. C. Buck of Philadelphia, Jerome Abrams, division manager at Los Angeles, and Carl Goldman of Los Angeles, are unanimous that "The Cast-Off" has a heart-interest equalled by no other picture produced in a long time.

Clara Kimball Young

With Entire Company

To Visit West Coast

Clara Kimball Young, her entire company, a number of friends and relatives and Harry L. Booth, president of the Booth-Garson, will leave New Rochelle, N. Y., March 24 for the west coast where the Select star will spend two months in producing two plays in a Hollywood studio which she has leased.

In the meantime work on her present production "The Reason Why" is progressing rapidly and she is confident the picture will be finished on schedule time. It is being directed by Robert G. Vignola and is from a story by Elnor Givin.

The plays to be produced in Hollywood are "The Claw" by Cynthia Stockell, adapted by E. Whitaker and "The Savage Woman" the adaptation of which was made for the screen by Katherine Stuart from the Freely novel, "La Fielle Sauvage" by Francis Curel.

Among those who will accompany Miss Young on the trip are Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Kimball, Grace Aylesworth, Lenna Mills, Mr. Garson's mother and sister, Mrs. Caroline Sacks, Robert G. Vignola, William J. Scully, James D. Butler, Jack Boland, Milton Sills, Norma Selby, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mortimer and Arthur Edeson.

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.

Sell Re-issues to Friedman Film Corp.

The Northwestern rights to the Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge re-issues have now been sold to the Friedman Film Corporation, Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis, Minn., by Hiller & Wilk, Inc., who are selling agents for the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., owners of these titles. The territory embraced in this contract are the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Concerning this transaction Benjamin Friedman, President of the Friedman Film corporation said: "If the Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge re-issues do not make the exchange that secures the rights to these pictures, the busiest exchange in that territory, it certainly is not the fault of the pictures themselves, because exhibitors have told us that they can repeat more securely on these Triangle Hart and Fairbanks pictures than on features now being offered among program pictures."

N. Y. Masonic Lodges

Arrange to Witness

Entire Wharton Serial

Following the showing of the first episodes of "The Eagle's Eye" to the Masonic lodges of New York City, on March 21, negotiations have been opened making arrangements whereby the same audience may see the remaining eighteen episodes of the story of the Imperial German Government's spies and plots in America. William J. Furness, Recreation Chief of the United States Secret Service, "The Naval Ball Conspiracy" and "The Plot Against the Fleet," the second and third episodes of the serial, made up the motion picture entertainment arranged for by New York Lodge No. 330, A. F. & A. M., of the other New York lodges were guests. The enthusiasm which greeted the showing of Chief Flynn's expose led to the suggestion that arrangements be made for the showing of the remaining episodes at fortnightly intervals.

The showing was given in the lodge rooms of the New York Lodge, in the Masonic Temple on West 23rd Street, where it was necessary to install a booth and a machine.

New York Takes to

Mazda Projectors

Harry S. James, of the Nela Specialty Division of Filament Lamp Works, of Cleveland, Ohio, accompanied by Don C. Pierce of the same company, were New York visitors last week, where they were especially interested in the progress made in the installations of incandescent lamp projecting machines since their last visit. Lynn S. Card Tours Canada Assembling Distributing Forces

Lynn S. Card, general sales manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, is making a tour of Canada to complete the assembling of his distributing forces. Mr. Card will also interview exhibitors in that territory in order to establish conditions between the Hall organization and the showmen of the Dominion. With the expansion of the exchange system of the Superintendent, Ltd., through which U. S. productions are being released, the booking corporation is now enabled to give Canadian exhibitors a highly efficient service both in handling of film and cooperation in exploitation of productions released by the concern.

Not the least important of the matters to which Mr. Card will give his attention while in Canada will be the advertising campaign recently launched in that country in behalf of U. S. productions. Newspapers and billboards in all parts of the Dominion are being utilized in a comprehensive effort to herald the U. S. subjects and Mr. Card will see to it that everything that may aid the exhibitor in this line will be done.

King Bee President Presented With Cup

Lou Burstein, president of the King Bee Films Corp., was presented upon his arrival at the Hollywood King Bee studio with a loving cup, the present of Billy West, Arvid E. Gilstrum, Ethel Burton, Babe Hardy, Budd Ross, Leo White, Herman Obrender, Ethel Gibson and Joe Bordeaux.

Nat H. Spitzer, vice-president and sales manager of the King Bee Films company, left New York last Monday for Hollywood. He will stop off at the various exchanges handling the Billy West Comedies en route, and upon his arrival in Hollywood will meet Mr. Burstein. They will return to New York together.

World Company Films A Scene in Florida

Montagu Love, Barbara Castleton, Director Travers Vale and their company left New York for St. Augustine, Florida, last Wednesday for the purpose of filming a scene for the first Castleton-Love World production, "The Swami." This particular scene requires a setting of peculiar mystic beauty and Director Vale decided that the backgrounds of Florida alone would suffice.

"The Swami" deals with an Anglo-Indian story, the action occurring in both England and India. The studios of World Pictures have been humming with activity during the past few weeks as every effort was made to insure particular excellence to the production. The cast includes in addition to Mr. Love and Miss Castleton, Madge Evans, George McNicholl, Louise Vale, Irene Blackwell and Jack Drumier.

American Film Company Seeks Stories for Stars

Will M. Ritchie, editor-in-chief of the scenario department of the American Film Company, studios, Santa Barbara, has been combing the literary market for stories for American stars.

"We have some material for our 1919 pictures that will give the various stars of the American Film Company the most brilliant possible vehicles," says Mr. Ritchie. "Mr. Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company has decided to spare no expense in the procuring of the best stories to be found. We think we have found some corking good ones for the boys and girls, and our writers will be William Hamilton Osborne, Albert Tesnune and Stephen Fox, writers whose names insure good stuff. We will spare neither expense nor effort to obtain further stories which will equal in quality those for which we have already contracted for the coming year."
Board of Appeals
Grants Permission
For Moss Theatre

New York, N. Y.—The board of appeals of the Building department has granted permission to S. Moss, head of the theatrical enterprises, which operate a chain of theatres, to erect a playhouse at the northwest corner of Broadway and 181st street.
The plan to erect a playhouse in that locality has been in litigation for nearly 20 years. The building zone regulations passed in 1916 prohibited the erection of theatres in residential locations unless special permission was obtained from the board. On two occasions the Moss company petitioned for permission, but without success.
Plans were submitted which satisfied the property owners of the neighborhood and picture theatre plan hereafter. Work will begin immediately. The house will seat 3,000 persons and will be highly ornate in character.

Crossed Electric Wires
Cause Theatre Blaze

Austin, Tex.—Fire which started in a dressing room of the Ohio Theatre recently, for a time threatened to do away with the entire building, but prompt work by the fire department extinguished the flames after loss estimated at $25,000 had resulted. At the time of the fire a motion picture was being shown.
As soon as the fire was discovered the asbestos curtain which was lowered and the audience left the theatre without any injuries resulting. Defective electric light wiring is believed to have been the cause of the fire.

Los Angeles Places Certain Restrictions
On Film Makers

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Chamber of Commerce has filed with the City Council a report of the action taken at a meeting of representatives of various commercial and civic organizations held recently, relative to the regulation of the moving picture business.
The report recommends that an ordinance be adopted providing for the creation of five general zones within which all motion picture plants hereafter established shall be located, and of minor zones, one for each motion picture plant now in operation outside of five main zones. The area of each minor zone is to be confined to the land now owned or occupied for motion picture purposes.
Further recommendations are for the estriction of explosives to certain hours; for the reservation of the city's right to remove temporary structures within sixty days after they have ceased to be used. In the main the recommendations are said to be endorsed by the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

Drop Action Against Sunday Law Violators

Cohoes, N. Y.—Charges against Louis A. Buttener, manager. John W. Murtha, Edward Landry and Edward Bachman, employees of the Cohoes Amusement Company, arrested a few weeks ago for violation of the Sunday closing law in operating a moving picture show at the Majestic Theatre, were dropped when the case was called in the local police court.
Assistant District Attorney John J. Conway, who dropped the prosecution, stated that he did so on the promise of the defendants that they would make no further attempt to conduct picture shows in Cohoes on Sundays.

Operators Deny Damage
To New Orleans Houses

New Orleans, La.—A heated controversy with both sides airing their views through the columns of local newspapers has broken out here between Manager Fabacher of the Portola and the Wonderland theatres and local 929 of the Moving Picture Machine Operators' Union. A. S. Hadden, president of the local, has been the mouthpiece of his organization.
Both of Mr. Fabacher's theatres were recently damaged and in a published statement he charged the union with being responsible for the trouble. Mr. Hadden published a lengthy statement in the same paper denying the charge.

Exhibitor's Briefs

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Freel Trust Company will erect a two-story brick and terra cotta theatre at the northeast corner of Fulton street and Rockwell place at a cost said to be about $255,000.
Wilkes-Barre. Pa.—The Savoy motion picture theatre here is closed for a number of weeks during which time extensive alterations will take place. The present seating capacity of the playhouse is 900 and when it is reopened it will seat 1,400.
Parker. So. Dak.—H. Wheeler has purchased the Idle Hour Theatre here. The theatre is to be known hereafter as the Orpheum and is to be remodeled and decorated.
Logansport, Ind.—George K. Brown of Kankakee, Ill., has become manager of the New Majestic theatre here. He has promised that he will receive proper support he will donate Sunday receipts to the soldier fund.
Union City, Mich.—The Majestic Theatre in this city was reopened recently. Manager Hobday has decided to pay the war tax himself and has made his prices 10 and 15 cents.

Wilmingon, Del.—Dr. David Rossman of this city is to erect a theatre at Twenty-third and Market streets. The building is to be of brick, fireproof construction, one-story and a balcony. Wallace E. Hance, architect, is preparing the plans.

St. Louis, Mo.—Clayne Carson has purchased the Chippewa Theatre, Broadway and Chippewa street, for a consideration said to be $35,000. Extensive alterations will be made in the building which is one of the well-constructed motion picture theatres in South St. Louis. The new manager proposes to operate the theatre continuously throughout the summer with evening performances and matinees Saturday and Sunday. It will be under the management of Joseph J. Walsh.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Incorporation papers have been filed by the Olympic Theatre Operating company, Inc., to operate moving picture houses. The capital is $75,000 and the directors are Morris Slotkin, Herbert L. Himes and Matthew W. Weimer of Buffalo.

Waco, Tex.—Work has begun on the Liberty Theatre, to be opened at Camp MacArthur. It will have a seating capacity of 3,000. This will be the second one to be built in the state, the first having been opened at Camp Travis, San Antonio.

St. Cloud, Minn.—The Xemex Theatre company has purchased the Princess Theatre here and will conduct the playhouse in the future.

North Platte, Neb.—The Red Cross society of this city has purchased a motion picture outfit and will operate the Lloyd opera house for the benefit of their organization.

Battle Creek, Mich.—The contract has been awarded for the erection of a $100,000 motion picture theatre in West Main street this city. The lease is held by Col. W. S. Butterfield and Messrs. Cross and Lipp who operate the Garden, Strand and Rex theatres. It will seat 1,200 persons and will be of fireproof construction.

Washougal, Wash.—Work was started this week on a new theatre building here, the structure to be of tile, one story in height with a seating capacity of about 300.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Empire Theatre Amusement company of Milan has been incorporated and is authorized to conduct motion picture houses. The directors are Thomas H. Thompson, John R. Pate, John H. Bergdoll, William B. Wilson and Ivor Fuller.

Lansford, Pa.—Local capitalists and a Philadelphia theatrical man are contemplating the erection of a large theatre and assembly hall in Ridge street, here.

Large Theatre
To Be Added to Chicago's List

Chicago is to have another large neighborhood motion picture theatre seating 2,200 persons. It will be located at the northeast corner of Forty-seventh street and Marshfield avenue and is already under the course of construction by the Peoples Theatre Company, comprising a group of local property owners and business men in the neighborhood.

Plans for the project were designed by Architects C. W. and George L. Tapp. The building, which will be one of the most attractive structures of its kind in the city, is said, will have a polychrome terra cotta exterior and will contain four stores averaging 17 by 50 feet, in addition to the theatre. The main floor will have 1,550 seats which is said to be the largest main floor seating capacity of any theatre in the city.

It is said the cost of the building represents a cost of $150,000. The cost of the building is placed at $300,000. It is expected the project will be completed by fall.

Ed Mordue Appointed To Manage Chicago
Standard Exchange

Ed Mordue who, since the establishment of the Chicago exchange of the standard Film Corporation has acted as the capacity of assistant manager, has been appointed manager to succeed F. J. Rogers, resigned. Mr. Mordue assumed his new duties Monday of this week.

No change in the policy is contemplated by the new manager. It is intended, however, that the sales force shall be strengthened by the addition of number of salesmen. Mr. Mordue was in conference early in the week with General Manager P. L. Ryan, of Kansas City, who is on his way to New York where it is said he will purchase a number of new subjects.

F. C. "Chub" Florine who, for the last year and a half, has been covering the Wisconsin territory for the company, will be assistant to the new manager.

F. B. Rogers Becomes
Assistant to Proctor

F. B. Rogers, former manager of the standard Film Corporation, Chicago exchange, has been appointed assistant manager of the Chicago Pathe exchange. He took up his duties under Ralph Proctor Monday of this week.

Mr. Proctor is out of the city on a business trip to New York which will probably consume about a week and Mr. Rogers has started his new duties in the capacity of acting manager.
With men in khaki swarming the corridors and Irving Mack, publicist extraordinary, galloping from office to office, last Thursday, we thought the government had opened a recruiting office on the fourth floor of the Columbia building. We later found out that Universal was having an all day showing of "The Kaiser."

Max Goldstine has subleased Orchestra Hall for the screening of Artcurt and Paramount productions after May 6. The prints were up to this time been shown at the Ziegfeld.

E. A. Bertram, formerly of the advertising department of Burke & James, has joined the Rotkicker organization. Mr. Bertram will act as assistant to John Hahn, assistant secretary of the company. Mr. Hahn is at present confined to his home by illness and as soon as able will leave for a sojourn of a week or ten days at French Lick Springs.

Charles Urban of New York, Ben Friedman of the Friedman Enterprises, Minneapolis, and P. L. Thomson, advertising manager of the Western Electric Company, New York, were recent visitors at the busy north side plant of the Rotkicker organization.

If our boss spoke as well of us as M. H. Hoffman does of Manager Flaherty, we'd be big and healthy and smiling instead of the way we are.

On the Firin' Line

Right here and now we have got to bid farewell to two of our number who will no longer adorn this column, C. C. Whelan and Ed Mordeau. That doesn't mean that they won't get any more mention but they have left the "Firin' Line" and joined the ranks of managers, our best wishes to them. The man at the next desk suggests that Mordeau has taken his new job because he gets "More dough," but we wouldn't spring anything like that.

H. W. Irons and W. C. Huey have joined the sales staff of the Doll-Van company to work in the Chicago territory. We expect the campaign for "Carmen of the Klondike" will be begun by Doll-Van in a few weeks and these two boys will give a good account of themselves.

"How'd you like to be working for Kleine company?" Manager Whelan says the staff will remain the same, also that the line-up when Jenner was away "And why should I change the staff?" he asks, "it's the best in the city." We'll bet, why should he?

A. G. Spencer is the latest of the ex-Paramounts to land on the Tribune. "I am not acquainted with the Pathe Chicago force," he says. It's a good cause, A. G. give 'em the best you've got.

Manager Bayley has booked two more salesmen onto the Vitagraph band wagon. They are by name, M. Edwin Maxwell and Malcolm Williams and you can bet your last kopeck they're good or Bayley wouldn't have them.

Don't crowd. Only one of you can get it. Greiver & Herz want a good, first class salesman. There are so many good ones in this little old burg of ours that they'll have some time making the selection. Come early and avoid the rush.

There isn't any job that doesn't have its drawbacks, but the "fillum" salesman has a whole lot to stand. There are many instances of this and here is one of the best.

One of the boys has spent the greater part of an hour extolling the virtues of a seven-reel production of his company to a west side exhibitor and when he finished this is what he got.

"Lissen. When I book it a seven-reeler I got it van pitch, yes?"

"The salesman nodded.

"And ven I book it a tree reeler, a voo reeler and two vun reellers, I got floor, aind it?"

Lacking faster means of locomotion the salesman took to his heels. Why fret away your life arguing indisputable facts.

Ed Blackburn of the sales department of the Rotkicker Film Manufacturing Company, is on a special business tour in Illinois and Iowa.

"Theda Bara" Finneran, erstwhile typist de luxe of the Hoffman-Four-square's exchange, is to begin a correspondence course in film salesmanship. She probably heard about Leser-man putting a woman to work selling Jewels in Wisconsin.

Oakland Exhibitor Stages Many Novel Stunts for "Planter"

Presentation of "The Planter," the seven reel Mutual special, was made the occasion of a public celebration at Oakland, Calif., the home of Herman Whitaker, author of the novel from which the spectacle was produced.

Messrs. Kehrlein, owners of the Kimena Theatre, played the picture for a week to capacity houses and their unique publicity campaign stirred the interest of the entire community. Their campaign began two weeks before presentation of the picture and continued until the last night of the booking.

Two weeks before "The Planter" was presented the Kehrleins carried off first prize at the masque ball of the Advertising club of Oakland. Ten papier mache cutouts made, each representing a book and each bearing a letter with a man in side of each walked into the ball room at the club function, went through a series of evolutions. On one side the letters spelled out "The Planter" and on the other bore these words "A-t-h-e-K-i-n-e-a-n-a."

Given Special Showings

The next stunt was a special preview attended by the mayor of Oakland, the chief of police, the president of the Advertising club, the editors of the daily newspapers, the president of the University of California and other local celebrities.

The first night was Civic night, at which two four-reelers of local civic organizations were guests of honor. Writers' club night followed. An Ad club night and a University of California night were promoted and carried out successfully.

As part of the advertising campaign the Kinema had printed and distributed handsome booklets made up to represent the novel, the inside pages being devoted to scenes from the play and brief mention of Mr. Whitaker's Oakland social life. Each booklet was enclosed a picture of Mr. Whitaker, 2 3/4 by 1 1/4 inches, autographed by Mr. Whitaker. The booklet was done in dark green on light green stock and was most attractive.

The advertising campaign also included big newspaper display copy done in two colors, black and dark green, most unusual and extraordinarily effective.

A novelty in connection with the presentation of the picture consisted of showing Andrea, beautiful daughter of the tropics, reclining on a couch, strumming a guitar and singing to the young man that "Every Rose has its thorn."

When the picture reached this scene, the machine carrying nothing but this loop, was thrown on the screen and remained there while a soprano, stationed behind the screen, sang "La Golondrina." The stunt produced a marvelous effect and scored a tremendous hit.

Constance Talmadge

To Star in Comedy "Pair Silk Stockings"

Select Pictures has added another to its constantly growing list of screen adaptations of recent stage successes. It has acquired the rights to "The House of Glass," the Miriam Holt-Daniel Ford "Good Night, Paul," by acquiring the film rights to a "Pair of Silk Stockings," Cyril Harcourt's well-remembered comedy hit. It was only after spirited competition that Select was able to secure this sparkling comedy-drama, according to Select's press representative.

A "Pair of Silk Stockings" was acquired by Select as a starring vehicle for Constance Talmadge, who will be presented in the piece by Lewis J. Selznick. The comedy was produced in New York and northern hero. This scene was cut out of the picture and a loop of it made so that when the picture reached this scene, the machine carrying nothing but this loop, was thrown on the screen and remained there while a soprano, stationed behind the screen, sang "La Golondrina." The stunt produced a marvelous effect and scored a tremendous hit.

The story concerns the humorous mixture which arises when an unsentimentally acid bride is invited to a week-end house party. The heroine is engaged to the male member of the duet and has plans, in the event of his earlier matrimonial experiment.

Work on the scenario for "A Pair of Silk Stockings" is proceeding rapidly, the action will presumably conform to that of "Good Night, Paul," on which Constance Talmadge is now engaged in Hollywood, Cal.

 burial of First to Fall in France
Depicted in Screen Telegram No. 5

Impressive burial services for the first American soldiers who died in action in France are shown in Screen Telegram No. 5, published March 18 by Mutual. The pictures are the first to come from France. They show the ceremonies at the first Yankee fell, as well as the services behind the lines.

The reel includes scenes taken during Douglas Fairbanks' station of Screen Telegram at Grauman's new million dollar palace at Los Angeles. Fairbanks turned out to the Grauman's put over the first picture and as part of the coronation festivities walked on his hands across the porch of an entrance.

"Reve!" "Billy" Sunday's sensational arrival in Chicago for "Spring Drive" against Satan and the Kaiser, and the猫 crowd which met him at the station, the throng at the cornerstone and a closeup of the baseball evangelist, are also owned.

Scenes from France picture the new French heavy gun in action against the Germans. At the University of California young men students are training for war and one of the best unusual of their training stunts is picking up marbles with their toes to cure flat feet.

The fourth issue of Screen Telegram, published March 19, carries scenes of the monster demonstration by Chicago Irish patriots for a free Poland, in which 35,000 Poles turned out. Ignaz Jan Lewski, the master pianist, posed especially for the Screen Telegram.

Hundreds of beautiful and healthy youngsters, clad in air "toute ensemble," and with all the innocent naiveté of red youth, are shown disporting themselves on the beach at Los Angeles.

Other pictures shown in the issue are: The Visit of the late Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, primate of the Church of England, to Chicago; and the old church services at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York; the annual shoot at the New York Athletic club; the start of the bands from Campuster on a tour of Michigan to help the Red Cross; the Lake of Toronto shipbuilders under the decree reducing "kick" in their beer.

Select Gets "Good Night, Paul"

Constance Talmadge has commenced the filming of "Good Night, Paul," another Select picture in which she is directed by Lewis J. Selznick. This is her sixth Select Star Series production and the third which she has made this season at Ellywood, Cal. As Matilda Landers, it is said Miss Talmadge plays a role in which she can display to their fullest the vivacity, buoyant independence and loveableness so admired by potay-lope-gors.

"Good Night, Paul!" was a distinct stage success of the recent season in which Ralph Herl was featured with Elizabeth Murray, and which is now on tour. The play is by Hand Oliver, who wrote "The Three Twins," and Charles Elson. The story is by Julia Crawford Ivers, the author of numerous popular playlets, who also adapted "Up the Road With Sally," which Constance Talmadge has just finished for Select.

The screen version of "Good Night, Paul!" is being directed by Walter Edwards, whose many productions have won him an enviable reputation as a "boss of the lot."

Francis X. Bushman as a Crook

Francis X. Bushman has a most congenial role, it is said. "With Neatness and Dispatch," his next Metro picture, which is an adaptation of Kenneth L. Roberts' Saturday Evening Post story of the same name. Bushman is cast as Paul Herl, an Irish young American, who is missed for a crook by a beautiful girl. He takes the identity of the crook for the sake of adventure and finds his full quota of surprises.

Two Toto Comedies a Month for Pathe

Beginning April 14 Pathe will issue two Toto comedies a month instead of one, as heretofore.

"The Phantom Feud," Alice Brady's Next

On March 1st, Alice Brady commenced work on "The Phantom Feud," her fifth Select Picture. Miss Brady's productions for Select now comprise: "Her Silent Sacrifice," "Woman and Wife," adapted from "Jane Eyre," "The Knife," that stage hit and screen sensation, and "At the Mercy of Men," which she has just completed and in which she returned to the Russian locale of so many of her earlier characterizations.

In this latest picture Miss Brady's leading man will be Crautund Kent, who appears as Aubrey Haggard, the young novelist of whom Rosa Gelardi, the heroine, acts as secretary and who later, in the secondl, falls in love with the girl.

Miss Brady's leading woman in this production is Omri Hawley, who recently registered a hit in "The Antics of Ann," and who creates the role of Ruth, Aubrey's innocent young sister who falls into the clutches of a pair of foreign sharpers. The direction of "The Phantom Feud" is in the hands of Emile Chautard.

Bert Lytell to Star in Western Play

Bert Lytell will make his bow as a Metro star in the role of a manly hero in a picturization of Charles Alden Seltzer's novel "The Trail to Yesterday." The part of Ned Keeghan, later known as "Dakota," the simple young cowboy, is to be played by Bert Lytell. For his opportunities, it is said, for making his initial Metro picture "a bull's eye hit." This rugged romance will be staged on western cattle ranches, the broad plains and the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Stage Play for Billie Burke

Billie Burke's latest appearance under the Paramount trademark will be in "Eve's Daughter," a picture written by the team of Wyndham and Margaret Turnbull from the play by Alicia Ramsey, which will be issued in March. Florence Flynn, Harriet Ross, Lucile Carney, Mary Navaro and Henry Lee complete the cast of the principal characters. The production was directed by James Kirkwood.

Five Fox Productions Completed

Five new photoplays have been completed at the William Fox studios in the East. The finished pictures are: R. A. Walsh's drama "Woman and the Law," which began an engagement at the Lyric Theatre March 3; William Farnum's production "Rough and Ready," "The Debt of Honor," in which Karen Morley and Herbert Heywood are to appear; "A Camouflage Kiss," a comedy by June Caprice, and "A Daughter of France," a stirring drama starring Virginia Pearson.

"Mr. Fix It" Fairbanks' Next Film

Douglas Fairbanks' next photoplay for Artcraft will be entitled "Mr. Fix It," a story "written by Allan Dwan, the supemising director. It will follow "Headin' South" and will be published in April.

Irene Castle in "Hillcrest Mystery"

Irene Castle is the star of the Pathé play "The Hillcrest Mystery," which will be published on March 24. Ralph Kellogg, Pearl White's leading man in "Pearl of the Army," and also the hero of "The Shielding Shadow," another Pathé serial, is Mrs. Castle's leading man. Wyndham Standing, the well known actor, also has a prominent part in the cast. George Fitzmaurice of Astra directed it. Ouida Bergere wrote both the story and the scenario.

The Hillcrest Mystery" is described as a fast moving, thrilling play, a mystery story with the ending always in doubt. "Convict 993," the preceding Castle picture, audiences will have every solution to the mystery but the right one.
Film Men and Prominent Officials Dedicate New Pittsburgh Playhouse

Harry Davis' New Grand Theatre Scene of Noted Gathering On Opening Day—Mayor Babcock Greets Patrons

The foremost exponents of the world of filmcraft, city, county and state officials, patrician and proletarian Pittsburgh, all witnessed the formal opening to the public of Pittsburgh's newest and most beautiful motion picture theatre, the New Grand Theatre built on the ruins of the old Grand Opera House. Manager Harry Davis, director of the Davis Enterprises, was congratulated on every hand as having accomplished a real masterpiece in the conception of the new playhouse. Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, visited Pittsburgh especially to witness the premiere of the New Grand.

Marguerite Clark, the newly-wed film star, occupied the eyes of a great jovial throng of Pittsburghers and subordinates with her winning beauty and then proceeded to captivate their hearts with a witty acknowledgment of the greeting extended in no uncertain fashion by the audience. During the course of the evening several bouquets were presented at the Marguerite Clark box.

Davis Introduces Mayor

Harry Davis introduced Mayor E. V. Babcock, who proceeded to dedicate the new theatre to Pittsburgh's film world. Manager Davis delivered a terse few sentences himself, thanking the people of Pittsburgh for the immediate appreciation of his efforts.

The loges and boxes were filled with beautifully gowned women and the khaki of the united services. The well-conceived and synchronized music, contributed by an orchestra of 24 pieces, enhanced the presentation of "Headin' South," the latest production of Douglas Fairbanks. Early in the evening pedestrians and motorists on a normally dead Smithfield street was interrupted by long lines of first-nighters awaiting their turn at the box office.

Mayor Babcock was greeted with enthusiastic applause. He said he congratulated Mr. Davis and his associates for their business enterprise in providing for Pittsburgh so magnificent a photoplay house, for in so doing they had done a patriotic service.

Babcock Lauds Enterprise

"Just now the world is filled with war," he said, "and our people, as those of every community, find it difficult to maintain their spirits and not become cast down by the horrors of it all. Firesides deserted, families broken up mutely speak of the sacrifices they have to bear bringing and will continue to bring. How necessary, then, that there should be afforded places of amusement like this, where the uplifting character, that will enable us to forget, for a while at least, the depression which follows contemplation of the strife in which we are engaged."

Miss Clark did not make a long speech. She simply congratulated the people of Pittsburgh on their beautiful new theatre, and Mr. Davis for inviting her to its opening. As she ceased speaking and bowed her acknowledgment of her cordial reception she was again enthused with admiration.

Mr. Zukor also congratulated Pittsburgh and Manager Davis on the magnificence and accommodations of the New Grand, and said it was a marvel of playhouse excellence. Then followed the regular picture program.

Davis Receives Congratulations

Mr. Davis was overwhelmed with congratulations, not only by the people of Pittsburgh and surrounding sections, but from all over the country came telegrams from prominent men and women of the theatrical world. There were immense floral horseshoes sent him as tokens of good luck, and great stands of American Beauty roses, and baskets of the choicest blooms of the conservatory were seen throughout the corridors of the new theatre.

The patronage at the New Grand was the greatest at each of the four performances on opening day—two in the afternoon and two at night—recorded at any theatrical performance in this city. More than 15,000 persons attended the four performances, and from 5,000 to 6,000 had to be turned away.

Goldwyn Activities Increase at Studios With Return of Stars

With the return to Fort Lee of Madge Kennedy, the beginning by Mae Marsh of a new production, and the impetus return from Florida of Mabel Normand, activities at the Goldwyn studios took an added impetus last week.

Madge Kennedy, star of "The Danger Game," scheduled for publication April 7, came back to the studio after an illness of a week. Her absence did not materially affect the progress of the production, for Director Harry Pollard found himself able to photograph a series of short scenes in which the star had no part.

With the completion of "The Face in the Dark," to be published April 21, Mae Marsh will at once begin work on a new production, in which, it is declared, Potato, star of "The Great Adventure," will be the leading lady.

Mabel Normand, who had been in Florida with George T. Tully and several players, making revisions in "Joan of Plattsburg" to conform with a government request that certain military material photographs be eliminated, returned to the studio Saturday ready to start her next production, which is to be made from a famous Broadway stage success.

Snakeville Comedies Will Be Re-Issued Through General Co.

General Film Company begins with the current week the distribution of a series of re-issues of the popular Essanay Snakeville Comedies of a few years ago. These one-reel subjects, featuring the antics of Slippery Jim, will appear once a week. The first ten subjects announced are:

Steiner Enlarges Cliffside Studio

Work on the reconstruction of William Steiner's studio at Cliffside, N. J., where Jester Comedies and other pictures are made, has been completed. With the new improvements, Mr. Steiner announced, the whole studio can turn out anything in the way of pictures from a one-reel to a ten-part feature, regardless of whatever elaboration was previously impossible.

A special house warming was given last week to commemorate the completion of the studio. Covers were spread for two hundred guests. The luncheon was followed by dancing on the new studio floor.

"The Life Mask" Set For Showing March 18

The publication date of "The Life Mask," Mme. Petrova's third picture utilizing her own management, has been set by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit for March 18. The story is in six reels, was adapted to the screen by Mrs. L. Case Ruste and was directed by Frank Crane. I shows the Polish star in a strong emotional role and is set against a background that shifts rapidly from the high social circles of New York to the colorful atmosphere of Spain. The photography of the production is said to present many novel and pleasing features.

Nora Bayes in Films

Nora Bayes, now appearing in Cohan Review, New York, and one of the most popular vaudeville artists on the stage today, will, according to Ad Rosenbaum Jr., her press representative, enter the picture field at the conclusion of the present theatrical season. She has already made a story for her debut, it is said, and is now seeking a producer.
George K. Spoor presents

TAYLOR HOLMES

in "A Pair of Sixes"

By Edward Peple

Screen Opinions says:

"'A Pair of Sixes' is the best thing, by all odds, that Taylor Holmes has done. Those who see it, if there is a drop of humor in their blood, will chuckle continuously—and every now and then the chuckles will be interrupted by a good, big, roaring laugh. Nothing has been skipped to make it a rattling good play—and it shows it."

Offer to Make Girls Film Stars Eyed By Government

Attention of the postal authorities has been directed to the activities of a motion picture enterprise in Chicago which, it is charged, has used the mails to promise employment to girls ambitious to shine as stars in motion pictures.

Through investigation the headquarters of the enterprise has been located in a bedroom of a low-priced South State street hotel. The 6 by 10 office of the Monroe Hotel, 406 South State street, in the neighborhood of basemenet saloons, ladies' barber shops, burlesque shows and penny arcades, is the "general office" of the company.

The clerk in charge said that the "Photoplay Film Mfg.," the only name given by the concern on its stationery, is E. A. Wededa. Wededa, he said, "has gone east" and would not return for a couple of weeks.

In a circular letter the company promised aspiring girls a twenty weeks' engagement at a salary of $45. It was necessary, however, that they send for a manuscript and a book on make-up, etc., that the production might not be delayed when ready to begin. For this a deposit of $1 was asked.

Literature of the company listed Ben R. Selig, president; W. B. West, vice president, and C. H. Sanger, secretary and treasurer. A number of others were named on the board of directors.

It is hardly necessary to state that the Selig Polyscope Company has no connection with the enterprise.

"I think Mr. R. Selig, named as president, nor have I ever heard of him," said Robert Selig, secretary of the Polyscope company. "I am pretty well informed as to people interested in motion picture enterprises, especially those of large scope. I never heard of the company."

Sanford Exhibitor
Arrested on Warrant
For Sunday Pictures

Sanford, Me.—Charles A. Trafton has been arrested on a complaint sworn out by State Detective Edward H. Emery, who is also secretary of the Christian Civic League of Maine. Mr. Trafton, who is the owner of the Colonial theatres in Sanford and Springvale, is charged with running a moving picture show on Sunday evenings. Judge George L. Emery of the Biddeford Municipal Court has been retained as counsel for Mr. Emery and the Civic League.

Mr. Emery said today that the complaint was being brought under the old blue laws, which pertains to Sunday closing.

Mr. Trafton has run his theatres Sunday evenings for several months and says that all the proceeds has been given to charity and that he was only operating the pictures for the sake of the poor of Sanford and other worthy causes. He has counsel, and the hearing is set in the Municipal Court.

Mr. Emery intimated today that this was the beginning of a crusade to close up all picture houses in Maine on Sunday evenings.

Brownsville Fire
Creates Near Panic
In Picture Theatre

Brownsville, Pa.—Fire which for a time threatened the whole of the downtown section here did $15,000 damage and created a near-panic in the Arcade Theatre recently.

The fire, of undetermined origin, broke out in the clothing store of J. Klein, occupying part of a three-story frame structure on Market street, containing the theatre also, and rapidly spread to an adjoining two-story frame building occupied by the Armstrong Realty Company, and from there to a two-story frame building unoccupied, next to the Second National Bank. When smoke poured into the Arcade Theatre the patrons rose in fright and started a rush for the exits, but quieter heads quickly calmed them, and they left in an orderly manner.

The volunteer fire companies from Brownsville and South Brownsville responded to the alarm and prevented further spread of the flames. The firemen were hampered by falling telegraph and telephone wires. The town was without electric light for two hours.

EXPRESS COMPANY IS EXONERATED FOR NOT
"RUSHING" FILM SHOW

Justice Charles Hiscock, of the Court of Appeals, New York, has handed down an important decision. In an appeal from a judgment of the fourth appellate division affirming a judgment of the trial term he rules that an unreasonable delay on the part of an express company to deliver a package which it knew contained motion pictures was not "rushed" because they were to be exhibited and held insufficient to charge the company with loss of profits through small attendance at the consignee's theatre where the films were advertised to be shown.

The action was brought to recover damages for "unreasonable delay" in transportation of films which were delivered to the American Express Co. in Troy for shipment to Utica. There was evidence from which the jury found unreasonable delay in the delivery, and the plaintiff was allowed to recover as damages the profits it was claimed he could have realized from the exhibition of the films if they had been delivered with reasonable promptness.

Goldwyn to Handle
Selexact Features,
"Blue Blood" Firs

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation announces the closing of a deal whereby exhibitions in its theater line have been offered three by motion picture productions from the studios of Selexact Pictures, Inc.

Though publication dates have not been announced for the company's first production, "Blue Blood," starring Howard Hickman, will be ready for release within a fortnight. "Blue Blood" is from the story by W. L. Grab Alexander and Fred Myton, and was directed by Elliot Howe.

Howard Hickman needs no introduction to American motion picture audiences. Originally an actor of the spoken stage, he began his career in a Barnard company, playing opposite Melbourne McDowell. His first screen work was with Universal from which he went to Lasky, where he appeared in "Three Musketeers," "Th Female of the Species." For Triangle he was "The Snail," his most important work. Of late he has been a Paramount player.

Rebel Mitchell and Howard Hickman are co-starred in "Social Ambition," the second of the Selexact productions. This is from the story by E. Wing and directed by Wallace Worsley. Mr. Mitchell, too, began his historic career on the legitimate stage, having served with the Alcazar, San Francisco, and later was seen throughout the country on the Orpheum Circuit. She has appeared on the screen for the New York Motion Picture Company in "Three Musketeers," for the America in "Sealed Lips," "The Great Stolen Secret" and "Gilded Youth," and in "Whither Thou Goest." In recent months she has been a featured Paralta player. Miss Mitchell is starred above "Honor's Cross," the latest of the group. The Selexact productions will be booked entirely apart from Goldwyn Picture though Goldwyn customers will be given the preference in contracting for its group of three specials.

Astounding proof of the puerile weakness of the statement that "The Eagle's Eye" might prove too great a contrast to the thoughts and opinions of German patrons comes from the most thickly populated German and Austrian district in the United States.

This district centers at East 74th street and Second avenue, New York City. Mr. Schawger, proprietor of the Bohemian Annex, 334 East 74th street, booked "The Eagle's Eye."

The night the first episode, "The Hidden Death," was shown, the lobby of the Bohemian Annex was packed to overflowing before the box-office opened. The crowd struggling for positions in the long line was made up almost entirely of registered "enemy aliens," unnaturalized Germans and Austrians, still subjects of their Kaiser and Emperor. Within fifteen minutes after the sale of tickets was started, the Bohemian Annex was packed. And the lobby was still jammed with a throng of late comers.

Surprised by the unexpected number of aliens clamoring for admission, the management requested the co-operation of the police to maintain order. Reserves were sent to the theatre. Within the theatre there was doubt and apprehension. Would these former disciples of Kultur and Hohenzollernism remain passive at the sight of the nobility of their Fatherland, the honored and titled emissaries of their ruler revealed in their true characters as arch plotters and conspirators, possessed of fiendish ingenuity? Would they sit quietly, while before them, on the screen, was enacted, by these leaders from their native lands, the crimes against American lives and American property of which they stand convicted by the facts furnished by Chief Flynn for the production of "The Eagle's Eye."

Or, would they, in their first disbelief of the truth of these pictured facts, cast discretion and self control to the winds, and demand that the picture be stopped.

"The thoughts and opinions of German patrons" was about to be put to the crucial test. It was to be submitted to undeniable evidence of the startling, diabolical depravity of the men who had commanded their reverence and respect as leaders in intelligence, tact, fairness and humane practices. What would be the result?

The first episode was started. The audience remained silent when the pictures of Chief Flynn and the Capitol appeared on the screen. Then came a noticeable stir throughout the house, when the characters of Ambassador von Bernstorff, revered of German diplomats, and his intimate associates, Captains von Papen and Boy-Ed, and Dr. Albert, were shown. The management watched closely for the first indication of a storm of protest as von Bernstorff and his colleagues were shown plotting their murderous parts in the sinking of the Lusitania. But a strange, almost unnatural quiet succeeded the first general stirring by hundreds of forms.
The episode finished. The still, hushed atmosphere continued. The program ended; the audience arose and departed. There was but little talking as they filed out. Their silence was more eloquent than the most tumultuous applause. The crowd waiting anxiously in the lobby and on the street, surged in to take their places. Again the program was repeated. Again a throng of German and Austrian subjects departed, silent and thinking. And when the house closed for the night, the question persisted:

"What did that silence mean?"

Last Tuesday the second episode, "The Naval Ball Conspiracy," was shown. In this Chief Flynn reveals the startling facts of how Imperial German spies attempted to dynamite the Hotel Ansonia, New York, and kill 800 officers of the American Navy, attending a Naval Ball there.

For a second time, the lobby of the Bohemian Annex was jammed before the box-office opened. Many who had witnessed the first episode were recognized in the line. And many new faces were seen. Business for the day was beyond all expectations. Again the audiences were quiet, interested and thoughtful.

Today "The Eagle's Eye" is booked in three other theatres in that district. They are: Claremont Theatre, 74th street and First avenue, little more than a block from the Bohemian Annex; the Yorkville Heights Theatre, 78th street and First avenue, and the Superior Theatre, 81st street and First avenue.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Dealing with the Moving Picture World's Remarks on the Plans of United Picture Theatres of America

Q. Can the opposition of powerful vested interests be combated?

A. Certainly, because the combined power of the exhibitors is greater than that of all the other factors in the industry. Consolidation of offices, cuts in big salaries, elimination of useless service, direct routing, abolition of financier profiteering—these things can be accomplished in the film world by the United Exhibitors just as they are being accomplished in the railroad world today by Director McAdoo.

Q. Is United Pictures Theatres promising anything it cannot perform?

A. No, because the promises are well within the reasonable expectation of what cooperative movements can do. The M. P. World cannot discover one extravagance, unwarranted statement in any of the speeches of Mr. Ochs or our published statements. Are other cooperative companies overstating? We do not know, but we feel sure exhibitors are so strong for the cooperative idea that overstatement is not necessary to secure membership.

Q. Finally, are the men behind United strong enough to put it over?

A. Messrs. Ochs, Seelye, Blumenthal, Goldsmith and the other executives of United Picture Theatres enjoy exhibitor confidence as do no other group of men in the country. They are known to be honest, conservative, forceful and energetic, and can point with pride to their achievements in the film industry.

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

Jimmy Montgomery Farrell is born lucky.
He is also born honest.
That's why luck sticks to him.
He plays and wins, because he is lucky.
And he wins when he doesn’t play, because he's honest.
With that system Jimmy comes out ahead every time.
At cards, money comes rolling Jimmy's way.
If it is bad money, he's lucky enough to spot it.
If it is good money, he's lucky enough not to keep it.
Yet he never gambles. (Only a loser gambles.)
But there are other things Jimmy wins,
He wins respect, He wins a friend, an oil well, an estate,
a lawsuit, a villain's curses, a widow's blessings.
And at last, Jimmy wins the biggest stake in the whole world;
the true love of a real girl! (He's that lucky.)
Thus proving, one may be lucky at cards and lucky in love!

Overlooking Some Good Bets

To be “asleep at the switch” is one of the most severe indictments that can be launched against any business and in one very important respect the film industry may be properly subjected to this arraignment.

It is on the absence of “missionary work” on the ignoring of the big outstanding fact that there are a great many thousands of people throughout the country in almost every classification and social status that should be regular patrons of picture theatres—but are not; and, moreover, are not likely to be unless the allurement of the screen is properly brought to their attention.

In practically every field, whether it be electricity, motor cars or breakfast food, the big successful companies are not content with the market as they find it. Once satisfied that they have something the public wants they are continually on the alert to increase and augment that public.

The various electric lighting companies throughout the country do not merely settle themselves to the task of supplying and accommodating the patrons now on their books. Motor car manufacturers are carrying on intensive campaigns to demonstrate what new uses automobiles may be put to. And in the case of the breakfast food manufacturers we have an example of a vast demand existing almost solely on artificial stimuli brought about through advertising, publicity and general promotional work all aimed to win new customers.

When the motion picture was raised to its present mechanical and artistic standard the industry found a vast ready-made patronage ready to flock into the picture theatres. In the natural course of the business, new followers of films have been added, but the number has been in no way proportionate to the number of new patrons that should be attracted.

In the aggregate in the United States there is a vast army of people who do not attend picture theatres, but among this number there are in reality very few who do not attend stage attractions. And among the patrons of stage theatres there are practically none who are not potential picture fans. But many of these have not as yet been taught that the motion picture has evolved from the nickelodeon stage; they regard films as merely amusement for the masses and with no especial appeal for the erudite.

Among the very few well-thought-out plans for bringing into film theatres those classes of people who are not now patrons is that being conducted by the Famous Players-Lasky Company in exploitation of the picturization of Maeterlinck’s “The Blue Bird.” In circular letters addressed to exhibitors they request a list of names of city and county school superintendents, officers of commercial clubs and merchants’ association, the city librarian, the mayor, members of the city council, heads of woman’s clubs, members of the clergy and prominent citizens.

This is a logical effort to reach out after persons who are not regular patrons and attract them into picture theatres. And the history of films is that once people of this kind are attracted to theatres they are very likely to be pleased and to find reasons for continued patronage.

Of course it would be a mis-directed effort to attempt to bring in these people to witness a pie-throwing comedy, or a wild-eyed melodrama, but their continued patronage is almost assured in advance by their viewing of “The Blue Bird” and other pictures of this type and standard.
It is apparently the plan of this company to address personal invitations to these community leaders whose names they receive, and while this seems an elaborate effort there is every indication that what it will accomplish will be commensurate with the effort.

There are a vast number of pictures that a similar plan could be followed on, and the cumulative effect of such a movement would be an increase of the picture public and an addition to receipts which in the aggregate would be a distinct step forward.

To Those Who Feared

The advertisement of the Wharton Releasing Company, printed on another page of this week’s issue, is a remarkable document attesting to the gross misinformation of those who have maintained that this is a nation divided against itself, that an important part of the public of the United States is so wedded to the interests of Germany and her allies that they placed the welfare of those countries that they abandoned above that of this nation that has given them the liberty, freedom and prosperity that they sought this side of the statue of Liberty.

Short-sighted cowardice is the sole explanation of the attitude of those who have hesitated about running patriotic pictures, pictures that show our enemies stripped of their mask of deception and intrigue and standing bare in their true guise of hideous assailants upon the welfare of humanity. As the experience of the Wharton company attests, the vast majority of our population of German and Austrian descent are loyal to the country of their adoption, to the nation that has convinced them of its high purpose.

Casual Comment

When we hear exhibitors complaining about how bad business is we are inclined to marvel at how interesting running a theatre must be to still retain their undivided attention.

Pioneer Note: J. Stuart Blackton is now “presenting” instead of “directing.”

President Thanks Exhibitors For Aid in War

Washington, D. C.—[Special.]—Praise and appreciation of the nation-wide co-operation of the moving picture theaters in war publicity service is expressed by President Wilson in the following letter addressed to William McCormick Blair of Chicago, director of the Four Minute Men:

“The motion picture theaters of the country are rendering so substantial a service in aiding the Four Minute Men as spokesmen of the national cause that I would not willingly fail to acknowledge the debt the country owes to these managers. Their response to requests has been hearty, and their co-operation is most helpful.

"Will you please convey to them my appreciation of their aid in giving this exclusive privilege to your speakers?"

This letter will be read by 25,000 Four Minute Men during this week in motion picture theaters everywhere in the United States; Panama, Alaska, and Hawaii. It is expected that every theater in the country will be covered.

Mitchel H. Mark
Prominent Exhibitor Claimed by Death

Mitchel H. Mark, president of the Strand Theatre Corporation, New York, died suddenly at his home in Buffalo, N. Y., on March 20, following a brief illness.

Mr. Mark was one of the pioneers of the film industry, having given one of the first public presentations of motion pictures in a small improvised theatre in Silicott Square, Buffalo.

He also conducted a chain of penny arcades through the country and became well known in amusement circles before the cinema theatre became popular.

At the time of his death Mr. Mark owned three theatres in Buffalo and was director of several producing and distributing enterprises. The Strand Theatre, one of the largest and handsomest houses devoted exclusively to pictures in New York, is one of a large number that were interested in both the United States and Canada.

Shortly before his death he completed preparations for the erection of a new motion picture palace at Fulton Street and 37th Street, Brooklyn, which will be one of the largest and most complete in the country, it is said. It will have a seating capacity of 4,500.

Mitchel H. Mark was born in Greenbush, S. C., in 1862, and came to New York when but fifteen years of age. For number of years he conducted a hat store in Buffalo before becoming an exhibitor.

Mr. Mark is survived by a wife, two children, a brother, Moe Mark, and a sister, Mrs. W. Rosenthal.

avid G. Rogers Joins United Pictures Theaters

David G. Rogers has resigned as national organizer of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, and affiliated himself with the United Pictures Theaters of America, Inc. He will have headquarters in Minneapolis.

Plan to Merge Big Booking Circuits
Meeting of Exhibitors to Be Held in New York
To Consider Amalgamation of Cooperative Renting Propositions

INDIANAPOLIS.—(Special to Exhibitors Herald)—As a result of the visit to Indianapolis of Lee A. Ochs, representing the United Picture Theatres of America; Charles F. Pettijohn, representing the Producers and Exhibitors—Affiliated, and C. E. Shurtleff, representing the Hodkinson plan, at various times during the past week, an open meeting for producers and exhibitors from all parts of the United States has been called by Frank J. Rembusch, on behalf of the directors of the American Exhibitors Association, to be held April 8, at the Astor hotel in New York City.

“So many plans are being offered exhibitors in the movement for co-operative buying,” said Mr. Rembusch, “it is almost impossible to settle on one that will answer the needs of all. While some of them incorporate ideas well worth utilizing, they all lack one or two essentials necessary to the continued well-being of the exhibitor.”

For that reason he is urging the exhibitor and producer to get together in an open meeting to iron out their differences and settle on one plan that will meet the requirements of all the exhibitors, and at the same time offer the producers a comprehensive working plan.

Mr. Ochs presented the merits of the United plan to a score or more of Indianapolis exhibitors, who met March 18 at the Hotel Severin, while C. F. Pettijohn and Mr. Shurtleff visited a number of the largest exhibitors in Indianapolis to present the merits of their two plans. On Thursday, however, these two men met Mr. Rembusch. At the close of their conference, Mr. Rembusch made the following

Exhibitors Face Crisis

“Producers and exhibitors of motion pictures during the last year, and especially for the last six months, have been confronted with the most adverse and unfavorable conditions in the history of the industry. The reports received by the Allied Exhibitors’ Legislative Committee show that 40 percent of the motion picture theatres have either closed their doors or are only showing half the usual time, and many exhibitors are running their theatres without profit, but with the lack of co-operation and co-operation within the industry that is causing great loss to both exhibitor and producer.

“The general complaint is over-production, inefficiency, senseless competition in distributing costs, caused, to a great extent, I believe, by the general disorganized condition of affairs, not only in the industry itself, but in the world of finance upon which the structure of the industry rests.

Many Plans Afoot

“Within the last few months, we have had the experience of many remedies for this condition. Some are good, and some are not so good. But back of them all, and in the fabric of their scheme, is the general idea that if the producer and exhibitor could, as a class, get closer together, each could afford mutual protection to the other. There is no film company today but what has a special department to consider the problem facing the exhibitor. On the other hand, exhibitors are beginning to realize the many difficulties that producers are laboring under.

“This one fact, I think, can be attributed at this time, the number of co-operative plans being offered by various agencies which offer a mutual agreement between exhibitor and producer calculated to give real protection to both.

N. Y. Exhibitors Conduct Stiff Fight
For Motion Picture Option Bill

Senator Thompson and Assemblyman Welsh Introduce Measure—Newspapers Assist In Campaign

The Motion Picture Option Bill was introduced into the New York State Legislature on March 21 by Senator George F. Thompson, of Niagara, and Assemblyman Clarence F. Welsh, of Albany. The bill will have a hearing before the joint codes committee of the Senate and Assembly on April 3.

The fate of the bill in reality now depends upon the organized campaign of the up-state exhibitors. The exhibitors of the up-state district of New York have been working shoulder to shoulder for weeks and the campaign is well developed. Whether the Motion Picture Option Bill becomes a law completely depends entirely upon the handling of the up-state fight to organize public sentiment and influence the votes of the legislative districts.

The bill is the same as recently approved, with the exception of an added clause suggested by the Conference of Mayors of the State of New York, which has been inserted into the bill as introduced. This clause reads:

"Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the common council, or any other local governing body, from authorizing motion picture exhibitions at any hour after two o'clock in the afternoon on such day."

Approved by Mayors

This measure was approved by the State Conference of Mayors, and it is also announced that it has the endorsement of the New York State Federation of Labor. The People's Institute, through its head, John Collier, has emphatically approved of the bill and declared it a public necessity.

The introduction of the bill was in charge of a committee representing the motion picture interests, and composed of Max Spiegel, secretary of the Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, controlling the Strand chain of theatres; Henry C. Price, representing the exhibitors of Buffalo and Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

Last week's work on the Motion Picture Option Bill started on March 19 at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, with a two-day conference between the exhibitor-captains, appointed at the previous Albany session, and the Allied Committee of the Motion Picture Industry. At this previous meeting an exhibitor-captain was appointed for each of the fifty-one senatorial districts of the state, the exhibitor-captain in turn being given the authority of appointing three associate exhibitors as aides to cover the assembly divisions of his district.

These exhibitor-captains got together at the Ten Eyck on Tuesday and presented detailed reports of the work accomplished in their individual districts. These reports indicate a general change in the sentiment of legislators toward the exhibition of motion pictures on Sunday since the subject was agitated at the legislative session a year ago.

The fruits of the campaign are already manifesting themselves. In Buffalo, for instance, an exhibitors' committee for Sunday opening is conducting a strenuous campaign. In the past week this organization has secured the unanimous support of all Buffalo daily and Sunday newspapers. These publications are running big news articles and half-column editorials backing the campaign for the exhibition of Sunday motion pictures.

Using Newspapers

In Schenectady the exhibitors have organized and are pooling their advertising, buying half pages in the Schenectady newspapers to tell the public their reasons for wanting Sunday motion pictures. Exhibitors in other cities are doing this, following out a campaign carefully mapped out at the Albany meetings.

Meetings are now being held in various cities and towns throughout the state, at which exhibitors are organizing for their individual district campaigns. It is realized that the ultimate fate of the Motion Picture Option Bill entirely depends upon the vigor put into the fight up-state.

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company took motion pictures of the Allied Committee in Albany, and also took close-ups of Senator Thompson and Assemblyman Welsh. These pictures will be given wide distribution throughout the state during the campaign.

Motion picture men are being congratulated upon the tactful way their campaign has been conducted in Albany, and particularly that they were able to secure two such able and distinguished legislators as Senator George F. Thompson and Assemblyman Clarence F. Welsh to sponsor the bill.

"Hearts of World"

To Open at Lyric
New York, May 15

In all probabilities David Wark Griffith's latest masterpiece, "Hearts of the World," will open its New York engagement at the Lyric Theatre, on 42nd street, March 31.

It was at first planned to show the big war picture at the Metropolitan Opera House, and negotiations were under way between the management of the immense Broadway Theatre and S. L. Rothafel, managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli Theatres, where the spectacle was to have been presented from May 15 until some time next October.

However, it was regarded of the utmost importance to present the picture at once, and not wait until May 15. The close of the opera season, and the date of its eastern presentation has, therefore been advanced to next Monday night.

The picture will also be shown in London under the auspices of the British government about the same time as its New York premier.

A BIG SCENE FROM "STOLEN ORDERS"
The first practical step in the campaign to co-operate with the trade papers and magazines that are allied with the motion picture industry to repeal the new zone postal law on second-class postal matter that goes into effect July 1, was taken by the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, Inc., at their meeting held March 31 at Keen's Chop House, New York City.

Charles Johnson Post, director of the Publishers' Advisory Board, which represents practically every publishers' association in the United States, as well as the Allied Printing Trades Council and the Authors' League, spoke at some length upon the evil effects of the law, and urged immediate action to prevent its stranglehold on the periodicals of his country.

In his official capacity Mr. Post represents publications having a combined circulation of 40,000,000 copies. He is an authority upon the working of the law, and has already been instrumental in educing thousands of petitions to congressmen asking for the repeal of this unprecedented and drastic legislation. Among the many interesting phases of the question that Mr. Post brought out were the following:

"The Postoffice Department was not established, developed or intended to be one of the Treasury instrumentalities for raising revenue. It has not been endowed with increasing powers. It is expected to facilitate intercommunication between the people of the nation. This is its paramount function."

"If the zone system which had obtained up to that period was abolished by President Lincoln. Every postal commission from that time has denounced the zone system which has been established by this 30 to 900 per cent periodical postal increase for revenue. "This penalty increase on periodical postage will repel business and decrease revenue; and it means that hundreds of thousands of our citizens will cut down their reading at a great crisis in our national history, when the most widespread reading is a thing highly to be desired—and when the President and members of the Cabinet are appealing to the newspapers and periodicals for the greatest possible assistance in spreading ideas of patriotic education and stimulation."

"Surely the publishers, who are ready at this crisis to make patrician sacrifice of their interests from any other group in the nation, would not resist the imposition of this tax so earnestly if they could stand up under it. They are opposed to this amendment because it means the destruction of their business. If that is the intent of the advocates of increased rates on second-class matter, their purpose will be achieved." C. W. Barrell, of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, was asked by Chairman Arthur James to draft a resolution expressing the association's stand in the matter, at the conclusion of Mr. Post's remarks. This resolution will be submitted at the next meeting of association.

As chairman of the committee having the question in charge, Mr. Barrell is also arranging a joint meeting of the trade paper and motion picture magazine interests and the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, with Mr. Post and other speakers to lead the discussion.

Parrott Joins King Bee

Charles Parrott, formerly director of Keystone comedies, is now director-general of the King-Bee Billy West comedies.

Mr. Parrott has been in California for several seasons, and has directed many other comedies and plays. He was formerly in vaudeville and won considerable success as an Irish monologist.

Mr. Parrott is now working on his first King-Bee comedy, to be published May 1.

General Loses Salesman

John J. McDonald, assistant to Sales Manager A. Schmidt in the home office of General Film Company, New York, has resigned to accept a position as a war secretary and physical director for overseas service in the Y. M. C. A. He will leave in a few weeks to take charge of the recreation work at one of the Y. M. C. A. huts back of the American trenches or in one of the foreign training camps.
Screen Paves the Way for Third Liberty Loan Drive Throughout U.S.

Seventeen Thousand Trailers to Be Distributed To Theatres—N. A. M. P. I. Committee Works With Treasury Department

Adolph Zukor, chairman of the committee appointed by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry to co-operate with the Treasury Department of the government has announced the details concerning the activities of the motion picture industry in connection with the third Liberty Loan drive.

"In the third Liberty Loan campaign," said Mr. Zukor, "the motion picture industry will play a more important part than it has evidenced in previous drives. Careful preparation of plans in collaboration with Secretary McAdoo has made this possible. Every motion picture theatre in the country, regardless of size or locality, is involved in this new campaign. "Seventeen thousand five hundred trailers have been prepared. These films will be sent to every motion picture theatre throughout the land. The trailer runs fifty feet and opens with the new Liberty Loan flag, followed by a view of Secretary McAdoo at his desk writing a message to the people on the new loan. Next comes a close-up of the message, followed by a close-up of the Liberty Loan button, which concludes the film. The message which will be flashed on the screens by this film reads:"

"We must support our gallant sailors and soldiers. We must make them swift victors in their fight with the kaiser. We can do it if we at home do our duty with the same quality of patriotism that animates our men in the trenches. The least duty we can perform—and we should be eager and happy to perform it—is to lend our money, every available dollar we have and can save, to our government in order that our gallant sons may be supplied with all they need to save America. No true patriot will fail to buy United States Liberty Bonds."

"William G. McAdoo."

"With this film there will be distributed 100,000 posters, five to each theatre and twenty to each exchange. These posters have been prepared under the supervision of our committee in collaboration with the government and present striking illustrations of great patriotic appeal. They are the creations of such artists as Howard Chandler Christy, Louis J. Dresser, Franklin Booth, H. H. Green and Harry S. Bressler."

"In making this announcement, I personally wish to urge exhibitors everywhere to put this material to the best possible use, running the film at every show, not merely as a trailer, but separate and apart from any other film, thus giving it added distinction. These films are presented to exhibitors gratis. They are not to be returned, but may be kept by those who receive them. Both film and paper will be mailed direct to the theatre by the Government, and it is urged, should be used throughout the entire duration of the forthcoming campaign.

"As a result of this concerted action on the part of exhibitors everywhere in the United States, the power of the screen will be evidenced in one gigantic thrust. The Big Push! on the other side is now under way, and it is up to every person at home to put his shoulder to the Big Push! which starts here on April 6th, and which will mean new muscle behind this wallow everywhere which must lay the Kaiser low. The motion picture industry is fortunate in having such a wide scope in which to help Uncle Sam, and every person connected with it should realize the particular opportunity afforded us to further prove the importance of the screen in assisting the Government in its great work."

War Preparations Shown in Current Screen Telegram

The progress of the war, at home as well as in the trenches, is graphically told in issues 6 and 7 of the Screen Telegram, published by the Mutual Film Corporation March 20 and 24.

The extent of America's preparations is shown in pictures from many sections of the United States. At Atlanta the governor of Georgia and the mayor of Atlanta plowed up a city block to plant war gardens. At Racine, Wis., they are making thousands of tractors for France.

At St. Louis an armless veteran of Verdun is training teachers to teach wounded American soldiers. At St. Paul a huge statue of Germania was razed. Detroit pigeons raisers are training pigeons to carry messages to the trenches. The school children of Denver are learning to knit and the troops in the southwest are receiving great consignments of knitted wear from the Red Cross.

"Over There" the American troops are entering the trenches, pictures showing their departure, the operation of trench kitchens and the training of hospital units for trench duty are shown. In Morocco the natives troops are being trained for duty in France. Official French war films show Italian and French engineers operating a trench digger and throwing up wire entanglements in preparation for the threatened Austrian advance.

A hospital near Evian, France, is caring for hundreds of war orphans. Scenes from France reveal the utter destruction of the beautiful cathedral of St. Andrews. Another scene shows a hospital near the trenches operated solely by Scotch women.

Other news pictures in the week's Telegram include the presentation of a silk flag to the U. S. S. Recruit at Union Square, New York; women of Chicago learning the operation of tractors; the start of a nation wide ad club tour and a trainload of oil cars wrecked at Clinton, 1a.

Los Angeles Bows to D. W. Griffith

Premiere of “Hearts of the World” Occasion of Enthusiastic Outburst -- New Production Said to Surpass “The Birth of a Nation”

SWIFTLY and with ever increasing momentum sweeping eastward from the Pacific coast comes the tribute of Los Angeles to David Wark Griffith, the master hand, whose latest production, “Hearts of the World,” had its premiere at Clune’s auditorium recently.

As the last reel faded from the screen a tense silence pervaded the three thousand persons present which was broken by a mighty cheer in a distant corner of the house. Spectators rose from their seats and amidst the thunderous applause that followed the one insistent note was the demand for Mr. Griffith’s appearance.

The wizard of the cinema art walked unsteadily to the center of the stage overcome with emotion by the tribute paid to his work. He strove vainly for the words that would not come and then in a choked voice thanked his admirers.

“If you mean this and the picture makes an honest appeal or our fighting boys, am I not all the hard work I have put into it,” he said, and withdrew.

* * *

THE film has been more than a year in the making and has demanded Mr. Griffith’s presence in the war one, in England and his country. It deals with the large human subjects involved in the European struggle in a powerfully dramatic way and involves scenes in the trenches which are of indubitable authenticity.

Mr. Griffith was chosen by the British war office as the one man who had the genius to film a historic drama of the great war. It was decided a motion picture of the quality Mr. Griffith could produce would be of immeasurable value for propaganda work. It is the statement of an official of the cinematograph committee of the British war office that no other citizen has been given the opportunity to visit the battle fronts the producer has.

This fact is borne out by the picture itself which contains battle scenes so far superior to those which have thus far been shown as to make comparisons ridiculous. Many were taken in the war zone by cameramen actually under fire and they earn the stamp of actuality which increases their effectiveness.

“It is a triumph of motion picture work,” said W. E. Bruce of the British war office, “and I believe the story will live forever. Mr. Griffith has more than proven worthy of the confidence the British war office placed in his genius and high purpose.”

D. W. G.

Robert Harron, Lillian and Dorothy Gish are the featured players with George Fawcett in support.

In “Hearts of the World” Mr. Griffith is said to have surpassed “The Birth of a Nation,” up to the present time the masterpiece of the cinema art and bearing the stamp of his handwork. Nothing could be more fitting than that this great master should contribute a deathless memento of the greatest struggle in which mankind has ever been engaged.

Among the celebrities of filmm are those who witnessed the premiere were Theda Bara, Robert Harron, Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Charlie Chaplin, Mack Sennett, Dustin Farnum, Winifred Kingston, James Young, Edna Purviance, J. Gordon Edwards, Douglas Fairbanks, C. Gardner Sullivan, J. Stuart Blackton, Fannie Ward, Jack Dean, Mae Murray, May McAvoy, Doris Minter, Dorothy Dalton, Louise Glauin, Reginald Barker, Bes-sie Barriscale, George Siegmann, Roscoe Arbuckle, Olive Thomas and Lottie Pickford.
General Film Company will begin the distribution of a series of one-reel comedies produced by the Ebony Film Corporation of Chicago, to be known as the Ebony Comedies, starting April 15 with the first publication. These subjects, which feature a capable company of negro actors, will be issued weekly for an indefinite period, the first twenty negatives being already finished.

The Ebony Comedies feature the inevitable native humor of the American negro. Several releases were given audience try-outs in New York last week and they satisfied General Film officials of their entertainment value. This is the first successful attempt to film comedies of this character. The excellence of the work done by the Ebony players and the perfect photography which eliminates any obscurity in facial expressions promises a great novelty in these subjects.

Score Big Success

The tremendous success scored by the negro and black-face comedians of the legitimate stage is expected to be repeated in the film work by the Ebony Comedies, inasmuch as each subject is packed with clever laugh making stunts. The comedies are expected to be booked by motion picture exhibitors for a regular place on the daily program as a sure fire number.

The following subjects have been announced for publication: "A Black Sherlock Holmes," "Spying the Spys," "The Potters," "A Milk Fed Hero," "Busted Romance" and "Spooks." The first release is a highly amusing burlesque on the well-known detective of fiction fame in which the hero and his Dr. Wat-

Fred Wright Making

Study of Film Field

Fred Wright, one of the best known motion picture directors in the country, is in New York considering a proposition from two well known capitalists to go into the picture producing business. Before closing with them Mr. Wright will make a careful survey of the distributing end of the industry for the purpose of ascertaining the maximum cost at which a picture may be produced and give a fair return on the original investment.

For several years Mr. Wright was under contract with Essanay, later going with Pathe for whom he directed Mrs. Irene Castle.

MUTUAL OPENS NEW YORK EXCHANGE WHICH IS MODEL OF COMPLETENESS

Occupies Portion of Tenth Floor of Mecca Building—Handsome Offices Present Every Convenience—Projection Room Well Equipped

The New York Exchange of Mutual Film Corporation is now established in its new quarters in the Mecca building, 1500 Broadway. The exchange occupies about two-thirds of the entire tenth floor, or approximately 6,500 square feet.

The plans for the new exchange were drawn by G. B. Svenson, Mutual's construction engineer, who personally supervised the work. Mr. Svenson, who has made an exhaustive study of film-exchange problems, has incorporated in the arrangement and structure of the exchange some novel ideas which make for convenience and safety.

J. Sullivan, the newly appointed New York Manager, assumed charge February 15, and has inaugurated some advanced methods of film display and exploitation. The general arrangement of the offices is such that he can keep in close touch with all his employees and can give his personal attention to exhibitors.

As you enter the office you find a spacious reception room, the walls hung with oil paintings of Mutual stars. On one side is the executive office, the manager's office, the assistant manager's office, bookkeeping department and the billing department. On the other side of the room is the feature booker's office, a private sales office and the cashier's office. The walls are lined with quarter-sawn oak, wainscotting the height of the partitions and very handsomely furnished.

Convenient Arrangement

In the rear of the office are two doors, one leading directly to the film department and the other to the waiting room, used by the film messengers. The cashier's office has direct connection with the film messenger's waiting room.

In the film department every precaution has been taken to prevent accidents and eliminate fire hazards. In this department are three film vaults equipped with the latest improvements, one examination room and one large shipping room. The doors to the film vaults are equipped with thermostatic closing devices. When the temperature in the film and shipping room reaches two hundred degrees, the doors of the vaults automatically close. Each vault is equipped with four sprinkler heads, pressure relief vents and other requirements recommended by the Fire Underwriters and the Bureau of Fire Prevention.

The exhibition room is equipped with two machines, which guarantee uninterrupted screening of pictures, and has a seating capacity of twenty. It is easily accessible from the sales room.

Probably the most radical difference to the ordinary exchange is in the location of the film and poster departments. They are located in the rear and away from the elevator and entrance hall, but access and egress are afforded through a long corridor leading from the main entrance hall to the rear of the building.

Safety first was the principal object in the arrangements of the new quarters. Easily accessible exits are provided, and the quarters in general are so constructed as to guarantee the very best service to the exhibitor.

Rothapfel Enrolls With Marine Corps

After being out of the Marine Corps for over ten years, S. L. Rothapfel of the Rivoli and the Rialto theatres, New York, has enrolled again with the temporary rank of sergeant and will be given a commissioned officer'ship in a few days. He will be attached to the Publicity Bureau of the Marine Corps and will make trips to Cuba, Quantico, Va., and elsewhere, for the purpose of taking pictures of the Marines to be used for propaganda throughout the country.

His new duties will not require him to give up the managing directorship of the two theatres identified with his name. Mr. Rothapfel saw service as a marine during the Boxer uprising, in the Canal Zone, and on the Caribbean Sea, rising from a private to a first lieutenant before he returned to civil life.

Shurtleff Visits Hodkinson Branches

C. E. Shurtleff, general sales manager for the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, left New York on March 22 for an extended trip covering Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis and Chicago.

Mr. Shurtleff plans to be away until after the first of April in a campaign to speed up the sales of Hodkinson Service throughout the central and middle West.

Before leaving, Mr. Shurtleff stated he was very optimistic concerning the business being signed up by the branches of Hodkinson Service. "My trip," he said, "will be one not only of inspection, but also to do some real intensive sales work in each territory, bolster up any of our weak spots, which, fortunately, are not many, and also outline to many of our most representative exhibitors the Hodkinson Co-partnership plan, which is now developing in first-class shape."

Taylor Holmes Gets Gold Cigarette Case

At the conclusion of his week of personal appearances at the Rialto theatre, New York, during the presentation of "Ruggles of Red Gap," Taylor Holmes was presented with a handsome gold cigarette case on which was engraved a few words expressing the appreciation of the Rialto Corporation for his kindness in delivering his monologue every afternoon and evening throughout the week. The presentation was made on the stage on the occasion of the recipient's final appearance and took him completely by surprise.

Fifty Chicago Exhibitors Sign for Membership in United Picture Theatres

C. W. Bunn's Office Will Have One Hundred Days Instead Of Four Weeks as Originally Planned—Branches Established in South

The visits of President Ochs and Vice-President Seely to middle Western cities have resulted in large accessions to the membership of United Picture Theatres of America, the company announces. Manager C. W. Bunn signed up fifty Chicago theatres following the Ochs visit and the latter's addresses to the exhibitors of Chicago territory.

"The Chicago office," writes Mr. Ochs, "will have one hundred days inside of four weeks. Indeed, I should not be surprised if the Chicago territory gave our plan no less than two hundred days of bookings altogether."

The announced plan of United Picture Theatres is to start wholesale co-operative buying of films for its members after two thousand booking days shall have been secured. For Chicago alone to take from 5 to 10 per cent of this aggregate, would indicate that the plan is in fair way of realization. The general interest in the plan is shown by the fact that applications for fifteen days had to be rejected because they happened to be opposition houses to those that had already signed. Each member is to be carefully protected in his drawing territory, and there will be no cutting down of receipts by permitting two houses to appeal to the same neighborhood patrons with the same films.

From Chicago Mr. Ochs paid flying visits to Cincinnati and St. Louis and then visited the southwest, with stops at Memphis, Little Rock, Dallas and New Orleans. C. R. Seelye is organizing branch offices in these cities, putting men in charge who are thoroughly acquainted with the needs of Southwestern exhibitors.

The keynotes of the organization are economy and efficiency. The proper handling of film distribution over the widespread area is being carefully studied with the view of cutting out unnecessary expense, ensuring rapid shipments, and doing away with "positive waste"—i.e., the idle days resulting from the ordering of superfluous prints.

In New York the efforts of Arthur S. Abeles, Eastern representative, and Aaron Corn, city sales manager, are lining up additional metropolitan houses every day. The home offices of United Theatres at 1600 Broadway, New York, presents a busy scene daily. There are always a dozen to twenty picture managers visiting headquarters to discuss the new plans and figure out the particular requirements of their houses in reference to the general scheme.

Another live Eastern center is Boston, with Stanley Hand in active charge. Messrs. N. I. Filkins, in Buffalo, Joseph Schwartzblume, in Minneapolis, C. S. Edwards in Kansas City, and Gilbert Heydon in Montana, likewise report great activity, the general friendliness of exhibitors, and the actual lining up of new members daily. Conservatively it may be stated that the first five hundred of the desired two thousand booking days are in sight, though as yet only seven branch offices have been started and three-quarters of the country remains to be covered.

Many facts of value to further the movement we have on foot.

Welcomes Good Plan

"The American Exhibitors Association has no corer intent beyond keeping general lines. We are clearly open-minded on the subject and are ready to consider any plan offered. However, analyzing the propositions that have been offered it seems that the principal reason the exhibitors haven't taken up this question is that no definite, concrete plan has been offered, and, furthermore the plans that have been offered only contemplate the booking of one film production a week, or one a month. It seems that this would not improve the present conditions.

"We now have more productions than the market is able to assimilate, and, together with the high cost of production, it would be much better if some arrangements could be made for a number of well-known producers to group themselves together to eliminate overhead expenses and to further one another. And such a plan would be certain of adoption if the exhibitors would show enough interest to favor that kind of a combination, and its adoption would be better if some outside value to exhibitor and producer alike.

"We have never had a meeting since the organization of the association when the producers and exhibitors discussed these general principles. The idea we had in mind, in calling this conference, is to obtain an exchange of ideas, and all that are presented will get consideratation. The meeting in Washington, D. C., in December resulted in such splendid results on the tax question, there is no doubt in our minds but that the meeting in New York City, April 8, will bring about a much better understanding between these two branches of the industry and accomplish results that will be lasting."

Following the conference between Messrs. Pettijohn, Shurtleff and Remington, the board of directors named left for New York City, to arrange the details of the April 8 meeting.

General Reissues

Snakeville Comedies

Intensive treatment has been given the ten Snakeville comedies issued by Es- sanay through General Film with the expectation that they will duplicate their former popularity. New film, new titles, new cuts, and careful editing has made these single reel subjects with western settings most acceptable as program. ad- juncts for any sort of theatre, it is said. The nominal adventures of "Slippery Slim" are well remembered by showmen, and a most consistent group of films has been assembled for this new edition.

Well, some time has elapsed since the Spirit of Water was so manifest on Broadway, but Mary Kennedy is doing her bit in “The Blue Bird,” as the nymph of Water, and Maeterlinck wouldn’t deny that she is good if he could see her.

King Bee has let out a director all for the sake of a Parrott. “Say, uncle, you son-of-a-gun.”

The Outing Magazine is going into the picture business, according to a story sent out by a press agent. And wishing Outing all the luck in the world, we hope they will get a good pilot and keep off the “Breakers.”

While Morgan Bryan of the General Film Company is still an artist, he is having most all his drawings done on the outside. Dr. Pullem just finished sixteen for Bryan and now the two of ‘em are going in for bridge building. “You said a mouthful, Kid.”

Nicholas Power Company ran away with the entire trade at the Hotel McAlpin, at the big aero-persiflage meeting, and believe me the dinner and the gathering was the finest that ever turned out in New York to honor any one. All returned to their hangars safely. There were no casualties.

Earl Strong, of the Whartons, Incorporated, who are releasing “The Eagle’s Eye,” sure has the knack or skill of turning out the catchy copy.

That old artist and master of publicity and advertising, Hop Hadley, who like the American Eagle inhabits the highest crags and peaks to be found on the American continent, has been so beset of late by squab and birds of highflying plumage, that he has been forced in self-defense to employ some chicken hawks to put the jasbo on some of the troublesome birds. The latest fad in Times Square is “Hawking atop the Times building with Hop.”

Edward Earl Given Testimonial Dinner At Hotel McAlpin

A hundred friends and associates gathered in the Green Room of the Hotel McAlpin, New York, on Thursday evening, March 21, and tendered a testimonial dinner to Edward Earl, president of the Nicholas Power Company.

G. Warren Landon acted as toastmaster and, following a sumptuous repast, introduced the various speakers of the evening. Mr. Landon livened up the crowd by his sallies of wit and many were the expressions of esteem with which Mr. Earl was bombarded.

John A. Morrison was the first speaker and delivered himself of several delightful Scotch stories as well as an appreciation of Mr. Earl’s qualifications as a good fellow and an upright citizen.

Frank H. Richardson, P. A. Powers, J. S. MacDonald, Will C. Smith and J. R. Rubin also made informal addresses. Mr. Earl was presented with a basket of American beauty roses and an engraved plaque commemorative of the occasion. He cordially thanked the assembled guests for their expressions of appreciation and the gifts.

A negro jazz band furnished the music and sang popular and old-time melodies with everyone joining in the chorus. The trade press was well represented.

Julia Arthur Enters Motion Picture Field

Julia Arthur, the actress, has abandoned her producing plans for this season and relinquished her rights in the last of three plays she had obtained for her personal use.

Miss Arthur has opened headquarters at the Bilmore Hotel, New York, to complete plans for entering the motion picture field, according to her personal representative. In anticipation of several months’ work for the screen before the next regular theatrical season she has obtained the rights to an original scenario by Charles K. Harris, the song writer, and is negotiating for the film rights of two recent stage successes.

Scranton Photoplay Corp. Negotiates
For Purchase of Rocky Glen, Pa., Studio
To Produce Six-Reel Features for State Rights Market—
Jesse J. Goldburg to Handle—Six Comedies
Now Ready

The Scranton Photoplay Corporation, which has announced for the immediate publication of six one-reel comedies, featuring Charlie Chaplin, the Chinese comedian, have already expanded operations and will commence the producing of six and seven-reel photoplays, to be issued by way of the state rights market through Jesse J. Goldburg.

Negotiations are pending for the purchase of the Crystal Palace, at Rocky Glen, Pennsylvania, situated six miles out of Scranton. The Crystal Palace, is the largest all glass enclosed structures in the United States, and it is said is perfectly suited to motion picture studio purposes.

C. R. De Barge, the vice president and director general of the Scranton Photoplay Corporation, was born in Amsterdam, Holland, and educated in the Adene Royal at Antwerp. Upon completing his education there he went to Paris and studied dramatic art for three years, after which he was engaged by Pathe Freres, Paris, and continued in their employ for several years, and was thereafter engaged as director by the British Colonial Picture Company, London. Upon completing this contract Mr. De Barge came to America and worked for the old Imp and Biograph companies. He then returned to Amsterdam, Holland, and entered the legitimate dramatic field in Louis Baunmester's Company playing in stock. It was here that Lou Tellegen first received his dramatic training.

Returning to America Mr. De Barge was engaged by the Famous Players' Corporation and supported, among other stars, Mary Pickford, Donald Brian and Pauline Frederick. He then directed the productions of the French Art Pictures Corporation, producing among others "Mother's Fate" and "The Ten Commandments."

Before joining the Scranton Photoplay Corporation Mr. De Barge was connected with the Sidney Olcott Players in the production "The Belgian." From the wide experience of Mr. De Barge in motion pictures both here and abroad the Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation feel that their future productions will merit the confidence which they have placed in him.

Strand Theatre N. Y.
To Show First-Run
First National Films

Deal Closed With Mark Rea-ty Company Last Week
Includes Chaplin
Comedies

Last Thursday a deal was consummated between the members of the Mark Realty Company, owners of the Strand Theatre, New York, and the executives of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, whereby the associates of the late Mitchell H. Mark have secured an interest in the New York franchise, giving them the first-run rights on all features released by the First National, including the Charlie Chaplin comedies.

The Strand, with a seating capacity of 3,000, is one of the largest high-class motion picture houses in the country, and is considered the ideal theatre in which to give First National attractions their initial showing, not only from the aesthetic point of view, but for the practical reason that the greatest number of patrons can be reached in the shortest space of time.

The negotiations leading up to this deal were carried on quietly for some time between the First National chiefs and Messrs. Moe Mark, Walter Hays, Max Spiegel and Eugene Falk, executives of the Mark Realty Company. Mitchell H. Mark, prior to his death, had expressed his approval of the arrangement, but was too ill to take active part in the negotiations.

Marked Achievement

Under the provisions of its charter the First National Exhibitors' Circuit is obliged to lease its New York franchise to exhibiting interests of the highest standing. In closing with the Mark Corporation, it is believed that the most desirable possible ends have been achieved. Judging from the many congratulatory messages that have reached First National headquarters, this opinion is general throughout the circuit.

The Mark Realty Company of Buffalo and New York is a monument to the sagacity and foresight of the late Mitchell H. Mark has secured an interest in American exhibitors of motion pictures and to win national prominence. After successful pioneering work in Buffalo and Boston, and he and associates built the Strand in New York as the highest type of theatre devoted to the showing of motion pictures with musical accompaniment.

Since its opening on April 11, 1914, the Strand has maintained a uniformly superior level of motion picture entertainment allied with musical art, and has represented an ideal in the field of exhibition toward which hundreds of other owners and managers have striven. The Strand was the first high-class house in the world to feature Charlie Chaplin, and in securing first-run rights for the new series of $1,000,000 comedies the same progressive policy that has built up the Strand for miles of the big theatre is in evidence. The rental figure that the management has agreed to pay for the Chaplin product has not been divulged, but it is understood that top all offers on record in the field of comedy.

In addition to the Strand, the Mark Realty Company owns and operates a dozen other prosperous theatres and properties through the east, including the Strand, the Academy and Victoria Theatres, of Buffalo; the Strand of Syracuse and the Strand of Lynn, Mass.

"Humdrum Brown" easily ranks among the best of the year's screen productions. Both from a dramatic as well as an entertaining standpoint. It contains a goodly amount of humor and pathos and is at all times appealing. It is the kind of picture which the entire family can attend and enjoy, have a good laugh and maybe shed a few tears. The ending, however, is the sort that makes every one leave happy with themselves and the world.

Henry Walthall's artistic work is well known to picture patrons and his Humdrum Brown is a living, vibrant character not easily forgotten. Mary Charleson accords him excellent support as does Anna Mae Walthall, Harold Crampton and several little "kiddies." The direction is by Rex Ingram.

The story: Every time Brown believes he has a pretty good start toward the dream house which he and Alicia are planning, something happens, his funds are necessarily used up and he has to begin all over. The last blow comes when the bank at which he is employed is closed. Without explaining why he breaks his engagement with Alicia and goes to another city in search of work. He finally becomes a clerk in a hotel. During his absence an aged suitor of Alicia's dies and leaves her his fortune. She hurries in search of Brown, but first plans to invest the money. Invention sharks get hold of her money, but she tells Brown everything and he assists in the capture of the sharks. Alicia's money is used in helping the old bank to reopen and at last there are indications that the couple's dream is about to come true.

Undoubtedly "The Family Skeleton" will prove a disappointment to many. It does not contain that wholesome, homely humor which has marked former Charles Ray productions and which audiences, to anticipate. It is true, the production is well done for its type, but its story is not appealing, being that of a man who fearing the outcome of an inherited habit, seeks solace in whisky in a cheap, dirty place. It is not a production to which parents can bring their children and enjoy an evening's entertainment. Charles Ray is excellent in his role and there are a number of good points about the story. Its moral is a la Billy Sunday. Victor L. Schertzinger is the director.

The story: Billy Bates believes that he has inherited the desire for strong drink from his father and in order to live apart from his friends unmolested, he retires to a cheap saloon where each day finds him sinking lower. Poppy Drayton loves Billy and she decides to save him from himself. Her little plan of having some one kidnap her proves just the right thing and Billy finds that he can do without John Barleycorn when the safety of the girl he loves is at stake.

There is nothing specially attractive about "The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit." It is a number of disjointed episodes, lacks continuity and has little that will invite special interest or enthusiasm. It even falls below the average program feature, and yet where Louise Lovely is a favorite possibly spectators will obtain some enjoyment in watching her work, as she dominates the story for the greater part of the five reels. Philo McCullough has the leading male role.

The story: Roscoe Tracey, innocent of any crime, is serving a prison term for robbery and murder, having been convicted on circumstantial evidence. His daughter Joan is anxious for his release and through the prison warden learns that the recovery of a certain chest held in storage may clear her father. She gets on the trail of the chest and finds that Jim Younger, her sweetheart, cleared the chest. Opening it she finds the chest contains the evidence of the charge of murder which was the murderer. Tracey is freed and Jim and Joan take up their life where they left off, a few years prior.

This is one of those clean, wholesome pictures, smile producing and containing some food for thought; all in all excellent entertainment. It depicts the antics of a girl home for the holidays from a finishing school who finds her parents too occupied with business and social functions to give her any of their time.

AN INTERESTING SCENE FROM "NANCY COMES HOME," WITH MYRTE LIND IN LEADING ROLE. (Triangle.)

It also marks the debut of Myrte Lind as a star in Triangle features and her performance augurs well for her future. Jack Gilbert also does commendable work.

The story: Nancy Worthing comes home to find her parents in the Christmas vacation with visions of luncheons, shopping tours and parties at the theatre. Her dream is rudely shattered when she finds her mother's social demands and her father's business engagements do not permit of entertainment for her. Through pawning her mother's coat and some jewelry she obtains money to fit herself out as a society girl and then insists that the Worthing chauffeur take her out for the evening. In a cafe, they are the unwilling witnesses to a shooting and the chauffeur is arrested as the guilty man. When searched at the station Nancy's handbag is found and also the pawn tickets. The eldest Worthing goes bail for him in an effort to learn how the pawn tickets came into his possession but he remains loyal to Nancy and refuses the information. Rather than let him be returned to jail Nancy confesses the whole thing and the father realizing the blame rests with him and his wife for their negligence, forgives. The chauffeur makes known his true identity as the son of a wealthy friend of the Worthing's and increasing friendliness of the young couple is indicated.

"MORAL SUICIDE"

Graphic Film Co. drama; seven parts; published State rights

"Moral Suicide," written and directed by Ivan Abramson, presents a rather unique version of the sex problem. It contains a strong moral lesson which has been handled in a discreet manner and should not give offense to the most sensitive. In his hands the strong points of the story would have suffered. But as it was presented at the New York theatre, last week, it brought forth considerable favorable comment from the large audience. John Mason, as Richard Covington, gives a forceful, effective portrayal of the sensitive, weak man in his defense who commits moral suicide by marrying a depraved woman.

Anna Luther as the daughter, displays unusual ability and skill in the portrayal of the role of Beatrice, the daughter. She wore many beautiful gowns and played the part with sympathetic understanding. In the difficult role of the wanton, Leah Baird surprised her many admirers by her finished performance, and while it naturally was an unsympathetic role, her characterization is so well drawn it called forth the plaudits of her spectators. Claire Whitney, Alan Hale, Sydney Mason, Hazel Washburn, Jack McLean and William Lame appear in the cast, truly an all-star cast.

The picture was nicely mounted and aside from an unusually long and somewhat confusing introductory paragraph as well as a disconnected closing chapter, was very well presented.

The story: Richard Covington, wealthy social leader, meets and marries Fay Hope, an adventuress, ignoring his daughter's protest that his marriage will mean moral suicide. Rodman (Lampe) (Dermott), Beatrice's fiancé returns to California from New York and asks her to name their wedding day. Beatrice, however, discovers that Fay and Rodman were once intimate. This is followed by Beatrice being ordered from home by her father, through a whim of Fay's. She is about to commit suicide when she is saved by her brother Waverly. Waverly also discovers that Fay is false to his father's trust and becomes mentally weak, shoots Fay. Covington drifts to New York where he finds Beatrice. There is a happy ending.

A typical Carmel Myers production is "The Wine Girl," in which the actress reverts to Italian impersonation. While the picture is not out of the ordinary it is a well produced program feature. Romance intermingled with a blackhand plot combine to sustain the interest.

Kenneth Harlan is again seen in support of Miss Myers and as a brother to the son of a wealthy woman who seeks employment in a vineyard so as to have the juice of the grape for "breakfast, luncheon and dinner."

The story: Andrea Minghetti, owner of a vineyard and a wine manufacturer, has assumed the care of his niece, Bona, upon the death of her father. He insisted that she repay the money spent by her father as his wife in working in his kitchen. Chico, leader of a blackhand gang, makes demands upon Andrea for money and also for his niece. In the meantime Frank Harris, a young aristocrat, has gone to work for Andrea as a lark. He persuades Bona to go to work for his mother as a cook. What is supposed to be the body of Andrea is found in a wine vat and Chico is sought for the crime. Bona is notified that she is heir to her uncle's estate and upon taking charge is again annoyed by Chico. Harris comes to the house to declare his love for Bona and is set upon by the blackhand chief. The police arrive and place Chico under arrest for the murder of Andrea and are amazed when the latter walks in on them. He orders Bona back to the kitchen again but in the arms of Harris his order has no meaning for her.

A story built around the roulette wheel and so new and interesting that it is a pleasure to watch its unfolding, is what "The Devil's Wheel" has to offer. It is well directed and presented in an entertaining manner. Miss Brockwell has a good role and she handles it pleasingly. In her support appear William Scott, Lucille Young, Bertram Grassby and Pietro Buzzi. The direction is by Edward Le Saint.

The story: A fall deranges the mind of Blanche and not knowing who she is she becomes an Apache. "The Stag," leader of the Apaches, loves Blanche and when he learns that an operation will restore her mind but will also bring about forgetfulness of himself and the Apaches, he makes the big sacrifice that Blanche might be happy. The doctor's theory is not altogether correct, because Blanche constantly longs for someone and when "The Stag" rescues her from the undesirable De Guise, she knows what it is, "The Stag" and Blanche marry, following the former's reformation.

"Faith Endurin" is a western drama based on the friendship of two cowpunchers who cast their lot together after a meeting under peculiar circumstances. The enduring friendship of the two through thick and thin is the dominating theme of the story with a touch of romance cleverly incorporated. Roy Stewart as Jeff Flagg and W. A. Jeffries as his "pal" are winning in their roles while Fritzie Ridgeway makes a delightful heroine.

The story: Jeff Flagg, a victim of yeggmen, is rescued by Jim Lee. Their meeting under these circumstances leads to a partnership in the cattle raising business. Erection of a smelter by a copper company ruins the grazing lands and poisons the water and the partners suffer heavily. A feud follows in which the ranch buildings of Flagg and Lee are burned. Meanwhile Jeff has fallen in love with Helen Dryer, stenographer, who is left alone and lonely. Lee shooting the wreckage of their hopes. Lee determines to leave and turns over to Jeff his few remaining cattle that he may stay and win the girl. Crane, the manager of the copper company, attempts to wangle the cattle and Jeff being shot and killed by her brother. Suspicion is directed toward Jeff and he is forced to flee. A scar on his left arm is expected to reveal his identity. In a border town he meets Lee who has become sheriff and the two play a game of cards. Jeff agreeing to bare his arm if he loses. Before he can get his sleeve up Lee shoots him, destroying the scar. The two then return to their former home. Viola Dana is a pleasing personage in her role of Ruth, an orphan, who knows little of her father and who, through gossip, is led to believe that her parents were never married. The story, however, is only an average one, though it has been prettily handled. The scenes are laid on a little Bahama sea island and are enhanced by good photography. The village scenes especially are realistic and the waves breaking on the rocks make a pretty spectacle. Mabel Van Buren, Clifford Bruce, Sidney Beane and Russell Simpson are in the supporting cast. The direction is by Charles Brabin.

The story: Ruth's mother dies when Ruth is still a child and she is sent to the home of Agatha White, who is the proud mother of a prospective sea captain. Grown to womanhood and manhood, Ruth and Eric White become engaged. Then Ruth hears the villagers gossiping and is led to believe that her parents were not married. She breaks her engagement with Eric and Russell Simpson,博得Jebediah Scudder, an old sea captain who takes a special interest in Ruth and Eric, learns through Agatha the real identity of Ruth's mother. He tells Agatha that Ruth is his daughter and that he had believed both mother and daughter dead. With her true identity established, Ruth happily becomes the wife of Eric.

Ann Pennington is petite and handles her role with charm. In her support appear John Hines, Richard Barthelmess, Helen Tracy and Charles Eldridge. The direction is by Charles Giblyn.

The story: Nancy Molloy and Dan Lewis, children of the slums, are sweethearts. They become mixed up in the death of a neighbor and both are sent to a reform school. Upon their release they become employees of the Clark Shoe Factory. MacPherson Clark, son of the owner of the factory, endeavors to steal the formula for a dye which Dan has perfected, but Nan frustrates his efforts. The role of Dolores Fargis gives Mary Garden an excellent opportunity for her to display her emotional talent and her capability and litness combined with grace, and a pleasing personality adds much to the interest of "The Splendid Sinner," her second production under the Goldwyn banner. The story is the pen of Kate Jordan, is an interesting one and has been very well handled. It is very dramatic and is seasoned with a touch of timeliness as a fitting finish. Altogether, it is the sort of production that should be suitable to the house catering to high class adult audiences. Edwin Carewe handled the direction. This proved a good attraction at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, last week.

The story: Dolores Fargis is suddenly awakened to the shame of the gay life she has been living and she leaves her home and friends and retires to a quiet country place where she meets and later marries Hugh Maxwell, a striving young physician. Shortly thereafter Hugh learns the story of Dolores' past and leaves her, joining the Canadian army in the battlefront in Flanders. Dolores takes up red cross work behind the enemies' lines and here she and Hugh meet face to face. Hugh, injured, carries an important message to the French army. It is a difficult matter after viewing this picture to reconcile it with the title. There is good material for the regulation O. Henry two-reeler but the story has suffered by being dragged out and padded into five reels. It is sluggish at the start, becomes semi-animated in the fifth reel and then ends with an abruptness that leaves many things unexplained. It is in all only a fair production. Earle Williams does what is permitted him and Grace Darmond for the short time she is allowed to appear on the screen is captivating.

The story: Willard Geddie's love affair with Ida Payne is called off as her mother will not allow plans along matrimonial lines for her daughter. He accepts the consulate in Coralia, South America. Once in the torrid heat and tropic atmosphere the native lethargy is instilled in his being and memories of Ida become dim. When she passes off shore of the republic aboard the yacht of the millionaire she drops a message in a bottle to him. He renews her not stopping off to make a personal visit and throws the message back into the water. Seeking to recoup his loss he goes to the republic to search for the yacht and the message. The story of "By Right of Purchase" is an old one, but as presented by Miss Talmadge and her company, it is absorbingly interesting and the dainty Norma Talmadge has an altogether fitting role. It is a high-class production, splendidly directed and acted. It is much an element of appeal as to make one forget the well worn theme. Eugene O'Brien, William Courtleigh, Jr., Ida Darling, Charles Wellsley and Florentce B. Billings accord Miss Talmadge well balanced support. A scene of the film depicts a street car with large crowds in the Bijou Dream Theatre, Chicago, last week.

The story: Against the promptings of her heart Margaret Hughes marries Chadwick Ames and completely ignores the fact that her husband is very much in love with her. Chadwick believes it impossible to win the love of his wife, and becomes cold toward her just as her love for him begins to wane. There is a decided breach between them and when Margaret takes up with Dick Derwent, even though her husband forbids it, they break altogether. The story of "American Buds" concerns those who suffer many hardships in an orphan asylum and escape, to find themselves at the mercy of a captain of whom they fear the worst. It furnishes the amusing plot of "American Buds," the latest star vehicle of Colonel Bud Grant.

The press agent who describes it as "a tale of fun and mystery" is in this instance telling the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

For the exhibitor of the neighborhood house in search of entertainment that will prove entertaining and wholesome to grownups and children alike, the reviewer heartily recommends it. And in advertising the film exhibitors would do well to express to the public that here is a production of which the entire family imitators from steaming Jane and Katherine Lee are at their best. The story is timely and never drags. Kenan Buel is responsible for the story and the staging of same.

The story: Captain Bud Dutton is engaged to Cecile, daughter of his employer. Colonel Harding, the playboy, orphans, are mysteriously thrust upon the young man as belonging to him. The engagement is broken, but because of experiments he is making Bob is allowed to retain his captive. Cecile, though he knows Harding is uppermost in her heart, tells him of Harding's illness. But when he tries to steal the formula for Bob's experiment, Jane catches him and her cries bring help. Charlie Chaplin's Comedy "Dog's Life" To Be Published Early in April

"A Dog's Life," the initial subject in the series of eight comedies that Charlie Chaplin is doing for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit has been completed, and will be ready for circulation early in April.

The story with which Chaplin inaugurates production under his own management was selected by a process of elimination after half a dozen scripts had been rehearsed and found wanting for one reason or another. Finally Charlie Chaplin himself hit upon the idea of utilizing as his chief support a homeless, unkempt, white mongrel that had sought refuge in the studio one day. The shivering, neglected cur furnished the novel note of pathos that the little comedian believes absolutely essential to the type of screen humor that he has made his own, so a story was built about the pair, Charlie as a tender-hearted vagrant, and the dog as his only friend.

For the present, to be sure of the success of his venture, the narrative of the adventures that befell this knight of the road and his brindle-nosed retainer will be kept secret until the picture is published. The scenes depict show Charlie under circumstances that oblige him to display a degree of his versatility, it is said. From the moment at the opening of the story when he is aroused from profound slumber in a fence corner by the aroma from the wares of a passing hot dog vendor, until his final triumph over a gang of cabaret crooks in a resort to which he and the dog have wandered on the trail of a beautiful young girl, there is action.

The human members of the cast are headed, as usual, by Edgar Purvan, who re-creates the role of the cabaret singer. Harry Lauder is said to have suggested the actual title of the comedy to Chaplin during his recent visit to California, by remarking in his dry Scotch manner that Charlie would have "a dog's life" in his new palatial studio at Hollywood.

The production will run well over two thousand feet, it is announced, but will be distributed in the standard two-reel manner.

Essanay Makes Five Part Chaplin Film
To Be Known As "Chase Me Charlie"

Essanay has completed a five part Chaplin comedy which will be published through the George Kleine system, April 6. This is comprised of several of the funniest Essanay-Chaplin comedies. The best scenes have been taken and put together to form one comedy.

It is said by those who have seen the film that the various parts harmonize perfectly to form a complete whole. It is practically a new story with the continuity assisted by new subtitles. The film was made up in London and is a British version of the Chaplin comedies.

The subtitles are in verse form and the comedy is a Chaplin jumble. The main title is "Chase Me Charlie." Prints already are being shipped to the various Kleine offices and bookings are said to be coming in rapidly. Exhibitors who have viewed the picture state that as compiled it forms the essence of all the funniest Chaplin situations. In

Catherine Calvert in Strong Role
In "A Romance of the Underworld"

"A Romance of the Underworld," which is to be the first picture of the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation, tells thrilling and tragic story, it is said, in which the principal character is an unsuspecting and beautiful girl who, brought up in a convent, is thrown suddenly in the midst of perils and temptations. One Mike O'Leary, a brutal and unscrupulous political boss, attempts to get her into his power and as a result is shot and killed. The girl, Doris Elliott, is arrested for the murder and placed on trial for her life.

The story is told in a series of thrilling episodes. Various rough and picturesque characters of the underworld are shown in many unfamiliar scenes. The murder trial is said to be one of the most sensational ever placed on the screen. It worked up to a startling and entirely unexpected climax, which the hand of justice tears the veil of mystery which is shrouded the real events of the tragedy.

Life in secret haunts of the great metropolis is vividly pictured and one reason why special interest attaches to the picture, it is claimed, is that the star, Catherine Calvert, also starred in the Paul Armstrong play from which the screen version is taken. It was one of the most successful of the Armstrong dramas.

THE PERISCOPE

By Fuller Pep

Greenwich Village, (N. Y.) Note
The Purple Pup
Has been shut up
Oh woe is me!

Mommer Pickford has gone in for golf, according to reports from the world wide. She wants to look out that she doesn't hang herself in "Clothesline Alley."

Selling hats by means of nicely tinted films may be a whole lot pleasanter than carrying seventeen trunks around the country, but we'll bet it's a whole lot harder. Most milliners we know are from Missouri when it comes to picking out headgear.

How Very Original

We can see where there's going to be a regular epidemic of "Pershing" dogs if this war keeps up much longer. George Walsh has one and now Francis X. is reported to have purchased a thou. dollar pup and promptly named him "Pershing."

Well, the government made no mistake when it concluded that theatre admissions would make a good source of income for war revenue. In December, 1917, $1,433,225 was collected and in January the collectors picked up a mere $4,961,334, or a gain of 366 per cent over December. And this with Heatless Mondays and Showless Tuesdays, too.

And now the "stunt" men in pictures want to be included in the workmen's compensation law. It is expected that their work is hazardous and that they are underpaid. We've advised them giving up the job and letting the originals do the falls.

Not So Many "Holding Out" These Days

A reader asks what has become of the old-fashioned actor who stoutly declared he would never condescend to play in fillums. And we hasten to reply, he's pulling down a salary ten times as large as he ever drew behind the footlights, and is riding around in an auto, while his legitimate friends, too proud to condescend, get out of his way to avoid being run down.

Victor Moore refuses to be a "filler" on any program and has turned his back on pictures. "Exhibitors for the most part are not showmen," he said in a recent interview in Chicago, "they have a fixed price for a one reel film and will not deviate from that figure." Which would seem to indicate that they are showmen of the first water. In many instances they pay too much if they pay anything for some one reelers.

Constance Talmadge will soon be fully dressed. Select has just put her in "A Pair of Silk Stockings," and now they announce that she will appear soon in "Mrs. Leflingwell's Boots."

Chester Beecroft has the greatest contempt for big figures. Long familiarity has bred it. Next week he's going to ship 750,000 feet of film to Scandinavia.

Our w. k. Periscope poet fell a victim to that w. k. grip verme while en route to his little gray home in the west, i. e. Elgin, Ill., last Saturday night, so we'll have to crib a poem from the World's Greatest Newspaper, the Chi. Tribune this week, as this is our week for a pome:

A POME YOU MAY NOT KNOW

Author unknown
Springtime has come again,
With its softly blowing zephyrs.
The lovely kine are in the fields:
Some are cows and some are heifers.
It's a pretty little thing, isn't it?

Anyway it helps to fill up the column.

Thank goodness this is the last line.
Louise Glaum's First Paralta Play

"An Alien Enemy" Published April 1

Louise Glaum's introduction to the world of screen amusement as a Paralta star will be made on April 1st in a seven-reel feature produced under the title, "An Alien Enemy," The strong points of the story are provided by a plot that is said to be marvelous in its strength.

Miss Glaum appears in the role of "Neysa von Igel," an American woman, but German-bred, girl, who has been isolated from all outside influence since early childhood and educated by the Wilhelmstrasse to the belief that Germany is almighty. When she reaches the proper age she is sent to America as a member of the German Intelligence Department under command to devote her life, if necessary, to aiding the downfall of America. But, in the United States, another power begins to play its part in the governing of her career.

From this point forward until the final scene, the picture presents many strong situations. The demand upon Miss Glaum for the utmost in dramatic acting is demonstrated in the picture, and the remarkable manner in which she com-forms with it, it is said, places her on a par with the greatest players of both screen and stage.

In "An Alien Enemy," Miss Glaum is supported by an excellent cast. Thurston Hall, who also makes his début as a Paralta headliner in the picture, appears in the principal male role, the part of "David Hale." The remainder of the cast includes Arthur Allard, Jay Morley, Roy Laidlow, Joseph J.
Dowling, Charles C. Ingersoll, and Mary E. Allard. "Mary E. Allard" was produced under the direction of Wallace Worsley, from the story by Monte M. Katterjohn of the Paralta staff. It will be published on April 1st through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

There is a striking scene of the interior of a Hindu temple, some beautiful views of mountain scenery and night scenes of a midnight lark of college girls in boys' clothes. Minter makes a charming picture in the leading role, it is said.
The tenth and eleventh issues of Screen Telegram will be published April 3 and 7. The demonstration in Chicago for the cause of Polish freedom, in which 35,000 Poles took part, headed by the famous pianist and patriot, Ignace Jan Paderewski, who was presented exclusively for the Screen Telegram.

The release of March 20 also contained some notable pictures from the war front. One of these shows the ruins of the beautiful cathedral of Saint Andrews, in France.

Billie Rhodes will appear in a Strand comedy, "She Couldn't Grow Up," on April 2. Mary is always stealing her older sister's sweethearts, so she receives orders to keep in the background. She is compelled to dress as a child so as to give sis a chance. But on the night of the big dance she loses her wig and makeup and intrudes in the formal.

Mae Marsh in Coming Goldwyn Plays

Goldwyn's spring drive is in full operation at the Fort Lee, N. J., studios and the big glass top shetlers a host of busy workers.

With Mary Garden's feature, "The Splendid Sinner," completed, workers in every department are breathing easier now that the rushes have been placed on the melodrama of today in which the singer makes her second appearance on the screens of the world. It was issued March 24.

All these parts of Goldwyn's activities are attributable to Mabel Normand. Hardly had she become acclimated to the chill of Fort Lee after her sojourn in Tampa, Fla., than she started on another production. George Loine Tucker directed the scenes made in Florida to replace those eliminated at the request of the Government and he will reconstruc-Joast of Plattsburgh in May. Miss Normand's new production, the title of which is not announced, it is said, affords unusual scope for her rapidly maturing abilities as an actress who is equally herself in moments of pathos and tear.

Mae Marsh, having finished "The Face in the Dark," has begun work on a production in which her high charm and exciting conditions are woven into the new production being directed by Hobart Henley. The story is by Edith Barnard Dehano.

Mae Marsh is reaching the close of "The Danger Game," under the direction of Harry Pollard.

Alice Brady Plays a Dual Role in

Select Film "The Ordeal of Rossetta"

"The Ordeal of Rossetta," which Alice Brady is now making for Select Pictures, is said to be noteworthy, not only for its tense emotional plot, but also for the many particularly interesting high lights in the production itself.

Permission was recently secured to photograph the memers of the cast entering Sherry's, the famous Fifth Avenue restaurant. This is a new trick. The large emphases which选 photographed with the aid of numerous pictures, in Miss Brady's studio, and the audiences which will see her latest photoplay will see what is, to all intents and purposes, the very restaurant itself.
The story is also noted for the luxury of that which Sherry's embodies; the camera will next be directed at the contrasted immigrant neighborhood about Mulberry Bend Park, which is thronged by recent arivals from Italy. Miss Brady's director has completed arrangements to photograph a four-room apartment, which is the actual residence of a Sicilian family, thus carrying out the adherence to realism displayed throughout this picture.

For this picture also, was built an exact reproduction of Chamberlain Brown's office for the theatrical agency of the story; and The New York Bill Posting Company loaned for its giant bill-poster to stick up the lithograph on which much of the action hinges.

Alice Brady's portrayal of the dual role, the two sisters in the story, will undoubtedly establish the star's reputation on an even higher plane that she has achieved in her earlier Select Pictures.

Germany's Attempt to Corner Cotton

Shown in One "Eagles Eye" Episode

In one of the episodes upon which The Whartons are now working in their production of Chief Flynn's story of German spies and propaganda in America, "The Eagle's Eye," it will be shown how the agents of the Hohenzollern tribe used the white and fleecy cotton ball as an instrument of destruction in the United States.

Many of Imperial Germany's crimes in America are disinctly traceable to cotton. Germany wanted cotton. Germany is a bigger and more important cotton producer than the United States, and it is a fact that cotton is key to the world's trade conditions. It is no secret that Germany guilefully put through the political and financial avenues in America, and through its agents abroad, cottoning up the world's cotton market to buy at a price that it could command in the world's market. It is a more than probable fact that Germany is planning to corner the whole crop of cotton, and will supply the world's needs for a considerable period of time, and then, when the crop is exhausted, put things back to normal conditions.

The result was that cotton formed the basis of many a crime in which Boy-Ed, von Papen, Albert, and even Johann von Bernstorff, Imperial German Ambassadors to the United States, were found to be involved. It is not too early, indeed, for the government to make a stand against the intrigue of these Hun agents, and to take steps to prevent the cottoning of the world, before the whole market is cornered by the Hun deltas. It is the business of the United States to keep alive the cotton market and to prevent the monopolistic tendencies of the Hun imperialists.

All these things are to be displayed in the cotton episode upon which The Whartons are working, many of the scenes for which will be taken in the cotton districts of the South, and in the gins and bale compressors. A company is to be sent shortly to cover all phases of Germany's activity in the world of cotton.

Fox Announces Preliminary Work Is Started On Five Productions

With most of the stars in the eastern studios of William Fox completing their productions last week preliminary work was started on several new photoplays.

George Walsh, who broke three ribs in a fall in a cross country run after making "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," began work at the Kalem studios at Cliffsie, N. J. The working title of the production is "$40 at Fort Penn. The cast has not been completed yet. The new play is said to afford Walsh an opportunity for his breezy style that appeals to picture goers.

June Caprice, who has been enjoying a rest after making "A Camouflage Kiss," started work on a new play which has the working title of "Blue Eyed Mary." Harry Millarde finished cutting the film in "A Camouflage Kiss." Virginia Pearson rested last week after making "A Daughter of France." Edward Clarence has finished cutting this film. The action is "A Daughter of France" is laid in a French chateau back of the German lines.

Peggy Hylan Begins New Play

After finishing "The Debt of Honor," her first production for William Fox, Peggy Hylan began last week on exterior scenes for a new play which has "Peg of the Pirates" as a working title. In the story Peggy is carried off by pirates and is rescued by her lover, Terry, who is a poet; also a fine upright, brave young lad. As a reward for his bravery Sir Martyn, Peggy's wealthy uncle, bestows Peggy's hand on Terry. Miss Hylan's new starring vehicle, like her first for William Fox, will be under the direction of O. C. Lundy. Richard Stanton finished cutting "Rough and Ready," the William Farnum de luxe production. This is the production made by Mr. Farnum before he left for the coast. Many of the scenes were made in the Adirondack Mountains and the snow scenes are said to be fine specimens of film photography.

R. A. Walsh enjoyed a brief vacation after finishing "A Woman and the Law," which had its premiere at the Lyric Theatre in New York City. This is the play based on the De Soules case. He is now working on a script for a new play, Jane and Katherine Lee, the William Fox "Baby Grand," after a week's return from Georgia, where they made exterior scenes, resumed work at the Biograph Studios. In the cast are Sarah McVicker, Henry Clive, William Pike, Edward Sturgis, and Tammany Young.

In the west coast studios Gladys Brockwell has started work on a new play with the tentative title of "Miss Past, Miss Present," "The Honeymoons" is the working title of a new picture which Jewel Carmen is making. William Farnum has begun work on a new production under direction of Frank Lloyd.

THIS WEEK AT DOWNTOWN CHICAGO THEATERS

BRIJH DREAM—Select, "By Right of Purchase," with Norma Talmadge.

Thousand Pictures for Training Camps
Chosen From Lists of Co-operating Firms

Needs for Entertainment Such as the War Camp Committee Plans to Meet Shown by New York Judge

The War and Navy Department Commissions on Training Camp Activities, and the War Camp Motion Picture Committee, of which F. A. Powers is chairman, have issued the first list of pictures desired by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures for use in the training camps.

The pictures, which have been chosen from the lists of all of the co-operating companies, are those released between the dates January 1 and March 15, 1918, and, therefore, are the most up-to-date pictures. Another list is being prepared covering the releases for the year 1917.

The total number of pictures named is about 1,000.

The lists, in addition to the name of the company, contain the name of the picture, the brand, the number of reels, the name of the star, a description of the character of the picture such as “Western Drama,” “Modern Drama,” “Love Story,” “Farce Comedy,” “N. W. Story’s,” “Romance,” etc., and the date of the release. At the top of the list are the following instructions addressed to those who desire to exhibit the pictures in the camps:

1. Order from nearest motion picture exchanges from companies listed and co-operating.
2. Order only pictures from this and succeeding official lists.
3. There are four alternative choices. Specific new pictures may not always be immediately available. Only listed substitutes will be accepted.
4. Allow all expenses for accompanying list for the cost of any subject.
5. All business arrangements, payments, bookings, posters, transmission of films, etc., must be made between exchanges and officials in the camp.

Speaking of the need for good motion pictures in camps, Judge J. F. Mulqueen, of New York City, said upon a recent visit to Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C.:

“The men at Camp Wadsworth need badly the kind of entertainment which the good motion picture can furnish. The camp is several miles from town. It costs thirty-five cents each way to get to town and twenty-eight cents to get into a show after they get there. Many of the men cannot afford to spend that money. They gave up good positions to serve their country. They receive only $30 a month, a large portion of which, rightly, goes toward the support of dependents at home. I talked with many fellows who had only forty cents in their possession after making deductions for families. Liberty Bonds and insurance. They could not go to town on that, much less to a show such as they need in order to take their minds off the daily physical grind of drill.”

“In the camp there were the Y. M. C. A. and Knights of Columbus huts where they could read and write letters. But they do not want to read and write letters all of their spare time. They want something which will relieve the tension. There was an entertainment tent, but I understand it had been blown down six times and there had been only one entertainment in it. An officer there was doing what he could to provide regular entertainments of motion pictures in the camp. Such a thing is a vital need.”

The plan of the War Camp Motion Picture Committee to make good pictures available under such circumstances and to meet such a need ought to be of assistance to Camp Wadsworth and the other camps similarly situated. It furnishes a splendid opportunity for the industry to do some patriotic work.

Walthall Finishes
“With Hoops of Steel”

Henry B. Walthall, who has just completed his third Paralta play, “With Hoops of Steel,” is already planning to commence filming the production which will follow it.

“With Hoops of Steel” is a screen version of the story of the same title by Florence Finch Kelly, and places Walthall in a Western characterization with a plot that is entirely unlike any picture which he has yet made since joining Paralta, it is said.

Mr. Walthall’s delineation of the leading role is practically a screen conquest for him, inasmuch as it demanded versatility in a line which he has never undertaken. The picture was directed by Eliot Howe from the scenario by Thomas J. Geraghty. Mary Charleson, who has appeared with Mr. Walthall in all of his recent pictures, plays opposite him in this picture.

Francis Ford to Return to Screen With Own Company

First Film “Berlin Via America” Ready April I

After an absence of nearly a year, Francis Ford has returned to the screen at the head of his own producing company. It was his first intention to devote all his time to the producing end of the venture and the management of his company, but his plans were altered and he will appear as the star of his first picture, entitled "Berlin Via America.” This production will be completed and ready for distribution about the first of April. Mr. Ford has the role of a United States Secret Service operative who is detailed to ferret out German spies, whose machinations have been a source of danger to the government in the pursuance of its war program.

To accomplish his purpose he purports to be opposed to the government. Through his pretended slacker activities he comes in contact with many of the same stripe and succeeds in gaining the confidence of a strong pro-German organization. The information he obtains turns out to be of vital importance.

His feigned disloyalty has its effect upon his friends. Their pleadings are rebuffed, they rapidly cast off from him no longer speaking to him. Even his mother and sweetheart finally shun him.

His next action in the service of the government is to leave for Germany, where he joins the aviation branch of the imperial army and becomes an “Ace.” The Germans, conscious of a leak in the information concerning their activities, finally locate him and he is sentenced to death.

The production to follow this one will be “A Man of Today,” written by Elise Whyte Woody, and directed by John Ford will be supported by Edna Emerson and a strong cast.

The company will leave for California about April 1.

Jewel Carmen Completes
“The Bride of Fear” Film

Jewel Carmen has finished “The Bride of Fear” in the west coast studios of William Fox. In this picture Miss Carmen is seen in the role of a despondent girl who is about to commit suicide by throwing on the gas. In the cheap furnished rooming house in which she tries to end it all, there lives a thief, and she discovers the smell of gas from the girl’s room. He arrives just in time to save her life.

She is grateful and agrees to marry him. Just after the ceremony, before the couple had started on their honeymoon, the bridegroom is arrested. With her husband in prison the bride gets employment in a rich man’s home and there meets a profligate son. She reforms him, and, learning that her husband had been shot in an attempt to escape, marries him. Later her convict husband turns up and while trying to rob her and her rich husband is killed. The picture was directed by C. M. Franklin.

She Wants Bobo Back

Bobo, the little dog with the black spot over one eye, that appears in a number of pictures with Mary McAlister, formerly with the Essanay company, has been kidnaped, and its little mistress is in tears.

Bobo slipped out of the back door of the McAlister home at 4836 Magnolia avenue, last Wednesday, and has not been seen since. Little Mary ran to the back fence on hearing him barking and caught a glimpse of him fast disappearing down the alley in a man's arms. The Chicago police now are on the trail of the villain.

Two Men Beat Universal Operator and Steal Print of "The Kaiser"

Stuart McIntosh, operator of the Chicago Universal exchange, was set upon by two men at Congress street and Michigan avenue, last Thursday night and a print of the Rupert Julian production, "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," taken from him. Following the attack the man fled.

McIntosh, dazed from a blow on the jaw, delivered by one of the pair, was unable to give a good description of the men to the South Clark street police to whom the robbery was reported. Despite the fact that a city-wide search was instituted by the police, they have failed to locate the missing print up to this time.

Earlier in the evening on the ninth floor of the Auditorium hotel more than two hundred members of the Chicago Association of Commerce had been and wildly applauded the production which deals with the intimate life of the "mad dog of Europe."

Irving Mack, publicity man for the Universal company, and Manager Leserman of the local exchange, had left the hotel ahead of McIntosh. The operator had told them that he would follow immediately with the print. When he failed to arrive some concern was expressed, but within the course of an hour he reached Manager Leserman by telephone and told of his experience.

Officials of the company are at a loss for the motive back of the robbery. The operator in question is a member of the union and all the requirements of his organization were complied with regarding the private showing of the film. Some theories have been advanced placing the blame for the theft at the door of exchange managers and the Universal people had nothing to say.

It was necessary to get in touch with the Milwaukee exchange of the company in order to obtain a print of the picture for the first Chicago showing, which took place at the Ziegfeld theatre last Sunday night. The run will continue for two weeks.

H. A. Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, has been showing some speed down through the south with that "Frozen Warning" picture. He closed with McMahan & Jackson, Cincinnati, for Ohio; the First National Exhibitors Circuit of Richmond, for Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida, and with E. V. Richards, Jr., for Louisiana and Mississippi. H. A. is now in Dallas, Texas, where he expects to dispose of Oklahoma and Arkansas. Charlotte hasn't anything on "Spany" when it comes to gettin' around.

The publicity offices of the Selig PolyScope company have been moved from the downtown building out to the factory. The company believes that this will bring the publicity department into closer touch with the producing end of the business and make greater efficiency.

W. E. Atkinson, of Metro, who recently suffered a nervous breakdown, was a visitor in Chicago last week. Mr. Atkinson had planned a long rest, but upon consulting his physician was told he might suffer a severe relapse and be unable to work for several months if he allowed himself to relax completely. Hence the flying trip to the windy city and back.

Ruth Stonehouse, who has been in our midst for the past two weeks visiting relatives, left for New York this week, where she expects to sign up with a producing company, or possibly enter vaudeville. Ruth received some nice write-ups at the hands of the local motion picture column writers.

PERSONALS

The unusual activity noticed about the offices of the Unity Photoplay Company is partly due, of course, to the whirlwind campaign being made in behalf of bookings for "The Birth of Democracy," but most of it, Morris (the world's greatest shipping clerk), declares is due to the fact that Chicago golf links are to be decorated by two new figures this spring. They are President Frank Zambreno and Manager M. J. Mintz. Both have decided to take up the game at about the same time and each believes he will be able to trim the others. Morris is betting on Mintz. "He's the biggest, he should make it more licks," is his explanation.

Films fans and admirers of Julian Eltinge were given a close-up of the only "man who is a perfect lady" at the Palace theatre, where Julian is doing a fifteen-minute turn. He headlines the bill. This is his last week on the two-a-day circuit, it is announced, as he expects to return to California and make more pictures.

Eugene "Gene" Duffey, Mutual's exchange manager, who suffered a broken collar bone and other minor injuries in an auto accident two weeks ago, is still confined to the Chicago hospital, but expects to be on the job, he says, in ten days' or two weeks' time. It takes more than a seven-passenger car to put "Gene" outa biz. Bring on your tanks.

Carl Laemmle Holds Sunday Conference With 40 Exchangemen

On Sunday the Chicago offices of the Universal Film Manufacturing presented a scene of unusual activity and proved a veritable mecca for exchange men.

The Chicago office has been expending a great deal of time and effort toward a successful "Kaiser" drive and it has been the desire of the officials to put the production over big. For this purpose Carl Laemmle, Joe Brandt and H. W. Berman came to Chicago with the intention of personally visiting all the exchanges in the Midwest.

At the last moment it was decided to have a general conference in Chicago. Accordingly forty managers of the Universal's sixty distributing agents arrived on Sunday morning and a general conference was held, followed by a luncheon at the Palmer House. From there the exchange managers went to the Ziegfeld Theatre and viewed the feature, "The Kaiser; the Beast of Berlin."
According to a statement from Irving Mack, the irrepressible dispenser of Universal facts and fiction, all past records for attendance at the Ziegfeld Theatre were broken last Sunday when "The Kaiser," the Jewel propaganda production, which had been postponed for several days, resulted in a forty-piece band played selections in front of the theatre. A number of Chicago's aldermen were present, it is said, and George D. Reitman, former head of the distributing point under Taft's regime, was present and delivered an address.

I. L. Leserman, general manager of Chicago Universal's salesmen, announces the appointment of Joseph Roderick and H. W. Peters, to cover Chicago territory with Jewel productions.

Julius Stern, president of L-Ko comedies, was a visitor at the Chicago Universal office, Sunday, also, ostensibly to arouse enthusiasm among exchangemen for the comedies whose destinies he is guiding.

George L. Levine, connected with the Universal Company for some four years, has been appointed manager of the serial department for Chicago.

C. R. Sceley, on tour of all the important cities in the United States for United Theatres, stopped off in Chicago Saturday last week to enroute to Cincinnati.

Frank Dempsey, after serving in the true service, Miss Talmadge has been turned to Chicago and will appear at several of the theatres on the Ascher Brothers chain, with an interesting lecture on his experiences.

Norma Talmadge, Joseph Schenck and Myron Selznick spent last week Wednesday in Chicago on their return from the west. It was Miss Talmadge who has been visiting her sister, Constance. They have gone on east where Miss Talmadge expects shortly to start production on her next feature, "De Luxe Annie."

Harold Bolster, one of the vice-presidents of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, making a tour of the middle western states, spent a good part of the week in Chicago.

We find another ex-Paramounter safely ensconced in a new position. His name is Frank Harris and he will make himself conspicuous in Chicago territory preaching the gospel of the United Pictures, Inc. C. H. Sedell, formerly of Pathe, is another pillar added to the selling strength of United.

On the Firin' Line

Al Kahn, formerly Universal salesman and well known to exhibitors in the Chicago territory, was in Chicago a visit last week. Mr. Kahn is the recipient of the Elma Film Exchange at Kansas City and is on his way east for the purpose of purchasing some state rights features.

Manny Silverman, who has sold films for a number of prominent exchanges throughout this territory, has opened his own exchange and has purchased the Illinois rights for the feature, "Tilly's Punctured Romance," featuring Marie Dressler.

United States Exhibitors Booking Corporation, has discontinued sales in this territory and has turned over its productions to the Chicago office of Foursquare Pictures corporation. All bookings for United Exhibitors productions will be made at the Foursquare office.

C. E. Almy, formerly city salesman for the Metro Chicago office goes to Cleveland this week as manager of that office for the same company. Can't keep a squirrel on the ground, eh?

Joseph Skirball, district manager of the middle west territory for Metro, has resigned to look after the interests of the J. C. Clark Theatrical Enterprises in Pittsburgh. He will also manage the Pittsburgh office of the First National Exhibitors Circuit.

"A Pair of Sixes"
With Taylor Holmes
To be Issued April 1

The Essanay Company is in receipt of reports from exhibitors that show that Taylor Holmes' last feature, "Ruggles of Red Gap," is making a bigger hit than any of his pictures. His forthcoming film, "A Pair of Sixes," written by Edward Peyle, which will be published as a George K. Spoor Special April 1, is expected to be a stronger production than "Ruggles."

It has an unusual cast, including besides Taylor Holmes, Maude Eburne, Robert Connors, Alice Mann and Edna Phillips Holmes, all well known both on the screen and stage.

Rothacker Film Mfg. Co.
Complimented on Work

The Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago, which concern did the printing and developing on the "Tarzan of the Apes" feature which is being distributed by the First National Exhibitors Circuit, has been the recipient of many congratulatory letters concerning the excellence of the work done on the film.

The Rothacker company is particularly pleased, as the officials of the concern entertained the idea that some unusual results had been obtained in the developing and printing of this big feature.

Gordon Buys "Hypocrites"

In a deal just consummated between N. H. Gordon, of the Globe Feature Film Company of Boston, and Manager of Sales Herbert E. Ebenstein, representing Arthur F. Beck, president of the Sterling Pictures Corporation, the Globe exchange secures the rights to features being distributed by the Sterling organization.

The initial picture for the New England territory will be "The Hypocrites," the George Loane Tucker production, to be published by the Sterling Corporation April 1.

Pan-American Gets Toronto Studio

The motion picture studio at Trenton, Ont., has been taken over and reorganized by the Pan-American Motion Picture Corporation, which intends to produce, it is said, high-grade photoplays, both dramatic and comedy.

Reports of the termination of the Canadian mounted police stories is now under way, the first entitled "When He Brought Back His Man." One and two reel comedies by well-known producers, said to be out of the ordinary and away from the usual "slap-stick" variety as much as possible, will follow. The first comedy to be published is "How Now, Bowdy."

The company will also publish a coast to coast Canadian weekly, to be known as Canada's Own Weekly News Reel, including educational, scenic, historical, special event and class cartoons by Bert Cob, the New York newspaper cartoonist.

Late Chicago Blizzard
Figures in Comedy

There is a touch of satire on the latest lamented coal situation in "She Couldn't See," a latest release of the Strand-Malco comedy which is scheduled for April 2. The comedy opens in "the frozen east," with a glimpse of shovelers digging their way through five foot drifts. The second scene is set in a man's apartment, its occupants huddling on top of an extinct radiator.

The "atmosphere" is set during the opening scene when a Screen Telegraph cameraman took the shot during one of the January blizzards.

Billie Rhodes is supported in the comedy by Cullen Landis and Eugenio Forde, the latter of whom recently joined the Strand-Malco company.

Brenon Film Co.
Restrained by Court

The Herbert Brenon Film Distributing Company was ordered by the New Jersey Court of Chancery to appear at a session held in Newark, last week to show cause why an injunction should not be issued to restrain the Film Company from bringing suit against Arthur W. Moore, proprietor of the Forest Hill Theatre, Newark, and Mrs. Lillia H. Webb, manageress of the Goodwin Theatre, Newark, for alleged breach of contract.

The complaint arose over the payment of $1,500 for the showing of "The Fall of the Romanoffs," the theatres mentioned wishing to cancel their contracts before the completion of the run of the picture.

John McIlheran Joins General

John R. McIlheran of Dallas, Texas, for eight years prominently identified with film exchange interests of the southwest, has been appointed manager of General Film's Dallas exchange. For several years he has been in the employ of the Consolidated Film & Supply of Dallas, and former manager of the New Orleans and El Paso exchanges and more lately as manager of the Bluebird feature department of the Dallas office. For more than a year he was assistant manager in the Mutual Dallas exchange.

Exhibitor Perfects

Novel Lighting Idea
For "Eagle's Eye"

The Majestic Theatre, in Des Moines, Iowa, has been newly decorated especially for the showing of "The Eagle's Eye," the twenty-episode serial story of the imperial German government's spies and plots in America, by William J. Flynn, Manager O'Hare, of the Majestic, found that by using old ivory as an interior finish, and old rose trim, he got the effect of the national colors by using dull blue lights. When lighted the theatre presents a very neat appearance, and when it is darkened for showing the pictures there is the softened hue of the national colors everywhere in evidence. "The Eagle's Eye" opens at the Majestic on March 31 and will run there the first three days. Invitations have been issued to a private showing of the first three episodes at the Majestic on the Saturday afternoon preceding the public opening. From the mayor down, all the city officials have expressed their intention of being present, it is said. In addition there will be a special delegation of secret service operatives from the middle west district — men who served under Chief Flynn up to the time of his resignation a few weeks ago.

Rothapfel Leases

Metropolitan, N. Y.,
For Picture Shows

First Time in History That Noted Playhouse Has Been Let
For This Purpose

S. L. Rothapfel, guiding genius of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres, New York's foremost motion picture playhouses, has accomplished the herefore impossible. He has leased the Metropolitan Opera House for the exhibition of motion pictures this summer. It is the first time in its career that the metropolitan home of grand opera has been leased for this purpose. The lease obtained from the opera company by Mr. Rothapfel covers the period from the first week in May until October.

The Metropolitan company announces that the result of permitting the theatre to be used for the exhibition of motion pictures is that it is ideally equipped for showing important war films. "High drama and the utmost dignity will mark the film offerings," the announcement reads.

Mr. Rothapfel says that he will charge popular prices similar to the scale at the Rialto and Rivoli. He will use the Metropolitan orchestra, which, he says, he will try to maintain at complete strength. It will be directed by Hugo Riesenfeld, who conducts at both the Rothapfel theatres.

Norma Talmadge to

Do "De Luxe Annie"

Norma Talmadge, the Select Picture star, returned from the coast after a flying visit to her mother and her sister, Constance, also a Select star. The absence of the star has given Roland West, the studio manager, and "Tony" Kelly, the well-known scenario writer, opportunity to complete the continuity for "De Luxe Annie," which was purchased for Norma Talmadge just before her departure West. Eugene O'Brien, who will be Miss Talmadge's leading man again, has completed some other work which occupied him during her absence.

Bracken Joins Paralta

Paralta has enlarged its directorial staff by the engagement of Bertram Bracken. Mr. Bracken will start work immediately at the California studios. Mr. Bracken has been chosen as the director for the fourth Henry B. Wall picture to be produced under the Paralta banner. It is an Alaskan story from the pen of Monte M. Katterjohn, and is practically ready to be staged. Bertram Bracken was formerly connected with the Fox studios, where he produced many big pictures during the past five years.
Carolina Exhibitors Form Organization
To Distribute Films

Charlotte, N. C.—The Carolina Co-operative Exhibitors’ League, composed of leaders among moving picture men in North Carolina, was organized here recently when about forty men from North and South Carolina came to Charlotte for the purpose. Percy W. Wells, of Wilmington, was made president, and C. L. Welsh, of Salisbury, was elected vice president, and H. B. Varner, of Lexington, was elected secretary and treasurer. Seven directors were also elected.

Although the organization will be a co-operative one, it will be incorporated under the laws of North Carolina, and will be the largest of its kind. It is the purpose of the organization to furnish here an office for distributing films and film supplies to the exhibitors in the various states of North and South Carolina. It is proposed to take over the distribution office here that is now operated by R. D. Craver, and operate it in the interest of members of the association, and it is hoped that the sale will probably be settled at an early date.

Members of the newly formed association, stated yesterday afternoon that probably $200,000 to $250,000 would present the business done by the local office annually.

Builders of Strand
Plan New Playhouse;
Brooklyn Location

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Moe Mark, Max Siegel and Walter Hays, of the Mitchell and Mark Realty Corporation, owners of the Strand Theatre, accompanied by Thomas Lamb, the architect, left New York yesterday for the purpose of inspecting the newest motion picture theatres built in the principal cities of the United States.

The Strand owners, it is announced, are preparing to build the largest and most luxurious motion picture theatre in the country, which is to be located on a corner of Fulton street and Rockwell place, this borough. This new theatre will seat 4,500. In making this tour is the hope of the Strand people to profit from the experience of the other prominent theatre owners.

The Brooklyn theatre will be the last word in theatre construction, it is stated, and no expense will be spared for the comfort and safety of its patrons. Work on the new building will be commenced immediately.

Lotion Picture Director
Files Bankruptcy Petition

Los Angeles, Calif.—Gilbert P. Hamilton, a motion picture director, has filed petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court here, listing his liabilities at $44,921 and assets of $1,599.

The greater part of his debts, the petition sets forth, arose from a stockholder’s liability; the petitioner owning 16,000 shares of the capital stock of the Prophet Motion Picture Co., 10,000 shares of the Century Film Co., and 14,000 shares of the Albuquerque Film Mfg. Co.

Another Suit Growing
Out of Colfax Hall Fire

Indianapolis—Damages amounting to $5,000 are sought in the suit filed today by Emma Snyder against the Indiana National Life Insurance Company and the Oxon Chemical Company. The suit, which is the seventh one to be filed in the Newton County Superior Courts, grew out of the Colfax Hall fire, which took place here April 19, 1917, and in which six lives were lost and a number of people injured.

Exhibitor’s Briefs

Deerwood, Minn.—Charles G. Osterlund, Deerwood druggist, has begun the erection of a new motion picture theatre here. The building will have a capacity of 250 persons and will be fireproof.

Fordyce, Ark.—The Lyric Theatre, under the management of R. H. Keeton and O. W. Brazil, has been remodeled.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The newly-erected American Theatre at Camp Johnstone, leased by the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, opened here March 15. The Birth of a Nation is the attraction for opening night. John L. Crovo will act as resident manager.

Topeka, Kansas.—The Iris Theatre here which has been closed temporarily since the first of February, reopened last week under the management of I. Feltenstein. The new program provides for three changes a week.

Hartford, Conn.—William J. Melarkey, manager of the local Fox Theatre, succumbed to pneumonia in a New York hospital this week. Mr. Melarkey was thirty years old. Burial will be held in New York City.

San Francisco, Calif.—Progress is reported by Reid Brothers, architects, on the new theatre being constructed by Samuel H. Levin at Clement street and Ninth avenue, in the Richmond district.

Chicago, III.—The Park View Theatre Company, capitalized at $1,000, has been organized here with Michael B. Rodrick, Joseph A. Rogers and William Hershberg as directors.

McConnelsville, Ohio.—George H. Bain, owner of the opera house here has employed Messrs. Kenneth Longley and Russell Johnson to manage the business.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Fire caused by a film igniting in the operator’s booth at the Colonial Theatre recently did damage to the playhouse of more than $1,500. Patrons numbering about 250 reached the street in safety.

Dallas, Tex.—The Trinity Theatre Company has been incorporated for $8,000. Among those who will direct the theatre is the veteran actor E. H. Hulsey, Herschel Stuart and Harry P. Hearn.

McAlester, Okla.—Effective as soon as his successor can be chosen, A. C. King, manager of the Busby Theatre here, has handed in his resignation.

Fort Smith, Ark.—Arthur McLeod has leased the old Majestic Theatre building and will feature first-run pictures, according to an announcement.

Tulsa, Okla.—George M. Green, H. L. McCracken and Charles H. Woods, of Oklahoma City, have incorporated the Orpheum Theatre Company with a capital stock of $20,000.

Williston, N. D.—W. W. Boardman has assumed the proprietorship of the Lyric Theatre here, succeeding John Snyder. Anticipation of an early call to army service by Mr. Snyder was the governing factor in the sale.

Madison, Wis.—Fire recently slightly damaged the Bandbox Theatre here owned by Fred Flom. Mr. Flom carried insurance on the building, but the furniture and other equipment were not covered.

Broncho Billy Films
In Demand—Essanay

The Broncho Billy dramas, which the Essanay company placed on the market through the George Kleine exchanges March 1, are reported to be doing an unprecedented amount of business. Already there has been a call for more prints, Essanay announces.

Essanay is publishing one-reel subjects in blocks of ten and several hundred exhibitors have arranged to take the entire number, running one each week as they are issued.

These subjects have been carefully selected from the popular Broncho Billy films. Essanay has found that there is an increasing demand for western plays, and the Western dramas featuring Jack Gardner have been in unusually strong demand, as is also the case in the Broncho Billy films.

Lyon & Healy, 50-71 Jackson Blvd, Chicago
Universal's New Series of Features To Start April 8

Carl Laemmle Gives Company's Reasons for Taking New Film

On April 8 Universal will issue the first of a new series of big features. Under the title of Special Attractions these subjects will be published at the rate of one every two weeks.

Preliminary to the appearance of such popular artists as Dorothy Phillips, Harry Carey, Priscilla Dean, Mae Murray, Mary MacLaren and Herbert Mundin as the stars of the new series of productions, and enough pictures to provide features clear through to next November have already been completed.

In production is now under way is a picture of its new Special Attractions take equal rank with the biggest productions now being issued. Each completed picture, it is said, will be the last word in quality, and to bring this to pass instructions have been issued to those in charge at Universal City, Cal, to give them their special attention.

The first four features to be issued as Special Attractions will be "The Risky Road," featuring Dorothy Phillips, "The Soft Woman," starring Harry Carey, "The Two Soul Woman," featuring Priscilla Dean, and "The Bride's Awakening," featuring Mae Murray, as the first feature scheduled for April 8, the second April 22, the third May 6, and the fourth May 20.

Although the publication dates of the next thirteen productions have already been set, the probability that their titles will be changed causes the Universal Company to withhold them at the present time.

Abandons One-a-Week Film

According to Carl Laemmle, president and director-general of Universal, the motive for the action of his company in abandoning the one-a-week feature film idea as embodied in the old Butterflies, is its desire to take the new particular productions out of the program class.

"In other words, the exhibitor regards the feature program today as he regarded the short subjects in the old days. A man who turns out a picture that costs thousands of dollars, but neither its quality nor its box office possibilities make the slightest impression upon the exhibitors who book it, if it is merely released as part of a program.

"The Special Attractions will be just what their name implies—special attractions. The pictures we issued just often enough to make the exhibitor who books them appreciate his box office and production qualities and so cause them to buy up more for him.

"Universal will spend more money on pictures than it could possibly spend in producing the ordinary program feature. The exhibitor, according to our belief, will not be inclined to use a 'filler' on the days he shows them, because they will be strong enough to carry the whole show. Nor will he be at all inclined to use them for this purpose, for their quality will not permit.

"We have put our best foot forward in the Special Attractions. I say this frankly, because I want the trade to know that in these pictures they will be given productions that represent top-notch Universal quality. Proof of our determination in this respect can be found in the stars who are to appear in the new brand."

Gaumont News Reels To Be Issued Every Tuesday and Friday

No persons are quicker to feel the pulse of the public than state-right buyers of motion pictures. At this historic period more newspapers are being sold than ever before, and this is due not only to the ever-increasing education of the masses but to the people's desire to keep posted about war happenings. The demand for news on the screen, the Gaumont Company declares has become so insistent that no theatre which tries to please its patrons can afford to omit the news-reel from its programs.

Until the Gaumont Company decided to enter the independent field, state-right buyers were unable to offer their patrons any pictorial news service. They were quick to realize the opportunity, however, and letters and telegrams asking for the Gaumont News Service began to pour into the Flushing, L. I., office. So insistent were these demands that the Gaumont Company sent representatives to interview a number of the most important buyers, and the result is that the greater part of the country has already contracted for the new Gaumont semi-weekly news-reel, the Gaumont News and the Gaumont Ga抑制.

The Gaumont Company advises that these news-reels will be issued on the dates of shipment from the factory, and will be especially flashed at the picture theatres, its shipment to New York City every Tuesday and Friday morning. As soon as the reels are received by the buyers they will be placed on exhibition, which will be quick to recognize that this is an improvement over the old plan of having a set date for each issue and holding up the showing of the news until that date, even though the news-reel might be received by the exchange several days in advance. The first issue of the Gaumont News will be shipped on Tuesday, March 29, and of the Gaumont Graphic on Friday, March 29.

Success of Sunday Opening Bill Aim of Buffalo Exhibitors

Buffalo exhibitors are taking an active part in the campaign now obtaining throughout the state of New York to get a bill passed by the state legislature permitting Sunday opening of motion pictures. On April 15 a meeting attended by exhibitors and exchange men in the Buffalo territory as far east as and including Rochester, was held in the Majestic Theatre.

Harold B. Franklin, manager of Shea's Hippodrome, presided, and Thomas E. Sullivan, executive secretary of the exhibitors' committee, acted as secretary of the meeting. The situation was very clearly outlined to the gathering by Chairman Franklin in a brief address followed by Henry C. Price, attorney for the committee, who gave clear and concise explanation of the legal status of the bill, and made a forceful address in behalf of co-operation on the part of the exhibitors and exchange men.

Exhibitors from every section of western New York attended the meeting to show their willingness to cooperate. Daily meetings at the Majestic Theatre will be continued by the committee, which is being watched by Franklin and Sullivan, J. Schuchert, treasurer; Earl L. Crable, Strand and Victoria theatres; George C. Mosher, Palace Theatre.

Constance Talmadge to Star In "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots"

Following "A Pair of Silk Stockings" starring Constance Talmadge, the Select Company next proposes to put on "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," in which pieces she will be presented by Lewis Selznick through Select Pictures.

This famous comedy drama by A. Gregory was written for the Select company and the star, and the choice, it is said, a brilliant one, for in this work Thomson is at his happiest vein and the piece is a comedy capable of being co-ordinated with any feature and will tie in with other Select productions with rare combination of comedy and drama of fun plus tense situations, of poignant heartache and youthful merriment. The cast is well co-ordinated and the rest of the company stand out distinct from that of any other screen star.

PRODUCTIONS bearing the trade mark of the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit, Inc., carry the assurance of wide popular appeal because they are selected by a committee of the most successful motion picture exhibitors of North America.

Every feature submitted to the Purchasing Board of seven members must measure up to a standard that leaves no doubt regarding its power to attract patronage to the box-offices of the largest theatres of the United States and Canada. In other words, the selection of dramatic and special productions has been put in the hands of men who know from actual experience just what qualities a picture should have to insure big business.

When the fact is also borne in mind that these men are spending their own money for attractions for their own theatres, it will be understood that their combined judgment represents a verdict worthy of any exhibitor’s respect.

The methods that have proven so successful in North America are being applied equally well to the foreign market, because experience has shown that the big human appeal of real drama and real comedy is the same the world over. And First National features must measure up to such qualifications. Upon the hard-rock foundation of these principles the whole organization is built.

DAVID P. HOWELLS, of 220 West 42d Street, New York, one of the few men in the film industry who really knows the foreign market from personal contact, has been appointed Foreign Representative of the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit to invite exhibitors outside of the United States and Canada to share in its new system of purchasing pictures. Mr. Howells will handle abroad all pictures controlled by the First National with the exception of

Dealing with the Moving Picture World’s Remarks on the Plans of United Picture Theatres of America
INC.

Q. Can the opposition of powerful vested interests be combated?
A. Certainly, because the combined power of the exhibitors is greater than that of all the other factors in the industry. Consolidation of offices, cuts in big salaries, elimination of useless service, direct routing, abolition of financier profiteering—these things can be accomplished in the film world by the United Exhibitors just as they are being accomplished in the railroad world today by Director McAdoo.

Q. Is United Pictures Theatres promising anything it cannot perform?
A. No, because the promises are well within the reasonable expectation of what cooperative movements can do. The M. P. World cannot discover one extravagance, unwarranted statement in any of the speeches of Mr. Ochs or our published statements. Are other cooperative companies overstating? We do not know, but we feel sure exhibitors are so strong for the cooperative idea that overstatement is not necessary to secure membership.

Q. Finally, are the men behind United strong enough to put it over?
A. Messrs. Ochs, Scelye, Blumenthal, Goldsmith and the other executives of United Picture Theatres enjoy exhibitor confidence as do no other group of men in the country. They are known to be honest, conservative, forceful and energetic, and can point with pride to their achievements in the film industry.

Amusement Parks Handicap Film Business

A REVIEW of the tax situation as affecting amusement parks and motion picture theatres reveals those responsible for the welfare of the film business in the light of being either lax in their duty or incapable—or both:

The amusement parks of the country represented by a very capable operator, Frank L. Albert, has succeeded in offering the amusement parks as "Poor Folks' Amusement" to the committee of Congress which had under consideration this feature of the revenue tax bill, and thereby escaped the imposition of an admission tax on ten-cent admissions and ten-cent attractions.

Within a few weeks we will be facing the opening of the amusement parks for the season and the ten-cent gate and inside attractions will be tax-free, while the motion picture theatres of the country, where the nearly-standard admission charge is ten cents, will continue to be compelled to exact from their patrons a ten per cent tax thereby driving from its doors a great deal of patronage.

The boast of the amusement parks to be the "Poor Folks' Amusement" should be dismissed as merely ridiculous if it were not for the great handicap the usurpation of this title is placing upon the motion picture business. The motion picture theatre is now and has been for many years the "Poor Folks' Amusement"—not merely for two or three days a year but for practically every day throughout the year. The neighborhood theatre is the mecca for every member of the family, winter and summer. The motion picture theatre fills a place in human life that never previously has been attained by any amusement institution. The motion picture theatre is universally acclaimed by all who are capable to judge and who are willing to judge impartially as the amusement of the masses—a type of entertaining, educational and inspiring diversion that approaches the maximum in what it offers at a minimum in cost.

Yet, despite all this, the amusement parks with their cheap, hollow, tawdry attractions and petty grafting concessions go by tax-free, while the film theatre must impose a ten per cent tax on its patrons—a fact which has caused in many quarters a tremendous falling-off in business.

Considering the cost of what the amusement parks have to offer, the deceitful boast of "Poor Folks' Amusement" is almost the last word in the gentle art of buncoing the public, because an amusement park for a man who has a few cents to spend for an evening's entertainment is about as satisfying for that man as it would be for him to stand in front of the Metropolitan Opera House and watch the crowds go in for a gala performance.

If, then, the facts in the matter are so overwhelming in favor of the motion picture theatre receiving whatever consideration that was to be allowed by Congress to the amusement of the masses how is it that the amusement parks have been so fortunate and the picture theatres have been subjected to so many tax burdens?

To obtain a logical answer to this question it is necessary to consider what was done by both interests to present the facts as they saw them to the committees of Congress. We find the affairs of the amusement parks handled by the very capable Mr. Albert who spent weeks and months in Washington, his expenses met by the solid backing of the amusement park interests of the country, very busy in convincing members of Congress of the inability of his parks to meet even equitable taxation requirements.

On the other hand, there were present in Washington certain film men whose approach to the Capitol was properly announced in the stentorian voices of the press representatives and a group of exhibitors who went to see what could be done about the tax situation and stayed to concoct a plan for a booking circuit—and in the meantime the amusement parks were selling themselves to Congress as the “Poor Folks’ Amusement.”

The amusement parks have robbed motion picture theatres of their rightful consideration as the amusement of the masses and not a voice has been raised in protest by those responsible for the welfare of the film business.

Aside from the tax feature the competition of the amusement parks is eminently unfair. Their regular plan of distributing vast quantities of free tickets is so obviously calculated to ensure the unwily in the clutches of the greedy concessionnaires that it assumes the proportions of a public menace and instead of receiving governmental co-operation should be stamped out by law.

It is the boast of the amusement park men that they have received more consideration from Congress than any other profit-making institution in the realm of American business and with the facts against them they have a right to be jubilant even though their success in this matter has been due largely to somnolent attitude and lack of aggressiveness of the guardians of the welfare of the film business.

Casual Comment

An encouraging indication is the fact that the information seems to have leaked out that a pie-throwing contest need not be the central theme of a comedy.

Further contact with operators’ unions is extremely likely to convince exhibitors that a real organization would be a handy thing to have about from time to time.

Martin J. Quigley
N. Y. Firm Presents
"Hearts of the World"
At 44th St. Theatre

Elliott, Comstock and Gest
Chosen by D. W. Griffith
To Handle Film in Manhattan

Elliott, Comstock & Gest will handle D. W. Griffith's latest cinema war drama "Hearts of the World" when it is announced last week and have taken over the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, New York, where it will return to the management of Morris Gest, commencing next Friday night.

It was originally planned to present the picture at the Lyric Theatre on Forty-second Street, but Mr. Gest was unable to obtain this house due to a previous arrangement between William Fox and Mr. Comstock and Gest. The Shuberts will transfer the A. H. Woods play "The American Ace," which has had several more weeks to run, to another house, and thus make way for the Griffith production.

A private showing of "Hearts of the World" will be held on Thursday evening. Mr. Griffith himself flew in from Hollywood for this first showing of the picture for ten weeks, which gave rise to the rumor that Mr. Rothapfel intended to put it on at the Metropolitan opera house for the summer. However, the noted director preferred to have the film presented as early as possible by reason of its war propaganda value and therefore placed its distribution in the hands of Morris Gest who as soon arranged to secure a Broadway house sufficiently large to take care of immense crowds during its New York run.

Mr. Griffith arrived in New York on Monday and will personally supervise the initial showing of "Hearts of the World." Following its premiere the picture will be presented twice daily.

Theatrical men in New York regard Mr. Griffith's decision to place the New York presentation of his spectacle in the hands of the firm of Elliott, Comstock & Gest a wise one, inasmuch as it will give the picture, it is thought, considerably more prestige than otherwise.

Anita Stewart Must Fulfill Her Contract

Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, who heard a suit of the Vitagraph Company of America against Anita Stewart to restrain her from appearing for any other movietheater company during the existence of a contract with the Vitagraph Company, handed down a decision last week granting the injunction.

The court's decision has now been confirmed by the State Appellate Division.

On the eve of the opening of the amusement parks in the United States, the motion picture industry has awakened to the full significance of the congressional action in exempting this brand of entertainment from the war tax where the admission does not exceed ten cents.

Forced, as they will be, during the coming summer to combat the effects of the Daylight Saving bill under which the public will have no time to open their playhouses for the first evening show in practically broad daylight, exhibitors are now beset with the problem of competing with the amusement parks, which are not compelled to collect any tax from their patrons.

In addition to this, through skilled lobbying, representatives of the parks have convinced the committee in Congress which considered the amusement tax feature of the war revenue bill, that the amusement parks are the "Poor Folks' Amusement" and this, in itself, has proved an obstacle in the way of the motion picture industry in its attempt to get some sort of a revision of the tax.

Well Laid Campaign

There is no denying but that the amusement parks had a well laid plan of campaign. Representatives, under the able leadership of Frank I. Albert, spent months in Washington prior to the consideration of the revenue bill, and their presence there was more than evident in the result which showed this branch of entertainment practically free from tax.

Now that the full meaning of the victory obtained by the parks is beginning to be apparent to the exhibitors, considerable feeling is manifesting itself concerning the way their cause was handled in the capital. They believe, and justly so, that the motion picture theatre is the "Poor Folks' Amusement" and that the amusement parks interests have misrepresented themselves to the nation's lawmakers in laying claims to this function.

They point to the fact that the parks are open but six months in the year—spring, summer and early fall—and that any form of amusement which is not year-around in its nature cannot, of necessity, be considered "poor folks' amusement." The gate admission to an amusement park means nothing, they contend, which is apparent when it is taken into consideration the number of compulsory admissions distributed in the course of the season by the various amusement parks.

Exhibitors Not Blameless

The exhibitors do not hold themselves blameless in the matter. They realize now that too little attention was paid to the affair when the matter was up for discussion in the congressional committee prior to the passage of the Nighthour entertainment tax. The additional tax, as it was then described, was undertaken after the bill had been put into effect and the resultant falling off in attendance at the motion picture theatres was noted.

When a convention of exhibitors was called at Washington it was found that little or no hope could be entertained of having the bill reopened and the matter gone into again. A permanent committee was, however, appointed to watch for further legislation concerning the industry. A salaried interest in the matter is expected to continue until the bill has been put into effect and the resultant falling off in attendance at the motion picture theatres is noted.

Fifteen Cents and No War Tax

The amusement park people, jubilant over their success in representing their business as "Poor Folks' Amusement," have decided to make the best of their opportunity and raise prices. Riverview Park, Chicago, the largest amusement park in the country, has decided to increase its admission charge for the coming season to fifteen cents—and they will be compelled to charge no war tax on this admission.
First National Circuit Buys
“My Four Years in Germany”

Gerard Feature Purchased After Several Days
Negotiation—Price Not Divulged.
Distribution to Begin April 29

The First National Exhibitors’ Circuit has obtained distribution rights for the United States and Canada to Ambassador James W. Gerard’s authorized film version of “My Four Years In Germany,” which has been running at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Broadway to crowded houses since March 10th.

Prior to the acquisition of the big feature, negotiations were carried on for several days between Mark M. Dintenfass and H. M. Warner, representing My Four Years in Germany, Inc., and Harry O. Schwalbe and James D. Williams, representing the First National. When the final papers in the transaction were signed last Wednesday afternoon, it was stated by both parties to the contract that Ambassador Gerard and his associates had been presented with the largest check ever drawn as an advance payment in a motion picture deal. The amount will probably not be divulged, but is said to have run well into six figures.

The First National officials are credited with having achieved a signal victory in landing the Gerard picture for their circuit, as the rivalry among numerous competing organizations desirous of handling the feature, it is said, were undoubtedly the keenest that has been displayed within recent years. This was due to the fact that Ambassador Gerard’s story is an explanation of the actual motive power behind the tremendous events now transpiring on the western battle front, and a graphic unfolding of the international plot, conceived and executed by the rulers of Imperial Germany.

Several important figures in the legitimate and vaudeville fields made flattering offers to take over the exploitation of the film, but after serious deliberation, the executives of the producing corporation decided that the proposition offered by the First National officials was the best from every point of view, it is said.

This is taken as a striking endorsement of the co-operative idea upon which the circuit is based that has been given up to date, and indicates that the First National is now a force to be reckoned with in the future of the film industry. In the distribution of features with the guaranteed box-office appeal of “My Four Years in Germany” on the liberal terms that the First National makes, officials see another important move in the direction of open market booking.

The Gerard picture will be published on April 29th, although earlier bookings can be arranged if necessary, prior to that date. In the larger cities the film will first be shown in legitimate houses, wherever available, at advanced prices. Judging from the remarkable drawing power that it is now displaying at the Knickerbocker Theatre, the exposure of German political and military intrigue will be good for an extensive run in any large city where the English language is spoken without a Teutonic accent, it is asserted.

“My Four Years in Germany” must be projected in its full ten-reel form wherever booked, as Ambassador Gerard has expressly stipulated in his contract with the distributors that the film is not to be cut or changed in any particular without his consent.

Practically every amusement circuit in the United States has put in a bid for the picture since it has been taken over by the First National. A definite announcement of the first-run houses that will show the big feature will be made within the course of a few days.

Exhibitors to Meet
Michigan Capitalists
Discuss Booking Plans

As stated in last week’s Herald, a meeting of exhibitors, irrespective of any national organization affiliations, will be held in the Hotel Astor, New York City, April 8 and 9.

At this meeting a proposition from a group of prominent business men of the State of Michigan will be presented, in which they offer to finance a practical co-operative booking plan for the exhibitors of the country providing a practical and feasible scheme is presented.

Various plans have been advanced, each having good and bad points, it is said, but with the proper financial backing it is thought the best can readily be decided upon by the exhibitors and put into effect within a very short time.

Producers who are willing to make pictures under such a plan are invited to attend the meeting of exhibitors. It will be held at the Hotel Astor April 9, at which time it is expected a workable plan will have been completed and can be laid before them.

Bessie Love Leaves
Pathé Fold May 1

The Pathé Company has secured the screen rights to Ruth Belmore Endicott’s novel, “Carolyn of the Corners,” from the Dodd, Mead Company, the book publishers, and will present Bessie Love in the stellar role.

This will be Miss Love’s final production with the Pathé Company. Work on the picture will start this week, and it is expected the final scenes will have been made May 1, on which date Miss Love’s contract expires.

The little star has been approached by two producing companies, it is said, but before accepting either offer she is considering the advisability of forming her own company, in order to secure the highest quality of stories, direction and production. It is announced that Miss Love holds an option on a Los Angeles studio at the present time.

Fox Addresses Theatre Club

William Fox, the film producer, and Virginia Pearson, screen siren, were the guest of honor at a meeting of the New York Theater Club, of which Mrs. Belle de Riviera is president, in the Hotel Astor last week. Mr. Fox was the principal speaker.

Jane and Katherine Lee, the Fox “Baby Grands,” presented an original skit. Miss Aince Abbott, exponent of oriental art, was also on the program. There were also plays and Baby Love Simmons sang and danced. Mrs. J. W. Loeb presided as chairman.
Chicago Industry Combines to Fight Tyranny of Union

Obtain Injunction in Circuit Court of Cook County Restraining Operators' Organization from Further Interference in Conduct of Business

Charging a well-established plan practically to obtain control of the motion picture industry in the city of Chicago through the unionizing of every employe of picture theatres and the film exchanges, owners of theatres, film exchanges, commercial slide, film and equipment manufacturers, through their attorney, Louis F. Jacobson, last week sought and obtained an injunction in the Circuit court of Cook county restraining Local 110 of the National Alliance Theatrical Stage Employees of the United States and Canada from further interfering with them in the conduct of their business.

While the recent ultimatum of the union under the name of the National Advertising Film Company notifying exhibitors that operators would no longer run slides of any nature other than those having the sanction of the union, brought the matter to a head and lead to the legal action, it is but one in a long series of indignities heaped on the owners of the theatres by the union arrogant in its power.

Joseph P. Armstrong, president of the union; H. McCullough, vice-president; H. Mitze, corresponding secretary; J. Johnstone, financial secretary-treasurer; T. E. Maloy, business agent, and Fred Havill, Peter Kuniff, C. P. Shea and S. E. Kelleher, members of the union's council, named as those whom the injunction operates against. In addition John C. Shafrank, alleged manager of the National Advertising Film Co., is also named.

Would Control Advertising

Notice of the part the union intended to play in the control of advertising slides in the theatres came to the attention of exhibitors some weeks ago when irregular letters were mailed from the headquarters of the union to all operators, notifying them that from that date they were to run none but slides earning the label of the National Advertising Film Co.

Upon inquiry of Mr. Shafrank, who as named as manager of the hitherto unheard of company, exhibitors were told that the communication meant what it said; that in the future the union would have charge of the advertising slides and would receive whatever profits or losses was forthcoming from the running of the same.

In their fancied security the officials of the union made no exception of any and all slides. They even went so far as to notify the Four Minute Men's association that in the future the slides they used for illustrating their patriotic-like would have to bear the label of the union and the National Advertising company.

Cashier's Union Sought

This followed closely upon known activities of the union to form an association among the cashiers of the motion picture theatres. While the cashiers were not to be associated with Local 0 it was evident that the union named would be under the domination of the operator's union.

There was also well under way a movement to organize all the employees of the various film exchanges including the film inspectors and those working in the projection room.

Quick to see the danger unless some immediate action was taken to offset the machinations of the union exhibitors' settings were held and plans discussed leading to a solution of the problem. Then investigation divulged that the union also had designs upon the film exchanges, this branch of the industry was invited to sit in at the conferences. Slide manufacturers, and equipment manufacturers soon joined.

Bill Huge Document

The bill upon which the injunction was granted by Judge Oscar M. Torrisson of the Circuit Court contains in all about 290 typewritten pages outlining the apprehension felt by the industry unless the practices of the union are curbed. In addition there are also appended many affidavits of exhibitors and exchange men concerning their experiences with both Shafrank and Armstrong.

While the injunction was only issued Friday of last week it is said that already there have been difficulties from the officials of the union seeking some compromise before final hearing on the proceedings are set. Just what the nature of the settlement wanted by the operators is, could not be learned.

Some of the activities of the union as reviewed in the bill are as follows:

That the union has entire say in the matter of hiring and discharging operators and helpers, the only function remaining to the exhibitors is that of paying the salaries.

Compel Organized Help

That the union had sought to compel cashiers, ushers, doormen, janitors, film inspectors and shipping room employees to become members of the union or of unions organized by the union and under the domination of the same.

That exhibitors had been notified that representatives of the union would make weekly inspection of their projection machines at a charge of $50 per visit. These inspections being necessary before union operators would be allowed to run machines.

In a signed affidavit from Simeon Griever of Griever & Herz, film distributors, it is charged that the Ford Weeklies were made the prey of the National Advertising company. These weeklies, according to Mr. Griever are manufactured by Henry Ford at a cost of $200,000 annually. The sanction of George Creed, head of the bureau of public information. They are distributed to exhibitors free as patriotic propaganda.

Government Not Immune

According to Mr. Griever the fact that they were shown out of deference to the United States government made no difference to the officials of the union who insisted that that body be paid $500 per day for the showing of them. Henry Ford could well afford it, they informed him that the exchange might be called on to pay.

Morris Kline of the Strand Film Service had an unpleasant experience when the union seized upon a film which he had purchased concerning the activities of "Billy Sunday". They notified him that in order to have this film shown in Chicago he would have to "pay $5,000 in cold cash or a certified check." They finally magnanimously arbitrated the matter and agreed to take forty percent of the gross proceeds from the sale of the film.

When John E. Bordonski of the Chopin Theatre went to the union headquarters to have two operators assigned to the new theatre of which he was the lessee, his request was overheard by Maloy, the business agent. Maloy informed Bordonski that he had been notified by the Building Trades Council to appoint an operator to the theatre until settlement of trouble with the trades council had been made.

Bordonski was then told that the council considered $2,000 would settle the account. This, Maloy said, he believed he could get reduced to $600. Bordonski said that he believed the matter should be turned over between the owners of the building and the trades council but Maloy remained obdurate. At a later date the amount had gone down to $60 and this was said to be the last concession.
Herbert Lubin To Tour Country
In Interest of Petrova Pictures
Accompanied by Bert Ennis, Polish Star's Representative Will Visit Every First National Exchange

Herbert Lubin, personal representative for Madame Olga Petrova, accompanied by Bert Ennis, director of publicity of the Petrova Picture Company, left New York last week for a swing around the circuit embraced by the exchanges of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

The latter organization has distributed the first four special productions in which Madame Petrova has appeared under the banner of her personal organization. These pictures, among which have been "Daughter of Destiny," "The Light Within" and "The Life Mask," have scored heavily for the Polish star, serving as a vindication of the fact that it is possible for a woman to handle the innumerable details of her own company and make productions of fine and artistic merit.

In order to fully convince the exchange managers who are distributing the special Petrova pictures, as well as those exhibitors who have already screened these productions of Madame Petrova's earliest desire to cooperate with them in the working out of all commercial phases in connection with their various problems, Mr. Lubin is accompanying with a personal message from the famous star to each and every film man concerned in the making and exhibition of her photo-plays.

Will Study Conditions

He will also make an intensive study of conditions surrounding the current presentation of these features and be in a position to render valuable advice and assistance not only to the exchange man but to the exhibitor as well. He is particularly fitted for this task, having been the franchise holder of the Metro productions in the Dominion of Canada for several years and to his credit goes the present successful standing of these films in the Dominion. He is a film man of many years actual experience, at the present time being a member of the firm of General Enterprises, Inc., 1476 Broadway, New York, the other partner being Arthur H. Sawyer.

Mr. Ennis will carry out in full the working details of the recently established Service Bureau in connection with the Petrova productions. He will carry with him an extensive line of accessories and advertising aids suited to the use of the exhibitors in towns both large and small and will concentrate a strong publicity drive on various sections of the country which heretofore, it is claimed, have not received the attention they deserve.

In addition to this Mr. Ennis will carry with him new and unique advertising novelty for the exploitation of Madame Petrova's forthcoming productions.

To Aid Exchanges

It is believed that exhibitors throughout the United States will give this latest adjunct of the Petrova Service Bureau a most enthusiastic reception inasmuch as it will serve to attract the attention of thousands of people in their localities who have heretofore been but slightly interested in motion picture plays. He will also co-ordinate the present activities of the Petrova publicity department with those of the exchange in each town distributing these films.

A feature of the trip made by Messrs. Lubin and Ennis in behalf of the Petrova Picture Company will be an extensive billboard campaign to be carried out in the important cities of the United States. A beautiful twenty-four sheet stand has been prepared for this purpose and the Petrova Picture Company is in a position to furnish exhibitors with a sufficient quantity of the lithographs to thoroughly cover all advertising space.

Starting at Boston, the itinerary of the trip calls for visits to Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Louisville, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Des Moines, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago and Dallas. Following a thorough investigation of these territories with the resultant conferences between Lubin and Ennis and the different exchange managers, the South will be visited. It is planned to complete the above itinerary by a drive through the far west which will finally bring them to California.

N. Y. Mirror Sold to United Publishers

The Dramatic Mirror for years one of the leading dramatic publications along Broadway, was sold last week to the United Publishers Association. It is announced that the policy of the paper will not be changed and that attention will be devoted to both screen and stage.

The United Publishers Corporation is capitalized at $4,755,000 and has been printing the "Motion Picture Trade Directory" for a number of years. R. M. Vandiver and H. A. Wycoff will have charge of the business affairs of The Mirror it is said.

KANSAS CITY IS OFF
OF "DOUG." FAIRBANKS

Claiming that the motion picture star wants too much attention, the Kansas City committee back of the third Liberty Loan drive have excused the athletic "Doug," from participating. Fairbanks was to have addressed a meeting there on April 20, according to E. E. Violette, chairman of the speakers' bureau. The date was canceled March 28.

Mr. Violette said he acted following the receipt of a letter from Fairbanks' representative, in which a parade, led by the mayor and city officials, with at least fifty automobiles, was asked to meet the actor. The representative's letter also suggested that they have the governor and his staff present. That was the last straw. The parade is all off.

Paralta Plays, Inc., Pushing Work On Its Big Los Angeles Plant

Buildings Will Cover Ten Acres—Will Be Most Complete Studio on West Coast When Finished

Work on the new Paralta Studios, Los Angeles, Cal., is rapidly nearing completion. When finished this array of buildings, in which the productions of Paralta Plays will be made, will be not only one of the largest, it is declared, but the finest equipped studios in existence today.

They are located on the north side of Melrose avenue, Los Angeles, just beyond Van Ness street. The new buildings will cover ten acres of the eighty-acre tract which was purchased by this company a few months ago. A great number of the buildings are already completed and work is being rushed to finish these buildings covering nearly every foot of the available ground space of the ten-acre tract with permanent structures of brick and cement, including administrative buildings, cafe, dressing-room buildings, five glass-enclosed stages, property buildings, workshops, carpenter shops, electrical shops, garages and other necessary for use in film production. Each designed with every modern appliance known to produce the best results in the making of pictures.

Ideal Location

The buildings of the new studios are just across the street from the old studios, which were, up to a short time ago, been used by the Paralta organization. Centered, as they are, in a compactly planned group, the buildings of the new studio plant will serve as the hub of studio grounds to be utilized for the construction of large settings of buildings, street scenes, and replicas of entire towns, if necessary, for use in film production. This expansion of studio properties has been made necessary by the enlarged scope of production undertaken by the Paralta organization, which is now producing not only Paralta Plays, featuring their own stars, but also work for other film companies.

Immediately facing Melrose avenue will be the central administration building flanked on either side by the buildings of the scenario department and the cafe. Behind these structures is the mammoth brick property building separated by a central arch-way leading back to the five steel and glass-enclosed stages each of which measures sixty by one-hundred and fifty feet and which has ample stage space to accommodate six to eight setting. These stages are to be higher than any glass stages now in use, this being done to arrange for better manipulation of the light-diffusing system and to make possible the suspension of certain scenic effects from the supporting girders in the top of the structure.

Many Novel Features

A novel feature of the long cement dressing-room buildings which will take up almost the entire eastern side of the stages, is a luxuriously furnished green room, which will offer an ideal meeting place and club rooms for the personnel of the official organization and professional forces engaged at the studio. The dressing rooms range in size and equipment according to the use they are to be put to, and the dressing room of the studio being a suite composed of a reception room, dressing room, wardrobe room and bath. The small portions of the grounds not occupied by buildings are being laid out in formal gardens of the French and Italian type. These gardens will occupy the space at the entrance to the studios and the available space inside the grounds not occupied by buildings.

The studios will also include a laboratory building, a building for the wardrobe department and one for draperies.
"United Theatres to Establish Big Open Market," Says Blumenthal

Founder of New Organization Issues Statement Outlining Plan in Full—"Genuine Cooperative Society," He Declares

Louis F. Blumenthal, founder of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., issued his first official statement last week since his exhibitor cooperative organization started its activities at 1600 Broadway, New York, and sent representatives on the road to sign up 2,000 booking days preparatory to buying and releasing pictures.

In order to challenge several widely circulated mis-statements and half-truths and to set forth the fundamentals of United Theatres policy, Mr. Blumenthal said:

"In the face of reports from all over the United States of growing anti-cooperative sentiment for our plan, the signing up of many exhibitors and the reasonable prospect of securing the booking days we desired it is necessary to be on record by innuendo or direct mis-statement that questions our motives and casts discredit by raising false issues. These are the facts:

A Cooperative Plan

"We, who incorporated the United Picture Theatres of America, do not cherish any anti-cooperative sentiment for our plan. Control is vested in the general body of exhibitors who become members. In other words, this is a genuine cooperative society, established by exhibitors for exhibitors, and it operates on every sense of the word. All but a small fraction of the stock belongs to the members who vote according to the amount of their holdings and who elect directors yearly. The plan as democratic as the town meeting or popular suffrage or the cooperative building loan association or the mutual insurance society.

"We seek the establishment of a big open market for the purchase of films, being confident that our collective buying power will be needed and will be used. We have no axes to grind, nor any entanglements with other branches of the trade. I challenge those who have launched other schemes to say whether the same statement can be made with truth concerning them. Were we affiliated with producers, we would be controlled to a certain extent by them. Were we dealing with only the first exhibitor in each important city, we would be making him the jobber and to that extent increasing the prices of films to the members. Did we derive our capital from outside sources instead of from the members, we would be loan-controlled and not exhibitor-controlled. But we have avoided all the above pitfalls and founded our organization with an eye to the interests of exhibitors, and therefore we sincerely believe that we shall be successful in making it practicable.

Passing of Producers

"All signs in the business world point to the coming of true cooperation in every line of industry during or soon after the war, and it is the opinion of many individual producers to make big fortunes out of the efforts of the many. Everybody is going to participate in the fruits of industry to the extent of the amount of wealth created by his earnings. This applies equally to the exhibitor as to the railroad worker, the farmer, the mechanic, the clerk or the storekeeper. Enormous salaries are going to be cut down, duplications of effort abolished, roundabout ways of doing business replaced by simple, economical ones. The average man will benefit. Instead of an economic peace he will be an independent, self-respecting cooperator."

"I note here with pleasure that one of the largest film companies has adopted and advertises what is our announced plan of pictures at actual studio cost, plus producer's reasonable profit. This is only one of many reformed that cooperative buying will bring about. Among others that may be named are (1) selection of star, director and story in accordance with exhibitors' wishes; (2) the elimination of superfluous footage, waste or idle prints, and poorly balanced bills; (3) direct distribution from maker to exhibitor, with overhead and salesmanship charges sharply cut; (4) the wholesale purchase of theatre supplies as well as of pictures; (5) the distribution of profits not to a few favored insiders, but to the whole membership, first, indirectly through reduced rentals, and secondly, directly in the shape of dividends. Only a real, genuine democratic organization can achieve these reforms, and I call upon critics of our enterprise, including the advocates of other plans, to specify one item in which we have not protected and guaranteed the exhibitors' interest and control all along the line.

David Belasco to Direct Screen Drama at Universal City

Carl Laemmle Makes First Advance Which Noted Stage Craftsman is Considering

David Belasco, the wizard of the legitimate stage, probably will direct a picture at Universal City, Cal., immediately after he finishes the two stage productions under consideration at the moment.

For several years motion picture magnates have dangled alluring offers before Mr. Belasco to give the screen the benefit of his directorial ability. Until the present he has laughingly rejected all advances.

It was left for President Carl Laemmle of the Universal Company to make the first advance that came under consideration by Mr. Belasco. Negotiations to ward the final closing of the matter are now pending. Mr. Belasco will not go to Universal City, immediately, but with the two stage productions that he will present early next fall.

The offer made by President Laemmle is in line with his policy of obtaining the best producers to supply pictures to Universal exhibitors.

Mr. Laemmle not only has placed the entire facilities of Universal City at the disposal of Mr. Belasco, but he also has promised him the choice of players and what he obtains, it is said, any story Mr. Belasco may desire to be rendered.

Prominent motion picture producers and the big men in the legitimate field are a unit in declaring that any motion picture produced by Mr. Belasco will be a masterpiece. While they acknowledge that he may have to change some of his ideas after he actually gets to work on the lot, as are the opinion that versatility is so great that where necessary he will change his present views (motion picture production immediate upon finding that it is necessary to change his viewpoint.

Men who know the motion picture business since its birth also predict the Belasco-signed film will become the greatest moving picture director should he decide to devote all of his time to the silent drama.

(Jack) Pickford Becomes U. S. Government Censor

Jack Pickford last week became motion picture censor for the United States government. Pickford's first work as a censor for the government was done in the projection room of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, New York. He was given advance screenings of all pictures scheduled to appear on Universal's Screen Magazine at Universal's Current Events. Jack, Pickford's first cousin, is director of the "Charlie Chaplin" series and is much interested in the knowledge of motion pictures was immediately assigned to the intelligence Department.
How David Belasco Would Make Pictures

Greatest director of the stage tells how he would go about the production of a film drama

By David Belasco

I HAVE often thought of the process I would adopt if I were to undertake to make a motion picture. It would be greatly at variance with the methods now followed in the studios, but I wager I would obtain good results.

I would select a very human story adjusted to the simplest backgrounds, with very few characters and no ensemble whatever. In inventing the "business" of the scenes I would contrive to have the hero or heroine hold the stage alone whenever possible; for I would aim to tell the story, not by a correlation of incidents, but by the facial expressions of the actors. Experience in my own theater has convinced me that nothing is so calculated to command the interest of an audience as the concentration of a scene upon the work of one performer.

I would avoid the use of "cut-backs," "close-ups," and the other cumbersome and disconcerting devices now in vogue on the screens. And I would never consider my picture fit for public exhibition so long as it had to be interrupted by captions of explanation. A motion-picture play which must depend on notes to communicate its meaning to the spectator is suitable only to be thrown away. As on my regular stage, I would scrutinize every scene closely to discover distracting, confusing, or reiterated points, and these I would contrive to remove.

* * *

REHEARSALS would be continued until the actors were able to go through their roles without prompting or directing of any kind, and when it came to the filming process I would insist that the scenes should be photographed consecutively and in the order of their development. This last detail I would consider one of the most important features of my method, since following it out I feel sure that I could show the mental processes of the characters, which now are so seldom even suggested in motion-picture plays.

It is a fatal error of the motion-picture director to photograph the opening scene of a screen drama a week, perhaps, after the final scene has been made. In the regular theater a play works up to its biggest scene by degrees. The actor also rises gradually to his great dramatic moment. This is the natural process by which the mind and the emotions work, and there is no reason why it should not be followed in acting before the camera. I am positive that the absence of inspiration and imagination from even the best of the motion-picture plays up to the present time is because directors have fallen into the habit, for reasons of economy or convenience, of doing their work in patches.

My picture being now complete and ready for the public, I would require that the speed of its exhibition should be regulated to fit the natural gestures and movements of human beings. In all the picture plays I have ever seen the figures dashed through the scenes with such lightning rapidity that every facial expression becomes a grimace, and the effect of the whole is turned into travesty. Nothing in the motion-picture profession is so appalling to me as this malicious energy of the camera-man.

IF, in these observations concerning a comparatively new medium of entertainment and its relation to the spoken and acted drama, to which I have been devoted, I have combined criticism with suggestion, it is not because I underrate the pleasure it now affords for a vast public or the possibilities its development promises for the future.

The motion-picture better deserves commendation for what it has already accomplished than blame because its necessary limitations deny it a place among the theater's allied arts. Those who regard the picture play lightly, because they cannot derive from it the artistic satisfaction which they find in real drama, make the mistake of demanding too much of it. They should remember that one cannot be confused with the other, for the reason that drama is life, while the screen is destined always to remain a cold picture of life.

But there is no reason, in view of the mechanical perfection of the camera, why it should not develop an art of its own, or, at least, something which is akin to art. That art will not appear until the motion-picture has developed a separate medium which does not borrow from the acted and spoken drama, has founded its own school of writers, and has trained its own kind of actors.

U.S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation Quits Selling and Distribution Field

Hoffman-Foursquare Exchanges to Sell Features Acquired By Booking Corporation and Will Also Have Charge of Distribution

Through a transaction consummated the past week, the Hoffman-Foursquare exchanges will take over the selling and distribution of all features acquired by the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation. The move, it is announced, was made in the interests of a more intensive development of the growing business of the booking corporation and for the greater trade and possible growth in the distribution of its product.

The plans now completed by Frank G. Hall of the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, provide, it is said, for the acquiring of features of exceptional pretentiousness and quality. It was these plans which necessitated a broadening of the selling operations, which the arrangement with Foursquare provides.

Most of the booking corporation salesmen in the various territories have now become Foursquare representatives, it is announced, and a part of the selling organization of this company. P. V. R. Key of Foursquare, in speaking for President George Backer, said:

Benefits Both Companies

"Mr. Backer is constructing a motion picture distributing organization similar in solidarity and worth to the buildings he erects. He has been of the opinion for some time that both Foursquare and U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation would benefit by a closer cementing of their business relationship, and Mr. Hall shares that opinion.

"There is no keener judge of motion picture values than Mr. Hall," continued Mr. Key, "and few men in the trade possess a more accurate estimate of conditions and how they may be met to the greatest advantage of both exhibitor and distributor.

"Mr. Backer and Jacob Wildberg, treasurer of Foursquare, are evolving policies which are fundamentally constructive, and which will be carried out under their active supervision by General Manager M. H. Hoffman, the Foursquare exchange managers and the members of the combined selling staff.

Existing Contracts Stand

"Lynn S. Card, general salesman for the U. S. Exhibitors Corporation, will continue in that capacity to perform certain important duties of the utmost benefit to the enlarged plan of distribution of Mr. Hall's product, with special representatives still in the field. The Southern States Film Company of Atlanta, Glenn Feature Film Company of Boston, The Superfeatures, Ltd., of Toronto, and Fran Gersten, Inc., of New Jersey, will continue to handle U. S. productions under their existing contracts.

"The broadening of my plans led quite naturally to the arrangement just concluded between U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation and Foursquare Pictures," said Mr. Hall, "I am interested only in pictures of distinctive type; the sort of pictures that command the consideration of progressive exhibitors because they possess the unique qualities which attract motion picture patrons.

"The Zeppelin's Last Raid,' "Those Who Pay," 'The Belgin' have set a standard I shall strive to maintain to the utmost in future features which I acquire. In this connection it is pertinent to say that during the next twelve months I shall obtain a considerable number, which will be booked to exhibitors through Foursquare.

"A contract has just been signed by me for an option on six new pictures, the first of which is now entering upon its initial stage of production. I am also expecting to announce the purchase of another special feature before the end of the month as "Just a Woman" is being launched in New York with 143 days of big circuit bookings, which is being supplemented by reports from the branch offices that promise exceptionally quick results from this latest offering."

Third Petrova Film April 8

The date of Mme. Petrova's third picture "The Life Mask," has been changed by the First National Exhibitors Union for the Cinema to April 8, 1930.
New York City, April 2, 1918.

Bill Barry is the circulation manager of the Harpoon Publishing Company, which will issue a new brand of J. J. J. he book is slated to reach the stores April 1. Now boys, watch your step, the trusty pen of the editor, Joe Farnim, may dip in for red ink.

Bert Ennis is making a twenty-one- day trip around the world in the interests of Petrova Pictures. He took two socket edition typewriters and two bales of paper along. First stop Paris (—); second Athens (—); third stop will be Rome (—), and from there he expects to make Birmingham (Ala.) with some of the U. S. Nelly Bly had nothing on this "By.".

Doesn't seem possible, but nevertheless it's a fact, there are some fans, or ags, who buy tickets to some of the movie theatres and sit right through the run of the picture and the weather became sane. Reminds one of the six-day bicycle race. Some of them are alive today.

Ed Morrison has resigned from the herry Pictures Company and is about to step away with the army. Ed will have the well wishes of a host of friends and all regular Americans.

The trade still echoes with praises and sighs for that master of the toast, G. V. Landon, who made such a wonderful hit at the Edward Earl dinner. Still it's not to be wondered at since it seems that all he does is to create wonders at the Earl dinner. Still it's not to be wondered at since he has created wonders at the Earl dinner.

At the Pleiades Club, he has cultivated the art to the point of perfection.

The Pleiades Club will hold its annual banquet at the Hotel Biltmore on Saturday, April 28, to which club Edward Earl of the Nicholas Powers Company, and Pat Powers of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, have just been elected to membership.

Everyone about the trade and some outside it are sneezing and blowing at regular intervals. The air is full of "La Gripos Coot." Get that? Which makes us wonder how it is that a pretty girl can handle in the head with a handkerchief the size of a postage stamp, and a man is in bad all the time when he has on the size of a table cloth. Oh, well, it's an ill wind that doesn't blow some good to someone, some time, somehow.

Well, well, here we are again, Petrova in "The Life Mask," or "Who killed Woodruffe Clay?" followed by a most delectable luncheon at Shanleys. Some how or other I always did like Petrova, and since she has shown that she possesses the art of reaching a man's soul via the stomach, even irrepressibles like Pete Milne, Fritz Tidden, Walter Hill, Randy White, et al, admit that while the Mme. is a great artist, she is the most practical of all. Best of it is Petrova's luncheons are becoming a regular thing. Time two hours, Daniel Henderson presiding. No cut outs.

In former times the month of March was largely devoted to the quaffing of "Book" and the city was decorated with many signs bearing pictures of the goat. Now we rely on Haig, Haig and more Haig to save us from bondage, and this Haig was never bottled in Bonn-d.

Al Comier has been sick for the past week and we could really see that something was the matter when we saw the last one. Hurry up, Al, and get back on the job.

Emerson Undergoes Delicate Operation

John Emerson, the well known director associated with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, was operated upon last Thursday at the Post Graduate Hospital, New York City, for splenic anemia, the entire spleen having been removed. The operation, which is an unusual and delicate one, was performed with success by Dr. John Erdmann. Mr. Emerson is assured a rapid and complete recovery.
Mme. Petrova Returns
From Palm Beach, Fla

Mme. Petrova returned to New York on Saturday last after a brief vacation at Palm Beach, Florida. The Polish actress will commence working immediately at the Petrova studio on the fifth of her special screen productions.

"Patience Sparhawk and Her Times" is the title of the fifth production, which is a picturization of the celebrated novel by the same name, from the pen of Gertrude Atherton. This book is now in its twelfth edition, it is said, and has been translated into several foreign languages and has been read by millions of devotees of the photoplay. Ralph Ince, who directed "Tempered Steel," the latest production in which Madame Petrova is to appear, has been re-engaged to produce the film version of Miss Atherton's novel.

Mabel Juliene Scott Signs as Star With
Harry McRae Webster

Harry McRae Webster, president of the Harry McRae Webster Productions Inc., has leased the Standard Studio to Yonkers, N. Y., and begun work on a seven-reel feature entitled "Reclaimed," by Richard Field Carroll.

Mabel Juliene Scott, whose beauty and exceptional pleasing personality was pronounced and thoroughly satisfying in "The Barrier" and "The Sign Invisible," has been engaged by Mr. Webster, a leading woman for the production.

John D. Braddon, formerly with the William Fox forces during the production of "Les Miserables," and other big feature films, has also been engaged as a technical director.

Gaumont Company to Produce Big Features
From Stories by the Foremost Authors

Stories Call for Girls of Exceptional Beauty—To Secure Types by Means of Contest Conducted Through U. S. Newspapers

Fulfilling its promise to independent exhibitors, the Gaumont Company announces it intends to produce a number of big motion picture dramas in the near future. While prominent stars will be featured, the drawing power of these dramas will not depend alone upon the names of the stars, but will be made doubly sure by strong stories written by famous authors and produced in the most attractive manner possible.

Conservative always, the Gaumont Company makes no extravagant claims that these dramas will be the most expensive or the most spectacular ever produced, but it does promise that they will not be surpassed by any dramas now being offered through the independent or any other market.

No insipid stories will be filmed, it is said, but the themes used will be powerful and dramatic enough to grip the attention even without the excellent casts which will interpret them. Everything possible will be done to make these productions perfect in every detail.

Inaugurates Beauty Contest

Two of the stories, which are unique in theme, call for hundreds of girls of exceptional beauty. To secure the proper types, the Gaumont Company has inaugurated a nation-wide beauty contest which is being conducted by the leading daily papers in each of the United States. Five girls between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five will be selected by each paper, and the Gaumont Company will make film tests of these girls to find out which have the best screen talent and personality.

The girls selected for these two productions will have their transportation and expenses paid to the Gaumont studios, and will also be paid good salaries while engaged in the filming of these stories.

The Gaumont Company expects to find a number of girls of unusual types of beauty who possess sufficient screen talent to make them the successful film stars of the future.

An interesting phase of this contest, which stamps it as the best of its kind, is that motion pictures of the most attractive of the contestants will be run in each state during the contest in the two Gaumont news-reels, the Gaumont News and Gaumont Graphic, so that the girls will not have to wait very long to see how they appear in cinematic action. This feature, which will result in filling the theatres on the nights these newsreels are shown, will undoubtedly appeal to exhibitors who have booked the News and Graphic.
William Fox Corps of Directors
To Advise on "Mutt and Jeff" Films

Following a conference held this week between Bud Fisher, originator of the Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons, and William Fox, who is to publish the comedies, Mr. Fox announced his intention of having all his directors see the Mutt and Jeff pictures, with a view to obtaining suggestions on methods of developing and sustaining action. It is Mr. Fox's opinion that Mr. Fisher has mastered the difficult art of getting his story started at the very jump and of eliminating everything from the film that does not contribute materially to the development of immediate interest.

"Action; that's what I preach day and night to my directors," said Mr. Fox. While the problem of making Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons is not the same problem which confronts the director in his average production, there is a certain principle involved which applies to Mr. Fisher's work as well as to any other motion picture picture. It is this: that I hope to have illustrated through the animated cartoons.

The conference between Mr. Fisher and Mr. Fox probably was the last they will hold prior to the cartoonist's departure for the European battle front, where he will serve as a captain of artillery. One result of the meeting, as announced by Mr. Fox, was that a thorough understanding had been reached regarding the necessity of maintaining the productions on the very highest comedy plane.

"We are of one accord in this respect," Mr. Fox explained. "We analyzed carefully and in detail all of the comedies that Mr. Fisher has prepared for the next two months. We found they measured up to our standard and that there were very few cuts or other changes which could be made to the improvement of the productions. The first picture, 'The Decoy,' will be ready for exhibitors' March 24th.

"My viewpoint was the exhibitor viewpoint and Mr. Fisher's that of the producer. I was looking at the pictures as I look at other productions which are offered for rental in my chain of twenty-theatre theatres. We discussed them prog and con, re-ran some of them, and when we had concluded, I agreed that Mr. Fisher had convinced me I could not afford to show his animated cartoons in my houses.

"The pictures are only 500 feet in length, but I am prepared to guarantee they will be constant excluates of laughs. The action starts with the very first flash of light on the screen, and it keeps going to the end. That which I like best about the productions is that Mr. Fisher knows when he is through and stops right there. There is no attempt at padding — no disposition to add a few feet just for the sake of it. The average is about 500 feet, and if any of them run longer there is justification — there is more than 500 feel of fun."

Film Industry Has Found Itself, Says American Co. Manager

Richard R. Nehls, manager of the American Film Company, Chicago, is confident that prospects in the film industry were never better than for the coming year.

"Our president, Samuel S. Hutchinson, will soon leave for his customary trip of inspection through our studios at Santa Barbara, where studio activities have been greatly augmented since the first of the year," said Mr. Nehls. "It was invariably a policy of the American Film Company to have all possible pictures completed before the opening of the winter season to meet any requirements of any distributors. Now that all the pictures have been completed, we are able to take advantage of any desirable opportunities of which we may be notified. We are ready to begin making new pictures at once, and we are confident that the supply of pictures will be ample for the needs of the trade."

Youthful Actress Seeks Screen Honors

Norka Roskaya, better known perhaps in Europe and South America, by reason of her success upon the speaking stage, is about to desert the footlights, it is announced, and will enter the ranks of motion picture stars for film honors.

Miss Roskaya, though but nineteen years of age, has won an enviable place among stage celebrities by reason of her rare beauty and wonderful talent both in music and in dancing art.

She was born in Switzerland and has appeared in the principal theatres of France and Italy. Her success in South America was marked from her first appearance and in many of the southern Republics she at once became the popular idol.

Miss Roskaya's middle name is ambition and she is determined to win fame upon the screen as she has upon the speaking stage. She has cancelled her contracts to appear in Havana, Panama and other Latin-American cities and within a short time will be in New York to close negotiations for her appearance before the camera.

Japanese Actor Aids Sale of Liberty Bonds

Sessue Hayakawa announced this week that he will give all the assistance in his power to the Los Angeles committee in charge of the third Liberty Loan drive. He plans to work among his own countrymen, of whom there is a large colony in the city, and says he is confident of excellent results.

Hayakawa subscribed liberally to both the first and second Liberty Loan issues and is going to add his "bit" again this time.

"We must do everything in our power to win the war," said the popular Nipponese star, "and certainly one of the very best ways is to contribute all we can—subscribe until it hurts, as some one recently put it—to the funds required to finance the tremendous undertaking of the United States Government.

“Eagle’s Eye” Uncle Sam Trailers Commended by Liberty Loan Committee

Exhibitors all over the country are finding the pictures of Uncle Sam incorporated by the Whartons at the end of each episode of “The Eagle’s Eye,” a potent factor in aiding the third Liberty Loan drive, it is said. The novelty effect of seeing such a familiar picture as Uncle Sam animated and making a plea for the united financial support of the nation, has proved most effective.

The Liberty Loan Committee of the Second Federal Reserve District has sent the following letter to the Whartons:

"On behalf of the Liberty Loan Committee of the Second Federal Reserve District, may I express my gratification and appreciation for the very effective publicity which you give the campaign in your pictures, 'The Eagle’s Eye.' The picture itself will undoubtedly do much to bring home to all who see it the realities of the war and a conception of the task ahead of us, and Uncle Sam’s specific appeal for the Liberty Loan between the reels should help greatly to crystallize emotions and feelings into action.

"In closing, let me say how deeply we appreciate the very special efforts you made to meet the Liberty Loan drive.

"The letter is signed by Guy Emerson, director of publicity, for the Second Federal Reserve District Committee."

Nat Goodwin Fired
For Insubordination
Film Head Testifies

Despite the fact that he was paid $1,250 a week to appear in productions of the Mirror Film Company, Nat Goodwin, much-married actor, refused to submit to the discipline of the director, was late repeatedly at the studio, and violated other conditions of his contract, according to Clifford B. Harmon, president of the film company, who testified in the suit the actor has brought to recover $13,000 back salary which he claims is due.

Harmon testified that not only was the company justified in "firing" Nat, but that he considered the comedian owed the company money.

Goodwin says that he drew the line at being "shown off like an animal" in a film studio, in order that the company, as Nat declares, might sell stock.

The film president testified that Nat made a practice of appearing from one to three hours late at the studio, and at one time suggested that he and the company be sent to New Orleans to "do" a picture.

"I told him that I wouldn't send him South to play the races," Harmon said.

"I was only late once," said Goodwin, grinning, "and that was when the machine the company sent for me broke down."

George Ames Becomes
Pathe Branch Manager

George T. Ames, one of the best known exchange managers in the business, has been appointed to the Pathe Philadelphia office, H. M. Osborn, the former manager, having been placed in charge of the Pathe Washington office.

Mr. Ames comes to Pathe from the Goldwyn, for which company he has been Philadelphia manager during the past year.

Exit Sonia Markova; Enter Greta Ahrbin
The great Russian emotional actress, Sonia Markova, is no more. And Greta Ahrbin, of whom she has gropped fame has also fallen by the wayside. But to take the place of both is Greta Ahrbin, and the story of the same name:

Some years ago a girl born in Chicago of Swedish parents applied to the Bush Temple stock company, and the manager upon learning her name, Greta Ahrbin, said it was "too odd," and that Gretchen Hartman fitted her much better, and she played as a child and into early womanhood. She is in her early twenties now.

Under the same name she joined the Biograph company, where she starred in features for two years. William Fox starred her in one play under that name, and then one of his advisors conceived the name "Sonia Markova." Reviewers and those familiar with her screen work were asked to take the latter name seriously.

Now she has decided that her own name, Greta Ahrbin, is a pretty one, better than the other two. She also wants it known that she is American from the top of her head to the tip of her toes.

Dorothy Jardon To Go Into Pictures

Dorothy Jardon, it is announced by her personal representative, Ed. Rosenbaum, Jr., will very shortly enter the motion picture field at the head of her own company.

This will be Miss Jardon's first appearance before the cinema, she having steadfastly refused all previous offers. She has arranged to have Mr. Rosenbaum act as her business manager for the next three years.

Her fame as a musical comedy star is far-reaching, and with her striking beauty and dramatic ability there is every reason to believe that her success upon the screen is assured.

Mr. Rosenbaum, it is said, has arranged with a prominent playwright for a story for her first production, and several New York capitalists are to back both Miss Jardon and Nora Bayes in their new venture.

Metro Engages Noted Actor for Book-Play

Edward S. Abeles, one of the most distinguished of American actors and long a star in his own right, has been engaged by Metro to play the role of Rosedale, the Wall street broker in "The House of Mirth."

The Edith Wharton novel, which was dramatized by the late Clyde Fitch, has been picturehized by June Mathis and Albert Capellani, and will be directed by Mr. Capellani. Mr. Abeles is at present in the cast of "Oh, Lady, Lady" at the Princess Theatre, New York. He will work at the Metro studio under Albert Capelani's direction in the daytime, appearing in the Princess Theatre production in the evening.
review:
Virginia Pearson in "A DAUGHTER OF FRANCE"
Fox war-drama; five parts; published March 24

As a whole: Morbid
Story: Fair
Star: Good
Support: Morbid
Settings: Appropriate
Photography: Good

If you are interested in productions depicting scenes from the world war, "A Daughter of France" offers a good subject.
Here is plenty in this picture to make one feel a keen hatred for our enemies and a desire to crush it out quickly. Many of the subtleties arry strong messages for patriotic appeal, some of which elicited a bit of applause from patrons of the Boston Theatre.

Raymond Hatton and Kathryn Williams in
"THE WHISPERING CHORUS"
Artcraft drama; seven parts; published March 23

As a whole: Well produced
Story: Morbid
Star: Well cast
Support: Commendable
Cutting: Excellent
Photography: Excellent

"The Whispering Chorus" is a triumph for Cecil B. Deille. From Jeanie Macpherson's dramatization of Perley oree Sheehan's story he has produced a powerful, dramatic and gripping story, not at times pleasant, but a big, human document nevertheless.

The plot is a simple one, picturing as it does the destinies of two men and a woman, but in the hands of Director Deille deft touches have been added that bring out the strong points of the story and drive home its lofty truths.

The cast is an exceptional one throughout, including bedies Kathryn Williams, who portrays the role of Jane Trim-le in an appealing manner, Raymond Hatton, Elliott Dexter, dythe Chapman, Tully Marshall, Guy Oliver, James Neill, loah Berry, Gustav Seyffertitz, and others well known to lovers of the screen drama. The picture is unique in its photography, many scenes showing two color tones and the cenes depicting life in China on a gala night, with fireworks lowing, are remarkable.

The story: John Trimble, assistant cashier in a contracting concern, succumbs to the whisperings of temptation, steals 1,000 from his employer and runs away to hide when he fears lection. On an isolated island where he secretes himself he becomes the victim of human cruelty. With all his and hunger, he finds the body of a dead man and listening to the voice of evil he hangs clothing with and mutilates the head of the corpse.
he finding of the body is reported to his family and Trimble egins a search for the murderer.

Franklyn Farnum in "FAST COMPANY"
Bluebird comedy-drama; five parts; published April 1

As a whole: Mediocre
Story: Average
Star: Fair
Support: Adequate
Settings: Exquisite
Photography: Good

As a production, "Fast Company" ranks but fair. However, to those who are admirers of Franklyn Farnum, undoubtedly the story will have the usual appeal with which previous efforts of Mr. Farnum’s have met.

The story is unconvincing and it is very hard to picture Mr.
Farnum in the role of a youth of twenty-five. Unless former Franklyn productions have met with success at your theatre the reviewer does not recommend booking "Fast Company," Juanita Hansen plays opposite Mr. Farnum.

The story: Lawrence Van Huyler, being constantly goaded by his family as to his prestige, finds it impossible to be any-things but very polite and a perfect cad. Any demonstrations are quickly nipped in the bud by his father. The tearing down of an old house, for generations the home of the Van Huyler’s, reveals the secret of the family name and Lawrence is delighted to find that he is Irish, the paternal cognomen having been O’Malley. At last he can be more human and his winning of Alicia brings the story to a pleasing close.
Ann Murdoch in
"THE RICHEST GIRL"

Mutual comedy-drama; five parts; published April 8.

As a whole: Good
Story: Average
Star: Interesting
Support: Adequate
Settings: Clear
Photography: Average

"The Richest Girl," featuring Ann Murdoch, provides a story of average interest. The role of Benjamin Downey gives Miss Murdoch ample opportunity for a display of her charming mannerisms.

Miss Murdoch is first seen in a fashionable boarding school which she leaves when she finds that because of her father's wealth she is not subject to the severe rules which apply to the other pupils. She meets Paul Normand and by always placing him in apparently compromising positions she helps him lose his fiancee and his position and then wins up by winning his love. David Powell, always a pleasing actor, is especially so in his role of Paul Normand. The direction is by Alberth Capellani.

The story: Benjamin Downey leaves boarding school when she finds that the rules do not apply to her because of her father's wealth. While motorizing, she has a blow-out and seeks refuge in the house of Paul Normand, who, when Benjamin is found by his fiancee and her father, is placed in an embarrassing position, the result of which is the loss of his fiancee and position. All matters are set right for Paul and Benjamin when Paul confesses to the girl that he loves her.

Zoe Rae in
"THE MAGIC EYE"

Universal drama; five parts; published April 1.

As a whole: Poor Story: Inconsistent
Star: Poorly cast
Support: Fair
Settings: Average
Photography: Average

"The Magic Eye" is below the standard of many "average" program features. The story is inconsistent and is told in such a manner that every bit of action can be anticipated before it is pictured on the screen.

Whether or not the production can be regarded as suitable for any particular exhibitor depends upon the audiences catered to and whether or not little Zoe Rae is a favorite. For the high class, intelligent audience it is taboo. Zoe Rae is the featured star and H. A. Barrows, Claire De Brey and Charles H. Mailes appear as support.

The story: Shirley is a wonderful child. She is able to detect trouble before it actually arrives. This superhuman intelligence informs her of the fact that her mother is in danger and that her father, who has been wrecked, is saved. It all proves true and the father arrives home in time to save his wife from Bullard, who worked for Shirley's father as agent.

William Desmond in
"THE MARRIAGE BUBBLE"

Triangle comedy-drama; three parts; published March 31.

As a whole: Amusing
Story: Entertaining
Star: Plenty
Support: Theatrical Settings: No
Photography: Faithful

To meet the needs of exhibitors who want features of shorter length, the Triangle Company has an innovation offers "The Marriage Bubble," a three-reel comedy-drama, and "Unfaithful," a two-reel drama on the same basis as a five reel production.

Harold Lockwood in
"THE LANDLOPER"

York-Metro comedy-drama; five parts; published April 1.

As a whole: Fine
Story: Entertaining
Star: Eady
Support: Well selected
Settings: Adequate
Photography: Excellent

One of the best productions of the week is "The Landlaper." Harold Lockwood is enjoyable in his role of a wealthy man who turns vagrant to win a wager. He afterwards finds that he enjoys the life, is able to accomplish some good and win the love of a charming young woman in the person of Pauline Curley.

The story, from the book by Holman Day, has been well directed by George Irving under the supervision of Fred Balhoffer. It is at all times enjoyable, combining pathos, humor and interest.

The story: Upon a wager, Thornton Briston turns from his life of social gayeties and for a period of three months becomes a tramp. In his trampings he rescues Katherine Kilgour from the undesirable attentions of Richard Dodd. He also takes upon himself the care of Rose Marte, a little girl bereft of parents. The death of the little girl, caused by impure water, arouses in Briston the need for action. He is successful in overthrowing the powers of Dodd, main politician and grafter, responsible for the impure water. He also wins the love of Katherine.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration — to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.
Gladys Hulette in
"MRS. SLACKER"
Pathé comedy-drama; five parts; published March 31

As a whole: Pleasing
Star: Delightful
Support: Amusing
Settings: Sufficient
Photography: Good

Here's a comedy-drama that contains a sufficient amount of pathos and humor to make it well balanced; a story interesting enough to make it enjoyable and a star that at once wins one's interest. "Mrs. Slackler" provides a most charming subject for an evening of light entertainment devoid of engrossing problems. And its touch of timeliness in the story of the lad who was afraid to go to war and so married his mother's wash-girl, gives the exhibitor an opportunity to advertise its anti-war propaganda to the production to which every man can bring his whole family.

The story: The knowledge that Robert married her to escape the draft, makes Susie angry and she starts out to enlist. She accidentally stumbles onto a German spy plot and is in imminent danger. Her husband comes to the rescue and his bravery reveals the manhood in him. And Robert's parents, heretofore unkinder to Susie, realize the part she has played in Roberts's reformation.

Enid Bennett in
"NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY"
Paramount comedy; five parts; published March 17

C. Gardner Sullivan's little comedy makes a splendid vehicle for the pretty and vivacious Enid Bennett. It poking fun at the foibles of the citizens of a small town and altogether proves a diverting and highly amusing photoplay. Miss Bennett fits the role of Roberta Miller as perfectly as she does her many gowns, of which there is a lavish display. Earl Rodney is cast as a "boo" editor, Marjorie Bennett is a timorous, convincing Prudence Sampson and Gloria Hope a captivating Judith Holmes, who acts as Roberta's aid in her various escapades. The picture has been carefully directed and moves along swiftly and surely to a pleasing though somewhat trifling climax. Jerome Storm directed, supervised by Thomas H. Ince, and the scenes of small town life are true in every respect. The subtitles call forth many laughs.

The story: Roberta Miller returns to Lilivy, Kansas, after a season in New York City, and finds things rather dull. Her many trunks, bulging, and muchinery, cause the gossips tongues to wag about her and finally brings the wrath of the church-going populace when she presents a "symphony of spring" at a bazaar in the Town Hall, which consists of a nature dance with music and very little clothing. The town is divided in the question of dancing thereon and she proceeds to convert the antithesz by luring an innocent girl to a nearby town's public dance hall, intending to leave her there while she informed the church people. She discovers a church truant drinking in the place and changes her plans. On the recommendation of the trustee and the editor of the local paper, the church votes to have dancing, to save the young folk's from temptation. Roberta, out of gratitude agrees to marry the editor.

June Caprice in
"A CAMOUFLAGE KISS"
Fox comedy-drama; five parts; published March 31

As a whole: Amusing
Story: Light
Star: Interesting
Support: Average
Settings: Adequate
Photography: Good

"A Camouflage Kiss" has its entertaining qualities and serves very well as an hour's light amusement. June Caprice, youthful and pert, is cast in the leading role of Martha Thorne, and is supported by a well-selected cast, including Pell Tennyson, George Bunn, Bernard Thornton and Lola May. Stephen Fox created the story and Harry Millerade directed it in its usual capable style. The story: Martha Thorne, kissed by someone in the dark and being engaged to Rudolph King, naturally expected he was the perpetrator of the deed. But when Gerald Marton kisses her she recognizes the kiss and becomes indignant. Incidentally her love for Rudolph wanes and she finds herself helplessly in love with Marton. The story ends when she consents to follow the road to happiness in the company of Marton.

Essanay to Produce "Young America" And Several Other Big Stage Plays

Essanay now is busily engaged in the preparation of its next big feature, "Young America," George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, purchased the rights for this play from Cohan & Harris and it has already been put into scenario form by Essanay's staff of writers. Director Berthelet has almost completed his plans for interior art decorations and settings and scouts are out seeking ideal locations for the exterior scenes. Mr. Spoor has a representative in New York looking for a suitable cast.

The play was written by Fred Ballard and had a highly successful run in New York and other cities. Work is being rushed on it and Essanay expects to publish it shortly for the Kleine exchanges.

Other productions also being gotten under way include "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.," which in all probability will follow "Young America," although several other plays, of which Essanay holds the picture rights are being considered. The latest of the Taylor Holmes features, "A Pair of Sixes," which was issued through the George Kleine system April 1, is said, is being rapidly booked. This is held by critics to be the funniest of all the Holmes comedies. Large downtown theatres in practically all the cities of the country have reserved bookings according to reports from the Kleine offices. The picture was adapted from the stage play by Edward Peppe and is in seven parts.

The feature following this will be a Chaplin jingle entitled "Chaplin's Favorites." Chaplin's all-singing, all-dancing Chaplin's funniest films and is taken from the Essanay Chaplin comedies. The titles are in jingle form and the scenes from the various Chaplin comedies together with the titles dovetail to form a complete new story with the funniest and snappiest of the Chaplin scenes. It is in five parts and will be distributed commencing April 6.

Bessie Barriscale Appears in Role Of Safe Crackler in "Blindfolded"

Bessie Barriscale has scored another hit, it is said, through her remarkable portrayal in the leading role of "Blindfolded," the Paralta play which will be the next attraction in which that star will be presented to the public. The picture has already been completed and will soon be published.

In this picture Miss Barriscale appears as "Peggy Muldoon," and the delineation of the member of the underworld it is stated, is proof of her unlimited versatility and her powers as an emotional actress. The characterization of "Peggy" in the story is a difficult one to portray, inasmuch as it demands that Miss Barriscale appear in less than a heroine of a struggling bank employee. However, Miss Barriscale has impersonated this part, which is so different from all her former work in a manner that makes it realistic and convincing.

The supporting cast of "Blindfolded" is said to be unusually good. Joseph J. Dowling, the well-known character of the Paralta Company, appears in the role of "Patrick Muldoon." Edward Coxen appears in the leading masculine role of "Miss Dingle." Others in the cast are Jay Morley and Helen Dunbar.

"Blindfolded" was written by E. Richard Schayer and the screen version was prepared by him as well. Raymond B. Wells has directed this little comedy of Miss Barriscale's Paralta plays, also attended to the production of "Blindfolded." It will be distributed through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.
Fox Announces Stars and Titles for Five Features Now Being Made

"Blue Eyed Mary" is the title for the new picture which June Caprice is making in the eastern studios of William Fox. This is the working title of the production. It is described as a "sprightly adventure in the field of love." The scenario is by Francis Crowley and the direction by Harry Millarde.

"Brave and Bold" is the new play which George Walsh is filming in the eastern studios. It is from the story, "Four Forty at Fort Penn." The adaptation is by Perley Poore Sheehan and the direction by Carl Harbaugh. It is described as a minute action story and is said to show Walsh in one of his best characterizations.

In the western studios "Confession" is the title of a new play which Jewel Carmen is making, said to be an eventful story concerning an interrupted honeymoon. The bridgegroom is accused of murder, almost as he leaves the alter. Just when he is to be placed in the electric chair his bride saves him and the real murderer confesses to the crime.

Gladys Brockwell in "One Mistake"

"Her One Mistake" is the title of a new picture in which Gladys Brockwell is starred. It is being made in the western studios and is described as a dramatic story of the unwritten law. Leon Le Saint is directing this picture.

"Fires of Hate" is the working title of a new play which Virginia Pearson is making in the eastern studios. The scenario is by E. Lloyd Sheldon and the direction by Edmund Loring. The theme deals with history and making events in Russia. Many of the scenes are laid in Petrograd and Miss Pearson, it is said, is given an opportunity to display her highly emotional acting.

Jane and Katherine Lee, the William Fox "Baby Grand," also are at work in the eastern studios on a new play in which they save their aunt, a wealthy widow, from fortune hunters and crooks and finally manage to marry her off to the man worth while.

"Vortex" Heads Triangle April 7 Card

Jealousy is the theme of "The Vortex," Norman Sherbrook's Wall Street story, which heads the Triangle April 7 program. Mary Warren, who was recently with William Desmond in "The Sea Panther," has the leading feminine role. Joe King is also featured. The cast includes William Higbee, Eugene Burr, George Hernandez and Myrtle Rishell. Gilbert P. Hamilton directed. "The Vortex" was formerly scheduled for March 31.

"The Boss of the Lazy Y," with Roy Stewart in the title role, is the second feature of the week. This is a screen adaptation of Charles Alden Seltzer's novel of the same name. Working with Director Cliff Smith in this story are Josie Sedgwick, five-year-old Frankie Lee, Walt Whitman, Graham Pette, Aaron Edwards and William Ellington. "First Aid," Keystone comedy, is the concluding film of the week.

"Der Kaiser" a General Film Cartoon

General Film issues this week the first of the Merkel Films, split-reel novelty films. Cartoons, scenes and novelties are introduced in the first six scenes which will be distributed every week in one-reel form. The initial film contains "Me, der Kaiser," cartoon; "Our Heroes," a novelty, and "Strange Sights in the Pacific Islands," a scenic. These subjects are being produced by the Merkel Film Company of Cincinnati.

In "Me, der Kaiser," the war lord is shown planning his various atrocities with the crown prince, who are both presented in ludicrous caricature by Ren Anderson, the artist.

Lockwood Plays Dual Role

Harold Lockwood is playing a dual role in "Lend Me Your Name," a new Metro production, in which he has just begun work at Metro studio in Hollywood, Cal., under the direction of Fred Balshofer. It is a comedy derived from Francis Perry Elliott's novel of that name, and was written in scenario for the screen by Mr. Balshofer and John B. Clymer.

Commonwealth Pictures to Present
Many Novel Effects in Photography

The accompanying photograph shows what is said to be one of the most complete cinematograph outfits being used at the present time by any company in America. The camera, with its attachments, H. A. Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, announces represents an out lay of $8,000.

The camera originally was made by Bell & Howell and is equipped with a 1000 ft. magazine; 32, 50 and 75 M. photolens and matched finders 4 1/8 inch for telephoto work; collapsible sun shields for all lenses; lens markings accurately scaled from 6 feet to infinity; 170 deg. shutter; round closing diaphragm; square closing device; diamond shaped vignetting shutter; rising and falling curtain shutter; device to change focus of any lens while photographing; oval shaped sliding mask shutter; square shaped sliding mask shutter; auxiliary aperture plate for marking dissolves; mask equipment of all shapes and sizes; footage recorder and picture counter which registers each individual picture; gear device to make any length dissolve or fade; tripod with automatic release to quick panoramic and up and down tilting motions.

Many of the new ideas and inventions are the work of cameraman Jackson J. Rose. Mr. Rose was for seven years connected with the Essanay Company. His initial work for the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation was photographing Charlotte in "The Frozen Warning."

Mr. Spanuth announced in its new productions now in the making Commonwealth Pictures will present a number of novelties in the way of trick photography and unique effects which have been worked out by himself and Mr. Rose.

"Pandora Pays" Next Lois Weber Film

Lois Weber's next production will be "Pandora Pays," a modern story based on the famous legend of Epimetheus and Pandora, in which is shown how the women of today are suffering from the heart aches that were loosed upon the world when Pandora's curiosity got the better of her and she opened the forbidden box.

Mildred Harris, of "Linnie" fame in "The Price of a Good Time," has been cast for the title role. The story was written by E. V. Durling. Lois Weber is revising the script.

Tom Mix in "Western Blood"

A strong cast appears in support of Tom Mix, it is said, in "Western Blood," which has just been finished in the west coast studios of William Fox. In the cast are Victoria Forde, Frithk Clark, Barney Furey and Pat Christina.

The story revolves around cowboys in dress suits. Mix plays the part of Tex Wilson. The story was written by Mr. Mix. Lyman Reynolds directed it.
General Announces Blue Ridge Drama
First of Ned Finley Productions

Announcement is made of the schedule for the Blue Ridge Drama, produced by Ned Finley for General Film Company. The Return of O'Garry, the first of the series, will be issued in April 13, a week later than originally planned, and other subjects will follow every second week. Three of the Finley films have already been completed and the company is making arrangements to return to Bat Cave, North Carolina, to resume its work on other films. Each subject will be a drama of the type, two reels in length.

The Return of O'Garry" is a stirring tale of the North-west in which Ned Finley returns to the screen in the role made famous in his O'Garry pictures produced several years ago by Vitagraph pictures. A flight follows in which his helper is overpowered. Giel, the foreman's daughter, attempts to release the officer, but is detected and to save the situation she pushes O'Garry into a beartrap, telling the men he did it to prevent his escape.

Lieutenant Giel manages to release O'Garry and speeds him in his way for reinforcements, but is forced to seek safety from wolves in the top of a tree. O'Garry returns in time to rescue the girl from her stepfather, who is attempting to brand her with a red hot iron for her refusal to marry his half-breed companion, and another fight follows in which the mounted officer is victor.

"Mountain Law" and "The Raiders of Sunset Gap" will be among the forthcoming Blue Ridge Dramas.

Fox's April List of Films Includes
Six Features and Two Cartoons

The April films of the Fox Film Corporation include two Standard Plays, four Special Features, two Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons and one Sunshine comedy.

Of the Standard Plays, "The Soul of Buddha," is a Theda Bara production, written by Miss Bara herself and featuring her as a half-caste Indian girl. The picture was directed by J. Gordon Edwards.

"The Blindness of Divorce," the other Standard Picture, was written and directed by Frank Lloyd. The cast includes Bertha Maff, Charles Charly, Rhea Mitchell, Bertram Grassby and other well known players. The drama tells in an effective manner the story of a woman divorced by her husband in spite of her innocence and driven into despair by the scorn of society.

Jewel Carmen, in "The Bride of Fear," a Fox special feature, portrays the part of a young girl, discouraged in her attempts to make a way for herself in a great city, who is saved from suicide by a crane. The play was written by Bennett Cohen and directed by S. A. Franklin.

"American Buds" features the Fox "Baby Grands," Jane and Katherine Lee, in a romantic drama in which the two children are seen as innocents of a poor farm.

Tom Mix in "Western Blood"

Tom Mix, it is said, has an uproarious comedy in "Western Blood." The play is something quite different from what Mix has been accustomed to appear in because it features him and his cowpuncher friends in dress suits.

George Scarborough's thrilling drama, "Her One Mistake," is the April Special Feature written for Gladys Brockwell. In this play the star again brings to the screen a dual role. The drama was staged by Edward Le Saint. Supporting Miss Brockwell are William Scott, William Louis, Charles Perley and other prominent screen players.

The Henry Lehrman Sunshine Comedy scheduled for April is "A Wailer's Wasted Life." Mutt and Jeff, Capt. Budd Fisher's famous cartoon characters, recently adopted by William Fox, will disport themselves in two April films. One is "The Freight Investigation," and the other is "The Leak."

The Periscope

By Fuller Pep

Many a Big Ben was called a liar last Monday a. m.

Well old von Hindenburg disappointed the newsmen boys. We were afraid he wouldn't show up at the gates of Paris on April 1. That was his little April Fool joke. He was only kiddin' all along.

"Is D. W. G. to have a rival in that sci. z. the stage David Belasco?" It looks that way. Must be something in the name David, eh?

The squared Film Corp. has asked the court for permission to change its name to the Rita Jolivet Film Corp. Probably a poor year for nuts.

"I didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier" and "When the War Is Over," songs, with their sentimental mush are to be consigned to the ash can by New York music publishers. It took the film people to show them the error of their ways.

Grover Cleveland Instructs Doug.

Paramount's publicity agent says Alexander the Great took no interest in motion pictures, yet we see by the papers that Doug Fairbanks took a couple of lessons from Alexander the other day on how to curve a brick.

Yes indeed those gas masks will come in mighty handy when the war is over to muzzle the idiots who insist upon reading the subtitles loud.

"Figgers Don't Lie"

If you don't believe it costs a tremendous amount of money to make slap-stick comedies, just cast your practiced eye over the following statistics, furnished us at great expense by the King-Beep P. A.:

170,000 feet of negative to make 2,000 feet-comedy.
14,000 actors and extras, in 20 comedies.
200 assorted pies.
56 baskets of soap-suds.
12 barrels of brine.
6 new automobiles, completely smashed.
29 evening gowns completely ruined.
1 accident.

Strong Men Wept

We think it was carrying realism too far for Nat Goodwin to cause his case-hardened director to weep while appearing before the camera. According to one witness in the Mirror Film Company's suit this actually happened. One juror was taken sick immediately after Nat testified about the vinegar baths. It probably soured his stomach.

Another vampire has caused the downfall of a mere man. This time it was a movie "director" in Chicago. The "vamp," was a Policewoman who answered the director's ad and when he said she'd be great in vampire roles, she made the "pinch."

Things We'd Like to Know

Why do subtitle writers insist on writing "all right" "alright" when there isn't any such word?

Why they speak of Germans spreading "dissention" in "The Kaiser" when they mean "dissension?"

Why the railway station in "Naughty, Naughty" is marked Florence, when the subtitle says the town is Lilyville?

Joe Brandt, general sales manager for Universal, is reported to have said: "Middle west exhibitors are repairing every broken chair and putting in benches to take care of the spring rush of business." That may be so but we haven't found any western theatres equipped with broken chairs or benches in a long time. Most of them seem to be as comfortable as the average eastern house, and quite a few a little better.
The Peril of Sunday Closing
By John R. Freuler

These are days of harrowing suffering and superlative sacrificial days when the great mass of the people are entitled to get from life every atom of happiness and pleasure, entitled to every moment that will take them from the horror of the realms of the realm of even momentary enjoyment.

It is a time when any effort to curtail entertainment is out of place. The welfare of the people of this country is at stake and importance in the struggle for endurance through which the nation is passing.

To deprive them of any of their few chances to enjoy life is to invite calamity within our own borders.

The time is particularly and peculiarly inopportune for meddling reformers to be in the halls of legislative bodies of our states and municipalities laws for the Sunday closing of the motion picture theater. The men who legislate for us are crying the greatest pictureability than ever and they can ill afford to tamper with the existing social order.

It is unfortunate that we have in many communities people who are so thoroughly saturated with the notion that they must make everybody else live as they themselves live, that the question of Sunday closing of a motion picture theater is forever agitated. The professional meddler, however, must meddle, he always has and always will, but in times like these he ought to be careful what he meddles with.

Entitled to Recreation
I maintain that the American citizen is as much entitled to his Sunday picture as he is to his Sunday newspaper. The Sunday newspaper is a form of enlightenment and entertainment, more of entertainment than enlightenment. The motion picture is a form of enlightenment and entertainment.

Progressive social workers and forward looking churchmen are not in the ranks of the advocates of Sunday closing. The opponents of the Sunday theater are professional reformers.

The importance of the motion picture has been demonstrated in many instances in the last few months of the “speeding up” process which has been going on in industries. The big factories devoting their energies to the making of munitions and war supplies have been quick to realize the absolute necessity of entertainment for their workmen, and today in many communities theaters erected by factories are showing the best films.

England and France have gradually increased the hours of labor. The United States, as the pressure becomes greater, will have to increase the hours of labor. As the hours of labor increase the recreation of workmen is of increasing importance.

Makes for Better Citizens
I am not arguing that the workmen of the United States will resent action depriving them of their Sunday amusement. I am arguing that their efficiency will be impaired, their morale lowered, by the loss of their Sunday recreation.

From the standpoint of broad moral, it has been demonstrated in many instances that the picture theater, running seven days a week, ranks high as an institution for better citizenship. The most radical of prohibitionists admit that the picture theater has deprived the saloon of its excuse as a social institution, and trained social workers pay high tribute to the motion picture’s accomplishments in binding the family together.

It is time that the professional reformer let the motion picture alone. The motion picture has proved its place in the life of the American citizen. It is no longer an experiment but an institution. It is in many respects as necessary and as valuable as the public press.

Any effort to close the motion picture theater on Sunday is an imposition, particularly and particularly an imposition in these times. I hope that they relegate, with little ceremony, the agitation to deprive the people of their Sunday amusement.

Indiana Goes Dry
And Theatres Look
For 70,000 Increase

Indianapolis — Indianapolis theatre managers are looking forward to a greatly increased theatre patronage when the state goes dry. The prohibition law recently enacted by the General Assembly is one of the most stringent in the country and makes the man keeping intoxicating liquors in his home as much a violator as the saloon keeper or brewer.

There are approximately 700 saloons in Indianapolis, and as Henry K. Burton, secretary of the Indianapolis Theatre Managers’ Association puts it, if they each release only 100 men who have no other place to go, and they patronize the picture, vaudeville and legitimate houses, theatre attendance will increase approximately 70,000 a week. “The natural assumption is,” said Mr. Burton, “among theatre managers, that everyone will have more money to spend for amusement.” The prohibition law became effective at midnight on April 2.

Films for Camps
Also for Battleships

Steps have been taken to make the pictures chosen for use in the training camps and through the War Camp Motion Picture Committee available also for the battleships of the Navy. P. A. Powers, the chairman, when in Washington recently, was in conference with Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department. As a result, the committee is in a position to supply films to naval vessels whose chaplains desire them in the same manner in which it makes them available for the training camps.

The committee having completed its plans for the distribution of pictures to the social welfare agencies in the training camps, has sent to all of the exchanges of the various companies the rates on which the selected pictures are to be issued and the lists of the pictures chosen by the National Board of Review from the product of the various companies represented. These lists cover the period since January 1, 1917. About three-tenths of the product of each of the companies is named as being particularly desirable for the purpose. The response from the exchanges has indicated great enthusiasm for the plan. The exchange managers located in centers covering territory in which there are training camps have had an opportunity to discover the needs of the camps. Apparently they are glad to have a chance to aid in the entertainment of the soldiers.

“Eyes of the World” Sold to Texas Corp.

The Specialty Film Company, of Dallas, Texas, has closed with the Arrow Film Corporation for the Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma rights to the W. H. Chue production, “The Eyes of the World.” The Specialty Film Company recently entered the independent field and plans to inaugurate a number of new ideas in the way of film distribution. W. G. Underwood and L. C. Baxley head the organization.

Harry Carey in "The Scarlet Drop"

Harry Carey's next production, "The Scarlet Drop," is a story of the backwoods of Kentucky. It will be published through the Universal exchanges on April 22.

The story is by Jack Fruen and is directed by him from the scenario by George Hively, and supported by a remarkably even-balanced cast consisting of Harry Carey, Vesta Pegg, Molly Malone, Betty Schade, M. K. Wilson, Martha Mattock and Steve Clemento.

Only One Woman In This Production

Edith Storey, the star of "Treasure of the Sea," which Metro will release on April 22, has the unusual distinction of being the only woman in the cast. The picture displays Miss Storey's best abilities, both as an actress and sportswoman, it is stated. Leighton Osmun is the author of the story and he and Albert Shelby Le Vino prepared the scenario. Frank Reicher, who guided the star in "The Claim," directed this new picture.

"American Buds" Made Special Feature

William Fox has strengthened his 32-year-special feature series by adding to it one of his standard pictures, Jane and Katherine Lee, in their latest comedy, "American Buds." The reason given by Mr. Fox is that he desires to add to the value of his special features whenever it is possible for him to do so, and besides, he wishes to let as many people as possible enjoy the mirthful pranks of these juvenile players, "If they give as much pleasure to others as they give to me," he said, "I guess it will be worth while to sacrifice some profit."

"One of Multitude" for Louise Glaum

Announcement comes from the offices of the Paralta Plays, Inc., that the second Louise Glaum production will be from an original story written by Monte M. Katterjohn, who in 1917 wrote "An Alien Enemy," which Albert Shirley Le Vino, who directed "An Alien Enemy," will also be in charge of the new production, work on which will be started at the Paralta studios immediately. The new Paralta-Glaum play will be produced under the working title, "One of the Multitude."

Peacock Writes Universal Comedy

The first of the Lyons-Moran star comedies will be published by Universal on April 8, under the title "A Pigskin Hero," from the pen of Captain Leslie Peacock, the well-known scenario writer.

THIS WEEK AT DOWNTOWN CHICAGO THEATERS

ALCAZAR—Fox, "Woman and the Law," with Miriam Cooper.

BIJOU DREAM—Jewel, "The Doctor and the Woman," with Mildred Harris.

CASINO—Triangle, "His Duty," with W. S. Hart.

CASTLE—"The Bargain," with W. S. Hart.

Aubrey Kennedy to Launch New Theatre
And Produce Big Features in the East
Cinema Temple to Be Located in Heart of New York
Residential District—Unique in Construction

Aubrey M. Kennedy, former general manager of Essanay and one of the most prominent figures in the motion picture industry, enters the exhibitors' field as the president of the Kennedy Theaters, Inc., New York, which will open a motion picture theater at Broadway and 59th street, to be known as the Symphony Theater, about May 1.

The Symphony Theater will be situated in the most populous high grade residential section of Manhattan. It will be unique in theater style and construction, it is said, in that it will have no balcony or gallery, the seating arrangements being for 1,300 on the orchestra floor, with a mezzanine tier of boxes accommodating 300 more.

The interior will be 75x150 feet, though the entire ground plan, including executive and other offices, will cover a plot 150x300 feet, and will have a Broadway frontage of an entire block.

The orchestra floor will be of the amphitheater style, a gradual curve from the front row to the rear of the house giving an elevation that will make every seat one of advantage. Smoking will be permitted in the boxes.

Selects General Manager

Associated with Mr. Kennedy, as his general manager, is Charles Cole, one of the best known theatrical men in America.

The policy of the Symphony Theater will be the presentation of the higher class of motion picture, together with the finest operatic music and novelties. One of the features will be a fifty-piece orchestra, presided over by a conductor of international fame, it is said.

Mr. Kennedy became general manager of productions of Goldwyn when that company was formed, and after a year he decided to enter the producers' and exhibitors' field. The Symphony Theater is the result of this move, as an exhibitor, and as a producer he has acquired the rights to two stories, one of which is now running in daily installments in America's great daily papers. It is his intention to start filming these two stories as soon as he can complete arrangements and both productions will be filmed in the East. These features will run into extra reels, it is stated, and will mark an ambitious attempt to film patriotic and propaganda drama.

Kansas Congress of Mothers Shows Goldwyn Films Family Night

Goldwyn Pictures have received marked and unusual commendation from the Kansas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, which are making a state-wide campaign for better films, as a part of their child welfare movement. To date seven Goldwyn productions have been given the stamp of special approval by the Kansas Board of Review, whose co-operation with the organization has made "Family Nights" in Kansas a huge success.

The association has been greatly assisted in its campaign for pictures of higher moral tone by the clergy and school superintendents in all parts of the state, the accepted productions being advertised in many churches and schools.

Mrs. Carl F. White, of Topeka, who is vice-chairman of the combined organizations, has written to Goldwyn in praise of its productions, declaring that the Board of Review had quickly given its sanction to showing Kansas children the following pictures: "Polly of the Circus," "The Spreading Dawn," "Near Married," "The Beloved Traitor," "Dodging A Million," "Fields of Honor" and "The Cinderella Man."

Establishing a "Family Night" in every city was the initial step of the organization toward its goal—better films. The term "Family Night" indicates a night definitely set apart for the exhibition of a program selected for its wholesome atmosphere and high entertainment value for the entire family.

Jester Comedies Abroad

Through Chester Beecroft the film Exporter, Jester comedies will be see in Sweden, Norway and Denmark. The first three pictures "The Recruit," "His, Gilded Romance," and "All For Her," are on their way to those countries.

STAR AND TWO TENSE MOMENTS FROM "BERLIN VIA AMERICA"

Francis Ford appears in the role of a United States Secret Service operative ferreting out German spies. Edna Emerson is his leading lady. The picture was published April 1. (Francis Ford Producing Co.)
Enterprising Manager Works Many Ad. Angles

One of the largest advertising campaigns ever carried out in Toronto has been put over by the Rialto Theater on the "Price of a Good Time." Space was taken in the two weekly newspapers of Toronto, with good-sized readers and extra cuts inserted.

On Tuesday 50,000 Heralds were given out and Mr. Stewart, the manager, is to be congratulated upon the splendid manner in which he directed the distribution of these Heralds. There is a long aisle along which the employees of the T. Eaton Co., Limited, Mail Order Department have to pass and in this aisle no waste paper must be thrown. The employees have to take any odd pieces of paper the door being given a placed permission to have a man stand at the beginning of this aisle and hand out the Heralds. In this way every employee was forced to carry the Herald past to the door and curiosity would make the majority look at same. On Tuesday night the theater was packed with shop girls.

On Wednesday and Thursday large ads were carried in the small suburban papers and small ads in the larger daily papers, in the Help Wanted Department for those for washers and a ticket seller for "Price of a Good Time." The advertising campaign included a special lobby display and resulted in long line-ups every evening. This is interesting in face of the fact that Low's vaudeville and moving picture house is just a few doors down the street and a good five-reel feature, along with vaudeville, can be seen for the same price.

Imperial Theatre Gives Special Children's Shows

Exhibitors catering to children and young people are finding the Judge Brown Stories, distributed by General Film Company, a profitable and well-woth-while series, to judge by the experience of Proprietor Conover of the Imperial Theater of Montreal.

As the result of a request from the women of the theater, Mr. Conover has arranged to give a series of Saturday picture entertainments for children, the stories written and produced by Judge Brown himself, being given a place of prominence on these weekly programs.

Lachine Theater Burns

A fire which started in the early hours of the morning completely destroyed the Royal Alexandra Theater at Lachine, Que. The fire gained so much headway before the alarm was sent in that it was impossible to get it under control. The damage was about $40,000. Insurance was carried for $35,000 on the building and $5,000 on the equipment. The house has been leased and operated by M. B. and B. S. Siesinger under the corporation name of Montreal Theaters, Limited.

Alderman Advocates License Fee Reduction

Alderman J. K. Sparling, chairman of the civic license and relief department of Winnipeg, Man., has proven himself a friend to the moving picture exhibitors of that city. License fees for Winnipeg moving picture theaters will be reduced and adjusted.

He suggested that a theater seating less than 500 people and only open in the evenings should be reduced from $200 to $150 per year. This new plan will affect thirteen of the twenty-eight theaters in Winnipeg.

According to his plans this will not really decrease the city's revenue from the theaters, as he plans to increase the taxes for the vaudeville houses which would make up for the reduction on the small picture houses.

Another splendid suggestion was made by Alderman Sparling, which would relieve the exhibitor, is that the exhibitor be permitted to pay the annual tax in four quarterly installments. The existing licenses expire on April 30 and the sub-committee hopes to have all plans completed so that the new fee schedule can be put into effect when the new licenses become due.

The new sub-committee consists of Alderman Sparling, Controller A. W. Puttee and Alderman J. J. Vopni.

A screening of the special feature, "Lest We Forget," was given in the Regent Theater at 11 o'clock on Wednesday, March 30, with full orchestral accompaniment. A large audience of exhibitors and friends who had been invited by special invitation attended this screening. The orchestra was led by Jack Arthur.

The Canadian Universal Film Co., Limited, has leased the Holman Theater, Montreal, Que., and placed Harry Pomeroy in charge. Mr. Pomeroy is formerly of the Globe Theater, Toronto, and a very successful theater manager. Archie Laurie will have a rival for lobby displays. This is Mr. Pomeroy's specialty.

Knapp Replaces General

General Film Company announces the appointment of C. C. Knapp as manager of its Minneapolis branch. He is a former General Film employee, having acted as manager at Minneapolis. Since that time Mr. Knapp has been engaged in exploitation of state rights features, and more recently was handling "Cleopatra" in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.
Brady Turns Crank

Amid the Clouds for

"Stolen Orders"

In "Stolen Orders," William A. Brady's spectacular film production based on the Drury Lane melodrama, "Sealed Orders," are several scenes which show a big balloon somewhere over the Atlantic. These scenes depict an attempt at flight from a desolate spot somewhere on the Atlantic coast by an enemy secret agent, personated by Montagu Love. The balloon— one of the largest in the country and capable of long distance journeyings with four passengers—is his means of escape. A series of exciting episodes in connection with this flight, including a flight in the basket of the balloon, the fall of the fighters into the ocean hundreds of feet below, and the shelling and final demolition of the big sausage by anti-aircraft guns on the shore, were caught by a battalion of cameras.

Mr. Brady, for one, it is said, will long remember the balloon episodes. During the filming of these scenes and when the balloon was high in the air, the advisability of having a camera above the huge gas-filled bag to shoot down and catch at close range the action in the basket became apparent. A hydroplane, which a few minutes later was to figure in the story, was handy, and with it an aviator. But there arose immediately the question as to which of the camera men would go up. No one stepped forward to volunteer. Mr. Brady, on the ground, sensed the situation. Time and light were fleeting and necessity great. Mr. Brady grabbed a nearby camera, stepped into the vacant seat beside the hydroplanist and a few moments later was in the air above the balloon.

The result you will see in "Stolen Orders," which in addition to enlisting the services of its producer as a high flying camera man enlisted those of six stars, Kitty Gordon, Carlyle Blackwell, Montagu Love, June Elvidge, George MacQuarrie and Madge Evans, to interpret its stirring story.

"The Belgian" to Have

New York Premiere

Elaborate plans are being made, it is announced, for the initial New York presentation of "The Belgian." Sidney Olcott's photoplay depicting the tragedy of the little kingdom of grief.

The production, which is being distributed throughout the world by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation and its affiliated organizations, already has been presented in a majority of the leading cities in this country, but the metropolitan opening has been deferred to allow time in which to make fitting arrangements for the premiere.

The production will be shown for the first time in New York City at the Eighty-first Street Theatre on the afternoon of April 18. It will be the principal attraction at that house for three days thereafter.

As Miss Valentine Grant, who portrays the leading role of a simple Belgian peasant girl, is a great favorite among the members of women's theatrical and suffrage societies, a number of those organizations are planning to help in making the premiere a notable event. Miss Grant and perhaps Walker Whiteside, who also appears in "The Belgian," will attend the opening, as will Sidney Olcott, who produced the play, and Frank G. Hall, president of the concern by which it is being distributed.

C. R. Seelye Meets

Indiana Exhibitors

Indianapolis—C. R. Seelye, representing the United Picture Theatres of America, last week met Frank Rembusch and the directors of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Indiana at the Hotel Severin here, to present various features of the united plan. He followed Lee A. Ochs, president of the United, who visited Indianapolis to meet with the directors of the League more than two weeks ago.

The meeting was held behind closed doors at the Hotel Severin and very little of what took place has leaked out via the film circles, that his visit had to do with organization plans and the appointment of a sales force. Whether or not these plans were carried through is a mystery, though it is known Frank Rembusch, as well as the other directors of the League, favor a discussion of co-operative plans at the New York meeting to be held at the Astor Hotel, April 8.

Hayakawa Offered

Many Studio Sites

Four offers of studio sites were made last week to Sessue Hayakawa, who soon will be his own producer and whose feature productions will be issued through the Hawthorne Pictures Corporation.

One of the sites was at Culver City, two were in East Hollywood and the other was at Glendale. These and the various offers made previously are being carefully considered. However, in addition to Hayakawa and his associates, who state that their decision regarding the selection of the most suitable site for film manufacturing purposes will be reached during the next ten days or two weeks.

Goldwyn is directing the attention of exhibitors to the unusual diversity of appeal in the group of these Selexart pieces it is distributing. Each story is of a distinct type, each conveys a different message, it is said. All are modern, swift-moving tales of life in three strata of society, the high-born aristocracy, the cutthroat domain of ward politicians, and the Alaskan mining camp.

“Blue Blood,” starring Howard Hickman, the first release of the group, is a daring drama based upon the curse of tainted blood. After the audience has been permitted to see what manner of men were the forebears of Spencer Wellington, secon of wealth and supposedly of ancestry irreproachable, the play shows the insidious workings upon his mentality of a hereditary mental disease which brings wretchedness to the society girl he has married, misery to all with whom he comes in contact, and eventually—and happily—death to him.

The scenes in this production showing the extremes of abandonment to which Spencer Wellington’s malady drives him, are said to be more startling than any yet brought to the screen. A score of beautiful girls, all virtual prisoners in a palace of marble and gilt erected on Wellington’s estate, are required to amuse their jaded master with dances and wierd rites conceived by his disordered brain.

“Honor’s Cross,” starring Rhea Mitchell, is essentially a story of the great city and the devious ways of those who turn the wheels of commercialized vice to the profit of its exploiters. “Social Ambition,” the third of the series, traces the redemption of a luckless man through love. Howard Hickman and Rhea Mitchell are the stars.

Penfield and Bates Start News Service

Roderic C. Penfield, formerly editor of Harper’s Weekly and for many years connected with the editorial staffs of the New York Evening Mail and the Sun; Wilbur Bates, who was general representative for Klaw and Erlanger, for nearly ten years, and two other New York newspaper men have organized the “Federal News Service” to furnish special news and pictorial features to a large list of leading journals throughout the United States and Canada.

Mr. Penfield has been elected president of the new company and Mr. Bates has been appointed managing director. A prominent newspaper man will be engaged as editorial director and a staff of special writers and artists will be employed in writing and illustrating the various features which the new organization will exploit. A suite of offices has been leased in the Times Building and the organization of the service is being completed as rapidly as possible.

Artcraft Wins Legal Battle with Triangle

U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Declares Hart and Ince Free to Leave Culver City Plant

Artcraft Pictures Corporation gained the decision in the suit brought against the organization by Triangle Film Corporation in the William S. Hart case. An opinion was handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, for this is the third defeat in court of Triangle in its efforts to compel William S. Hart and Thomas H. Ince to remain until their contracts expired.

In the initial decision won by Artcraft in the matter was given out by Judge Martin T. Manton, in the United States District Court, New York City, last August, when the application by the Triangle Film Corporation for a preliminary injunction restraining the defendant from making or distributing motion pictures featuring Mr. Hart’s refusal of Mr. Hart’s contract with Triangle called for Thomas H. Ince’s supervision of productions in which the star appeared, and when the temporary stay granted pending the decision of the injunction. This second suit was a local action and temporarily held up the showing of the “Narrow Trail” at the Rialto Theatre, New York.

The final appeal was brought before Circuit Judges Rogers and Hough and District Judge Learned Hand. Elek John Ludvig represented Artcraft and Alfred S. Barnard Triangle. The decision handed down by the Court of Appeals permits of no further appeal.

Norma Talmadge Back From West Coast Trip

Norma Talmadge, the Select star, returned Sunday from her flying trip to California, during which she made a four day visit to her mother and two sisters, all of whom are at present residing in the west. At Hollywood, Con- stance Talmadge has made three productions for her Select Star Series. While west, Miss Talmadge also visited the Fatty Arbuckle studios in San Francisco and her sister, Natalie Talmadge, is working.

Norma Talmadge’s return east was the signal for resumption of work on her next Select production. A.R.A.C. for the screen presentation of Scammon Lockwood’s successful stage play of the present season, which following its New York run, has been taken out of the larger cities. At the Talmadge studios in east 48th street, New York, the filming of the play is now progressing. Miss Talmadge is presented by Joseph M. Scheinck.

Court of Appeals
Not to Rule on Sunday Closing

Schenectady Exhibitor Withdraws Case From New York High Court

Schenectady, N. Y.—Through counsel, Victor Bergstrom, Schenectady exhibitor, has withdrawn his appeal to the supreme court of New York, and what would probably have been a final ruling on the Sunday closing of motion picture theaters in the state will not be had.

Bergstrom was found guilty of operating his theatre on Sunday and fined some time ago, in a justice court in this city. He appealed the case to the appellate division of the supreme court of the third department, which court upheld the lower one.

The case was then carried to the court of appeals and it was expected that court would determine the question for the whole state. As it now stands, the theatre stands by its bond and the first and fourth departments, but not in the third, which includes all of this section of the state.

The appeal was then withdrawn at the request of Gustave A. Rogers, attorney for New York moving picture interests. It is believed that the request was made because of the pending bill before the Albany legislature providing for local option in the matter of Sunday shows.

Defied Fuel Edict;
Current Shut Off

New York City—Because of alleged violation of the lightless night edict, Deputy Fuel Administrator Edward A. Norman last week ordered that the current supplied the Seventy-seventh Street moving picture theatre, at Broadway, be cut off.

Administrator Norman states that despite the fact that the theatre had been warned several times, it repeatedly violated the law. The violation is said to have been so flagrant, and with such utter disregard of the edict, that this drastic action was determined upon.

Southern House Has Display for Serial

One of the most effective lobby displays ever constructed by an exhibitor to advertise a serial feature, is maintained by the Mudd & Colley Amusement Company of Birmingham, Alabama, during the weekly showing of "A Daughter of Uncle Sam." The display is a general patriotic serial. The entire front of the theater lobby is given over to this display. Across the top is suspended a large banner advising every American to see "A Daughter of Uncle Sam." Below stand big cut-outs of Uncle Sam, with shields and other patriotic demonstrations which add to the pulling power of the attraction. Each episode of the serial is being shown for two days in the theater.

How They Put the "Eagle's Eye" Over
In Des Moines, Ia.

Manager Abe Frankel, of the Iowa Amusement Company, Des Moines, Ia., owner of a chain of theatres in Des Moines and surrounding territory, and Manager William O'Hare, of the Majestic of the circuit where "The Eagle's Eye" had its premier on March 11, arranged to make a special feature of the serial story of the Imperial German Government's spies and plots in America.

A military parade, made up of troops from the cantonment at Camp Dodge, just outside Des Moines, preceded the first public showing of the first episode. The soldiers afterward were the guests of the house in a special reserved section. Special scenic effects were prepared, the house was redecorated, and elaborate lobby displays were used.

"The Eagle's Eye" is the biggest serial money maker ever booked at the Majestic," said Mr. Frankel. "I expect this because the story is fact; because it is timely; and because it is an authentic exposé of the greatest menace which ever threatened this country, something that 100 per cent. of the population is interested in."

Theatre Owner Files
Petition in Bankruptcy

Newark, N. J.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was entered in the United States District Court yesterday afternoon by Leonard H. Fentzlaff of East Orange, who until recently conducted a moving picture theatre in Newark. Before that he was president and manager of the Arcadia, Bloomfield. He listed liabilities amounting to $1,170 and assets of $45. The petition was referred to Referee George W. W. Porter.

J. B. Kelly Goes to Texas for General

Among General Film's recent additions to the sales department is that of the well-known James B. Kelly, known for years to the motion picture exhibitors of the southwest. Mr. Kelly becomes special representative for General in Texas, with Dallas as his headquarters, to handle the organization's features and short subjects.

More recently Mr. Kelly was sales manager for the Consolidated Film and Supply Company in Atlanta, in which city he was active during the past seven years with General Film Company in the New Orleans territory.

Arcadia Theatre
Now Being Built
By Tom Moore Co.

New Washington House Ready Within Three Months Time

Work of razing the buildings now occupying the site of the new Arcadia Theatre soon to be built by Tom Moore, Washington exhibitor, was begun this week at Eleventh and F streets, after many delays. The theatre will be opened, it is promised, within three months.

It is the intention of Moore's Theatre Corporation, Tom Moore, president and director general, to make the Arcadia something different than Washington has yet had in the line of theatres furnishing motion picture entertainment. The new house will not be of the size of Moore's Rialto, rapidly nearing completion, having a seating capacity of something less than 1,000, and will cater particularly to those who appreciate and desire photoplay diversion amid surroundings of elegance and artistic beauty such as the Capital never had.

The Arcadia will have an entrance frontage of forty-five feet on F street, with a lobby leading directly into the main auditorium, which will have a depth sufficient to insure perfect picture projection and a dome ceiling approximately fifty feet high, equipped with the latest type ventilating system.

"Washington has never had a motion picture theatre in the conduct of which the primary consideration has been the creation and maintenance of an atmosphere of artistic beauty and elegance such as one might expect in a handsome private drawing room," said Mr. Moore in commenting on the venture.

"It is precisely that lack that we are going to supply in the Arcadia, which will be the gem of the Capital's picture theatres, not so large as our Rialto, for example, but equal to that house in all essentials except capacity and stage dimensions. The location I deem the best in Washington and the builders have signed an iron-clad contract to have the house ready for occupancy within three months."

Exhibitor's Briefs

Philadelphia, Pa.—Gustave C. Seidel has disposed of his motion picture theatre, 4445-47 Lancaster avenue, to Richard C. Ellis. The purchase price was not made public.

Reading, Pa.—The Hippodrome Theatre was slightly damaged here by fire which originated in the dry goods store of Imber Brothers, doing damage estimated at $30,000.
Terr Haute, Ind.—Indications are that the new Terr Haute Theatre will open its doors to the public on May 1. Described by many as Washington F. H. Greenberg, Jr., son of the president of the company, believes that the opening will not have to be delayed.

Red Granite, Wis.—August Berkholz, through a deal with the Eagle Theatre Corporation has come into possession of the Eagle Theatre here.

Rochelle, Ill.—The Rochelle Theatre Company has been granted a charter to operate a motion picture theatre here. The capital stock is $2,000, held by John A. Lisy, Diehl Meyers, John M. Dales and Marie Marshall.

Utica, N. Y.—Menger & Ring of New York have been awarded the contract by the Majestic Theatre here for the construction of a new front at the theatre and for improvements in the lobby. The plans include a new mosaic floor.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The Olympic Theatre Operating Company has been capitalized here at $75,000 by Maurice Slotkin, Horace L. Himes and Matthew W. Weimar.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Promulgation by the state industrial board of the new code of rules for operation by moving picture machines using inflammable films has caused a rush for licenses. The code provides that no operator can be less than eighteen years old, and that he must have been granted a license by a local board or bureau created by law or ordinance to issue licenses for the particular town in which he resides or else has made application to the department of labor and industry and has been licensed after an examination.

Monticello, Ill.—E. A. Thorpe has taken possession of the Princess Theatre, recently purchased from C. W. Joehren and opened a week ago with a free performance.

San Jose, Cal.—Grading has been commenced for the new Hippodrome Theatre here, which will be erected at an estimated cost of $175,000. It will seat 1,800 persons and is owned by a syndicate headed by T. S. Montgomery. The new playhouse is being built on the site of the first capital of California and a commemoration tablet will be placed in the lobby of the theatre recalling this fact.

Washington, D. C.—Marian Frances Moore has been engaged by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit to act as private secretary and office manager for Walter R. Liebman, Washington manager. Ben Abrams has also joined the First National Washington office.

Albany, N. Y.—At a recent meeting of the New York State Conference of Mayors held here it was decided by that body to favor the proposed bill which will be introduced in the legislature for the purpose of legalizing motion picture shows on Sunday.

Anderson, S. C.—The Bijou Motion Picture Theatre here will be completely remodeled and redecorated at a cost of about $5,000.

Hopewell, Va.—The Hopewell Lodge, L. O. O. M., plans the erection of a theatre, hotel and lodge building.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Andrew Dobos and others have leased for ten years from Mary E. Cowan, her motion picture theatre in Wade Park avenue, N. E., at a monthly rental of $140. An option for five years more at the same rent was granted.

Eagle, Tex.—The Liberty Theatre, now under construction, will be completed early this year, it is announced by Captain Horton of the engineers’ corps.

El Paso, Tex.—The Mundy building here will be demolished to make way for a new modern motion picture theatre to be known as the “Ellanay” Theatre. Work will begin on the new structure as soon as the old building is razed.

Geneva, Ohio.—Jennie M. Gregory of this city has agreed to erect for the Manheim-Wolcott Amusement Company of Cleveland, a motion picture theatre in Geneva, said to be the only one between Painesville and Ashtabula. The Clevelanders have taken a lease on this property for ten years at a rental of $1,500 a year.

Pueblo, Colo.—Pueblo’s new Rialto Theatre opened recently to a capacity audience, which was warm in its praise of the playhouse. It seats 1,200 and is thoroughly modern. A Paralta picture, “A Man’s Man,” featuring J. Warren Kerrigan, furnished the opening bill.

Fowler, Ind.—O. W. Kappelman has resigned his position as manager of the Regent Theatre here and has joined the sales force of the Goldwyn Film Corporation.

Educational Films Co. Distributes Cartoons

Announcement comes from the Educational Films Corporation of America through its general manager, E. W. Hammons, that it has acquired the distributing rights to the famous Happy Hooligan and Katzenjammer Kids cartoons produced by the International Films Company.

The publicity given these laughable drawings by the Hearst newspapers, combined with the advertising planned for them by the Educational Films Corporation, assures the exhibitor a degree of assistance never given before to comedy cartoons.

The first film is scheduled for April 15. They will be issued weekly thereafter.

Dan Whitcomb Returns to American Film Co.

Dan F. Whitcomb, the writer of many successful stories for the silent drama, among them “The Bride’s Silence” and “A Game of Wits,” in which Gail Kane scored her most notable triumph, is now in San Francisco, Cal. He is writing a mystery story for one of the American Film stars, it is said.

Film Official to Face Prosecution For Misleading Ads.

Police officials of New Orleans have been asked to arrest Louis B. Jennings, president of the Standard Films Industries, Inc., which formerly occupied offices at 69 West Ninetieth street, New York City. He is sought by District Attorney Swann.

According to Assistant Prosecutor Brogan, in charge of investigations of so-called wildcat promotions, Jennings will face a charge of having issued misleading advertising regarding the securities of his corporation. The act constitutes a felony.

The arrest was ordered after Mr. Brogan had witnessed a special production of a film which was used for the purpose of boosting the stock sales of the Standard Films Industries, advertised in its prospectus as a “Leviathan of Modern Industry.”

Shots up a Town on a Motorcycle In “Hoops of Steel”

A new way for a cowboy to arrive and shoot up a town is shown in Henry B. Walthall’s forthcoming picture, “With Hoops of Steel,” which has just been finished under the direction of Eliot Howe. The old idea of a rip-roaring entrance on pinto ponies is given way to the picture in a new form of Western “Cloudburst,” said to be noisier, faster and with less regard for consequences than any mere horse-back arriva.

In “With Hoops of Steel,” this cowboy arrives to shoot up the town arrayed in all the picturesque costume that has endeared the cowboy to the hearts of the public, but instead of arriving on a horse, he comes on a motorcycle.

The spadeful of motorcycle tearing down the street at full speed, the exhaust of the motor accompanied by the reports of the rider’s six-shooter, is something new in pictures that when the mad rider comes into town it surprises the other cowboys fully as much as it will the audience. There is a general stampede, but curiosity gets the better of them and they return to inspect the strange, new contrivance. This is said to be one of the many unusual scenes that are promised in Henry B. Walthall’s new Paralta Play.

Gladys Cooper in “Masks and Faces”

Gladys Cooper, the famous English stage beauty, is one of the brilliant particular stars in the cast appearing in “Masks and Faces,” the World Pictures production, has been selected to star in the English presentation of “The Naughty Wife,” the American stage success of last year and the present season. One of the few screen appearances which Miss Cooper has ever made is her appearance in “Masks and Faces.”
Dawn Masterplay Co.

Buys S. A. Lynch Films
For Michigan State

Dan Michalove, special representative of the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, has just closed a deal with the Dawn Masterplay Company of Detroit for the Frank, Keenan, and Norma Talmadge subjects. There are nine Keenan sub-casts and seven Talmadge productions included.

The Dawn Masterplay Company is a newcomer to Detroit, having started in business last October. They handle many pictures, such as "Redemption";
"Yankee Doodle"; "The Wrath of the Aborigines"; "Yank in the West"; and "The Whirlwind." The company has nearly completed its bookings in Chi-Cago and has the deepest sympathy of his friends in his loss.

Field Up Playhouse;

Gets Long Sentence

In Criminal Court

Pleading guilty to holding up and robbed the Garfield Theatre, 2844
West Madison street, on the night of February 10, Frank Carson, 21 years old, was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the Pontiac Reformatory by Judge Sulvan in the criminal court on March 26.
On the night in question Carson entered the lobby of the theatre, displayed revolvers and forced Charles H. H. ynan, manager, the doorman and the usher to hold up their hands while he stole the cash drawer. He obtained approximately $392 and fled from the place.
Immediate pursuit was given and he was captured two blocks from the scene of the crime after he had emptied his revolvers at his pursuers. He told the court that he had come to Chicago from Cleveland in January and admitted residence in the city.

Unity Photoplay Co.

Purchases Outlay of Standard Film Co.

Frank Zambreno and M. J. Mintz of Unity Photoplay Company have anounced the purchase of practically all films currently held by the Standard Film Company. The sale of the films has been made by the Standard to the Unity Photoplay Company.

The Standard Film Company has been in business for many years and has had a large output of films. The Unity Photoplay Company has made many films in the past and has been very successful in the production of films.

Central Film Showing

A private showing of the Chicago series of the Henderson National Educational Films, showing the work of the public school system, was held in the Bluebird projection room, fifteen floor of the Consumers building, last Saturday morning under the auspices of the Central Film Company. It was well attended and the films received favorable comment.

PERSONALS

The coming week bids fair to be stirring one of the most important events in the life of "Our Mary" Pickford, Doug.
Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin over in the interests of the third Liberty Loan. We're looking for some excellent good stunts with these three headliners cuttin' up like all get out in the interests of Uncle Sammie.

"Daddy" Hines of South Bend came to town and showed some of his films days the past week. He's lookin' fine and reports the boys out to the Bend is all spending their energy on spring gardening.

Tom Norman, manager of the Rex Theatre, Racine Wis., dropped into the Jewel exchange last week to arrange for book of "The Kaiser" for his playhouse.
Book this, La Follette, durn you.

Speaking of this same picture, everybody in Chicago is, Jacob Cooper of the Twentieth Century, has booked it for the week of April 14th.

Funny, how when you get talking about one thing it reminds you of something else. Here's one Phil Banowitz, west side exhibitor is sprinig. We don't vouch for it. It's his and he gets the credit for it if there is any. Here it is: If a chicken passed the Twentieth Century would J. Cooper? Did you like it? Neither did we.

Because he acquitted himself so well in the publicity war on "The Kaiser" at the Ziegfeld, Irving Mack, demon P.
A. of the Universal, has been given a like job for "The Doctor and the Woman." There's no reward for work like more work.

Roderick and Peters have been appointed associate sales managers for Jewel Pictures in the Chicago terri-city by Manager Leserman.

Willard J. West, an exhibitor with holdings in both Kewanee and Galesburg, spent several days of last week in our midst.

THEODORE STOVER

Theodore Stover is a new member of the sales force of the Fox company.
He was pulled in from the Milwaukee office where he had charge. He is succceeded in that city by H. Conway, late of the General and Select offices.

H. K. MOSS

H. K. Moss has been appointed sales manager of the Chicago Triangle office according to an announcement from R.
E. Bradford, manager.

From Rockford, Ill., comes the news of the death of Mrs. Harry Gramp.
Mr. Gramp, who is a prominent exhibitor in that city, is well known in Chicago and has the deepest sympathy of his friends in his loss.

ON THE FIRIN' LINE

Charley Sidell, one of Chicago's "best bet" film salesmen, has joined C. W.
Bunn and others in promoting the welfare of the United Picture Theatres of America. He has left the Pathé company to do it. We congratulate both Charley and the United Pictures.

Delaney and his Maxwell over to Vitagraph still form a combination hard to beat. Delaney says he's had the old boat working on all four cylinders lately getting things lined up for the latest Vitagraph serial. That car ought to be able to go out selling "Vitas" alone pretty soon.

These here Chicago salesmen are leading such exemplary lives lately that it's pesky hard to find out anything about them. All any of them, to hear them tell it, are interested in business.

Careful perusal of Billy Sunday's records of "sawdust trail" hittin' fails to bring to light any film salesman and the police blotters are just as clear.
Come on, boys! Where does the joy reign supreme?

Paul De Outo, formerly of the Standard forces, is now attached to the payroll of the Bee Hive Exchange in the Consumers building. Buzzin' round the loop, we presume, during the day and waving his hat back toward nightfall with a pocket full of contracts. Oh, hum, hard life.

ED MORDEAU

Ed Mordeau of the Standard is still to be the guiding genius of that brand of films under the new management with Unity. Well, he's a good, hard workin' boy, and there wasn't any mistake made.

Ever and anon Uncle Sam finds it necessary to invade the ranks of film salesman to find suitable material to augment his "Kaiser Swatters." Louis Goulden of the Celebrated forces was called this week. Give him the best you got, Lou, old boy, you can sell fillums any time, but a place in the Liberty Army is the opportunity of a life time.

Our old pal Salter allows he's got the whole north side sewed up tight on the new serial "Woman in the Web," which he has been devoting all his energies for some little time. "And I didn't have to work Saturday afternoons, either," he adds.

Sterling System Gets

"Natural Law" Film

Charles H. France, producer and director of "The Natural Law," the play pictured immediately after its tour of the first-class theatres with the same cast that played at the Republic Theatre, New York, for eight months, has decided that the "Sterling System" offers the best means of country-wide distribution as well as the most equitable arrangement for the independent men of each territory.

After several talks with Arthur F. Beck, president of the "Sterling System," Mr. France is inclined to place all his future productions with the Sterling Pictures Corporation.

Mr. France had several conferences with prominent independent exchange men of the country, and they have placed their approval on the deal just closed between Mr. France and the Sterling Pictures Corporation.

Allan Rock Forms

Press Service Bureau

Allan Rock, for five years with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has severed his connections with that concern and organized the Press Service Bureau with offices at the Knickerbocker Theatre building, New York.

Mr. Rock's knowledge of the most effective methods of exploiting films, gained through his years of practical experience with the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., Paramount Pictures Corporation and finally the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, combined with his new connections, should prove of great value to theatrical and motion picture producers seeking to utilize every possible medium for publicity.

The Press Service Bureau offers to film and theatrical publicity representatives a new field of operation through its extensive newspaper affiliations. The staff includes experienced motion picture and theatrical advertising men as well as copy-writers and artists.

Play for Kitty Gordon

L. Case Russell, who has written many of the big successes in which Madame Petrova has starred, has just written a story for World Pictures in which Kitty Gordon will star. This story bears the attractive title of "Merely Players," and it will shortly be placed in work by World Pictures. It will be published on the regular World program during the coming summer.

FRANCIS FORD TO MAKE NEXT PICTURE

IN HIS OWN STUDIO ON WEST COAST

Fordart Company Will Maintain Offices in New York City; As Distribution Point—Will Be Able to Produce With Free Hand

"Berlin via America," Francis Ford's first independent production, being finished and plans for its distribution well under way, Mr. Ford is preparing to leave for the West with his company. They expect to arrive in Los Angeles about April 15 where Mr. Ford intends to build a studio and make his permanent headquarters for production.

The New York office will look after his interests in the East and take charge of the distribution of all the products of his studios so that Mr. Ford may give his undivided attention to the making of pictures.

"It has always been my ambition to make pictures independently," said Mr. Ford, "because the innumerable expressions of opinion I have received from fans, and they are the ultimate judges, make me feel that I know what they want. Now that my opportunity has come and I can produce with a free hand, I shall strive to make what they want. And, not the least important, it is that type of picture that is bringing the greatest benefit to the exhibitor."

"To do just that the first and foremost duty of the producer is to get a story that is a story. That is one of the fundamental principles upon which I base my work."

Preparations are being rapidly completed for the trip to the coast. On their way out it is the intention to take scenes at the principal points of interest which will be incorporated in the second Fordart Production which has already been decided on. With the company will Francis Ford and Edna Emerson, lead Elsie Van Name, scenario writer, cameraman, and a company of extras and studio staff.

Blind Organist Prepares

Music for "Eagle's Eye"

Walter Goetzinger, organist at the Bijou Theatre, La Crosse, Wis., widely known because he is blind and therefore unable to read music, is preparing a special musical score for the opening of "The Eagle's Eye" at the Bijou on April 10. Much attention has been attracted to him because of a peculiar "pictorial sense" in a film he has never been about.

Goetzinger declares that the "feel" the audience tells him the action of picture while it is being shown on the screen. He has proved that there is some way or other in which he can follo the action without being able to see, changing the tempo of his incident music simultaneously with a change in scene in film he has never been about.

He was at the exhibitors showing the first three episodes of the serial as "received a great interest" in the picture. He had a friend tell him the detail story of the episodes, and then receive from the Foursquare Exchange a schedule of the footage on the various scene.

He is timing his music to agree with that footage and practically the entire score will be his original composition.

IKE SCHLANK OUT
To Make Bid For Place in the Sun
Leads New Indianapolis Film Venture Capitalized at $2,500,000

Out of the deep, dark silence which enveloped him following his ill-fated connection with the Unicorn Film company, comes Ike Schlank with the impressive attraction of president. The Capital Film Company, Indianapolis.

The plans of the new company are ambitious. It is capitalized at $2,500,000. A film city covering twenty acres will be built in the vicinity of the city of Indianapolis, according to announcements, which will be ready to produce pictures within ninety days.

The Capital Film Company controls the output of three other studios, the makers of which are already established and their output will be ready for distribution under the direction of the new company by April 15.

Schlank, according to a published interview, said: "It is my purpose to put the entire affair off my shoulders, not only do his duties include supervision of the building of the studio and operating it, but he must hire every person who is to be concerned in the activities of the Capital Film Company, and to and including the stenographers, the sergeants uncommunicative. I have to find someone with a good deal of patience who will suit our purpose," he reported as saying. "I have to buy it and build it at a reasonable figure. When it is started I have to build a big studio, have to equip it. I have to organize staff of directors. I have to hire play. The worst of all. I have to hire some stars. Stars are the bane of a manager's life."

"I have to organize a scenario department; I have to organize a publicity department. I have to organize a technical organization, which is as bad as bad. I have to do all these things in about ninety days. I'm a busy man. Talking takes time, and time is scarce. At this very moment I am four hundred thirty-five minutes behind, so please excuse me."

W. W. Hodkinson Corp.
Issues Books on Its Co-partnership Plan

The W. W. Hodkinson Corporation announced a campaign for the dissemination of information to exhibitors the principles, ideals and benefits of the W. W. Hodkinson Co-partnership Plan. The propaganda is taking the form of a series of simple yet very attractive folders with a limited amount of reading material. Each folder deals with one point only.

The first booklet of the series is entitled, "The Man Whose Dreams Come True," a 32-page booklet written by W. W. Hodkinson himself. The second booklet is entitled, "The Master Builder," and gives in detail the achievements of Mr. Hodkinson to date from the time he started the first ten-cent theaters until his organization of his present company.

The purpose of this booklet is to show why Mr. Hodkinson has a claim for the confidence and support of the great body of exhibitors.

The third booklet of the series will detail the co-partnership plan itself, and the title of the booklet, "The Co-partnership Plan," indicates this. The whole campaign, which is claimed to be somewhat different from the average propaganda material, is being prepared by the Hodkinson advertising and publicity department.

PARALTA PRESIDENT RETURNS FROM COAST
Pleased With Developments of Organization—Jesse Hampon Joins Company as Business Manager

Carl Anderson, president of Paralta Plays, Inc., returned to New York from Los Angeles, Cal., last week, where he has been spending a number of months in consultation with Paralta officers in regard to the construction of the new Paralta studios.

Mr. Anderson left for the Coast last October and during his stay at the studios was responsible for many important developments of the organization. While at the Coast, Louise Glauin was engaged as a star in Paralta Plays, and her first production, "Alien Enemy," was directed under the direction of Wallace Worsely. The securing of Miss Glauin as a Paralta star is regarded as an important step in the development of a galaxy of the foremost stars of the silent drama.

In speaking of the development of the Paralta studios and the western organization, Mr. Anderson said: "It is indeed very gratifying to see the wonderful development of this organization which is still not a year old. We started the organization with Bessie Barriscale and J. Warren Kerrigan as our only stars. All of our productions which these two favorites have made have proven to be of unqualified worth and those which have been released have received the unqualified plaudits of the exhibitors and public.

Since the completion of the contract with Henry B. Walthall a few months ago, we have made three productions in which he will be seen as the star and which promise to be exceptional box-office attractions. Louise Glauin, I believe we have added to the large staff of players one of the most popular screen artists. It is our intention to take Miss Glauin out of vampire roles and to place her in dramatic productions which will win for her the sympathy of audiences instead of having the feeling of distaste which roles of a vampire nature are bound to create."

Jesse Hampton, brother of Ben Hampton, the long-time studio manager of the western organization. Mr. Hampton has taken up his duties as one of the western executives. The remaining members of the Paralta personnel will be announced in the near future.

Geo. K. Spoon Buys "Young America"

George K. Spoon, president of Essanay, has purchased from Cohan and Harris the rights for "Young America" and is now preparing the production for the screen. The project is a venture with Cohan and Harris in regard to the cast for the screen version of the play which ran on Broadway for forty-four weeks.

An all-star cast will be picked from New York and Chicago especially for this production. They will be directed by Henry Hull. The stage production was written by Fred Ballard, and is being put into scenario form at the Essanay studios. It will be produced under the direction of Mr. Spoon.

Adolfi Joins World Directorial Staff

John G. Adolfi, the well-known director, whose most recent big picture is "Queen of the Desert," has been engaged for the Fox Film Corporation, with Annette Kellerman as the star, has signed a contract with World Pictures and will shortly begin work on a production for the World in which Barbara Castleton will be starred.

Mr. Adolfi comes to the World with a remarkable record of achievement in the field of entertaining, interesting box office successes. While "Queen of the Sea," which has not yet been published, is his most recent picture, he has directed several other productions, having been in the industry almost from the start. Though young in years, Mr. Adolfi may be considered a veteran of the silent screen.

He began his career with the Biograph Company and was associated with David W. Griffith in some of the latter's big productions. An interesting fact in connection with the filming of "The Birth of a Nation," it is said, is the fact that Mr. Adolfi used some of the scenes of "Queen of the Desert" for another production in "The Birth of a Nation."

From this concern he went to the Universal and then to Fox, directing big pictures for both these concerns. Mr. Adolfi was with Fox for over three years and for a year was director for June Caprice. Mr. Adolfi will take his first World scenes in Washington, D. C.
NOTE: Below is printed a blank form which exhibitors may use in keeping records upon which to base tax reports on admissions. It is essential that a daily record be kept in order that the Government may be able to obtain the information it requires in each case. It’s pretty hard to find comedies that all like, but there are those that suit the majority every time. Ebony Comedies appeal to the majority just as colored vaudeville acts appeal to the big percentage of the public. That’s why shrewd vaudeville managers give them a place on their program whenever an act can be had.

Ebony Comedies will produce the same results for you in highly entertained patrons and in dollars and cents that colored acts produce for vaudeville manager. Use these comedies that way. A new one every week.

Effort to Stamp Out Labor Outrages

AFTER years of tolerance exhibitors of Chicago have united to make a test in the courts as to whether or not certain persons associated with labor organizations will be allowed to persist in their methods of violence and blackmail.

The labor situation generally in Chicago has been no credit to the community in the eyes of the country at large, but the methods that have characterized the workings of certain operators' unions have been a public disgrace and menace. Counterparts of some of these methods could only be found in the annals of frontier days or in the records of Western mining camps before the advent of law and order.

With an utter disregard of the law, of personal and property rights, several of these so-called labor leaders have gone on in their mad careers in a manner that might suggest that they are seeking to follow the example of a Jesse James.

These men are not only enemies of the theatre men, exchangemen and the motion picture business at large, but they also are enemies of the union men that they claim to represent. Time after time they have brought the entire body of operators into grossest disgrace; in many instances where an operator is content and satisfied with his position the nagging of these so-called leaders results in these men betraying their employers and in the end they suffer themselves.

The film industry has been unpardonably delinquent in rising to action against this menace. A large number of exhibitors in Chicago and elsewhere have suffered financial reverses, destruction to their property through the lawlessness of these men, and standing alone they felt they could not afford to strike back.

Finally, however, the allied interests have come together and from now on—unless there are an excessive number of faint hearts among the exhibitors and exchangemen—the outlaw labor men will have to face a new order to affairs.

Exhibitors are not of the so-called capitalistic class, whose interests are foreign to those of the decent labor men. Exhibitors as a unit believe in organized labor and are willing to make every reasonable concession for the benefit of united workers. But it would be a terrific indictment against their manhood if they would allow the lawless practices of certain of the so-called labor leaders to continue. Matters of this kind already have been allowed to go too far.

Through the tolerance of the exhibitor the honest operator has been allowed to be exploited, brow-beaten and robbed by blackmailing leaders who have continually ground him down under the spiked heel by the threat of blacklisting from the union.

The false policy of might is right is now receiving a test before the righteous nations of the world. The plight of the people of Germany today is evidence of what indulgence in this policy by the Prussian leaders has brought about. The anarchy in Russia today is another indication of where this policy leads.

The effort of the allied trade interests to stamp out the practices of the grafting labor leader will be successful, but its success will be assured earlier if those exhibitors who have not as yet realized the seriousness of the situation come forward and lend a hand in the much needed restoration of law and order in the relations between certain representatives of operators' union and the exhibitors and exchangemen.
What Do You Think

The exhibitor is now and will continue to be the vital connecting link between the producer and the general public and the producer always will be compelled to rely upon the exhibitor for a great deal of necessary information which he is unable to obtain through any other source.

It has been frequently remarked to us by important producers that they are handicapped by the fact that exhibitors do not express themselves as freely as they should regarding what they think the public wants and what they think the public does not want. And it is obvious that exhibitors generally define their comments about pictures in general to private conversations and make no effort to have that comment reach quarters in which it could accomplish a great deal of good.

You can serve yourself, your business and the industry at large by making public your comments on pictures and your opinion of what the market wants. Every producer wants to know what you think about his pictures, regardless of whether the comment is favorable or unfavorable—just so long as it is honest criticism and not swayed by any personal considerations.

Write to the Exhibitors Herald—what you think about pictures, generally about certain pictures in particular, and about trade conditions. Let the producers know that there are men in the exhibiting business who know what the public wants and who have intelligent opinions about trade conditions. Your views, if of general interest, will be published in the succeeding issue where they will be read by every important producer in the trade.

Casual Comment

Never since the birth of the industry has there been a greater demand for light, wholesome comedies—and never such a dearth of that type of entertainment.

William Blair McCormick of Chicago, director of the Four Minute Men, saw with splendid vision the opportunities for the crystallization of public offered in the nightly gathering of millions of people in motion picture theatres throughout the country and has developed these opportunities to the extent that motion picture theatres have come to rival newspapers in the direction of the wartime thought of the public.

$5,000 Demand Figures in Expose of Union

Sworn Statement of Film Exchange Manager Charges Extortion on Part of J. G. Shafrank and President Armstrong of Motion Picture Operators’ Union

In an affidavit of Morris Kline, head of the Strand Film Service, 112 North LaSalle Street, there is charged one of the boldest “shakedown” on record in the machinations of Local 110, President William Armstrong of the Strand attempt to control absolutely the destinies of Chicago’s motion picture theatres.

Mr. Kline’s sensational charges were included in an affidavit attached to the ugly issue for an injunction against the union and the so-called National Advertising Film Company, filed in the Circuit Court of Cook County by Attorney Lewis B. Jacobson and upon the basis of which the desired action was granted by the court.

Acting upon the thinly veiled pretense that they considered a film exploited by Mr. Kline concerning the activities of the union, the Advertising Film Company, J. G. Shafrank, alleged head of the advertising company, and Joseph Armstrong, president of Local 110, threatened to force Mr. Kline and the operator who wished to see him, his was the first day of an intended four days’ run.

“The operator told me that the film would be run until I visited the Casino Theatre, 55 West Madison street, to see how the film was drawing. Upon his arrival at the playhouse he was told that the operator wished to see him. He was the first day of an intended four days’ run.

The operator told me that the film would be run until I visited J. G. Shafrank of the National Advertising Film Company, and Joseph P. Armstrong, president of Local 110, and obtained their approval and consent,” reads the affidavit in this connection.

“I then went immediately to 90 East Front Street, being the place of business of the National Advertising Film Company and also the headquarters of Local 110. I was introduced to Mr. Shafrank and asked to know the reason by which I could not see the picture. Shafrank then said:

The Shake-down

"Unless you pay us five thousand dollars, cold cash, or a certified check, you cannot show 'Billy' Sunday in the city of Chicago."

When Shafrank was asked the reason for such a statement and the accompanying demand, according to the affidavit, he replied that he did not want to advertise Sunday for nothing. Mr. Kline thereupon told them that such a sum at such a figure he would sell it to the couple for $1,000 and let them book it themselves. "If you come across, then we will let you have 'Billy' Sunday," was the reply he received.

In reply to Mr. Kline’s query as to what that service could he expect from the National Advertising Company at the time as the result of the payment of $1,000, he was told that they had nothing whatever to do with his film. He finally told Shafrank, he said, that it would be up to him to make any deal of the kind intimated.

Here’s the Contract

An agreement entered into this day, March 3, 1915, between the National Advertising Film Company, Chicago, Ill., party of the first part, and the Strand Film Service, Mr. W. Armstrong, 112 North LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois, party of the second part.

The Strand Film Service, Chicago, Illinois, party of the second part, are to display moving picture films, the subject matter to be scenes and characteristics of Billy Sunday taken at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in Chicago, Illinois, as they may be shown to time covering a period of twelve weeks, beginning March 9, 1915, and expiring May 25, 1915. The National Advertising Film Company, party of the first part, are to receive as their remuneration for the services from the Strand Film Service, Chicago, Ill., forty per cent (40%) of their gross proceeds, from all bookings made in Chicago theatres.

This agreement gives the Strand Film Service, Chicago, Ill., party of the second part, the exclusive right to show this film in Chicago theatres, covering this particular subject that they now have in their possession. This in no way affects the Strand Film Service, Chicago, party of the second part, against any other Billy Sunday film that may be shown in Chicago theatres other than the subject mentioned in the above paragraph.

A complete statement, showing the dates of bookings, names of theatres, location, must be rendered to this office daily with a check for payment for the services completed in each theatre.

We have read the above agreement and agree to carry out same to its expiration.

Kline Feared Union

At this point in the affidavit Mr. Kline, as an explanation of what followed in which he entered into a contract from which he could be nothing but the loser, stated that he knew of the operations and former history of Local 110, and the other operators’ unions, and their affiliated union, to stop immediately all business enterprises of mine and all exhibitions of the "Billy" Sunday picture in Chicago," the statement continued.

Union Controls Field

Mr. Kline states that he was aware that without the consent of the men in question and their associates that he could no longer conduct business in Chicago because of the methods pursued by the unions, and because of these circumstances was under duress. Rather than lose the customers he had obtained and with whom he had to time done other business, he made a proposition to Shafrank.

This provided for the head of the National Advertising Film Company obtaining contracts for the exhibition of the film in return for which Kline promised to turn over fifty percent of the gross profits to the said Shafrank, Armstrong and associates.

"We’re not in the film business," Shafrank is reported as having answered. "We don’t care to bother you with your affairs, but we are willing to take forty percent, you to get all bookings in the city of Chicago, but, remember, check must be here not later than four o’clock every afternoon.

Daily Payments Demanded

When told the conditions imposed were impossible, that exhibitors could not be forced to pay for films in advance, Shafrank said that he did not care about Kline’s affairs but said that he wanted the money every day. Failing this, he threatened, instructions would be issued to the operators not to run it.

Seeing that further argument was futile, Kline agreed to enter into a contract on the basis of 40 percent being paid to Shafrank.

I begged Shafrank and Armstrong to open every other day, to give me the instructions to have the picture exhibited," the affidavit continued. "They absolutely refused to do so until the contract had been entered into.

Local Option
For Film Shows
Passes House

Senate Expected to Favor Measure—Film Men Jubilant

Albany, N. Y.—Local option for Sunday motion pictures has been endorsed by the Assembly, and now seems likely to pass in the State Senate. Representatives of the film industry here are celebrating victory.

After an all day fight, second in bitterness only to that relating to the traffic in liquor, the bill permitting each locality to decide whether its motion picture theaters shall remain open on Sundays was passed by the Assembly by a vote of 76 to 63. The measure first was beaten and then suddenly the Assembly reversed itself and gave the exact vote required. A big motion picture lobby which has been conducting a campaign held an impromptu celebration. The Senate is expected to pass the bill with little opposition.

Defeat of the bill in the Assembly appeared to be certain. Its backers observed that Assemblyman R. T. Kenyon, brother of an actress popular in motion pictures, was absent. For half an hour there was danger that the measure would go by default. Then Mr. Kenyon was found and on a second roll call Assemblyman Peter A. Leninger, of Long Island City, changed his vote.

Municipal authorities are to have power to regulate Sunday “movies” if the bill becomes a law. In New York, the authority will be vested in the Board of Aldermen.

“Hearts of World”
Shown to Army and Navy Officials, N. Y.

Film to Be Used as Propaganda in Liberty Loan Drive. Throughout U. S.

Contagious applause and deep interest manifested itself at the showing of David Wark Griffith’s “Heart of the World,” held in the Forty-fourth Street theater last week for army and navy officials, members of the defense corps, and members of the Liberty loan committee.

From the cheers that greeted patriotic moments and the hisses that resounded when depredations of the Kaiser’s hosts were exhibited, it was once apparent that the film would be of inestimable value in the way of patriotic propaganda.

Following a request that the picture be exhibited throughout the country immediately in order that its inspiring effects might aid in the campaign in behalf of the third Liberty loan, Mr. Griffith went into conference with Morris Gost, who with Messrs. Elliott and Comstock will handle the showing of the film in the United States.

Among those prominent in a military way who attended the showing were:
  Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, U. S. N., and Mr. Usher, several members of the Rear Admiral’s staff; Major General William A. Mann, U. S. A., and his aide, Captain John B. Coulter, U. S. A. Charles Clive Bayley, the British Consul General, also was among the spectators, accompanied by Mrs. Bayley, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kessler, Miss Adele Colegate and Captain Coppening of the Royal British Consul. From her British Embassy there was, among others, Commander Arthur Temple Blackwood, Assistant Naval attaché.

In the large group of Canadian, American and British army and navy officers were Colonel Smith, U. S. A., Quarter master’s department; Major Norman Thibes, Provost Marshal; Colonel Huntier, Major Lord Robert Innes-Kei, Colonel Gifford and staff, Major Brooman White, Captain V. H. Williams, Captain MacDonald, Lieutenant Sharp, Lieutenant Chevalier, Lieutenant W. P. McIvor, Captain Sise, Lieutenant Colonel C. A. Warren, Lieutenant G. Sherries, Captain W. E. Brown, Colonel J. S. Denhays, Lieutenant Lawrence Grossmith and Lieutenant Crosswell.

Governor of Indiana
Guest of Pettijohn
At Astor Luncheon

Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana, at a luncheon given in honor of himself and David Wark Griffith, by Charles C. Pettijohn, at the Astor Hotel, New York, on April 4, gave the motion picture industry generous credit for its part in the recent Liberty Loan drives. In the opinion of the Indiana executive it was time for misguided informers, notoriety-seekers and over-zealous legislators to begin recognizing their tremendous power.

“The patriotic inspiration of your films, and the individual patriotism of the members of your industry have revealed your industry as the most potent factor in molding public welfare, said the speaker. “The industry is going to be better understood and better appreciated as the result of the splendid work that it has done and is doing. People are going to realize what a tremendous agency for good it is. They are going to stop picking on it. Personally, although raised as a strict laced Presbyterian, strongly favor the exhibition of cle motion pictures on any day. As a matter of fact, I sometimes go to the moving picture theatres on Sunday myself.”

Mr. Griffith, who is an old friend of Governor Goodrich, assured him in his address that his confidence in the industry was not misplaced, and that its screen might be depended upon to exert an influence only for that which was good.

Among those present at the luncheon were: P. A. Powers, J. Robert Rahi, Raymond Pawley, Capt. Merritt Crawford, W. A. Johnston, Arthur Lake, Felix Feist, Lester Park, William Sherrill, Joseph A. Golden, Sam Spade, Walter W. Irwin and William Fail. Another guest was Henry A. Brink, Detroit, who has interested himself with Mr. Pettijohn in an exhibitors’ co-operative organization for the direct distribution of films.

Arnold Daly a Four Minute Man at Rivo

By special appointment from Joseph B. Thomas, of the Committee on Public Information at Washington, Arnold Daly appeared as a “four minute man” at Sunday evening’s performance at the Rivoli Theatre, New York, and dressed the audience on the Third Liberty Loan. The featured attraction the Rivoli this week is “My Own United States,” in which Mr. Daly plays the role of Edward Everett Hale’s “Mr. Without a Country.”

First National Circuit and Paralta Join Organization—Calls for Loan of Films To Be Looked Into

The quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry was held at the headquarters in the Times building on Friday, March 30, with President William A. Brady presiding.

Among others in attendance or represented were the following: P. A. Powers, Arthur S. Friend, who also representedolph Zukor of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation; William L. Sherrill, president of the National Amusement Corporation; Donald J. Bell, of Bell and Howell, Chicago; Jules E. Brulatour, president of Eastman Films; R. A. Rowland, president of the National Exhibitors' Congress, and William Fox and W. R. Sheehan, represented by Floyd Willis; Fred J. Beecroft and Thomas G. Wiley of the General Division and Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary.

The First National Exhibitors' Circuit, as elected to membership in the distributors' Division of the organization, which now numbers twelve of the largest distributing companies in the industry, was elected as a member with that number. Consequently, making the fifty-eight company now affiliated with the branch of the national body.

Sunday Bill Discussed

Considerable time was given to a discussion of the legislative situation at Albany, following a report by Secretary Elliott indicating success for the Motion Picture Industry in this branch of the legislature. The bill introduced by Senator George F. Thompson and Assemblyman Clarence F. Welsh. Many of the directors indicated that they would attend the hearing before the Senate and Assembly Committees at Albany.

It was the consensus of opinion that the measure becomes a law in New York might be a much more effective method of legislation than would be possible if the bill were not passed. Indiana and Massachusetts have laws permitting industry shows, and it is considered only a question of a short time when most of the states will have enacted local option home rule laws for the legalization of Sunday exhibitions. Publicity gave the education of the legislators on this subject, it was thought, will surely bring about the desired results.

Many of the producers and distributor members of the National Association are constantly in receipt of requests for contributions to various funds which, in some instances, it has been proven by investigation, were not meritorious. After receiving reports from several companies, the directors adopted a resolution recommending that the producing and distributing companies notify their exchanges of branch offices that any contributions to any funds for campaign or legislative purposes without first securing the approval of the home office.

Evaluate Free Film Requests

It is further recommended that each office in turn should refer all such requests to the National Association headquarters for inspection and report. This action also applies to the numerous calls for the loan of film, from all sections of the country. These requests also will hereafter be carefully looked into before the companies comply with them.

It was announced that thousands of dollars have been saved to the members of the National Association through their having referred advertising solicitors to the headquarters, and, in many instances, it was found that the solicitors did not have authority to collect funds. Where the applications, particularly from charitable organizations had merit, favorable reports were made to the film companies.

Reports were presented to the directors in regard to the labor situation at Chicago, but owing to lack of more specific information, it was decided to call a meeting of the heads of all producing and distributing companies to be held at the offices of the National Association, Times building, Wednesday evening, April 3, at 8 o'clock. The call was issued Saturday to all the important companies, including those not members of the organization in which President Brady urged upon the executives the gravity of the situation and that they should personally attend the meeting.

Screencraft Company
Latest to Enter Film Producing Field

Maurice Fleckles, vice-president of Renowned Picture Corporation, New York, announces the formation of the Screencraft Pictures Corporation, with headquarters in New York City. Mr. Fleckles will be the president of the new organization.

It is the intention of the Screencraft company to produce pictures for the state rights market and publish them through the Renowned Picture Corporation.

Although no definite arrangements have been made with any stars, the company advises that negotiations with several screen favorites, whose contracts are about to expire, are now pending.

Mr. Fleckles states that the aim of the new company will be to have good stories, careful direction and good acting, and they aim to give the best there is in screen entertainment.

TarletonWinchester Assumes Charge of Publicity—Harry Lewis is Art Manager

Under the regime of Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., P. A. Parsons as advertising manager, will have charge of all Pathe advertising, while Tarleton Winchester, formerly senior publicity manager, has been made publicity manager. Harry Lewis has been appointed manager of the Pathe art department.

Mr. Parsons, well known in the motion picture world as publicity and advertising manager of Pathe, will devote his time and attention to advertising, being in complete control of that branch of Pathe's activities. The Pathe advertising in the newspapers and other mediums has become of such importance that Mr. Brunet deemed it best to separate the advertising and publicity departments. Mr. Parsons has been with Pathe for five years.

Mr. Winchester will have charge of all publicity matters emanating from the House of Pathe. He has been connected with this organization for almost two years, having been successively editor of the Pathe Sun, which combined with its special sales and publicity work, and serial publicity manager. He has been in the motion picture business for a number of years and came to Pathe from Paramount, where he was publicity director.

Mr. Lewis is a well known newspaper and motion picture artist. He studied at the Art Students' League, Cooper Union and Pratt Institute, New York City, and did special work for two years on the New York American and for four years on the New York Journal, having charge of the art department on the latter newspaper part of that time. He was associated with the International Film Service and the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. He is well and favorably known for his contributions to Life, Puck, Judge and other magazines.

Standard Films Head Held in New Orleans

And Broker Indicted

Louis B. Jennings, who was the president of the Standard Films Industries Company, was indicted last week by a New York grand jury, charged with publishing false prospectuses of stock valuations. He will be extradited from New Orleans, where he was arrested March 26.

Jennings, according to Assistant District Attorney Brogan of New York, organized about 15 companies, obtained options on mining or other property, and floated a great amount of stock. The companies then went out of business.

R. S. Davidson, a New York stock broker, with offices on lower Broadway, was also arrested last Friday accused of publishing fraudulent financial advertisements in connection with the sale of stock in the Standard Films Industries Corporation. He was released later under $25,000 bail.

The Standard Films Industries was incorporated about a year ago, with a capital stock of $10,000,000, divided into 2,000,000 shares. One of the methods used in exploiting the corporation's affairs was the showing broadcast of a picture entitled "The Leviathan of Industries." This, according to the District Attorney's office, showed many prominent financiers, in action, who were induced to become officers in the corporation under the impression that it was a legitimate business proposition. The film proved decidedly effective as an aid to stock selling, it is said, over $300,000 worth of shares being disposed of.

The names of many well-known financiers were used by the Standard without permission, it is asserted by the District Attorney's office, among them being George J. Hurty, of Henry Clews & Co.; A. J. Drezel and Philip O. Mills.

The District Attorney's office will continue its investigation into the Standard's stock selling plans.

General Moves Two Of Its Exchanges

Because of rapidly expanding business, the General Film Exchange at Seattle, Wash., has removed to larger and more convenient quarters at 2023 Third Avenue, which have been provided with modern facilities for the transaction of business.

Another General Film move reported during the week was that of the Philadelphia exchange, which is now settled in its attractive new home at 1233 Vine Street.

Mere Man Taking Unusual Interest in Gaumont Contest

The Gaumont Company's beauty contest being conducted in cooperation with the leading newspaper of each state is causing much interest, if not quite, as much interest among the men as among the women, as it is said. Not only are the male theatre goers anticipating pleasure in seeing the screen those whose competent judges pronounce the most beautiful girls in the world, but exhibitors are likewise anticipating crowded theatres when these pictures are shown.

While the newspapers are helping the Gaumont Company select the most beautiful girls to take prominent parts in spectacular photo-plays, the motion pictures of the prettiest of the girls will be shown from time to time in the semi-weekly news-reels, the Gaumont News and Gaumont Graphic, so that contestants will be spared the impression of waiting the completion of the feature plays to see themselves on the screen.

There will be contestants from every locality in the United States, and their pictures will undoubtedly cause not only the contestants themselves, but all of their friends to go to the theatres where these news-reels are being run. This particular phase of the contest has appealed strongly to exhibitors, it is said, who have been quick to foresee that theatres showing the Gaumont News and Gaumont Graphic will be unusually popular and are arranging their bookings in time so they will not be disappointed in obtaining these independent news-reels.

Worth Fighting For?

SHALL this little girl grow up in the sort of American home we know, healthy and happy? Shall she have the advantage of living and learning in a free land, under free institutions? Shall such children develop into Liberty-loving citizens that a free America may be proud of?

For over two hundred years Americans have fought valiantly, and died gallantly, to win for themselves and hand down to their posterity the blessings of liberty, justice, self-government and equal opportunity. This precious heritage, bought at so great a price, is now threatened.

The question which today confronts America as a nation, and you as an individual, is whether or not a free America is worth fighting for

Are American children in this and all future generations to receive unimpaired the legacy of freedom of which we are now the custodians, or shall their country be turned over bodily to the brutal, rapacious, power-mad enemy which has forced us into this war?

This question cannot be answered by word of mouth, but by deeds alone.

Let your answer be your investment in Liberty Bonds!

YOU are asked to save every cent not needed for your reasonable support and physical well being—this is thrift.

Bonds
Are Not A Burden
But A Blessing

THRIFT requires the exercise of restraint and self-denial—qualities without which you cannot achieve the success in life which it is your ambition to achieve, and for the lack of which you are likely to suffer in later years.

The money you acquire by thrift you are asked to loan—not give—to your country. It will come back to you when you may need it far more than you do now, and you will be paid interest for its use.

This war is a frightful thing, but it may prove of inestimable benefit to you, if it teaches you the good habit of thrift. Start the habit by investing in

We are now building more naval and merchant ships than we have constructed in the last generation.

We are building a vast fleet of airplanes, and enormous supplies of artillery, motor trucks, machine guns, rifles and ammunition. We are feeding, clothing and training an army of a million men, and preparing for a million more. We have loaned billions of dollars to our allies to be spent in the United States.

From the shipyards of the Pacific to those of the Atlantic; on our farms and in our mines, mills and factories in every state in the Union; back of the firing lines in France, where men are training, camps are being erected and railroads built, billions upon billions are being expended for labor, for transportation, for materials and supplies of every description.

The mind can hardly conceive the sums of money required for our war preparations. Yet these expenditures are absolutely essential. We must win the war quickly if possible; we must carry it on for years if necessary. We must do the job with American thoroughness, let the cost be what it may.

Remember, when you invest in your Liberty Bonds, that there is immediate, urgent imperative need for every dollar you can possibly spare.

UNITED THEATRES ISSUES PROSPECTUS HOW PICTURES ARE TO BE PRO-RATED

Will Make Its Own Positive Prints—Class E Houses Pay Five Dollars for Features Under Cooperation Plan

In the form of a fourteen-page booklet of convenient pocket size, United Picture Theatres of America has published the details of its plan for the integration of exhibitors. An interesting part of the book concerns the proposed buying of negative rights and the fixing of rentals according to the rating of individual members. Since the organization will make its own positive prints, it will go more into the cut market for negatives only, it is announced. Negative cost is figured on the certified detailed studio cost of each picture with the addition of a reasonable percentage for producer’s profit.

To the above must be added the excuse of making the necessary prints and the comparatively small distributing expense of the cooperative organization. An illustration takes up a five-cent feature which costs the society $50,000 altogether, and then calculates what each member is to pay.

Classified Theatres

These classes range from the first-run Class A house, which is charged onethousandth of the total cost, down through the later-run theatres to Class E establishment which pays the last and pays but onethousandth of the cost.

The table of charges for the $50,000 feature is as follows: Class A, $30; Class B, $25; Class C, $16.66; Class D, $10; Class E, $5. On a similar plan the first of a $6,500 single-reel comic is proposed from a top price of $6.50 for the A house down to $1.50 for Class and sixty-five cents for Class E.

The new prospectus also states that if society is not producer-controlled it is financially-controlled. “Democratic control is assured, since United Picture Theatres will be your organization through your stock ownership, and the power to elect directors from year to year is in your hands.”

Subscriptions Deposited

Another fact emphasized is the absence of any stock-jobbing element. The funds being raised by subscriptions, to the extent of 90 per cent of the total, are deposited in bank in a Special Fund the booklet states and the company agrees not to touch any of it except in accordance with the terms of the contract. As soon as 2,000 booking days are secured, that is $500,000, the plan of cooperative film buying will be put into operation.

In the event of failure to secure 2,000 booking days, the 90 per cent of the subscriptions trusted in bank will be returned to the subscribers, who will be out only the small amount spent in attempted organization—“even this little 10 per cent,” the statement says, “should be regarded in the light of a film insurance, much like your fire hazard, liability or other insurance; it is as much for your protection as any other kind of insurance.”

The officers of the United Picture Theatres express the fullest confidence that the organization will be a complete success, and they predict a substantial reduction of film rentals, as well as other savings and benefits incidental to cooperative buying.

“The Claw” Is Title

Of Miss Young’s Film

Immediately upon arriving at Hollywood, California, Clara Kimball Young secured a studio and commenced work on “The Claw,” her next production with her own company for Select pictures. The original from which the photodrama is taken is from the pen of Cynthia Stockley. The scenario for “The Claw” was written by Charles E. Winker, who was responsible for the excellent continuity of “The House of Glass,” in which Clara Kimball Young’s characterization of Margaret Case added fresh laurels to her rich crown of artistic achievements.

Power of the Press

Universal last week started an innovation when the reviewers of the motion picture trade papers were asked to pass upon a comedy, decide upon its merits and advise as to whether it should be released or “junked.”

It was a comedy in which a new comer to the screen played the leading role and, being his screen debut, Universal asked the trade paper reviewers to make the decision as to the possibility of the comedian becoming a screen favorite.

After viewing the picture it was the unanimous opinion of the reviewers that the screen would not be seriously inconvenienced if pictures never saw the light.

Universal announces in the future it is its purpose to take numerous persons into its confidence before attempting to popularize players. These persons, including the trade reviewers, will be asked to inspect screen tests of persons who think they may have possibilities for motion picture honors and pass upon them.

Supports Walthall

One of the actors who will be seen in the support of Henry B. Walthall in “With Hoops of Steel,” which was recently finished at the Paralta Studios in Los Angeles, is Jack Standing, Jr., son of the famous English actor, Jack Standing.

Jack, Jr., is making his debut as an actor in this production and to those who question him he states that his one ambition is to become as great an actor as his daddy. Jack celebrated his fourth birthday at the Paralta studios last week, and was the guest of honor at a party given by Mr. Walthall which was attended by all the stellar lights of the western organization of Paralta plays.

Petrova Selects
Ralph Ince as Her Permanent Director

Polish Actress Thereby Relieved of Cares of Personal Direction

Contracts have been signed between Madame Petrova and Ralph Ince, whereby the latter will direct Petrova productions exclusively. In explanation of this step Frederick L. Collins, president of the Petrova Picture Company, made the following statement:

"Madame Petrova's plan of changing directors with each feature until a man of Mr. Ince's known abilities was available has been found a very wise one, partly because she has been fortunate in securing at least the excellent successor to George Irving, Larry Trimble and Frank Crane, but chiefly because she has not been committed to any one man's work until she has found by months of testing that particular man best fitted to bring out the highest abilities of the star and the greatest possibilities in her production.

"Those who have seen 'Tempered Steel,' the first of the Petrova pictures directed by Ralph Ince, are unanimous in stating that Mr. Ince is that man. People tell me that we have a new Petrova. I don't know about that. The old Petrova was good enough for me. But I do think that the chances of working with a man so entirely in sympathy with her ideals and so thoroughly expert in the technique of production, has enabled Madame Petrova to relax from the cares and responsibilities of personal direction and to do what the trade calls 'loosen up.' I am told that the effect of Madame's increased activities before the camera has proven physically disastrous to some members of the cast, one venerable old lady retiring to the hospital with a broken arm as the result of a temporary absence of that 'restraint' which is usually characteristic of Madame Petrova's work."

Mr. Ince, who has been at the head of his own producing company since leaving the Vitagraph some years ago, has laid aside all other plans for the present and will devote himself exclusively to Petrova Pictures. It is possible that Mr. Ince will return to the screen as an actor as well as director in support of Madame Petrova in a special feature that will follow the production of "Patience Sparhawk," by the famous novelist, Gertrude Atherton. Madame Petrova and Mr. Ince have chosen an entirely new supporting cast for "Patience Sparhawk" and Madame herself appears in a role unlike any which she has hitherto portrayed on stage or screen, it is said.

Lillian Hamilton in Strand-Mutual Films

Lillian Hamilton, well-known screen comedienne, has been added to the cast of Mutual-Strand comedies, starring Billie Rhodes. Miss Hamilton makes her first appearance in "For Art's Sake." on April 9.

Lillian Hamilton appeared in the series of comedies with Paddy McGuire appearing in "Bucking the Tiger."

"Lured and Cured," "Tailors' Trimnings" and "Sticky Fingers." Her stage career has been with the Burbank stock company. She is a native of South Haven, Mich.

Miss Rhodes is surrounding herself with a cast of well known people. Cullen Landis is playing the lead in the Rhodes comedies and Eugene Forde has been recently added to the cast.

"Birth of a Race" Is Reorganized and Will Finish Picture

The Birth of a Race Photoplay Corporation, capitalized at $1,000,000, is being reorganized. Edwin L. Barker has been deposed as president. His successor is W. H. Burns, general auditor of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway.

Since the expose in February, followed by the conviction of Giles F. Cory on a charge of selling the stock of the company without having first obtained a license under the Illinois "blue sky" law, a double audit of the books of the film company and the Cory concern has been in progress. Cory pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $1,000.

Stockholders in Charge

"I think the stockholders' eyes were opened by the articles printed," President Burns said. "The affairs of the company are now being handled by the stockholders. The Frohman Amusement Company is no longer working on the production of the film. The same director remains, practically the same people are at work, but they are now directly responsible to us."

"F. H. Hibbard, Jr., vice-president, who has been directing the work of production in Florida, has been recalled to Chicago and a first-rate motion picture man is now in charge."

"There will be at least one more change in the directorate. The audits have shown that the company is short $20,000. A bond for that amount of a Race Company and Cory & Co. Two firms are making the audit. There will have to be adjustments."

Finish in Chicago

"The picture will be completed in Chicago. The outdoor work, or most of it, is about done."

Mr. Burns represents the large group of Chicago railroad officials and employees who bought stock in the corporation. Burlington and Alton men as well as Rock Island men and their associates own much of the stock. Another railroad man is expected to take the place on the directorate now occupied by a former member of the Cory firm, who had exclusive option on the stock of the company.

$7,000 REMAND OF UNION

"After the contract was signed, Shafrank stepped to a telephone, called the Casino Theatre, and directed the operator to continue showing the picture. Shafrank told Kline that the operator had been told by the management of the Casino that on account of the difficulties which had arisen, the theatre would, under no circumstances, show the picture, or do any more business with Kline on his film."

Mr. Kline in his sworn statement set forth that since that time he has continued to obtain bookings for the film and that every day, because of coercion and duress he has been compelled to deliver forty percent of his gross receipts to Shafrank; and that said checks for forty percent have been made out to the order of the National Advertising Film Company.

In conclusion the document states that by reason of the alleged contract to give forty percent of the receipts to the National Advertising Film Company, the rental price of the film is so excessive that exhibitors have been compelled to drop the film and that, therefore, his receipts have dwindled to practically nothing after the cost of handling and administration expenses are deducted. The affidavit was signed by the Strand Film Service, by Morris Kline and was subscribed and sworn to on March 22 before Samuel B. Blankstein, notary public.

United Theatres Executives Tour Western States
Will Establish Branches in Nine Cities and Form Sales Forces

United Theatre's of America announces the past week has marked the busiest since the inception of the organization. Sales forces have been established in 230 cities, and west of the Mississippi and branch offices have been organized in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Detroit, St. Louis, Denver, Salt Lake City, New Orleans and Dallas.

The tour of President Ochs through the Mississippi Valley and in the Eastern South is said to have made a marked increase in membership, it is stated. His meeting in mid-April with the exhibitors of the Pittsburgh territory, where E. E. Erickson has been appointed branch manager, is looked forward to with interest by the motion picture people of that district. In Baltimore and Washington, where Mr. Ochs ended his southern trip, some of the most important exhibitor interests have allied themselves with United Theatres.

Mr. President Seely's work as field organizer of branch offices has gone on pace. Many exchange men of the old-line organizations have given up their posts to join the new cooperative enterprise, it is said, and already the need of division managers to handle the large forces is evidenced by the promotion of C. S. Edwarde from the Kansas City office to the new position of Southern manager.

New Managers Named

The names of the new exchanges and their managers follow: Philadelphia, Stanley W. Hand (transferred from Boston); Pittsburgh, E. E. Erickson; Cincinnati, C. C. Hite; Detroit, A. J. Glass (transferred from Floyd Lewis; New Orleans, Karl Bugbee; Dallas, W. G. Underwood; Denver, C. R. Gilmour; Salt Lake City, I. P. Arnold. Ernest H. Horban, the manager of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, has accepted the Boston management, owing to Stanley Hand's being called to organize the Philadelphia office, and C. S. Edwards, Jr., has taken the Kansas City managerial post.

As the result of the week's activity there are now seventeen branches of United Theatres, covering most of the country, with the exception of the Pacific Coast, which will be organized within the next six weeks.

Blumenthal Addresses Exhibitors

Louis F. Blumenthal, treasurer of United Theatres, addressed a meeting of the executive committee of the Tri-City Exhibitors' League in Albany on April 2. Mr. Blumenthal found the exhibitors' president, President Lewis H. Beutner, keenly interested in the new plan, which is being brought to the attention of all the picture theatre managers in the Albany, Troy and Schenectady districts.

In New York City, Arthur S. Abeles, eastern representative, and Aarof Corn, city sales manager, reported a larger number of accessions to the new organization.

The Strand Books Outing-Chester Films, Single Reel Scenics

Managing Director, Harold E. Edel of the Strand Theatre, New York, has just booked the entire series of the "Outing-Chester" travel-scenics, commencing April 21, it is announced.

Mr. Edel is of the opinion that even single reel productions should be staged and given a substantial measure of publicity and advertising, and therefore intends to invest the presentation of these travel-scenics with as much care as is applied to a feature photoplay.

In connection with these single reel travel-scenics, Mr. Edel has arranged to distribute to the audience picture postcard folders containing interesting views from each film. These post-card folders contain interesting views of cities in the United States and are adapted to mailing.

In addition to this and as an unusual form of advertising matter, Jesse J. Goldberg, sales and exploitation representative for "Outing-Chester" pictures, is distributing lithographs, photographic enlargements, pre-release announcements that ordinarily go only with feature photoplays. Mr. Goldberg will cooperate with the management of the Strand Theatre in the presentation of this series, it is stated.

Goldwyn Officials in Country-Wide Tour To Meet Exhibitor

Three vice-presidents of the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, Alfred Wei, F. E. Warren and Harold Bolster, together with other key men have taken the Goldwyn circuit manager for the company, are now on a two-weeks' tour of various states. It is said that the remaining key man, Samuel Goldfish, president of the company, simply felt it was time to further demonstrate the interest of the company in the country.

Mr. Bolster is in the Middle West. Making temporary headquarters in Chicago, he is working through all large cities. Mr. Lucas is covering the South. No unusual conditions, it is said, was noted as he travels. The Goldwyn home offices in New York City, are responsible for the Goldfish tour, which includes four of the company's officers.

Mr. Goldfish, president of the company, simply felt it was time to further demonstrate the interest of the company in the country. He is busy these days throughout the country on a number of projects, which have arisen in the comparatively few months in which the production company has been on the market. He expects a profitable and lastingly good results from their tours.

EBONY BEGINS NEW COMEDY SUBJECT

Following the arrangement with General Film Company to distribute the regular one-reel comedies, the Ebony Film Corporation of Chicago has been turned over a number of new subjects to continue the series, the first six subjects of which have already been completed. Some of these attractive films are now available at the theaters.

In the Ebony Comedy the cast is a composite entirely of colored players. They are slow in development and are bound to rate along with the standard white face offerings available in addition. The humor has an appeal of novelty to be considered and on top of that the distinctly humorous aspects of the negro as brought out by the players of the race.

So promising is the outlook for the increasing success of these offerings that L. J. Pollard of the Ebony Corporation writes General Film that some very ambitious comedy productions are about to be released. Later, all of these to be interpreted, if successful, as magazine stories dealing with colored character. It is said that several stories which have appeared in Munsey's Magazine may be filmed with colored players of the highest ability.
Ford Co. Prepares
Special Ads. for
"Berlin via America"

A special line of advertising has been prepared for Francis Ford's timely production, "Berlin via America," which it is recently announced, will be distributed on a state rights basis. This, it is said, will afford exhibitors an opportunity to profit by the patriotic appeal, which this picture will undoubtedly create.

The press book tells the exhibitor in just what manner to advertise the picture after it is booked. A dozen or more "stunts" are outlined; a "teaser" campaign is planned; suggestions are made for a lobby display which will carry a punch. These concrete suggestions are made from the exhibitor's angle, by a free-lance writer.

Among other things there are a number of stories, written in newspaper style, with headlines that will be printed, which are bound to create interest both from the patriotic and the human angle. Outlets have also been prepared to accomodate a number of these stories.

In addition five or six striking newspaper advertisements have been laid out. Out of these ads can also be procured by the exhibitor.

Unusual care has been taken, it is said, the selection of posters so that they will carry the appeal the showman wishes to convey with a subject of this nature. The poster consists of two styles of ones, two styles of threes, an x-sheet and a 24-sheet that will arrest the eye of every pedestrian. There will be two styles of photographs: a set of eight 5x10's, and a set of six 11x14's.

The greatest endeavor in the advertising and making up the publicity bulletin has been to create the greatest amount of enthusiasm for the picture with the exhibitor himself. Himself installed with enthusiasm, he cannot but do a good job in the larger things. In getting all this with all this he has the incalculable value of the free publicity which the titles are now carrying columns upon columns of.

RINTS BEING MADE OF "A DOG'S LIFE" AT ROTHACKER PLANT

"A Dog's Life," first of Charlie Chaplin's new $1,000,000 comedy series, has been completed, and the negative is being personally conducted to the Rothacker laboratories in Chicago by Syd Box, who will direct the project to representatives of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit on April 3. Incidentally amounting to $140,000 was taken for the film before it left London. At about the same time that Syd Chappie was beginning the journey from the coast, T. L. Tally, vice-president of the circuit, who will deliver the film, went to London, drew a check for $140,000, to be added to Syd in exchange for the first eight comedies that his brother-under contract to make for the Circuit.

A super-comedy in size as well as novelty, "A Dog's Life" will be published three reels, instead of two, as originally announced. With the determination to give his clientele full measure in his opening number, Chaplin would not give his consent to the cutting of the film to the conventional two-reel length, feeling that the film would suffer materially thereby. According to the judgment of T. L. Tally, who saw most of the film before coming east, there can be no question but that Charlie has surpassed all previous efforts in this tale he has woven around a sentimental vagabond and his faithful hound.

Watterson Rothacker has guaranteed to utilize every feature of the picture in the big Chicago laboratory to prepare enough prints of "A Dog's Life" so that all of the twenty-five numbers of the circuit will be enabled to announce a pre-release showing of the comedy on April 14. The regular publication date has finally been set for April 21.

PETROVA PICTURES LEASES BACON-BACKER NEW YORK STUDIOS

Madame Petrova, for some time the possessor of her own company and her own productions, is now to have her own studio. The Petrova Picture Company has leased what is said to be one of the finest and best equipped studios in New York, built by the Bacon-Backer Company, West 35th street, New York City. Madame Petrova is already in possession of the ten suite of rooms on the ground floor, while Ralph Ince is in active production on the spacious stage where he is directing the picturization of Gertrude Atherton's novel "Patience Spahrbk".

Monday morning, April 1, marked the opening of the new enterprise, and by Monday afternoon a casual visitor would never have guessed that the Petrova company's cameras had not been grinding for weeks in the glare of the Cooper-Hewitt's, which was the pride of the new studio and incidentally of Director Ince, who promises some light effects for future Petrova pictures that have hitherto been impossible, it is said.

As a matter of fact, the tenant is new but the building and the equipment is so new that no picture made in the studio has yet been issued.

The lease is for a period of months with options for renewal. The transaction was consummated by Conrad Milliken, general manager and Robert North, studio manager of the Petrova company and by Gerald Bacon, representing the Bacon-Backer company.

Frank Crane Signs With World Pictures

Frank Crane, one of the foremost motion picture directors in the industry, has signed a long-term contract with World Pictures and is at work directing Madame Evans and Johnny Hines in "Clarissa." as at the Fort Lee studio.

Mr. Crane is one of the oldest members of the directing fraternity, having been associated with that end of the industry for 15 years. He was born in San Francisco and went on the stage, playing juvenile parts. He was connected with William Collier, Arnold Daly and James A. Herne. For two years he directed pictures for the World Film Corporation and then became associated with Pathé, Balboa and Vitagraph handling some of their foremost stars. His latest achievement was the directing of Mary Garden in "Thais."

Capt. Robt. Warwick On Pershing's Staff Aids Liberty Loan

Captain Robert Warwick, now attached to the Intelligence Bureau on General Pershing's staff at the American front in France, is keeping in close touch with affairs in the U. The captain is keenly interested in the Third Liberty Loan and has cabled the “Careless America” Safety-First Film Made By Universal

To make America safe for the careless pedestrian and the careless automobileist, ten stars, prominent in the motion picture field, consented to appear in many hazardous scenes for the filming of “Careless America.” This production, which is in two reels, has just been completed by Universal and is being assembled under the supervision of Harry Levey, manager of the Industrial Department.

The players who will endeavor to impress upon the minds of the public the dangers which constantly surround the average individual are Mildred Harris, Herbert Rawlinson, Kenneth Harlan, Ben Wilson, Betty Schade, Kingsley Benedict, Neva Gerber, Marie Waltcamp, Lawrence Peter, and Albert Roscoe.

Few are the features which contain so many thrills as are shown in “Careless America,” it is said. In its two reels are crowded ten sensational stunts, the like of which are usually reserved for the final punch scenes of serial episodes. Automobiles plunging across chasms, driving every car into flowing crowds, hurling over docks are a few of the stunts performed in the course of the picture.

Secretary of state in the country has already endorsed the Universal production, and 6,000 chiefs of police have undertaken the task of seeing that “Careless America” is given the widest circulation in their communities. Because of the “safety first” nature of the film, no charge is to be made to theatres which present it.

“Safety First” organizations everywhere have officially endorsed the picture and in the majority of instances it will be shown under their auspices. Universal has expected to have a tremendous effect upon the lessenings of automobile accidents during the coming season.

First National Buys “Third Floor Back” Film Through Weber

Through an arrangement with L. Lawrence Weber, who controls Herbert Brenon’s production of “Passing of the Third Floor Back,” starring Sir Johnstone-Forbes Robertson in the role of the Stranger, the screen version of this dramatic classic will be distributed by the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit.

Since its original American production nine years ago at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, Jerome K. Jerome’s play has been given by Sir Johnstone in practically every city of importance throughout the United States and Canada, and ranks first among his many stage creations by popular choice.

Over two months were spent in filming the story of the changes wrought in the lives of the mean-spirited and scheming members of the gloomy Bloomsbury lodging house by the mysterious occupant of the third floor back.

Sir Johnstone is reputed to have received the sum of $50,000 for his work before the camera, and made a special trip from England to America for the purpose. The stranger is his own favorite role, and he entered into his contract to reproduce it on the screen with real enthusiasm, declaring at the time that he would rather have his production of the “Passing of the Third Floor Back” given the permanency of celluloid than any play in his entire repertoire.

Universal Attaches Liberty Loan Stickers To All Lithographs

“Kill Kaiserism—Buy a Liberty Bond”—is the slogan to appear upon every piece of lithographic paper to be issued by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company from April 6 to April 27 during the big drive for the sale of the third Liberty Loan.

President Laemmle of Universal received a request from the Liberty Loan headquarters requesting that this slogan be etched on all lithographs prepared for the company productions. The request was not received until April 3, and, as all Universal paper is issued weeks in advance of its appearance, it was impossible to have the slogan made a part of the lithographs. President Laemmle issued orders that red and white stickers be printed immediately to be attached to the lithographs.

The stickers were finished within twenty-four hours and several will be attached to each piece of lithographic paper issued by Universal for the next month.

Four New General Exchange Managers

Installation of new managers at four of its exchanges are reported by General Film Company. E. W. Dustin, formerly manager of the Select and Triangle exchanges at St. Louis, has become manager of General’s exchange in that city. He is one of the best known film men in the Northwest.

Graham Sirwell, who has been connected with the Pathe and Select, is now manager for the General at Kansas City. Other Managers who joined General Film are J. F. Conant, new manager of the Cleveland branch, and George Weeks, now in charge of the Detroit exchange.

General Film Buys Triumph of Venus

Announcement is made that General Film Company will distribute Edwin Bowers’ “Hennes’s Triumph of Venus.” This is the Victory Film Manufacturing Company feature production in which Betty Lee, the noted southern beauty, is starred. The production has not been shown to the public except at an invitation performance at the Strand Theatre, New York. The five reels of the production, which are beautiful scenes, it is said. The story is of a novel character inasmuch as it deals with the domestic life and human moods of the Greek deities on Olympus. There are also numerous scenes in which attractive nymphs disport themselves in mountain streams.

Sydney Samson Sells “Eagle’s Eye” Set

Sydney Samson, assistant manager the New York Foursquare Exchange, making a tour of the principal cities of New York State in the interests of Foursquare productions and “The Eagle’s Eye.” In Albany, Troy, Schenectady and other points visited by Mr. Samson elaborations of the several episodes of the serial have attracted the attention of exceptional quality and dimensions.

“We have found,” said Manager F. Gainsbrough, of the New York Foursquare exchange, “the patients have displayed an eagerness to secure this picture upon hearing of the attitude of the audiences attending these first showings.”

Mark Goldman Buys King Bee Comedies For Four State

Nat. H. Spizer has just closed with Mark Goldman, manager of a new west coast corporation, all rights to the King-Bee Billy West comedies for the states of Washington, Idaho, Oregon, and Montana.

Mr. Goldman’s first New York last week for Seattle, the headquarters of the western exchange. Sixty prints of the first two-comedies have been shipped to Mr. Goldman, it is announced. The next exchange will be known as the “Pe-Hive,” Mr. Goldman having received permission from the New York exchange to use the trade-mark.

Monte Katterjohn Writes Second Play for Glau

Louise Glam, the Paralta star, who has just completed “An Alien Enemy,” her initial production with that company, and which takes her from the narrow scope of vampire roles for the first time in years, will soon start work on her next production.

Miss Glam’s second Paralta play will be the screen version of an original story by Monte K. Katterjohn, who wrote “Alien Enemy,” and will be directed by Wallace Worsley. Miss Glam is waiting at the studio for the completion of its sets and for the final approval of the scenario before starting the filming. The title of this production has not yet been decided upon.

1,000 Coast Boy Scouts See Judge Brown Film

One thousand Boy Scouts of San Francisco, in the treat of their lives recently, were directed by W. H. Schmidt, General Film manager in that city, who were the guests of the Casino Theater at a showing of a Judge Brown story, “The Lost Lie,” written by Judge Willis Brown, former judge of the San Francisco Juvenile Court. Sixty-five troops of boy scouts took part in parade through the city streets in a celebration which concluded with the visit to the Casino Theatre.

"The Shuttle" is the sort of production that should have a strong appeal at the present time. The story is entertaining and well balanced; it has been well handled by the director and the star and support are excellently cast. At all times one is held by the absorbing interest of the story. Audiences at the Bijou Theatre, Chicago, received this production with outbursts of applause.

Constance Talmadge, whose delineation of character roles always pleasing and charming, plays Betty Vanderpoel with security and her supporting cast, including Edith Johnson, Robert Rosscoe, Casson Ferguson, George McDaniel and Edward Piel handling their parts satisfactorily. The story is adapted from Francis Hodgson Burnett's popular novel.

The story: The Vanderpoel, wealthy family of New York, not understanding why their daughter, Lady Ansutherfield, never returns to them. Betty, the younger daughter, decides to pay her sister a visit and she finds that Sir Nigel, her brother-in-law, is neglecting his wife and son, and foolishly squandering money. Although Nigel does not approve of Betty's presence she remains, has the entire house remodeled and forces her situation to entertain society. Nigel discovers the conclusion of Betty is a mighty pretty girl and tries to force his attention upon her, when he finds her in a deserted shack with a tained ankle. Mount Dunstan, an impoverished lord, with old intentions, loves Betty and comes to her rescue. Nigel recalls to an attack of apoplexy and Betty and Mount find happiness in each other's love.

"Little Miss No Account" affords Gladys Leslie a role of some charm which she handles to excellent advantage. The story, while light, is entertaining and should prove welcome to the audience in search of diverting amusement. In support Miss Leslie appears Frank O'Connor, Eulalie Jensen, Wil-lin Calhoun and Stephen Carr. The direction is by William S. Earle and the story is adapted from the book, "The Rejection of Scarlet" by Edward P. Senanay.

The story: Josiah Wheeler, stepfather to Patty Baring, cleaves to cheat her out of a legacy left by her mother.
Her eighteenth birthday Patty leaves her home and takes her residence with Bobby and his aged grandfather. Here she meets Edwin Sayer, a prominent attorney, who falls in love with her. The efforts of Josiah to get Patty to sign her future away, are unsuccessful and she finally comes into her own and marries Edwin.

Admirers of May Allison will undoubtedly herald her return to the screen with delight. "Social Hypocrites," her first work as a star, has a fairly interesting story, combining pathos and satire in a pleasing fashion. Miss Allison is likeable in her role of Leonore Fielding. The support, however, with the exception of Henry Kolker, was not all that could be deed that they were heavy, voluptuous persons, and their being reminded of one cast chosen for a slapstick comedy.

However, on the whole the picture is an appropriate one for the average audience and was well received by spectators at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, last week.

The story: At the death of her father, Leonore Fielding goes to live with her aunt, a haughty, childless, who does not love the girl. She never loved her father because she believed he had disgraced the Fielding name. Royle Fitzmaurice, depending on the inheritance he is to receive from: his wealthy aunt, pays great attention to Leonore, although already mar-rried. His jealous wife endeavors to disgrace Leonore, but her duplicity is discovered and Leonore is reinstated with her friends and becomes engaged to Dr. Sampson. The dying of an old rival of Fielding's clears his name. The picture ends happily.

"The Vortex" is a strong sermon against snap judgment.
It is well produced by a capable cast and abounds with good photography. It deals with misunderstandings arising out of the determination of a married woman to possess herself of her husband's best friend. The young man's fiancée, seeing what she believes to be mutual admiration on the part of the two, refuses to longer consider him as a suitor. Later circumstances shape themselves so as the girl, herself, is placed in a position where a wrong inference is drawn by her former fiancée.

Joe King and Mary Warren, in the leading roles, are particularly well cast and with a story which is sustained throughout; the picture furnishes a very good brand of entertainment.

The story: Van Cleefe, a Wall street millionaire, is in love with Joan Meredith, daughter of a business rival. Mrs. Hilda Herford loves Van Cleefe and puts him in a false light before his fiancée, which causes a break. Herford, torn between love for his wife and suspicion of her conduct with Van Cleefe, hires detectives and arranges for the young broker to take his wife home to a friend by auto. In the meantime, Joan has found what a man about town can do when two women sus-

While the film version of "La Tosca," Victoriano Sardou's famous story of the eighteenth century, is not without a happy subject, it has been admirably produced and offers Miss Frederick a superb dramatic characterization, to which she rises with marvelous dramatic ingenuity. There is not the usual histrionic exaggeration which patrons of the picture art have become accustomed. On the contrary, La Tosca witnesses the death of her lover at the hands of a firing squad and is herself shot down by the same troops. The picture abounds in tense dramatic situations, artistic settings and good photography and is undoubtedly a high class production.

The story: La Tosca, an opera singer and the idol of Rome, is in love with Mario Cavaradossi, an artist, who aids in the escape of a political prisoner from his cell in the castle of St. Angelo, disguised as a woman. Mario is willing to get the fugitive out of the cathedral to which he has come, but leaves behind a fan, through which the chief of police traces him to the Cavaradossi villa. The artist is accused of assisting the prisoner, but maintains his innocence. La Tosca, who is present, finally divulges the hiding place of the fugitive after her lover has been nearly tortured to death before her eyes. Mario and La Tosca are both taken into custody by Baron Scarpia, the chief of police, and the artist is ordered hanged. Scarpia offers Tosca the life of her lover if she will give herself up to him. The police chief then orders the firing squad to load their guns with nothing but powder, gives Tosca a passport from the city, and then prepares to kill her. She possesses herself of a knife and murders him. With confidence she watches Mario face the firing squad and fall. Rushing to him she finds that Scarpia has deceived her and that her lover has been shot to death. From the high wall of the castle she makes known that she has murdered Scarpia, and is herself shot down by the firing squad.

While this latest Rex Beach production lacks somewhat the usual vigor and punch achieved in former filmings of this author's work's, it is, on the whole, a worthy effort. Excellent direction and wonderful scenic effects, coupled with stars of known value and a well-selected cast, put the production over in a creditable manner. The Mexican types so prominent throughout the picture are all good and lend an air of reality which is quick to impress itself upon the spectator.

Miss Nilsson is all that could be desired in the leading female role and is ably supported by Herbert Hayes. The direction was by Frank Powell and the commendable photography under the supervision of William Field.

The story: Alaire Austin, wife of a worthless ranch owner, whose devotion to the flowing bowl has practically ruined him both physically and morally, is informed that some of her cattle have been rustled by Mexicans. She determines to appeal to General Longorio for their return. Through a twist to her horse she meets Dave Law, a Texas range and a friendship springs up between the two. Her appeal granted by Longorio, who falls in love with her and determines to possess himself of her. Life with her husband becoming unbearable, she determines upon a divorce and go to her Mexican ranch. Longorio has his husband assassinate surrounds the ranch house, and demands that she marry him. Law learns that Mrs. Austin is at her ranch and goes to her assistance, and, despite the fact that he has been warned of the danger, he drives to her ranch. The條件 that he can not marry a "Gringo" woman and devote his best services to his country, and he gives Law and his bride their liberty. "CHASE ME, CHARLIE"

Essanay-Perfection revue; five parts; published special.

Probably this five-part comedy's greatest success will depend upon the audience catered to. It is called a British revue of Chaplin comedies, made by the Essanay Company several years ago, and is made up of "The Park," "The Bank," "Work," "The Champion" and several others.

Charlie Chaplin is Charlie Chaplin, and for those who adore him, the embodiment of humor. Exhibitors with Chaplin's revue will echo the humming of the various situations will undoubtedly be able to tell just how humorous a production would be with a combination of all the funniest situations in all the productions.

Despite the fact that incidents have been taken from many different productions, the continuity is fairly smooth and, as the story goes, Charlie is anxious to win the love of Edna Purviance, and, after an attempt at various sorts of labor and idleness, he finally succeeds.

"The Risky Road" is a good production. It has just sufficient amount of spice to make it interesting without becoming offensive. The direction, in the capable hands of Ida May Robinson, shows an unusual touch. The story, though at times a little too emotional, is pleasing and is well cast. William Stowell offers her splendid support, as does George Chesebro, Juanita Hansen, Edward Cecil and Claire Du Bre. The story is adapted from one written by Catherina Leis Robbins, entitled "Her Fling." It is, of course, a production for adults only.

The story: Unable to find work, Marjorie Helmar accepts a pretty gift and apartment furnished by Melville Kingston to the condition that at a certain time she will accept him or will marry her. Believing Kingston married, Marjorie sends a former sweetheart, and when he believes she surmises the meaning underlying Marjorie's wealth he treats her as she loves her desertion. She orders him out of the house at the point of a gun and, after the door has closed, she falls in swoon. Melville, coming in at the moment to beg her to marry him, believes she injured, but, finding she is not, he orders minister sent for.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.
In "The Lie" Elsie Ferguson portrays with wonderful dramatic ability the part of a self-sacrificing sister who gives the man she loves, allows a stigma to rest upon her, though she is innocent of the crime, through whose agency Fortune, a third party, would be made unhappy. The picture itself is admirably produced, with exceptional cast. Betty Howe as the erring sister and David well and Percy Marmon will undoubtedly find favor among discerning audiences.

Beautiful snow scenes and glimpses of Egyptian life add the attractiveness of the picture, which was from the play by Henry Arthur Jones and directed by J. Searle Dawley.

The story: Elinor Shale, whose impoverished grandfather is to be sold to Shale Abbey, though unable to finance it, is won out of her social retirement by the return to England Gerald Foster, a captain of the British Engineers. Their endship has about ripened into love when her sister Lucy turns up. London with the news that his new home is going to be a mother and the father has been killed. Elinor calls her engagement with Captain Foster as a blessing in disguise to the sister, to whom she was the mother. Foster questions Lucy, and she, too, casts the stigma upon Elinor. Dibdin, a close friend of Foster. Upon learning that the latter in love with Elinor, Dibdin informs him of what he has heard, and, under a misapprehension because Elinor has done the pleading, names her as the mother. Foster questions Lucy, and she, too, casts the stigma upon Elinor. Dibdin turns of his mistake and hastens to inform Elinor of the mistake he has done her. In the meantime, in Egypt, Lucy is won the love of Captain Foster and married him. Elinor listens to her sister with the child and is horrified to find that Foster knows nothing of Lucy's past. Rather than wreck her life, she concludes to remain silent, and Dibdin, loving her for her sacrifices, asks her to share Shale Abbey, which has purchased, with him.

And now comes Bryant Washburn in a dual role which he has sought to create for himself and the Pathe company. It would seem that the star had extended himself to a scene where his picture for the company a success, and he has succeeded admirably. The roles Essayed by Mr. Washburn are of a widely different nature—one that of a "mother's boy" and the other a rising pupilist with aspirations to look and act like the "gentleman" Jim Corbett. Through the mother's gift, Washburn is able to change places with the boxer for forty-eight hours many amusing situations arise which are sure to please provokers. The action is fast, with a punch in every reel, and the picture is undeniably worth while.

The story: Jimmy Mufferton, under the thumb of his aunt, gains his first bit of liberty shortly after he has attained majority, when his guardian is called to the bedside of a friend. Through a knothole in a fence he watches the work of Dave Carey, a pupilist, and becomes fascinated, which terminates in an exchange of places between the two. Under arrangement Dave satisfies his desire to look like "Gentleman Jim" Mufferton's joy is keen in his new environment. Implications arise when Carey refuses to change back at an appointed time, and Mufferton is confronted with the necessity of appearing in the prize ring. He succeeds in dominating the ring, and Mufferton is2 given the opportunity to be Dave Carey. He is just polishing off a beautiful looking to the glitz when his aunt arrives home and attempts to again him under her domination. The story: Douglas Seward, a young engineer, finds Eileen about to take her life and dissuades her. Some time later he finds it necessary to have a wife in order to obtain a position in Central America. The girl agrees to play the part and finds herself attracted to the engineer. On the eve of his departure he declares his love for her and she promises to become his wife in reality upon his return. During his absence Carver, his employer, tries to force his attentions upon Eileen. In the meantime Seward has become the prey to strong drink and fever in the tropics. He forgets the girl. Roused from his lethargy by a letter from her, he returns to the states unannounced and finds Carver in the act of attacking Eileen. In his weakened condition he is an easy victim for Carver and is felled by a blow, which is followed by an attack of the fever, through which he is nursed back to health by Eileen. Chester in cooperation with Outing Magazine and fill a long felt want in this class of entertainment.

“A Corridor on the Orinoco” depicts a trip along this Venezuelan river in a boat manned by native Indians. Beautiful scenery is everywhere in evidence throughout the life of the inhabitants is interestingly portrayed.

“Mountaineering Memory” taken in British Columbia, shows the progress of a climb to the snow-capped peak of Mount Assiniboine over a path apparently impossible of negotiation. Peculiar rock formations, wonderfully beautiful and clear mountain lakes and streams reflecting the glories of the surrounding landscape also abound.

“Kaleteur, the Perfect Cataract” is devoted to innumerable views of a majestic waterfall in British Guiana. One of the outstanding features in this scene is the beautiful sunset scene gleamed by the camera.

“White Water” details the shooting of rapids in a stream running through a picturesque jungle region. Guidance of the craft is in the hands of a native Bowman who handles with dexterity a long paddle. Many views of natives are also shown.

This has been a great week for mistaken identities. First Metro comes through with a story about Viola Dana being refused admittance to the studio because the gatemant didn’t recognize her in her make-up, and now Olive Thomas is mistaken for a boy by her own director. They ought to get extra strong glasses for employees around the studios, something that will penetrate the so-called camouflage.
James D. Williams, manager of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, Inc., known to his personal friends as "J. D.," has had a wide and varied experience in the motion picture world. Mr. Williams was among the first to recognize the actual value of the motion picture as a high-class entertainment, and proceeded to put into effect his ideas; but to obtain his ends he left the United States for other fields. At the time of his departure from the United States the motion picture business was operating on a five and ten-cent basis.

Mr. Williams left for Australia, where he organized the J. D. Williams Greater Amusement Company and proceeded to erect the largest motion picture theatre in the world at Melbourne, N. S. W., with a capacity of 5,000 seats. Dubious theatrical men prophesied failure for this venture, but from the start the new theatre, with large orchestra, scenic effects, etc., was a great success, and the Williams organization, which included Hugh MacIntosh, the Australian showman, built a chain of large theatres in the largest cities of Australia.

Mr. Williams opened branch offices in New York, London and Paris, where his representatives selected the finest films the market offered. After seeing the new organization successfully on its way Mr. Williams made a trip around the world, establishing theatres at Cape Town, South Africa; Ceylon, India, and other points. Returning to his native land, Mr. Williams became the largest buyer of foreign rights pictures and sent hundreds of films to foreign countries. Among his many large purchases was the buying of the Australian rights for "Cabiria," which, at the time, was the biggest production of the age in the silent drama.

Looking ahead, Mr. Williams saw the need of organization in the motion picture field in this country and formed an affiliation with T. L. Talley of Los Angeles, Cal. Later he organized the First National Exhibitors Circuit, which numbers among its members many of the leading exhibitors of the United States.

Charlie Chaplin, the world's greatest screen comedian, is at the present time turning out pictures for the First National Exhibitors Circuit, as are Mme. Petrova and many others, and rumors have it that within a short time several of the leading stars will be enrolled on the banner of this circuit.

Mr. Williams is a personality of great mental and physical vigor and is naturally an excellent executive. Mr. Williams has a very wide acquaintance among film and theatrical men and his advice and suggestion is relied upon by many of the biggest men of the motion picture industry.

Jaxon Comedies in Seventh Series

General Film Company this week issues the fourth subject to the seventh series of Jaxon Comedies "Beating Him To It" following this will come "Forced Into Matrimony." The Jaxon Comedies have been running for nearly a year now and General Film reports that they continue to grow in popularity with the exhibitors.

Chaplin in "A Night Out" Coming

"A Night Out," the ninth of the new edition Essanay-Chaplin Comedies distributed by General Film Company, will be issued the latter part of April.
“Hands Up” Pathe Serial Produced By Astra

The first serial the Astra Film Corporation will produce for Pathe on the Pacific Coast is “Hands Up,” from the story and direction by Gilchrist Sweeney. “Hands Up” will be produced in Astra’s California studios under the superintendence of L. J. Gasnier, president of the Astra Corporation, who has supervised such Pathe serials as “The Iron Claw,” “The Shielding Shadow,” and “The Fatal Ring.” “The House of Hate,” and many others. It will be directed by James Horne, who was responsible for the serial, “The Voice on the Wire.”

The story of “Hands Up” deals with the search of the last descendant of the Incas, the rulers of Peru before the advent of the Spaniards on this continent, for the buried treasure of his forefathers and for the girl, also descended from the Incas, whom it was prophesied he would marry and restore his race to freedom. This treasure house is supposed to be located in Arizona and the adventures of the last of the Incas in search of his wife and treasure are exciting. Incidentally the girl’s lover is an American, and a full-blooded, virile young American enters the lists for the girl’s hand. There are said to be mystery thrills and adventure in this story which will keep serial fans interested to the last episode.

Gambling Den in “Stolen Orders”

Brady’s Feature, Plays Big Part

With public attention focused on gambling and gamblers one of the most interesting scenes in William A. Brady’s big feature, “Stolen Orders,” promises to be that depicting a fashionable gambling club.

This institution of chance, which will be shown on the screen in “Stolen Orders,” is said to resemble one of the clubs recently raided in New York City.

In the Brady picture Kitty Gordon, playing the wife of an American admiral and possessed of an uncontrollable desire to make a fortune, gets into the toils of gamblers. She plays, winning a little at first, and then the game of chance becomes one of certainty for those on the right side of the ledger. The wife of the American admiral loses her money, and it is then that the sinister force behind what develops to be a carefully conceived plan begins to make itself manifest. What that force is and how its machinations come into play is part of the story told in “Stolen Orders.” Kitty Gordon, Carlyle Blackwell, Montagu Love, June Elvidge, George MacQuarrie and Madge Evans enact the principal roles.

THIS WEEK AT DOWNTOWN CHICAGO THEATERS

BIJOU DREAM—Select, “The Shuttle,” with Constance Talmadge.

CASTLE—Paramount, “La Tosca,” with Pauline Frederick.

31
Six Feature Productions Under Way
At Triangle's Culver City Studios

An American-Japanese drama, "The Loyalty of Tarô San," has been put into production during the past week at the Triangle Culver City studios. This is a screen adaptation of the story of the same name by E. Magnus Ingleton, author of the recent Triangle picture, "Her American Husband."

Jack Conway has nearly completed "Her Decision," in which Gloria Swanson has the featured role. This is the third dramatic appearance of the former Keystone comedian, "Smoke" and "47," by Forest Stone, this week at the Triangle. J. Barney Sherry, who recently completed work in "Who Killed Walton," has a featured role in this production, which also includes in the cast Darrell Foss and Ann Eromon.

Director Raymond Wells is well under way on "Alfie Palouette," a comedy-drama in which Wallace MacDonald and Claire Anderson have leading roles. A summer camp in the mountains in the vicinity of New York provides the locale for this story, and a "wedding with police supervision" comes as a climax. The cast includes George Hernandez, George Pearce, Walter Perry, Anna Dodge and Dot Hagar.

Stewart in New Western Film

With the Triangle punchers augmented by a dozen new cowboys, Director Cliff Smith has been getting what he declared to be the highest percentage of shots at Roy Sturdy's western that has ever been obtained by a photography department. The working title of which is "A Man Worth While." The company has temporarily completed work at the ranch studio and is now doing interiors at Culver City. Josie Sedgwick, who was scheduled for a leading role in "What Price Greatness?" has been a substitute for Gilbert P. Hamilton. It has, is said, something unique in the way of a location for a fishing village scene for "Judith," in which Alma Rubens has the featured role. The Japanese fishing village above Santa Monica has been completed since the release of "_Great Plains_," which Hamilton finally decided on the Laguna Beach. He has been working there several days with the sixty extras, besides his regular cast, taking some "bowl" scenes, which he finds more suitable for a leading role. The cast also includes Lilian Langdon, Anna Dodge, Iris Ashton, Myrtie Rishell, Alice Crawford, Walt Whitman, Lee Hill, Lee Phelps and Ward Caulfield. Edward Piel supports Miss Rubens.

Director Harry Edwards, who recently completed the two-reel comedy, "Their Neighbor's Baby," is awaiting a new story, and Thomas N. Heffron is awaiting new subjects.

"The Siren in the House," a society drama which Jack Dillon is directing, is well under way. Olive Thomas and Wallace MacDonald have the leading roles.

American Soldiers in the Making
Feature Universal Current Events

"The making of a "Sammie"" is the feature of Universal Current Events 47, illustrating on the screen the life of a rookie at Uncle Sam's great training camps, from the day he is assigned to the awkward squad until the finished material is turned out. The scenes are selected from various camps and cantonments about the country. Many of the games and sports in which the boys indulge in their spare moments are also shown.

"Jackies" in review at the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, New York, add another patriotic touch to the reel. The pictures show the sailors passing in review before Rear-Adm. Usher and Rear-Adm. Osterhaus.

The 11 waiting and traveling in the Jersey City, which caused more than $2,000,000 damage and created excitement in New York City, are presented. Other features include: Army truck train leaving Detroit, Mich., for the run to the Atlantic; a supply of Pershing's supply depot in France, together with an appeal from the U. S. Department of Agriculture for workers on the farms to keep these supply stations stocked with foodstuffs, and an exceptionally interesting series of animated drawings illustrating a new monster gun proposed by an American inventor which could destroy an entire city. Another reel would fire a projectile of a hundred tons and have a range of more than 100 miles.

The actual shooting down of a German aerial raider over Paris is one of the remarkable features of Universal Animated Weekly 17. This is said to be the first motion picture of the winging of an enemy airplane to be shown in the United States. The pictures show the anti-aerial barrage in action from pits in the suburbs of Paris, and then the aircraft high in the sky. The camera is kept focused on the airplane while shrapnel bursts about it, when it is seen to fall to the earth. Afterward the screen shows the machine on the ground. Pictures of the damage done in this same air raid are shown by the Animated Weekly.

Famous Players-Lasky Changes April Films

A change has been made in the order of the Paramount and Artcraft features for April, according to an announcement from the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. "Mr. Fix-It," the Artcraft picture originally set for April 22, has been advanced one week and will go out on April 15. This is a Douglas Fairbanks picture in which the acrobatic comedian appears as the exponent of the theory that everybody can be happy if they will shape their lives in the right direction.

"Rich Man, Poor Man," the Paramount picture starring Margaret Clark, announced for April 15, has been moved back one week and will be issued on April 22. This subject presents Miss Clark in a dramatic role, that of an orphan whose mother died when she was an infant, and who is adopted by the kindly landlady of the orphanage. When she grows up she is forced through circumstances to become engaged to a rich man she does not love, but she eventually weds the poor man of her choice.

"The Marriage Lie" Carmel Myers
Leads Universal-Bluebird Program

Universal and Bluebird publications during the week of April 22 consist of twenty-two reels of comedies, features, serials and specials besides the usual three split reels of the Universal Animated Weekly, the Universal Screen Magazine and Universal Current Events.

One of the two-reel subjects which is creating considerable comment is the second installment of "Boy Scouts to the Rescue," a serial of ten reels, published at the rate of two a week. The episode for the week of April 22 is entitled "On the Trail." This serial has the active support, backing and promotion of not only the national Boy Scout organization, but of every local organization and is being actively pushed by the scout masters.

The comedies for the week are "The Stolen Keyhole," a Nestor one-reel, with Harry Mann; "Her Movie Madness," an L-Ko of two reels, with Gale Henry and Hughie Mack, and "The Happy Egg," the second of the Lyons-Moran Star Comedies of one reel. Another short reel subject is the Finley Nature Study entitled "In and Around Key West, Fla."

The Universal serials also are running. The twelfth episode of "The Bull's Eye" with Eddie Polo is entitled "Burning Sands," and the fourth episode of Marie Walcamp's "The Lion's Claws" is titled "A Woman's Scream."

The Bluebird for the week will be "The Marriage Lie," with Carmel Myers, Harry Carey and Molly Malone.

The Universal special attraction "The Scarlet Drop," completes the list.

William Farnum Finishes "True Blue"

Word was received at the Fox New York offices last week from the William Fox studios in Hollywood, Cal., that William Farnum was in the midst of his big production. The original copy of the film is now in the Fox offices and it has been decided to issue the drama under the title of "True Blue." It will be a Standard Picture.

Triangle Presents Northwest Drama

A romance of the Canadian wilderness, "The Law of the Great Northwest," with Margery Wilson in the stellar role, is the first Triangle film for the week of April 14. It is followed by "Who Killed Walton?" a mystery story by Norman Sherbrook, in which J. Barney Sherry, Mary Mersh and Frank Bonn have leading parts. "First Aid," a Keystone comedy, completes the April 14 program.
Alberta Theatremen Comply with New Tax Legislation

The exhibitors of Alberta are the latest to be confronted with legislation pertaining to an amusement war tax, but, in this instance, the law-makers are confining their attention to slight increases and other adjustments in an existing ordinance.

According to the new schedule of taxation patrons of moving picture theatres of Alberta, who buy an admission ticket of less value than ten cents are not required to pay a tax of any kind. On tickets the price of which is from ten to twenty-five cents, the Alberta tax is one cent; from twenty to seventy-five cents, the tax is two and one-half cents per ticket, and when the price of admission is anywhere from seventy-five cents to one dollar, the tax is only five cents. Over $1 the tax is ten cents. A person holding a pass or complimentary ticket must pay the lower tax for the highest-priced seat in a theatre regardless of what seat is taken by the pass-holder.

The new law gives the Lieutenant-Governor in Council power to exempt any theatre from the operation of the act temporarily, permanently, partially or entirely. The Provincial Secretary is authorized to make a commission to theatre owners or managers for the sale of tax tickets, the percentage to be fixed later. Owners of theatres are required to make weekly returns of tax money, together with reports of theatre receipts, and these statements must be sworn.

The new clauses place all places of amusement and athletic events come under the jurisdiction of the act, as well as moving picture and other theatres.

Manitoba Tax Law Meets Protest from Army and Navy Men

The much discussed theatre tickets tax act of the province of Manitoba went into effect on April 1 and on that date all patrons of theatres in Winnipeg, Brandon and other centers of the province started the payment of the special assessment on all tickets purchased for performances.

An unexpected and more or less sensational development occurred simultaneously with the enactment of the act. Under the new law when the Manitoba government received a stern protest from the army and navy veterans. The latter declared their opposition to the theatres being already paying provincial and municipal license fees, and besides, through the courtesy of the Manitoba Film Service the sale of sheet music the veterans had been able to collect thousands of dollars for patriotic and military purposes since the start of the war.

A. Hedley Garland, superintendent of taxes for the province, announced that vast quantities of the tax tickets had been distributed throughout the jurisdiction and each theatre had been provided with a special ticket receptacle in which used tickets were to be destroyed. There is a one cent tax on all admission tickets worth up to 10 cents and a two cent tax on tickets valued at from 11 cents to 25 cents. The assessment becomes proportionately higher on more costly tickets. Pass-holders, of course, pay the tax on the highest current admission price at a theatre.

Harry Pomeroy Opens The Holman Theatre

Formerly a dismal looking structure, the Holman Theatre, Montreal, Que., was transformed into a palace by Manager Harry Pomeroy for a re-opening on Saturday, March 30, under the auspices of the Canadian Universal Film Company, Limited. Although opening night with a small program, the Holman Theatre has enjoyed a varied career, mainly because no attempt has been made to decorate either the interior or the exterior of the house. The theatre passed into the hands of the liquidators last fall and it was finally leased for a term of ten years by the Universal company, which follows the example of other Canadian film distributing companies in securing theatres in different cities.

Clair Hague of Toronto, president and general manager of the Canadian Universal, was one who attended the opening performance on March 30, the attraction being “The Kaiser, the Beasts of Berlin.” This was the premier presentation of the subject on any screen in Canada.

Manager Pomeroy added to the attractiveness of the theater by arranging for the permanent use of a large orchestra and by engaging a staff of lady ushers. The house seats 1,200 people.

Regal Films, Limited, with offices in six cities of the Dominion, has become the largest film exchange of Canada by the absorption of the business of the Metro Pictures Service, Limited, which has been controlling the release of Metro, Petrova and Charlie Chaplin subjects throughout the country. With the exception of the Toronto headquarters, the offices of the Metro in Canada have been closed. J. J. Unger, general manager of the Canadian Metro, has joined the staff of Regal Films, Limited, it is announced, but he will have charge of the new Metro office at 15 Dundas Street East. Ownership of Petrova and Chaplin franchises in Canada will remain with Messrs. Brouse and Stapleton of Ottawa, Ontario, representing the Canadian Exhibition Company, but the distribution of these pictures will be handled by Regal.

Harry Price has resigned the management of the Montreal office of the Famous Players Film Service Limited.

During the past few months the Regal Films, Limited, has absorbed several different exchange companies, including Globe Films, Limited, Triangle Film Service and Metro Pictures Service, Limited. The Regal now controls Goldfield Pictures, which Mr. Chaplin, Petrova, Educational, Ivan, several makes of comedies, a number of special features and other pictures in Canada.

An important announcement that F. G. Spencer of St. John, N. B., has bought from the Mutual Film Corporation the exclusive rights for “Damaged Goods” for the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Mr. Spencer is one of the largest exhibitors in Canada as he controls fourteen theatres in the Maritime Provinces. This feature has yet to pass the censors in Ontario and Quebec, but it is making big money in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Although it was rejected by Ontario and Quebec some time ago, this possibility that it will be considered a public opinion has changed somewhat.

Archie Laurie has resigned as manager of the St. John Regal Theatre, St. John, New-Brunswick. Mr. Laurie is classed as one of the foremost lobby display designers in the Dominion.

Manager Jacquelin of the Moulin Rouge Theatre, Montreal, has also resigned to take up work in another field. He has been succeeded by Mr. Phillip.

One of the first places to suffer damage at the hands of a mob at Queen City on March 29 was the Auditorium Theatre, one of the best known moving picture theatres in the capital of Quebec. The disturbance was the result of a clash between civilian and the military authorities and during the excitement two newspaper offices were wrecked and the theatre was partially destroyed because it happens to be in close proximity, unfortunately, to one of the objective points of the rioters.

The furnishings of the Casino Theatre, Montreal, were sold publicly on March 29 by N. G. Valiquette, Limited. The articles of furniture included five hundred chairs, electric fixtures and equipment, draperies, curtains, stage setting, brass railings, ventilating fans and office furniture.

A recent visitor in Halifax, N. S., was Phil Kaufman, general sales manager of Regal Films, Limited, Toronto, who reports that the Canadian seaport is recovering rapidly from the after-effects of the big blast which swept the city on December 8. The moving picture business has once more become lively and Mr. Kaufman paroled releases into the Casino Theatre, Halifax, and secured other arrangements.

Jules L. Steele, one of the best known moving picture critics of Western Canada, has become moving picture editor of the Winnipeg Telegram. During the past eighteen months, Steele has reviewed and criticized personally no less than five hundred different features in Winnipeg theatres.
Arthur Drapeau, theatre owner of Quebec, and his two managers, Messrs. Bedard and Metivier, pleaded guilty to the charge of keeping theatres open on Sunday. Each was fined $21 and costs, and were told to close their doors on Sundays in the future. Other actions are about to be taken against moving picture proprietors in this city.

Culinary Economist Joins Universal’s Publicity Writers

Mrs. Ida Coggswell Bailey Allen, lecturer and magazine writer on topics dealing with food conservation and home economics, is the most recent addition to the publicity and scenario writers of the industrial department of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

Mrs. Allen, who has acquired considerable reputation in her own particular sphere of the lecture and journalistic fields, under the auspices of the Universal will add to her repertoire of accomplishments by acting in films in animated demonstrations of culinary frugality.

In her new environment, augmented by her mastery of domestic science and a firm grasp of the subject of home economics, and with the aid of the medium of exploitation, her aid to the government, the Hoover committee and the entire country will be of inestimable value, it is believed.

Mrs. Allen will devote much of her time and thought to writing and editing industrial scenarios in addition to conducting the campaign on Food Conservation in the determination to arouse “Mrs. Uncle Sam” from her lethargic state and to create and develop a true realization of the urgency of saving food so that we may be able to feed our allies.

Five Persons Play
Two Characters in Film

The nature of the story chosen for “Ace High,” a new William Fox picture on which Tom Mix has just begun work, makes necessary what is said to be a thing almost without parallel in motion pictures. Five persons are required to play two characters in the production.

Tom Mix himself appears as Jean Rivard, the hero. Lloyd Perl and Lewis Sargent portray Jean as a hoy of ten and of fifteen, respectively. Kathleen Dunne, new leading woman for Mix, is Annette Dupre in the drama, and Virginia Lee Corbin is Annette as a child. Lloyd Perl and Lewis Sargent are remembered for their important characterizations in “Treasure Island” and “Aladdin” and the Wonderful Lamp, while little Miss Corbin had the chief feminine role in these two productions as well as “Jack and the Beanstalk” and “Babes in the Wood.”

Included in the company are also Pat Chrisman, Jay Morley, Lawrence Peyton and Colin Chase. Mr. Chase has been in a number of Fox productions, most recently in “The Moral Law,” starring Gladys Brockwell.

George K. Spoor’s latest production, “A Pair of Sixes,” featuring Taylor Holmes, is now playing at first run houses in several of the largest cities of the country, the Essanay Company announces. An unprecedented number of bookings is reported by the Kleine releasing offices and the pictures bids fair to be even more popular than the stage play which had a long run on Broadway and later throughout the United States.

The play, written by Edward Peple, is said to be unusually well adapted for the screen, and is declared by critics to be the best of the Taylor Holmes pictures. There is an all star cast and Taylor Holmes is ably assisted by Maude Eburne, Alice Mann and Robert Connex. Maude Eburne, who played the same part in the original stage production, is one of the strongest characters in the picture. Her every appearance, it is said, brings forth a roar of laughter.

Terhune Writes First Play for Screen Star

Albert Payson Terhune, the author of “A Square Deal,” which Margarita Fisher will produce for the American Film Company at the Santa Barbara studios, was “born with ink in his blood,” he says. Marion Harland is his mother and Christine Terhune Herrick is his sister. Both are well known writers.

Mr. Payson has heretofore refused to write plays either for the screen or stage, but his story, “A Square Deal,” it is said possesses so many of the vital points required by a thrilling screen drama that he may be induced to reconsider his determination and write others for Miss Fisher, the American Film Company star.

Pathe to Continue Publishing Features;
Big Supply on Hand

Under the direction of Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, the distributing company will continue to publish features according to an announcement from the concern this week.

Regarding the company’s plans, Mr. Brunet said: “ Favorable as has been the reception accorded our recent features, we have decided to make a greater effort to make it still stronger with the intention of more and more producers of good pictures will look to us for distribution. We have the outlet for their productions.”

In connection with Mr. Brunet’s statement, it has been known that Pathe has decided to place its shelves or practically completed at one for the other of its producing company’s studios, a supply of quality features for the next six months. Among these pictures are “Fanni Ward,” “What A Yello Time’s,” “The Lap of Thees,” “The Narrow Path,” “Grace Kenan in ‘The Bells’ and ‘More Troubles,’ ” Bryant Washburn in “The Range Rider,” ”Kiddo & Ko” and “In Wrong;” Bessie Love in “A Little Sister of Everybody,” “How Could You Caroline?” and “Caroline of the Corners;” Irene Castle in “The First Law” and “The Girl From Bohemia,” Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale in “Annexing Bill,” “For Sale” and “Wails,” Baby Marie O’Day in “The Range Rider,” ”Much Hit Bit,” “The Soul of a Child” and “The Evidence.”

It is expected that this list will be augmented by several more, by the taking over of several big productions by Pathe and a realignment of its affiliated producing companies.

Alice Brady Completes “Ordeal of Rossetta”

Alice Brady, Select star, has just completed filming “The Ordeal of Rossetta,” in which her versatility and artistry are given full scope. The star plays the dual role of the twin sisters, Rosetta and Lola, respectively, the heroine and villainess of the story.

An earthquake in the little Sicilian town of Cantonia, where the girls live with their father, Professor Gelardi, separates them. Rosetta comes to New York with her aged parent and becomes a stenographer and later the secretary of a successful novelist, Lola becomes an adventuress and drifts to South America. Later she, too, comes to New York and the tangled threads of Fate involve the sisters in a web of circumstances the furnish the ordeal from which Rosetta emerges victorious at last.

“Joan of Plattsburg,”
A Patriotic Comedy
Of Timely Interest

With the publication of Mabel Normand’s newest production, “Joan of Plattsburg,” to be shown May 5, Goldwyn is offering to exhibitors and the public the first patriotic comedy-drama ever screened, it is claimed.

Retakes of important scenes have just been completed by George Loane Tucker to make the production conform to governmental request for the elimination of certain scenes which have an indirect bearing on training methods pursued at the Plattsburg military camp, where much of the action of the play transpires. Goldwyn says that the picture in its new form is a greater, more powerful production than was the original.

“Joan of Plattsburg” is notable for its timeliness, and while it is in no sense a picture that could be interpreted as propaganda, the story of the charted orphan who developed into an inspired soldier-girl is uplifting and thrilling.

A big note of patriotism runs through the story which is calculated to teach the truth that no matter how humble a person may be, he or she may do her part in service of her country. The situations are replete with wholesome humor, it is said; with a remarkable degree of human interest, shifting to moments of moving dramatic power.

“He Ran for Mayor,”
An Ebony Comedy
Has Been Completed

L. J. Pollard, president and general manager of the Ebony Film Company, announces that with the completion of three new comedies, General Film exhibitors will have no difficulty in booking Ebony Comedies, as the company is now ahead of its schedule.

The Chicago studio is one of the busiest workshops in the country and director Charles N. David, Mr. Pollard states, is keeping his comedians going at full speed.

Bob Horner, scenario editor, has just completed the continuity of “He Ran For Mayor,” from a story supplied by Director David, and will immediately take up the preparation of “The Ball.”

The subject Mr. David is filming features Sam Robinson, Yvonne Junior, Samuel Jacks, and a large cast of extras. It is a burlesque on the “vet” and “dry” campaign. It is said to be a scream from start to finish, containing many new and laughable situations.

Exhibitors to Get Trailers of Jane Lee

Exhibitors all over the country will soon be showing a trailer got out as an aid for popularizing the new Liberty Loan, in which Jane Lee, the famous William Fox “Baby Grand,” does effective work. The trailer, which is said to be unusually attractive and runs about 900 feet, was prepared at the Fox studios in Fort Lee at the suggestion of the Publicity Division of the Loan.

Keenan Buel, who has directed all of the pictures of Jane and Katherine Lee, made the film. In it Jane is seen seated on the floor with a number of blocks. After building the sentence, block by block, “Blood, Bone and Heart,” she holds up the letter U and points her finger from the screen in such a manner that no one in the audience will be able to escape it.

Both Jane and Katherine have done much to assist in both previous loans. A short time after the United States declared war on Germany, they also distributed recruiting literature.

Albany Club to See “The Eagle’s Eye”

Following a special showing of the first three episodes of “The Eagle’s Eye” to city officials in Albany, N. Y., the Foursquare Exchange has received a request from the entertainment committee of the Fort Orange Club, one of the most exclusive organizations in the state capital for a repetition of the run in the club rooms. Arrangements will be made to have the showing at the club some time within the next two weeks.

In addition to Mayor Watt, among those the entertainment committee of the Fort Orange Club, one of the most exclusive organizations in the state capital for a repetition of the run in the club rooms. Arrangements will be made to have the showing at the club some time within the next two weeks.

In addition to Mayor Watt, among those interested in the entertainment committee showing which was held in the Clinton Square Theatre on March 21, were Secretary Walter Hutchins, City Clerk David E. Pugh, Commissioner Frost, Chief of Police Hyatt, members of the Common Council, Albany County Red Cross Chapter, draft board executives and county officials.

U. S. Cavalrymen Help
Cameraman Out With “Heart of the Sunset

A band of U. S. cavalrymen stationed at Eagle Pass, Tex., plays important part in "Heart of the Sunset," the picturization of Rex Beach's story to be issued through Goldwyn.

About fifty American sharpshooters among their number some of the world's greatest horsemen and crack shots, we pressed into service through the courtesy of the commanding officer, who gladly consented to help Director Fred Powell out of a predicament resulting from his failure to gather enough Tex. cowboys for several big scenes in the picture.

That no band of cowboys could have accomplished what the gallant bord defenders did in the way of riding a shooting is amply attested by the film results. The U. S. sharpshooters went after a horde of snipers or a few of treacherous Villistas with more determination than they showed in their own dash into the enemy's lair to rescue a pretty heroine and the man who had come single-handed to her defense.

Led by Blake Jones (William Frederic and the cavalrymen tore off miles at a mile in their wild ride by Director Powell's orders, just as though their commanding officer had ordered them corral a flock of bandits. It was a real thing for them, not merely a multi-picture episode. Besides, it was a splendidissime.

"My failure to get cowboys for this scene was a blessing in disguise," said Director Powell. "Those cavalrymen surely led us a merry dance. The cameramen and I had an awful time keeping up with them. No wonder shooting has become a lost art down this way, with that band of sharpshooters to defend the border. What a run the give the Hun!"
Birmingham Theatres
Face Sunday Closing
Until Ballot Decides

Birmingham, Ala.—Moving picture shows will have to discontinue their Sunday operations for at least three Sundays unless the City Commissioners are willing to allow them an extension of the time now granted them to put their Sunday pictures in. May 6, the first Monday in the month, is the date set for the election to decide the fate of Sunday pictures in Birmingham, according to the decision of the Election Commission. From all appearances the City Commissioners are not disposed to look favorably upon any plan to grant the exhibitors more time.

The date for the election was set further into the future than had been anticipated in order that 4,000 newly registered voters may have the opportunity of exercising the ballot. These voters have not yet been placed on the voting list, and will not be until the list is recompiled this month.

No opposition to the date was voiced by the moving picture operators before the commissioners. Here they declared that the necessity of closing their doors for three Sundays would entail the certain loss of several thousand dollars.

The managers and attendants for the thirty or more ballot boxes will be announced in a few days by the Election Commission. Those managers and attendants will be practically the same as the ones who officiated at the last city election.

Exhibitor’s Briefs

Roseburg, Ore.—The Antlers Theatre here has been sold to C. W. Parrot and A. C. Sutherland of this city by Keller and Werner.

New York, N. Y.—The skating rink at Broadway and Ninetieth-fifth street, operated by Thomas Healy, is to be converted into a 1,000-seat motion picture theatre.

Tiffin, Ohio.—Tiffin’s motion picture theatres will be closed Sundays on and after June 2 as the result of an edict issued by Mayor Eild. The action of Mayor Eild came as the result of a request from the Tiffin Ministerial Association.

Dayton, O.—Expert decorators have begun work on the new Dayton Theatre, which is being constructed at a cost of $300,000 in Main street, between Second and Third streets. Manager Marc Gates believes the picture house will be opened within five weeks.

Des Moines, la.—It is understood that eastern interests have been at work for the past six months perfecting the plans for the erection of a motion picture theatre here at Sixth and Grand avenues. Reports give the seating capacity in excess of 2,000 and it is estimated that the cost will be more than $250,000.

Boston, Mass.—Plans have been completed for razing the old Park Hotel building in Chelsea square to make way for the erection of a motion picture house to seat 2,000. The hotel property belongs to John H. Lacy. Newhall Bieven of this city is the architect.

Missoula, Mont.—Plans for the Liberty Theatre, which is to be built at Main and Fatte streets by the Missoula Amusement Company have almost been completed by Ole Bakke of this city.

Litchfield, Mich.—This village is to have motion pictures again. After being closed nearly all winter for lack of fuel the theatre will be reopened by Manager C. H. Felger.

Anderson, Ind.—F. G. Heller, manager of the Meridian Amusement Company, has appointed Clifford Lewis assistant manager of the Starland and Meridian theatres here. He succeeds Martin Grunewald, who has been made resident manager of the Washington Theatre at Richmond.

Glencoe, Minn.—Manager Jay E. Gould has completed the spring cleaning of his Crystal Theatre here and the house now presents a very attractive appearance.

Northampton Heights, Pa.—J. J. May- rosh of this city has purchased property for $33,000, upon which he purposes to erect a modern motion picture theatre.

Camden, N. J.—The Ace Amusement Company has been incorporated to operate a theatre for $9,000 by F. R. Han- sell, I. C. Clow and John A. McPesk Chillicothe, O.—The Blanchard Construction Company of Dayton has has the contract for the new Sherman Theatre on Paint street, this city.

Shelton, Neb.—The Comet Theatre, Shelton’s popular motion picture house, has changed hands, H. E. Wait, the former owner, selling out to H. A. Phelps of Kimball.

Albany, N. Y.—Oliver H. Stacy, well known theatrical celebrities in the Capital district, has leased the Majestic Theatre from the Majestic Amusement Company, of which Emil Deiches is the head. Manager Stacy took possession April 1.

Los Angeles, Calif.—R. A. Rowan & Co., through the rental department, report having closed a lease on the theatre at 518 South Main street for a period of four years involving a rental of approximately $18,000. Frank A. McDonald will open up a new vaudeville theatre on the property immediately.

Paducah, Ky.—The Kozy Theatre Company has been incorporated here with a capital of $6,000. Rodney C. Davis, R. R. Kirkland and F. L. Keller are the incorporators.

Sawyer and Lubin Prepare Advertising
Aids for Exhibitors

A particularly effective exploitation campaign is now being prepared by Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin in the interests of their special feature production, "The Crucible of Life." This picture, which was produced by Captain Harry Lomart and stars three well known screen players in Jack Sherrill, Grace Darmond and Frank O'Connell, lends itself very easily to the use of striking advertising methods. This is because of the fact that the story deals with the worst of the German spies and contains a considerable amount of patriotic interest and vivid scenes of the Great War. It also has the additional publicity value of being an adaptation from the famous stage melodrama, "Fairfax," written by Bartley Campbell.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin will issue a press sheet for "The Crucible of Life," embodying many of the ideas which they picked up during their recent tour of the state right field made for this special purpose. The press sheet will also contain special sequences of the score, written by William J. McKenna. In this connection arrangements were made with the music firm of F. B. Haviland Company whereby a complete orchestration of "My Broken Rosary," the dominant theme of the score, will be supplied upon request to exhibitors.

An elaborate line of lithographs, ranging from two styles of one sheet to a magnificent patriotic twenty-four sheet stand, is being prepared for "The Crucible of Life" by the National Lithograph Company. Cuts suitable for magazine and newspaper use will be furnished, together with slides, heralds and a complete list of accessories.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin have kept in mind, it is said, in preparing these exploitation aids for the exhibitors the exact needs as ascertained during their tour and believe that this method will result in increased business for those who show the "Crucible of Life," as well as complete satisfaction among the various distributors of the film.

Triangle Consolidates
Its New York Offices

The New York exchange of the Triangle Distributing Corporation has recently been moved from the eighth and ninth floors of the Brokaw Building, 145 Broadway, to the eleventh floor of the same building.

The changes were made, it is announced, in order to consolidate various departments of the New York exchange and thus to better and more conveniently serve exhibitors in this territory. The sales, contract, cashier, and booking departments and the poster room are now in adjoining offices on the same floor.

C. B. Price is general manager of the New York exchange. The general sales department of the exchange, due to increased business, has been subdivided and hereafter R. D. Burdge will have charge of the sales department, covering New York City and Brooklyn. E. H. Wells will have charge of the sales department, covering exhibitors in the New York territory but outside of New York City and Brooklyn, and S. R. Schussel will have charge of the foreign department, covering service furnished to various branches of the U. S. Army and navy, as well as territorial possessions of the United States, Bermuda, Hayti, Newfoundland, etc.

Troy, N. Y. Theatres
Book "Eagle's Eye"

Seven of the thirteen theatres running motion pictures in Troy, N. Y., have booked "The Eagle's Eye," the twenty episode serial story of the Imperial German Government's spies and plots in America, written by William J. Flynn, recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service.

The theatres which will show "The Eagle's Eye" are: King, Gardner Hall, Monroe, Lansing, Hudson, Empire and Alpine. Contracts for each of them have already been received from the Four-square Exchange by The Whartons.

June Caprice Makes
Personal Appearance

A large part of the population of the Bronx, N. Y., was concentrated at and around Webster avenue and 193th street last Tuesday, when June Caprice, the Fox star, provided something new in the style of personal appearances at the U. S. Theater.

Miss Caprice was escorted to the photo-playhouse by the members of the 7th Company of the 9th Coast Artillery, and spoke for a few moments about some of the amusing experiences which she had in motion pictures. The proceeds of the affair were donated to the New York Guard.

How Madge Evans
Boosts W. S. S. Sales

Here is a unique method of boosting the sales of War Savings Stamps. The plan was originated and put into execution by little Madge Evans, the nine-year-old star in World Pictures, whose next appearance on the screen will be in "Vengeance," May 20, and whose popular songs brought from thirty to forty requests for autographed photographs each week.

Because of her interest in the sale of W. S. S. Stamps Madge has ever since a new scheme. She purchases a War Savings Stamp with every twenty-five cents sent in for her photo and return this stamp nearly pasted on a card to the party sending the money. And an autograph photo goes with it. In this way Madge has started hundreds of persons saving War Savings Stamps.

Peggy Hyland Company
Returns From South

The large company of William Fox players which have been in the South land on exteriors for Peggy Hyland’s new production, "Peg of the Pirates," returned to the Fox studios in New Jersey this week. The players have been away more than three weeks, and O. A. C. Lund, who is directing Miss Hyland’s second Fox drama, reports fine results in Charleston, S. C., where most of the time was spent.

Ocean scenes aboard a privateer and a pirate ship on the Atlantic will be a feature of the film. Among the scenes will be seen prominent in "Peg of the Pirates" are Eric Mayne, Sidney Mason, Frank Evans, L. Wolheim, Ajax Carroll and Carlton Macy.

"Hoops of Steel"
Screened for Paralta
Executives in N. Y.

The first print of Henry B. Walthall’s newest Paralta Play, "With Hoops of Steel," arrived in New York last week where it was screened for the executive of the Paralta organization.

The story was adapted for the screen from Florence Finch Kelly’s well known book of the same name, by Thomas J. Geraghty. It is a story of mystery, embellished with all the attractiveness of the life of the modern western Texas, written with a modern twist that adds much to the interest and suspense.

The character played by Mr. Walthall is that of a man accused of murder and who is involved in such a train of circumstances that escape seem impossible. The working out of the tangled skein of the film Walthall a rollicking western in which he has heretofore appeared, is said, and the production is considered by those who have seen it as a distinct achievement. In the delineation of which Mr. Walthall is supported by an excellent cast of players, including Mary Charleson, who will be seen playing opposite the star.
alph Proctor Named Division Manager at Chicago Pathe Meet

Ralph O. Proctor, Chicago manager Pathe, was installed as division maner of the company on Monday of this week at a convention of the sales man-ers of the district of two days' duration, held in the Hotel La Salle, Chicago.
Paul Brunet, recently appointed vice-president and general manager of the company to succeed J. A. Berst, and F.
Quimby, general sales manager of the the company, were present and contacted the installation of Mr. Proctor.

Discussion of new policies of the company as well as of coming productions was had. The branch managers present were William Ashmann, Milwaukee.
As; H. J. Roberts, Minneapolis, Minn.;
W. Gebhardt, Detroit, Mich.; R. S.
Berst, Indianapolis, Ind.; C. E. Holah,
Maha, Neb., and S. S. Sheridan, Des Bines, Ia.

In the evening the branch managers and members of the press were tendered banquet in the hotel by Mr. Brunet.

The Unbeliever’ Opens
At Auditorium Theatre,
Chicago, on April 21

The Unbeliever, a screen visualization of “The Three Things,” by Mary Lymond Shipman Andrews, will be seen its first screen presentation in Chi-cao, at the Auditorium commencing Sunday evening, April 21, and continues twice daily for a limited engagement.

A considerable interest is being shown in this engagement as the picture deals with the United States Marine Corps, ly having taken a prominent part, the American Legation having loaned the Edison Company, who took the picture, the use of both the Marines and the trenches, which have been built at Quantico, Va., are exact representations of the tracks “over there.” The picture is big distributed through the George Kline System. Raymond McKeel and Arguerite Courtot are seen in the leadage roles.

of the engagement at the Auditorium, the services of the regular Marine Corps will be used, and before the picture opens, various scenes will be shown on a Marine Camp, the saluting of a United States Transport to France and our battle novelties. A recruiting station for Marines will be established in the foyer of the theatre, and public speakers, both men and army and navy officers will be heard. An orchestra of fifty pieces will give a special musical programme.

D. M. Vandawalker of the Doll-Van Film Corporation was considerably worsted last week in the first few rounds of his fight with La Grippe. This is only momentary, however, for a whole barrel of grippe germs couldn’t keep the upper hand on our friend D. M. for very long.

Now lets all get back of the Third Liberty Loan and push so hard it will make old Bill Hohenzollern feel like a broken razor blade up against a three week’s growth of beard. Doug, and Mary and Charley are all doing it and they ain’t any better than we are if we only look at it that way.

Little Zoe Rae, Universal’s child star. is honoring Chicago with a visit of two or three weeks’ duration. Irv Mack laid down his dynamic pen long enough to play host at lunch one day and, gosh, how he dreaded it. Oh, yes, the couple were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Rae.

The Casino and Rose theatres, facing each other across Madison street, have both booked “The Kaiser” for the week of April 9. Popular picture or a good booker? Darned if we know. Let’s say good picture.

eral manager of United Picture Theatre.
Inc., was a Chicago visitor last week.
the guest of C. W. Bunn of the local office. Frank Harris, local salesman, has been appointed manager of the Cleveland office.

Louis Brelke, manager of the Broadway Theatre, 5206 Broadway, is making a strong bid for the north side patronage. He has just increased his orchestra to ten pieces and transformed his stage settings. You got the right idea, Louis, and the box office will soon register ap-

No, dear reader, the farmers of Indiana are not plowing up the middle of the roads. Those deep furrows are the trail of Manager Harry Weiss of the Central Film Company who has started a spring drive on the Hoosier state. He’s going to burn up gas and oil in that commonwealth for two weeks, he promises. Well, Indiana gets the benefits and it ain’t hurtin’ Harry any.

There won’t be any more obscure picture actors if Manager W. P. Schaver of the Dearborn Theatre has his way. He has announced his intention of giving the name and character name of every player appearing in productions at his theatre. “It is my belief that many patrons are interested in some players who, though not featured, make a certain character stand out,” this progressive exhibitor explains.

Rockwell Barnes, head of the Art and Animated Cartoon department of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, has joined the National Army at Rockford, Ill. He has been succeeded by I.
Ticktin.

That whirring sound heard in the vicinity of 112 North La Salle street excited the curiosity of a Herald man last week and he traced the cause to the renovating plant of A. Teitel, where the genial film cleaner was found buried among Bluebirds, Jewels Universal Weeklies. Current Events and other features. It seems the Universal, which for years has cleaned its own films, has turned this work over to Mr. Teitel, hence the scene of activity which is daily enacted.

Salome," Production
Starring Theda Bara
Exceeds "Cleopatra"

The work on the "Salome" production, which William Fox is to present at the Theatre Bara, has been completed in the east, the negative has been shipped to New York, and a private showing of the film has been given by Mr. Fox.

The gorgeous splendor of the East, the pomp and power of a mighty military kingdom, sacred scenes from the Bible, intrigues of a lavish court, ambition, love, jealousy, and, over everything, the purifying influence of a noble sacrifice for a great cause—all these have been woven into this production, which, it is said, is more massive, more costly and more gorgeous than "Cleopatra."

Mr. Fox proposes soon to give to the world its most striking example of the meras魔术 in recording spectacular amatic effect and vividly colorful panoramic on a new scale of gigantic deavor," the Fox publicity department says.

The accuracy and artistry of ancient Iraq, which was built anew for this film, are remarkable. Never before has the green held such graphic illustrations of its power in revealing again what every century of time has buried. The settings and the costumes are as act and as faithful to the glorious period they represent as the most persistent and persevering research could like them.

The pictures' times of the Herod dynasty offer wonderful opportunities for Miss Bara. Mr. Fox spared nothing to give her an opportunity to interpret in this great film play every dramatic and spectacular effect that is drawn to the screen. He, too, has stripped all other productions in the massiveness, gorgeousness and solemnity of "Salome."

While tremendous emphasis is laid on scenery, action and tense episodes, Victor J. Gordon Edwards also insisted on strictest historical accuracy, it is claimed. His scenario is based principally on the works of Josephus, the most famous historian of antiquity. It was edited not to adopt Oscar Wilde's version centering around Salome's dance at the delivering of John the Baptist's head, because it was not suited to accurate presentation on the screen. The result of following historical lines is a colossal spectacle-drama that not only appeals to scholars and students of the Bible, it is said, but will thrill and inspire every man or woman who is moved by mighty pageants, magnificent stage pictures, great passions, great days at great events in human life.

Charlie Chaplin in A Tough Dance Hall
"Dog's Life" Feature

A dance hall of the character for which Coney Island, New York's Bowery and the tenderloin of Chicago were famous some twenty years ago, where the "celebrities" of the underworld gave and took fractured skulls as nightly souvenirs, is the featured scene in Charlie Chaplin's forthcoming First National Exhibitors production, "A Dog's Life."

Chaplin turns himself loose among an aggregation of desperadoes that would have made the notorious J. James gang turn green with envy and goes in, single-handed, without gun or knife, trusting his safety to his own cleverness, and what little protection might be influenced through the presence of his dog. Chaplin has duplicated the famous dance hall of days gone by and surrounded it with characters true to life.

The attempt has not been made to crowd the "set," it is said, and the entire space of the big glass studio was pressed into service.

More than one hundred people were used to carry out the Chaplin idea. In this number every character familiar in such a resort and some invented portrayals discovered by the genius of the star appear.

From the moment Chaplin enters the place until he finally departs it is a continuous riot of fun. How he escapes with his life and how a mystery that will remain unsolved.

Title of Petrova's Fourth Feature Is
"Tempered Steel"

Petrova Company announces that the title of the fourth special production in which Madame Olga Petrova is to appear has been changed. Up to the present time this picture has been known to the trade as "The Great Steel." The title was changed several weeks ago and the feature is to be published as "Tempered Steel." This is the Polish actress' own personal choice and was decided upon only after two weeks consideration by herself of various titles submitted from the different members of her organization.

"Tempered Steel" fits exactly the character of the latest production in which Madame Petrova will shortly be seen, inasmuch as the play deals with the nervous strain and suspense which the leading character of Lucille Caruthers, portrayed by the Polish star, undergoes in her struggle to work out her own destiny in the face of strong parental opposition. The story is from the pen of George Middleton and was written exclusively for Mme. Petrova.

The production is directed by Ralph Ince. It contains a notable cast of screen players, prominent among whom are Thomas Holding, J. Herbert Frank, E. M. Wade, Miss绿是, Muriel Meredith and Edith Hinckle. It will be distributed through the various branches of the First National Exhibitors Circuit and is to be published following the release of "The Life Mask." Madame Petrova's third special feature issued on March 18.

Distributing Corp.
Adopts Novel Scheme
To Sell Features

As a mark of appreciation of the importance of the new productions in which Miss Petrova has been seen by the Big Feature Rights Corporation, Inc., of Louisville, Kentucky, has conferred a unique advertising honor upon its Polish star.

This film organization is the holder of the First National Exhibitors Circuit franchise for the states of Kentucky and Tennessee and has distributed thus far the first two Petrova productions—namely, "Daughter of Destiny" and "The Light Without." Immediately following the success of the initial feature made under the auspices of the star's own organization, the Big Feature Rights Corporation decided that the new Petrova pictures were worthy of special exploitation. As a result new office stationery was ordered, the envelopes and letterheads carrying a photograph of Mme. Petrova, together with a notice concerning her new productions.

This method of exploitation has proved most effective as a business getter for the First National Exhibitors Exchange in Kentucky and Tennessee, it is said. As a result films are now under way whereby all of these twenty-four offices of the circuit will carry on their stationery a similar advertisement for the features in which the Polish artist is appearing, regardless of her own producing organization.

Farnum, Fox Star,
Doing His Loan Bit

William Farnum has already started "doing his loan bit," as the Liberty Loan and will continue to make speeches and take subscriptions until the $3,000,-000,000 wanted is assured.

But the crew are not waiting for any formal opening of a campaign, but are going ahead on the theory that the Government will need money to license the war effort up all good citizens to see that it is raised.

Mr. Farnum has already opened headquarters at the William Fox Studios at Los Angeles, Cal., and is substituting himself for a bond to match every subscription he receives. During the last Liberty Loan he took more than $10,000 worth of bonds and says he will do better on this one.

American Film Men Join Army

The American Film Company has contributed two more of its studio staff to the service of Uncle Sam in the persons of Sheridan Hall and Frederick Smith.

Mr. Hall has been with the American for several years and had but recently been promoted to assistant to Director Edward Sollman; while Mr. Smith has been rapidly coming to the front as a juvenile heavy. Mr. Hall has been assigned to the Aviation Division at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, while Mr. Smith is now with the 309th Engineers at Camp Fremont, California.
NOTE: Below is printed a blank form which exhibitors may use in keeping records upon which to base tax reports on admissions. It is essential that a daily record be kept in order that the Government may be able to obtain the information it requires in each case. This form has been sanctioned by officials of the Internal Revenue Department.

Ebony Comedies

Real negro comedies with real negro players. Animated with the matchless native humor of the race.

Ebony Comedies are not an experiment but a big success. What has heretofore been considered impossible by producers has been successfully accomplished in these comedies — the agreeable black faced act of the spoken stage is now paralleled in motion pictures.

Think! — real negro humor successfully portrayed on the screen. Nothing can surpass it as a laugh producer. It never fails as a good attraction — the reason why Ebony Comedies are sure to make money for you. Book the weekly releases of the Ebony series. You can’t go wrong on them.

The Barrier to Progress

The exhibitor who does not keep step with the progress of the trade and the progress of the motion picture in its relation to the general public, in fact, the greatest barrier to the progress of the industry.

The position of the exhibitor is not the less vital than that of the producer who is called upon to make the pictures the public want because it is within the power of the exhibitor to prevent these pictures ever reaching the public if he is not in a position to judge properly.

During the last year certain pictures of unquestionable worth proved losing ventures for the producers because exhibitors asserted their power without first ascertaining whether or not these pictures were wanted by the public. In some instances irresponsible rumors caused a picture to be shunned by exhibitors who often did not even take the trouble to make an investigation on their own part. In other cases exhibitors upon snap judgment and in the face of careful study and investigation on the part of producers refused a picture.

One of the most dismal failures on record—in view of the fact that it is a great picture—is "Joan the Woman." Of course, the fact that very bad commercial judgment was used in the introduction of certain scenes in this play is partially responsible for the picture's failure, but the great cause for the comparative failure of this production is that throughout the trade among exhibitors the "wise ones" passed out the word that the picture was not "getting the money."

With proper exhibitor co-operation, and the elimination of a few feet of objectionable scenes, this picture would have been one of the biggest successes in the history of the cinema—the picture was based on one of the most interesting of stories, it contained a very popular star and the production and direction details were superb. But exhibitors "could not see it": they turned away blindly, either unable or unwilling to see the potential popularity of the film.

Again, probably the most insistent demand of the public today is for good, high-class comedy-drama, yet only a small percentage of the exhibitors of the country have as yet awakened to this realism.

The exhibitor must either investigate what the public wants on his own account or he must be guided by the conclusions of the leading producers. Disregarding both of these alternatives he becomes a menace and a handicap to the progress of the business.

Now the Booking Circuit

Among exhibitors the subject of organization has been dropped and the topic of the hour is booking circuits. In the field now there is practically every variety of booking circuit, some desirable and others undesirable. The majority of these ventures undoubtedly will never even get under way, but there are many indications that one or two may succeed.

A well-founded and well-directed booking circuit would, in reality, be only a new manifestation of exhibitor organization. Such an association would bring exhibitors together with the dominant view of obtaining better booking arrangements and better pictures at lower prices and at the same time would create for them an association which could cope with the general problems of the theatreman in probably a more effective manner than a solely political organization.

In other lines apart from the motion picture business there are associations which act as general agents in buying, selling and negotiating for their members and at the same time seek remedies for trade problems and marshal opposition from outside attack. It is likely that one or more of the booking circuits now coming into the field will develop along this same line.

Among the booking circuits and similar associations that have been advanced the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., gives greatest promise of reaching its goal. It has much to commend it in the way of a definite and set plan and an organization that includes in its personnel a number of men of demonstrated ability in film affairs.
In one particular, however, the United Theatres is running counter to what recent trade conditions have thoroughly proven; that is, that an excessive number of distributing organizations is limiting the potential profit of the business. In perfecting the organization the United Theatres is establishing exchanges throughout the country, thereby adding rather than detracting from the aggregate distribution costs of the business.

A limited number of distributing companies of larger scope and increased facilities for service must eventually supplant the multitude of smaller exchanges and, to our mind, any booking circuit proposition would be stronger by alignment with some existing distribution organization for the purely mechanical distribution rather than to undertake the establishment of a string of branch offices and the excessive "overhead" that such a plan entails.

Casual Comment

One by one they go—W. "Steve" Bush, Merritt Crawford and now Lee Oehs, leaving the widely acclaimed Trade Review that was going to sew up the field so tightly that it would be useless for the other papers to continue. Yes, it does take some folks a long time to learn that a shot fired on Broadway is not heard 'round the world.

The subject of the Hon. C. Chaplin and military service seems to be coming in for a lot of discussion. To us the question is a very simple one: merely shall we keep ourselves laughing or shall we make the enemy laugh, as there may be some question as to C. C. becoming a great soldier, but there is no question that he is a great comedian?

Exhibitors cannot be too careful in their selection of pictures with a view to their wartime thought of the people. The President himself has repeatedly indicated his belief in the paramount influence of the screen upon the thought of the masses, and it is evident that an influence so powerful must be wielded carefully and cautiously. The enemies of America are not unmindful of this influence and many efforts have been made and will be made to pollute this influence. The exhibitor is responsible for his screen and it must be 100 per cent pro-American at all times. A half-way attitude is as bad as an avowed opposition, for the result is a handicap upon the potential influence of the screen.

War Establishes Industry As Government Aid

Motion Pictures Now Conceded by Authorities At Washington to Be One of the Most Vital Agencies for Dissemination of Propaganda

In the year since the entry of the United States into the Great War the motion picture industry has come to the forefront as the largest single agency, in the eyes of the government, for the dissemination of practically every character of propaganda deemed necessary by the nation's executives for the successful prosecution of the world's struggle to row off the baneful influence of autocracy and militarism.

The influence of the American screen is not confined to this country. Shortly after the declaration of war on Germany, President Woodrow Wilson called upon the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry to send representatives to Washington that discussion might be held up as to the use of the screen as a means of spreading information immediately following this conference, President Wilson A. Brady called a meeting of the organization at which the American Drama Commission was formed. Leaders of the industry ventured their services in such a noble-hearted manner as to call forth the highest praise from President Wilson and other government officials.

European Commissioners Named

Seeing almost at once the need of the per presentation of American ideals at the steps this country was taking for war participation in the struggle, commissioners were appointed for France, Italy and Russia, whose duties consisted of supervising the shipment of suitable films to these countries. This was but a forerunner of the mighty force the screen was destined to become With the passage of the conscription bill and the registration of 10,000,000 men June 1, 1917, from which the National Army was to be selected, there arose at once the question of entertainment of men once they were called to the trenches.

Hitherto convinced of the value of motion picture art the government has taken the construction of theaters in every camp in the country and in the Cinema Commission was called in to provide suitable films to be played. This necessitated the viewing of millions of feet of film and the establishing of a library from which productions could be drawn for the camps.

Liberty Loan Trailers

With the floating of the first Liberty Loan the use of trailers on films calling upon the people of the country to purchase the bonds was followed by the appearance of Four Minute Men in practically every motion picture theatre. It was found that in this manner a class of people was reached which could not have been approached successfully in any other way.

went through the manual of arms before its registering eye and thousands of pills were sent to the cantonments that America's melting pot army might be taught to become soldiers in the only universal language—that of the films.

Urge Food Saving

When it was seen that because of Germany's ruthless submarine warfare the ship tonnage of our allies had been seriously crippled and that it was up to America to furnish more and more food to Europe the screen was again resorted to. Food Administrator Hoover's plea to the people to save wheat, observe meatless days and other propaganda of the food administration was put before the public in trailers on the films and from Four Minute Men who spoke from the stages of motion picture theatres.

Still fresh in the minds of exhibitors, distributors and producers is Fuel Administrator Garfield's tribute to the screen as the means of keeping up the morale of the people under trying conditions as evidenced in his order permitting the theatres to remain open on "Pilgrim's and when practically every industry east of the Mississippi river was closed.

Huge Revenue Source

In the matter of raising revenue with which to equip men, manufacture munitions, build ships and other steps necessary to America's part in the conflict, the motion picture theatres were found to be another strong arm for the government to rest upon. Through the medium of nearly 15,000 playhouses in the country millions of dollars have flowed into the war coffers monthly and will continue to be a source of revenue until the need for this measure is at an end.

By means of the various news weeklies a vivid portrayal of the war itself has been presented to the public. Showing the actual conditions of the country in which the warfare is taking place has instilled a patience in the people which could have been accomplished in no other way.

Many misunderstandings between the allied countries have been cleared up by

German Aid Sought for "Spirit of '76"
Testimony Shows in Goldstein Trial

That to the best of his understanding, Franz Bopp, fugitive German ex-Consul at San Francisco, was to have become financially interested in "The Spirit of '76," was the sensational testimony of George L. Hutchin, writer of the scenario on which the production was based, in the hearing against Robert Goldstein on a charge of violation of the government espionage act.

Goldstein was tried before Federal Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe, in Los Angeles, where three months ago exhibition of the film was stopped by agents of the government and the defendant, as well as his production, taken into custody.

Hutchin also testified that Goldstein had stated to him that scenes made in his script for the picture and put in numerous scenes designed to show the brutality of British soldiers. He also charged that Goldstein had instructed him in the intention of producing one and two reel features which would appeal to German turnverein members in the United States.

British Brutality Sought

W. L. Brock, another witness who was engaged to do research work for the production, testified that he had been instructed to obtain all the information possible which might tend to show that the British in the Revolutionary War were just as brutal as the Germans in the present conflict. He also said that

CHARLES CHAPLIN IS SUED FOR $500,000

Supreme Court Justice Guy of New York's Commission of Corporations, acting as counsel for Charlie Chaplin to vacate the service of papers and to set aside an attachment in a $500,000 breach of contract suit brought by the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, on the ground that Chaplin had agreed to direct and appear in eight pictures for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, for which he is to get $1,075,000, although he is still under contract to the plaintiff, it is said.

The papers were served on Chaplin at a Liberty Loan meeting at the Sub-Treasury, and the application to set aside the service of the papers was based on the allegation that he was immune from legal process because he came here from his home in California at Secretary H. A. Aduo's request, solely for the purpose of aiding in the Liberty Loan drive.

Justice Guy refused to set aside the service of the papers, saying that if he did so "every debtor would be touring the country and asking exemption on that ground."

Harry Tootle Married

Lieutenant Harry King Tootle, F. A. N. A., 331st Field Artillery, was married to Miss Jessica Campbell Knight, Wheeling, W. Va., on Thursday, April 4.

Lieut. Tootle is well known in the motion picture industry as former publicity representative of the Gaumont Company. He won his commission at Plattsburg last fall.

President Wilson May Be Present

At Boston Meet

July 13-20 Is Date Set for

M. P. E. L. Convention

Boston.—It has been definitely decided by the national association of the motion picture industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, that there will be held under their auspices the next annual motion picture exposition at the Mechanics' building from July 13 to 20.

This will undoubtedly be one of the most important conventions of the year, in Massachusetts, bringing together men representing an industry that is not an important industry in New England, it bringing together men representing an industry that is not the third largest in the world. This convention has the sanction of President Wilson, even in these hours of stress, he having expressed his belief in the motion picture as the greatest power for propaganda.

He has frequently called upon the motion picture people for a dissemination of special intelligence bearing upon some important government project.

President Wilson has signified his willingness to be present if conditions permit, and it is hoped that Governor of each New England state will be present upon the days assigned to their States in the exposition, it being planned to have six big days, one honor of each.

The different branches convening: the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, the Society of Motion Picture Engineers. The manager of the exposition is Samuel Grant.

Northwest Exhibitors

To Hold Convention

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest held a meeting at the West hotel, Minneapolis, last week, for the discussion of this year's convention of the corporation. Mr. Eselin, owner of the University Theatre, Minneapolis, was chosen general chairman of the committees in charge.

Mr. Eselin appointed six sub-committees to take hold of affairs. The officers and committees have decided to hold the convention for two days, May 6 and 7, with headquarters at the West hotel, Minneapolis.

The convention will be somewhat the order of that held last year, it is said, the corporation deciding not to hold a big convention such as the of 1916, on account of the war. But races is the main reason for the meeting, though the committee in charge of entertainments is planning on several features that will help visiting member to remember Minneapolis.

Mr. Eselin urges every visitor to tend and assist in the disposition of meritorious important questions.
Fifteen-Cent Coin in Congress; Referred to Coinage Committee

Plan of Terry Ramsaye of Mutual Film Corporation Given First Step Toward Realization Through Introduction of Bill

Washington, D. C.—Motion picture exhibitors throughout the country will be interested in a bill which has been introduced into Congress by Representative O'Shaunessy, of Rhode Island, which provides for the coinage of a silver fifteen-cent piece. The bill has been referred to the joint committee on coinage, weights and measures.

The fifteen-cent coin idea originated in the mind of Terry Ramsaye, director of publicity of the Mutual Film Corporation, who has repeatedly urged the adoption of such a coin. The introduction of the bill in Congress is the first step in legislation which may culminate in the realization of his plan.

Exhibitors can do much toward securing passage of this bill, those back of the project point out. Writing to their Congressmen, urging that they give it their favorable support. It is believed at the capitol that if enough pressure is put behind the measure it will be enacted into law, as the need for a new coin to handle new prices which have resulted from the war revenue taxes has long been recognized.

Introduced by Request

Congressman O'Shaunessy introduced his measure at the request of motion picture constituents, who were recently active in presenting to the director of the mint a petition from the industry for the coinage of a fifteen-cent piece. The bill provides that the new coin shall be of such weight and size, composition and design as the director of the mint and secretary of the treasury shall approve.

In presenting this measure, Representative O'Shaunessy declared that the war tax on admissions has made the proposed coin a necessity in handling change quickly.

"It is a theatrical proverb," he said, "that the popular and successful admission price is the one that can be paid at the ticket office with one piece of money. Many theatres are meeting the problem of how to handle the war tax by charging even money and including the tax in the price of the ticket, making the admissions fifteen, twenty and twenty-five cents. These houses need the fifteen-cent piece if they are to accommodate their patrons without delay and inconvenience."

Excerpts from the petition of the motion picture men for the coinage of this piece were also referred to by Congressman O'Shaunessy. They showed, he declared, the following good arguments for the authorization of such a coin:

Many Benefits Listed

That the public, generally, would be greatly benefited by having a coin of this denomination between the dime and the quarter.

That the 15,000,000 persons who daily patronize the 17,000 picture theatres in the United States would be greatly convenience by the issuing of such a coin.

That it would facilitate the handling of these millions of motion picture pa-ments who are put to great annoyance and inconvenience in crowded theatre lobbies while waiting for change.

That the motion picture theatre patrons, in many localities, are forced to wait in line on the sidewalk, often in inclement weather, owing to delays in making change at the box office, a condition which has grown much worse since the advent of the war tax.

That along with the general trend toward increased prices of admission for the better class of theatres comes a demand for the new coin. Thousands of houses in the larger cities have been forced to raise their prices from ten to fifteen cents.

Two-Cent Piece Urged

Motion picture men also have a great interest in the movement to authorize the coinage of a two-cent piece, Mr. O'Shaunessy said. While many of the houses have included the war tax in the cost of the ticket, and would be accommodated by the minting of a fifteen-cent piece, other theatres still collect the tax separately, and a two-cent coin would aid materially in handling this business, he stated. He declared himself strongly in favor of the minting of these coins and will aid in any movement to secure the passage of the bills.

BETTER THEATRE CONDITIONS URGED IN CROWDED SECTIONS BY WRITER

Essential to Public Welfare, Declares Orrin G. Cocks, Secretary of National Board of Review

Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the National Board of Review, and secretary of the National Committee for Better Films, in the April issue of the Bulletin of the Affiliated Committees for Better Films, discusses under the caption "A Real Motion Picture Ogre," a subject which is of keen interest to the motion picture industry, and which undoubtedly has a bearing upon the relation of juvenile delinquency and the motion picture. He says:

"This is not a fairy tale. The name of this monster is General Conditions. He lives in and around motion picture houses, especially the small ones where poor people pay their five and ten cents for hard-earned amusement. He is a most elusive creature, but displays the results of his activities in troubled homes, in the children's courts, in houses of detention and on the streets long after bedtime. Perhaps it will be well for all of us to investigate his activities rather than to spend all of our energies on the films which attract young people.

"The students of the motion picture and its effects on young people have concentrated all their attention on the stories which have floated unceasingly across the lighted screen. They think they have traced many unfortunate results to the evil influence of the picture, but now there have risen skilled investigators both in England and in the cities of the United States who tell us there is something far more harmful in the physical surroundings of these entertainments. Perhaps we should listen to the clear note of warning sounded by these children's judges, probation officers, teachers and community workers.

Theatre Community Center

"We have all discovered that the motion picture house in the abnormally crowded sections of the cities and in the districts of the town where working people live, is the great neighborhood rallying point. Some persons have called it the modern community center. People go to see the pictures almost nightly. They become 'fans.' In and around this building they meet many strangers. Here they form acquaintances which may blossom into friendships.

"The motion picture theatre as well as the pictures is of great social importance. Every detail connected with the gathering of the people, their relations while in the auditorium, and the approaches demand careful supervision by the public authorities. It is well to know just how adequately the city has lighted the entire block in which the motion picture house is situated. Certainly whether the street is light or dark, the moral conditions of the neighborhood are lowered by groups of loitering men and boys. The number of these men and boys may be increased by the existence of pool-rooms, cigar stores, news stands, and candy shops. As we come nearer the entrance, another group of conditions demands our attention. The posters always attract the children. The entrance may or may not be kept free of hangers-on. It is interesting to know also what system the manager has for handling the crowds who are kept waiting for later shows. Again we should be interested in knowing where are the exits and if the people go directly into the streets or hang about the doorways in side alleys.

Poorly Kept Houses

"But let us step inside. The General loves darkness and dirt. He also likes neglected galleries. An adequate system of lighting discourages improper actions and loose talk. Conditions also are far more wholesome when the boys and girls, unaccompanied by their parents, are kept rigidly in a part of the theatre which is their own. It has been found valuable to insist that persons be taken by businesslike ushers to one seat and be expected to remain there throughout the whole entertainment. Even the poor deserve also to have satisfactory toilet arrangements and drinking facilities. There is something wrong also about a manager who does not conduct his house in a businesslike manner before and after his entertainments. The public has a right to expect that he will allow no one without business in his darkened theatre.

"If the public authorities insist that changes be made to meet these requirements, the ogre disappears. The managers of the larger and newer theatres have met all these conditions and their patrons are seldom found in the police courts. Certainly the playhouses of the poor deserve the careful attention of public-minded citizens and the city authorities. Until this is done, motion pictures may be considered as going to motion pictures may be bad."

Mr. Cock's argument is fully supported by the results of the investigation made by the Cinema Commission headed by the Bishop of Birmingham last year. This commission spent months studying the relation of motion pictures to young people and their influence upon them.

N. Y. Exhibitors Form Syndicate To Book Films

New Plan Includes 225 Booking Day—Two Films Selected

including, it is said, a two hundred and twenty-five days' booking arrangement. Syndicate Pictures, Inc., has been formed in New York City with a capital of $10,000. While full details of the plan have not as yet been made public, it is believed that the new organization will be able to offer that number of booking days within a short time.

The new booking combination is composed exclusively of exhibitors and it is understood no stock will be offered for sale. While the organization has not made all of its plans known as yet, it has announced that it will have no connection with any of the current associations already in the field and will conduct its operations independently of any one manufacturing concern.

The men at the head of the new booking syndicate are experienced film showmen and have been more or less active in the political end of the business for several years. Sydney Cohen, who will look out for the routing and booking details, is president of the Exhibitors' League of New York state. Others interested in him in the Exhibitors Booking Syndicate are John Manheim, president of the Manhattan local of the M. P. E. L. of A.; John Wittman, president of the Bronx M. P. L. League and treasurer of the New York State League; Charles J. O'Reilly, vice-president of the State League, and Rudolph Sanders, a former official of the Brooklyn League.

Harry Rapf's "Struggle Everlasting" and "The Accidental Honeymoon" are the first two features to receive booking contract for the two hundred and twenty-five-day period from the syndicate, it is said.
National Booking Organization Formed
At Rembusch’s New York Convention

Existing Exhibitors Booking Corporations to Form Nucleus
Of Country-Wide Chain Which Will Purchase Films Through National Board

The appointment of a committee to effect the organization of a national booking association using as a nucleus the already established exhibitors' bookings organizations in the United States, is the outcome of the meeting summed up by Frank J. Rembusch held in the Hotel Astor, New York, last Monday and Tuesday.

Based on the demand of the exhibitors present at the convention that each of the exhibitor units comprising such a national booking association would control their own funds, and that these funds should remain in trust in each individual territory, the convention proceeded in drafting what its members declare to be a practical, workable plan which will do away with any of the objections of a stock proposition and at the same time will give exhibitors a content schedule of pictures.

The permanent committee appointed to perfect the plan consists of Sydney Chen, chairman, president of the New York State Exhibitors’ League; Joseph Bipp, president of the Illinois Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League; Louis Jank, treasurer Motion Picture Theatre Owners’ Association, Chicago; Frank Imbunch, Indianapolis, and King Perry, Detroit.

Ignore Present Schemes

At a session held in the evening of the second day, the exhibitors voted not to endorse nor condemn any of the plans now under way in the matter of forming exhibitors’ co-operative booking organizations.

Under the plan adopted the selection of films is to be made directly by the exhibitors themselves and to be passed on by the board of directors of each before a franchise is awarded the producer.

Upon the acceptance by a sufficient number of units to guarantee the cost of the productions, the producer is to turn the right to market his offerings through the new organization by a contract which provides for a sixty-day cancellation clause. The exhibitors are to receive, in addition to a substantial concession in rental prices, a fifty percent interest in the excess profits earned by the pictures in their individual territories.

Independent Producers Apply

Six independent producers, it is said, have already made application for membership and it is understood that consideration is being given to several others.

The booking organizations already formed and operating and which will furnish the basis for the new plan are The Exhibitors’ Booking Syndicate of Greater New York, the Associated Theatres, Inc., of Minneapolis, The Motion Picture Theatre Association of Illinois, The Associated Theatres, Inc., of Illinois, the United Exhibitors’ Association of Philadelphia and Eastern Penn., The Exhibitors’ Booking Association of the Inter-Mountain States, The North and South Carolina Exhibitors’ Booking Association, the Exhibitors’ Booking Association of Michigan and the Tri-State Exhibitors’ Circuit of Pittsburgh and Exhibitors’ Booking Association of Indiana.

Good Attendance Recorded

The convention drew to it a very remarkable representation of exhibitors considering the manner in which it was called and the fact that all attending were present at their own expense. Among those present when the convention convened on Monday afternoon were:

Shoots the Kaiser Will Not Be Tried

Davenport, Ia.—During the performance here of a photoplay depicting German atrocities, a man who gave his name as E. J. Kelly and his occupation as a traveling salesman, fired two shots at the screen when an impersonation of the German Emperor was shown. Kelly was arrested, but it was announced he would not be prosecuted.

Florida Exhibitors To Hold Convention

The Florida branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League of America will hold a state convention at Daytona, Florida, on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 7 and 8. Every exhibitor in the State is being urged to be present at this convention.

Fox Wins in Cleopatra Film Fight; Will Be Shown Under White Permit

Compromise Between Legal Talent Results in Suits Against Major Funkhouser Being Withdrawn

"Cleopatra" will be shown in Chicago under a white permit issued by the censor board.

This announcement occasioned considerable surprise in local trade circles as the Theda Bara production has been the cause of a bitter fight between the William Fox Film Corporation and Second Deputy Superintendent of Police M. L. C. Funkhouser, Chicago's censor.

Information obtained relative to the issuance of the permit indicates that the major had little or nothing to do with the final settlement of the feud. The white permit is the result of a compromise reached by attorneys Herbert J. Friedman and Charles P. Schwartz, representing the Fox interests, and First Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester F. Cleveland and Frank D. Ayres of the city's legal staff.

Slander Suits Dropped

In consideration of the granting of the permit the Fox attorneys agreed to withdraw two suits totaling $125,000 filed against Major Funkhouser by the Fox Film Corporation and Miss Bara charging slander. The charges were the outgrowth of alleged defamatory remarks the censor is said to have uttered in his criticism of the production.

Offers of a compromise were first received, it is said, from the legal staff of the city, Inasmuch as the only aim of the Fox Company was to obtain a permit for the picture through the legal actions undertaken, the advances from the corporation counsel's office were favorably received.

Mr. Cleveland, together with his family, viewed the Cleopatra production and following the showing is said to have given a clean bill of health to the film. It was then through the corporation counsel's office that Major Funkhouser was ordered to issue the permit.

Appeal on "The Spy"

Aroused over the far-reaching effect of the recent decision of the United States Court of Appeals on "The Spy" film, another Fox production, in which that body held that the censor had no discretionary power and must make his decisions in accordance with the wording of the ordinance, the city has filed an appeal asking for a review of the case.

Two other Fox productions are still in the courts. "Rose of Blood" is still before the federal court of appeals awaiting a decision. "From Liberty" is the basis of a legal fight in the Superior court of Cook County.

Booking Company Of Allied Trade Near to Finish

William Sherrill Admits Failure of Producers and Exhibitors Affiliated

Failure of the Producers and Exhibitors Affiliated to attain the object planned for it at the time of its organization shortly following the Allied Exhibitors convention in Washington last December, was practically admitted by William L. Sherrill, president of the Frohman Amusement Company, one of the leading independent producers identified with the plan at its inception.

Mr. Sherrill's intimation that everything was not running smoothly with the organization came during an address he made to exhibitors attending the convention called in New York last week by Frank J. Rembusch of Indianapolis in the interests of a booking proposition.

"I hope that some sort of a practical co-operative association will be organized as the result of this convention," he said. "I frankly confess that as a result of my experience with the Producers and Exhibitors Affiliated, I have come to the conclusion that such an organization will have to be effected by the exhibitors. The independent producers have found by practical experience their inability to do so.

Producers Face Elimination

"Unless, however," Mr. Sherrill concluded, "such an association is quickly formed, the independent producers can no longer remain in business."

Mr. Sherrill's statement hardly could be termed a surprise as little activity has been noted in the organization for some weeks past. Aileen Brenon, who was appointed publicity director of the company, has resumed her place on the reviewing staff of a New York paper.

Some significance could also be placed upon the fact that C. C. Petitjohn, former general manager of the American Exhibitors Association, and who resigned his position to work in the interests of Producers and Exhibitors Affiliated, was present at the Rembusch meeting and made chairman of the gathering.

Rapf Leaves Rank

Weakness of the structure was apparent when, recently, Harry Rapf, an independent producer, and one of the strongest in support of the plan, offered a number of the productions scheduled for distribution by the organization for sale on the state rights market.

The Brenon production, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," was also listed as a Producers and Exhibitors Affiliated picture, and this was recently sold to the First National Exhibitors Circuit.

Three Screen Stars In Food Saving Film

Miss Catherine Stuart has finished the production of a number of new films especially staged under her supervision for the United States Food Administration, for the purpose of conserving food throughout the country, it was announce last week by Arthur S. Friend, chairman of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Public Information for the Food Administration.

These films present such stars: Marguerite Clark, Elgie Ferguson and Mabel Normand, showing how to save the various commodities most needed by the government at this time. The pictures were produced free of cost to the government and will be released following the present series of cartoons on the conservation of food.

Charles Pope Indicted

By New York Grand Jury

Charles F. Pope, who was arrested New York on a criminal indictment last week and admitted to $2,000 bail, has been taken into custody again.

The indictment on which Pope was first arrested was handed down by the grand jury of New York county on charges of larceny of $1,750 from the Trinity Trading Corporation a firm engaged in exporting motion pictures to Scandinavia.

After the defendant had been released on bond, Chester Beercroft, president the Trinity Trading Corporation, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Murphy, again sought Pope at a hotel in West 49 street. This time he caused his arrest on the execution of a civil judgment of about $1,800, and Pope was taken to Ludlow street jail.
Freluer on the Film As An Institution

By John R. Freluer.

NUMBER of recent decisions from courts, a number of legislative enactments and several other important utterances of officialdom, all bear witness that the tremendous influence of public sentiment and official attitudes convince me that we, the exponents of the motion picture as an industry and an institution, have yet a large task before us.

It is more than likely true that the motion picture is still regarded as merely an amusement, a luxury—almost as public a vice in some quarters.

We must insist continually, and never cease reiterating that the motion picture is an instrument of public service as much available to the common good as the press, the pulpit, the lecture platform.

We must keep on insisting until the picture is completely recognized in every quarter. When the picture gets that recognition it will automatically free itself from many parasites of graft and persecution.

It must be fully understood and lamented that anything which a newspaper or magazine may print we cannot present in pictures. It must be understood and admitted that the greatest civic good demands that we be given the same consideration, privilege and sense as the press.

INDIRECTLY a vast recognition has been given the screen in the calling three great stars to aid in the selling the third Liberty Loan.

Another important recognition is the large service we are rendering in screening for public conservation, for the Red Cross, for the war loans, for the savings stamps and in kindred lines.

We need some more recognition on the other side of the ledger where legislators gather to draft laws restrictive legislation. We need similar recognition when censorship advocates make their job-building programs. That need should be recognized only when we can help, but when we should help.

No one who has breadth of vision or will take the time to see the tremendous influence of the motion picture in the improvement of social conditions. The screen has been an unmeasured and infinite means of binding the American family more closely together. Admittedly the motion picture has been a very vital and positive factor in the actual elimination of the saloon, not as an antagonist, but presenting a constructive substitute in the social order of things. The screen has taken the drama to the great multitude of people who, before its coming, were unable to enjoy it or profit from it except in its worst form. The motion picture is not only taken to the smallest hamlet, the pleasures and lightenment of travel, but it has portrayed to those who were under varied conditions, how other people live. It has civilized, educated, broadened, as well as entertained.

The motion picture industry is paying vast sums each week into the war chest, glad to do its share to win the war. The amusement park was exempted as the poor man’s amusement. am not able to understand quite, having been a patron at them and knowing that the surplus from amusement park can be classified as a poor man’s amusement would take, at least calculation, the average laborer’s week’s salary envelope to take the average laborer’s family to an amusement park. Motion pictures are available to him and his entire family every night in the week for less money than one evening’s trip to the average amusement park.

The signal recognition which has been stowed on the motion picture came in the recent fuel conservations order. The fuel administration was quick to realize that, with millions of workers idle on Mondays, the motion picture theatre was one of the few places where no doubt but that the opening of picture theatres on hellish Mondays contributed in large measure to the public’s good-natured acceptance of the government decree. The people were kept entertained on their day of enforced rest. It was bordering on the ridiculous judgment, a sign of keen understanding of the psychology of the masses, and an unconscious tribute to the motion picture.

Governments have found pictures second only to the daily newspaper as a means of spreading propaganda. The screen drives home its story with greater force than the editorial. The picture is more easily comprehended and more quickly assimilated than the printed page.

Everybody knows now the efforts made by the German empire to spread propaganda in America by means of the motion picture screen. The German realized the value of the motion picture screen and to reach the masses of the people long before the war began. Today the allied governments are using the screen in neutral countries to build good will toward the nation, and one of the first efforts to combat the Bolshevik surrender of Russia to the Hun was by the use of motion pictures. It is possible to tell the story of American democracy with greater force to the hordes of ignorant peasants than by any other possible means. The motion picture is truly an international language and certainly, once it is turned systematically in that direction, it will be a tremendous medium of international understanding.

I predict the moving picture will do great service in the ultimate consummation of a world brotherhood.

SENSELESS rules of censorship, endless restrictions that tie down the motion picture tightly around the motion picture, harrassing its every development. Newspapers are permitted to publish, in their news columns and as fiction, stories which, were they screened, would be universally condemned by the censors.

"The motion picture asks only fair play. It makes no claim to perfection. It is not above criticism, it deserves any amount of constructive criticism, but there is no reason why its development and progress should be harrassed at every turn."

SALIENT POINTS OF MR. FREULER’S ARTICLE

"Motion pictures are still viewed as merely an amusement, a luxury—almost as a public vice in some quarters."

"The screen has been an unmeasured and infinite means of binding the American family more closely together."

"Governments have found pictures second only to the daily newspaper as a means of spreading propaganda."

"Newspapers are permitted to publish, in their news columns and as fiction, stories which, if screened, would be universally condemned by the censors."

"The motion picture asks only fair play. It makes no claim to perfection. It is not above criticism, it deserves any amount of constructive criticism, but there is no reason why its development and progress should be harrassed at every turn."

Despite the latitude permitted the public press, magazines, and periodicals, as well as newspapers, none whatever is permitted the motion picture which pigged officiod is allowed to hamper and suppress without compunction. I could cite scores of instances of ridiculous, unfair and unwise acts against the motion picture which had they occurred in the other field of publication—the public press—would have brought a storm of disapproval and immediate demands of rectification and justice.

The motion picture industry is, in a sense, at fault itself. It has submitted to the indignities which have been cast upon it, until it has become perfectly safe to abuse. The newspaper has been quick to resent attack and criticism. It has fought, with the great power it yields, every effort to shake it. The motion picture has seldom given evidence of the tremendous power it has developed.

The motion picture asks only fair play. It makes no claim to perfection. It is not above criticism, it deserves and asks constructive, sane criticism, but there is no reason why its development and progress should be harrassed at every turn. It has an important mission, it fills a vital place in the life of the people, it is growing more useful and of greater service every day despite obstacles. It asks no subsidy. It does not want to shirk. It wants to do its share to help and is. It’s a healthy infant despite its turbulent childhood. Let pictures alone for a while.
Fox Reproduces Upon the Screen
The Famous Caillaux-Bolo Case
Incidents of the Greatest Intrigue of Modern Times Enacted by French Cast—Stanton Directs Important Feature

The sensational Caillaux case of France is soon to be shown on the screen. With the announcement that Bolo Pasha, alleged assassin of Joseph Caillaux, former Premier, has made far-reaching disclosures on the eve of his execution for treason, comes a parallel announcement that the entire Caillaux-Bolo intrigue has been filmed by William Fox. Mr. Fox also announces that the distribution of this photo-drama has been withheld, that the picture may include the momentous episodes which are expected to follow Bolo’s revelations.

The Fox organization, it is said, has centered its energies in the production of ‘The Caillaux Case’ and has capitalized the new interest of the events surrounding the unsavory public career of Joseph Caillaux; the trial and acquittal of his wife on the charge of murdering Gaston Calmette, editor of the Paris Figaro; Caillaux’s appeal in spreading pro-German propaganda in France and America; the exposure of these activities by U. S. Government; Bolo’s condemnation to death; Caillaux’s imprisonment on a charge of treason; and also, has woven into the play various dashing war-tale incidents, bringing to a climax the lives of the “evil genius of France” and his beautiful wife.

Speaking of the production, William Fox declares that ‘The Caillaux Case’ is, in all its intricate international ramifications, was the greatest intrigue of modern times.

Rivals Dreyfus Case

“The famous Dreyfus case,” Mr. Fox declared, “cannot be compared with this affair in scope, in the prominence of its leading characters, or in the significance of its events as compared with those of the Caillaux-Bolo case. It has been made known beyond a doubt that Caillaux was active in France, Italy and South America in the interest of a pro-German cause, a fact which has been known for many years. We have learned that vast sums of money, furnished by Berlin, were sent to France through an American bank and used by pacificists with which Caillaux was associated. We have learned of secret pro-German influences exerted by a powerful secret order of which Caillaux was leader. And we have even found evidence that Caillaux had laid elaborate plans for a coup d’état by which he hoped to become the ruler of a Germanized and defeated France.”

“Naturally, we have made every effort to present this great drama in a manner worthy of the theme. The ‘woman in the case’ in this instance is one of the most sensational feminine characters in all history. Her ruthless ambition has been proven, not only in the notorious criminal case in which she was the chief figure, but in various other episodes in her highly romantic life. There is little question that she was the power behind Joseph Caillaux, and in ‘The Caillaux Case’ we portray her, she is a modern Lady Macbeth.’

French Cast Used

“In order that the commanding importance of the characters in this picture might be transferred to the screen, we have produced ‘The Caillaux Case’ with an all-star cast. Not only this, but we have taken the greatest care that each player who portrays one of the historical principals should be thoroughly familiar with the events reproduced, and some are acquainted with the real persons about whom the drama is built. Thus the ‘atmosphere’ of the play has been re-created with the utmost accuracy.”

The sets, it is said, are exact duplicates of those in the original action, having been made from photographs and drawings. Particularly notable in this respect is the set of the editorial office in which Mme. Caillaux shot Calmette and that of the court scene in which she was tried and acquitted of murder.

Special emphasis has been laid on the part played by the United States Secret Service. An unearthing evidence implicating Caillaux and Bolo in machinations with Berlin.

Mr. Fox states the company is holding the picture pending publication of the revelations which Bolo has just made to the French authorities. The film was made under the direction of Richard Stanton.

Screen Stars Start
Big Loan Campaign

The Liberty Loan campaign of Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford was formally opened at Washington, D. C., on Saturday, April 8. The General Money Loan Corporation designated the day previous, when they were received by President Wilson in the green room of the White House just before he left for Baltimore to deliver his great speech notifying Germany that America stood ready to meet “force with force,” no matter how tremendous the sacrifices entailed.

The president assured the film stars that he was a genuine admirer of each, and told them to devote all their energy to the work of making the Liberty Loan the greatest attraction before the American people during the next few weeks. They then left for Annapolis, where they spent several days.

On the evening following their reception by President Wilson the stars were the guests of the Washington Press Club, where 2,000 members and their friends sat down to dinner.

On Monday, April 8, Chaplin addressed a gathering of nearly 50,000 people before the subtreasury building, New York City, where he received an ovation. The diminutive comedian led the 22nd regiment band in a march following his speech, and it is said sold many of his admirers bonds on the spot.

On the Italian war pictures were given entire circulation. In the absence of massive obstacles in the way of the Italian arms were pictured, the feeling of impatience was succeeded by one of a nationfor what that country has accomplished.

Griffith’s Impressive Drama

When the English government was looking about for some means of preserving for posterity a vivid recollection of the greatest war of all times, David Wark Griffith was chosen as best fitted for the task. After more than a year of labor, in which time we have granted every conceivable help by the English government, given access to battle fronts forbidden others and the full cooperation of the cinema division of the British army, he has produced in ‘The Heart of the Matter’ one of the most magnificent dramatizations of the war on the screen.

While it is not believed that the motion picture has as yet reached the zenith of its development in the way of dealing with the great and mighty strides of the past year in coming into its place as the greatest medium for disseminating information, a vital element in preserving the morale of the public and a ready aid to the government in time of need.

Boxing Instructor

Urges Repeal of Ban
Put on Fight Film

Detroit, Mich.—Congressman William I. Cary is in receipt of a letter from Riché Mitchell, boxing instructor a Camp Grafton, Fort Sill, Okla., asking him to frame a bill licensing fight film asking for the repeal of the Cinematograph Act, a law which prohibits the transportation of fight films from one state to another. Mitchell is expected in Washington next week to secure the administration’s influence behind the bill.

Mitchell’s letter to Cary in part follows:

“A time when the government needs all the money it can get and legislators are fighting on different methods of taxation without touching the necessity of life, permit me to call your attention to a law, the repeal of which would open an avenue of revenue which would net millions yearly to the treasury and lessen the burden to be borne by the people.”

“Not only would it be remunerative to the government but the films would provide an educational method in instilling boxing and bayonet work to the soldiers and prove a never-ending source of pleasure to them. It would also be an aid in stilling the fighting spirit in selectmen from small towns where boxing is not permitted.”

A short time ago Harry Palmer was added a summons for driving his car without a tail light. Which causes our April muse to gush forth like the succulent spring onion.

If the motorist should it occur to thee to drive thy motor in the night, that little lamp of thing should be alight but if before thy journey's end, that lamp has gone out, just down, my friend; in other words, ALIGHT.

Hold him for observation, shouted the judge, as the poet was hustled into the cooler.

Charley Chaplin, Doug Fairbanks and Jay Pickford of Sunnybrook Farm and other places all doing their bit down at the Sub-Treasury building on the selfsame spot on which the Father of Our Country took the oath of office as first President of the United States, with the basis on the change. These three represented more change on the day they appeared than there was in the treasury at the time General Washington stood in the same spot. Buy Liberty Bonds. You forget about it and buy some more.

Jimmy Granger snowplowed through from Chicago to New York in his Pierce-Arrow and reached Gotham just a day or two ago. It takes some skill to pilot a car through the mountain in the face of a blizzard and we had some April blizzard, believe me. However, Jimmy was none the worse for wear and looked like a million dollar champion when he hit town.

Fox Managers Appointed

Changes among the branch managers of Fox Film Corporation include the appointment of Lester Sturm, now in charge of a branch at Cincinnati, succeeding George Belchoff, who is no longer with the organization, and M. A. Walsh manager of the Los Angeles exchange.

Lee A. Ochs Resigns
As Trade Review Head

New York, April 16—Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of America, has resigned as head of the Exhibitors Trade Review, a motion picture publication started more than a year ago by Ochs and his associates. This report is current in trade circles here and is generally accepted as correct.

It is also understood that Louis F. Blumenthal, one of the organizers of the Trade Review, who recently joined with Mr. Ochs and C. R. Seidels in the formation of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., has resigned as treasurer of the booking circuit.

The resignation of Mr. Ochs from the Trade Review was not altogether unexpected, as it is generally understood that his association with this venture has been very unsatisfactory during recent months.

Scribner's File Suit
On "Americano" Film

New York.—Suit has been begun in the Federal District Court for an injunction against the further exhibition of the film play, "The Americano," and for an accounting of the receipts so far obtained from the exhibition. The plaintiffs are Charles Scribner's Sons, and the Franklin Trust Company, as executor and trustee of the estate of Richard Harding Davis. The defendants are Douglas Fairbanks, Anita Loos, scenarist; writer, Johnny Emerson, a producer; the Triangle Film Corporation, the Triangle Distribution Company, and the Majestic Motion Picture Company.

The complaint, filed by Henry Staton, counsel for the plaintiffs, says that "valuable and material portions" of Mr. Davis' book, "The White Mouse," had been used in the making of the film play, that the book was published in serial form in 1909 and copyrighted, and later was published in book form by Scribner's Sons, who had the sole rights to it, and was copyrighted by them. If the plaintiffs win, the damages may be fixed at $100 for the first exhibition of the film play and $50 for every subsequent production.

Exchange Enlarged
For First National

During the past week the sound of the hammer and saw has punctuated the selling talks of Carey Wilson and his associates in the First National Exchange, Inc., at 509 Fifth Avenue, where extensive additions are being made to the quarters occupied by New York's newest film exchange.

The demand for "Tarzan of the Apes," and the first of the Chaplin comedies made under his $1,000,000 contract, it is said, has so increased the business of the First National that the entire political district that more space has become necessary to take care of the bookings and the distribution of film.

American Manufacturers Must Readjust Sales Methods—Garrett
U. S. Filmmen Must Allow Duping of Negatives
To Save Shipping Space, Declares
Foreign Purchasing Agent

Sidney Garrett, president of J. Frank Brockliss, Inc., issues a warning to U. S. manufacturers that the foreign market is in such a state today that he believes in all likelihood a complete embargo will be placed on all export of films for a few months at least.

The foreign situation today, especially the warring countries, is in such a terrible condition that unless manufacturers realize the danger, business in its entirety will probably be dropped, Mr. Garrett says.

As purchasing agent for the Mundus Film Company, Paris, one of the largest concerns there, Mr. Garrett has purchased for the studio of the well-known Chaplin pictures, "The Barrier," "Submarine Eye," "Bar Sinister," Metro program, Paralta pictures, "The Whip," "Costume," and productions, Billy West comedies and others.

"This will give you an idea as to the standing of this company," says Mr. Garrett, "and we have been instructed, owing to the conditions that are prevailing in France today, to make no more purchases without the privilege of duping; thus manufacturers can readily see that the necessity of buying space has carefully looked after. Their old idea that duping was a terrible thing to allow, must be entirely lost sight of, if manufacturers desire more space.

Desire Two Prints

"For instance," Mr. Garrett adds, "the company or companies in Paris wish to follow the out the following method: They do not mind paying royalty for the particular subject so that they are willing to purchase, but they desire without limit the privilege of having a black and white print and one full titled print-tinted. The reason for this is, that the shipping conditions are so bad that although film has been one of the best assets a shipping company could have, owing to the high rate imposed upon it and also of it taking so little space, and being one of its most valuable cargoes from a money point of view, but the conditions today are entirely reversed.

War loans favor imports to any particular line, other than that of merchandise, which is wanted to win the war and, consequently, although the Government of the country is desiring an effort to keep the people in the best of spirits, war merchandise is so much more valuable than anything else, the Government is not favoring imports, and hence the lessening of prints and the incoming arrangement of duping privilege.

"You can readily see by taking a territory like France that can take from four to eight prints of a subject, that by duping privilege, this lessens the amount of film out with the least amount of space, and helps the exhibitors of these various productions in the territory, because they do not have to pay importation tax on such a vast amount of film.

Profit in Royalties

"Furthermore, the manufacturer should not hesitate to agree to this new arrangement, because he is not making any money on any prints at the present, day, and therefore, could get his full profit on the royalty.

"As for instance, France is considered by its manufacturers about four copies. Four copies of a subject of 5,000 feet, would mean 20,000 feet. Suppose they paid 9c a foot, the way to arrive at the royalty prevailing at present, the territory is worth to be deducted 45c for printing cost and 4c would be the royalty figures.

"The American manufacturer realize apart from the saving of importation tax there would be the saving of insurance, reservation for space, etc. This condition of practical affairs in England. The theatres in England are closed at 9:30 in the evening, and when you realize that the country is at war and the people are working as many hours as they possibly can on war work, it does not allow the people to go to theatres the same way as here in America.

"Apart from that, the posts are allowable to be sent to England or France and the advertising matter you are allowed naturally is limited.

"Manufacturers must readily see that the foreign countries who desire duping privileges do not want it for any vain reasons, but they desire it on account of the conditions that are prevailing at present.

Fuel Question Serious

"Another fact to be considered why the exploitation of pictures is becoming harder, Mr. Garrett states, "is that the fuel question is not getting better, and I should not be at all surprised, although I do not say this with authorization, that there is a possibility of the theatres closing down entirely. For the American manufacturer's own benefit, he must reverse his guidance, if he wishes to continue in business and make his business rules elastic. Conditions have changed and in the evolution of business, certain things arise that the manufacturers must take particular notice of, and the above is a thing that I am absolutely certain will come about, and the sooner the American exhibitors realize the seriousness of the situation, the better it will be for all concerned."

Fay Titchener Signs

As a "World" Star

Fay Titchener, the comedian, and for a year and a half the head of her own company, is the latest addition to the World Film Corporation staff, according to information from World Film offices. Her first picture on the World program will be "Some Job." It is scheduled for May 1. "Main 1-3-9" will follow "Some Job."

Capt. Robert Warwick
Boosts Liberty Loan

"SOMEBODY ON THE AMERICAN FRONT, France.—Because a man can't be over here with us, in this great chance to help humanity and liberty, does not mean that he is denying the privilege of playing his part. The third Liberty loan gives him that chance, and also the chance to be really FIT WITH us in spirit and helpful aid.

"Personally, I am glad to have been able to give up what wealth, luxury and ease my position may have meant in order that, as a soldier of democracy, I might lend my help to the greatest struggle in the history of ages. It is worth all I may have given and all that I may have denied myself.

"But the glory is not confined to actual service and trench locations. It can be the case of any woman who will make it possible for the boys over here to crush this thing that threatens the freedom of the world, even in itself.

"We in khaki honor all those who support Uncle Sam with their dollars, as we do those among us who honor him with their lives. And the more the dollars and the faster they come forth for the third Liberty loan, the fewer the lives that will be sacrificed.

From France we all shout "COME THROUGH!"

(Signed) Capt. Robert Warwick, Intelligence Bureau, General Pershing's Staff.

Petrova Presents

Thomas Persons with Diamond Cuff Links

As a farewell token and tribute of appreciation of service well rendered Madame Petrova, when she left the Biograph studios at East 17th Street, New York, last week, presented Thomas Persons, superintendent of the Biograph building, with a handsome pair of diamond cuff links set in platinum. The Petrova Company used the Biograph Studio for six and a half months pending the time when she could have her own studio building.

The fifth Petrova picture, "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times," from the novel of the same name, is being filmed in the new quarters at 23 West 38th Street, New York. It is being directed by Ralph Ince.

"The Ruler of the Road" is a production that would have untimely end but for the fact that Frank Keenan plays the aging rail road magnate, a part interesting by Mr. Keenan’s excellent portrayal. The supporting cast, with the exception of Frank Sheridan, gives a mediocre performance. The story is one of the rails and a hard-hearted railroad agnate, who rules his men with an iron will, but, who under his warm heart and makes every endeavor to assist one of his engineers, whom he has discharged, to provide for his little family. A little child leads them to mutual forgiveness and understanding. Jeanette Lee wrote the story and Ernest Ward directed.
The story: When Simeon Teton disch augs Hugh Tomlinson for falling asleep at the throttle of his engine, Hugh irises Simeon. When Simeon learns that Hugh is down and he sends a large locomotive to Hugh and gives him permission to live on one of his farms. Although Hugh never earns his health but is too time later, while moon is recouping from a nervous breakdown he and Hugh come to a perfect understanding through Hugh’s little andchild.

An erring husband who is won back by his wife through a three months’ separation contract furnishes the plot for “Journey’s End,” which, despite the fact that a number of serious omissions are interspersed through the picture, is, in all, a genuine comedy. Most of the scenes are laid in Palm Beach, and the beautiful exteriors gleaned by the camera would make a wonderful scenic of this part of the country.
Ethel Clayton, as the wife, is in her happiest mood. Although deeply in love with her husband, she holds him at bay during the three months until he has come to his senses and is thrown off the influence of the actress with whom he has now come enamored. John Bowers, as the husband, and Muriel Stritch are very instrumental in making the picture an entertaining one.
The story: Aline Marsden becomes aware of her husband’s faith with an actress and a three months’ separation is agreed on. Marsden tires of his freedom and goes to Palm Beach, where his wife is spending her time. His attempts at a reconciliation are met by suggestions to refer to articles of his contract. The woman in the case follows him to the watering place. Through a ruse she is placed in a false position and Marsden denounces her. He again seeks his wife and is granted former place in the Marsden household.

"With Neatness and Dispatch" contains the three elements which make for good screen entertainment, excellent story, retell direction and capable lead. The story is that of Kenneth L. Roberts, gained through the publication in the Saturday Evening Post. The reception, in the hands of Will S. Davis, is of the best. The characters of Paul Donaldson and Geraldine Ames, as portrayed by Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne are extremely enjoyable.

The exhibitor in search of a production that is high class and at the same time appealing will find it in this Metro offering. And especially for those where these players are favorites it should go big because they are seen to better advantage than in any of their previous photo plays.
The story: Geraldine Ames, in her attempt to assist her sister marry the man she loves, engages what she believes to be an ex-convict to take care of a maiden aunt, who does not approve either of her nieces marrying. By means of strategy the younger sister is married and gets away, while the aunt endeavors to extricate herself from a carpet in which she has been rolled by the ingenious ex-convict, who in reality is a millionaire. A little later he takes Geraldine from under the watchful eye of her aunt.

It should not be classed as movies like this to make the name Paralta a household word. Seldom has such artistry of production, such a humanly appealing story, such a splendid star, well selected cast and fine photography combined in one production as in "Blindfolded."

BESSIE BARRISCALE AS "PEGGY" IN AN AMUSING SCENE FROM "BLINDFOLDED." (Paralta.)

It is an excellent example of what a really good motion picture production should be. There isn’t a thing about it that one would want to criticize or change. One forgets that it is a mere visualization of a screen story, so absorbing is the work of the cast.
Bessie Barriscale, a clever artist always, lends conviction to the role of a little girl who graduates a successful "Jimmy Valentine" and later realizes the wrong of her early teachings. It is a character that will linger in the minds of her admirers for some time. Ed Coxen, as the son of the wealthy woman who at one time was a daring robber, gives a good delineation of his part, and every member of the cast has been selected with the utmost regard to true types. The story is by E. Richard Schayer and the direction by Raymond B. West.
The story: Peggy Denton, taught in her girlhood days to become an expert safe-cracker, learns that her husband will learn of her past and that her happiness will be blasted. She is in great danger of her past leaking out when some of her comrades of former days locate her. Through the killing of one of her tormentors, Peggy learns that her husband was famous as a safe-cracker in his early youth, and so, each knowing the history of the other, they have nothing to fear and are extremely happy.
Jewel Carmen in
"THE BRIDE OF FEAR"
Fox drama; five parts; published April 7
As a whole: Good
Story: Good
Star: Good
Support: Sufficient
Settings: Faithful
Photography: Good

"The Bride of Fear" is an interesting, melodramatic offering with a well worked out story. Jewel Carmen has a likeable role and registers strong as the bride. L. C. Shumway, Charles Bennett and Charles Gorman comprise the supporting cast.

Miss Carmen's role is that of a young girl who is about to end her life because of failure to find employment. She is dissuaded by a young crook, who marries her and plans to make her an accomplice, but before he succeeds is compelled to finish a prison term which he had endeavored to elude. The story has a pleasing as well as dramatic finish.

The story: Ann Carter, confident that her convict-husband is dead, accepts the attentions of Donald Sterling and promises to become his wife. However, her husband having eluded the police, breaks into the Sterling home and endeavors to force Ann to return with him. Her struggles arouse Donald, who comes to her assistance, and when Ann finds Donald weakening under her husband's attacks, she kills him. Donald asks no explanations, but proves him confident in her.

Constance Talmadge in
"UP THE ROAD WITH SALLIE"
Select comedy; five parts; published in April
As a whole: Amusing
Story: Clever
Star: Pleading
Support: Good
Settings: Suitable
Photography: Excellent

A story of youth, adventure, a deal of humor, careful direction, beautiful photography, a handsome hero and a delightful hoydenish heroine, make "Up the Road With Sallie" one of the best productions of the season. It is taken from Francis Sterrett's novel.

Constance Talmadge has abundant charm and compelling youth. She makes you forget that she is acting, which is a great gift indeed, and she has that Talmadge smile that loses nothing by repetition.

Norman Kerry, who does an interesting piece of work as "Jones," Kate Toneray, as the aunt who has waited fifty years for her pink geranium, and Thomas H. Persse, who plays opposite her, all share honors with the star.

The locations are particularly lovely, and well photographed. William D. Taylor directed the picture.

The story: Sallie Waters, adventurous member of the distinguished Cabot family, receives $5,000 as her share of a wealth, the property of her uncle. She immediately buys a roadster and among her Aunt Martha, starts off in search of adventure. A terrible storm compels them to seek shelter in a deserted home. They are joined by two men, whom Sallie decides are "gentleman crooks." Her conversation leads the supposed crooks to form the same opinion of Sallie, and the two parties set out to reform each other. Many amusing situations arise. Of course the man proves to be the missing heir to the Cabot millions and as a right to it the right to the stolen and as romances usually end, in a rose garden, with the heroine in the hero's arms.

Jack Pickford in
"HIS MAJESTY, BUNKER BEAN"
Paramount comedy; five parts; published April 8
As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Enjoyable
Star: Excellent Support: Very good
Settings: Faithful
Photography: Fine

Productions such as "His Majesty, Bunker Bean" prove conclusively that good stories are the essence of success in screen entertainment. No doubt many persons have read Harry Leon Wilson's facetious story as published serially in the Saturday Evening Post and may others have had an opportunity of seeing the stage play. Therefore, it should be an easy matter for exhibitors to draw good houses during its showing.

However, "His Majesty, Bunker Bean" easily stands on its own merits as an excellent production. Jack Pickford fits the role of Bunker Bean perfectly. In his support appear Jack McDonald, who as Jimmy Breede, provides no little part of the humor; Louise Huff as the Flapper; Edythe Chapma as Breede's mother, and Gustav Seyleritis as Prof Balthasar. William D. Taylor gave the directorial end careful attention.

The story: Through a clairvoyant, Bunker Bean learns that in his various incarnations he has been Napoleon an Ramath, an Egyptian king, and these facts spur him on to bigger things. He falls heir to some money and invests it in a stock which yields a hundred per cent and a mummy of Ramath, his first incarnation. He marries the daughter of his boss and though at first afraid to face her parents, he summons his courage to face his various incarnations and boldly goes forth to conquer his stern parents.

Mary Miles Minter in "Greater Call"
The next Mary Miles Minter picture from the studios of American Film Company, Inc, will be "The Greater Call." It set for May 6.

Miss Minter has been appearing in a distinctly different type of picture, plays of more dramatic force, and "The Greater Call" is said provides her with her new opportunity to show her ability in pictures of this kind.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE
The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.

Star .................... Good
Support ......... Attractive
Settings ................. Splendid
Photography .......... Very good

Margaret Fisher makes a pleasing character as the primitive woman in this latest American production. Wherever her previous productions have found favor there is little doubt but what Miss Fisher's efforts will meet with the same success.

The story is light, but entertaining. The scenario, enhanced by excellent photography, is vivid, and the direction, in the hands of Lloyd Ingraham, has been given careful attention. Supporting Miss Fisher are Jack Mower, Millard Wilson, Molly McConnell, Helen Howard and Emma Kluge.

The story: Nan Graythorpe becomes piqued when she fails to arouse the interest of Stephen Graves, writer of prehistoric works. In the garb of a primitive woman, she takes up her abode in the woods near Graves' mountain lodge, and before long Graves finds himself in love with the primitive woman. Later she appears before Graves as a twentieth-century woman and Graves is done with primitive women forever.

"A BLACK SHERLOCK HOLMES"

Ebony-General comedy; one part; published April 13

To those exhibitors who are looking for something in the way of new and novel screen entertainment these one-reel comedies produced by the Ebony Film Corporation and published through the General Film Company, will prove good offerings.

The entire cast is made up of colored players, who have an original and inborn sense of humor all their own, and who have in the past proved very popular as public entertainers.

"A Black Sherlock Holmes" is the first offering of the Ebony Company under its new arrangement, and is the story of a man who believes himself to be a great detective. His efforts to capture a villainous kidnapper lead him into many unexpected adventures, but he eventually saves the girl that she might marry her lover. There are many funny situations which undoubtedly will meet the favor of audiences searching for light screen recreation.

"Spying the Spy" contains a great deal of humor. It tells of the endeavors of Sambo Sam, to be of use to his government toward the capture of spies. The finding of a lodge's initiation paraphernalia leads Sambo to believe he has located a nest of spies, but when they put him through the lodge, he is ready to flee and forget all about his hunt for spies. The productions were directed by Chas. N. David. Sam Robinson, Yvonne Junior and Samuel Jacks have the leading roles.

There are many reasons why this Paralta production should prove a popular attraction. Louis Glaum makes her initial appearance under the Paralta banner and comes back to the screen after an absence of some time. It is a story of German intrigue and spies.

"An Alien Enemy" gives the exhibitor plenty of advertising material and it can be confidently booked as good screen entertainment. It deals with the spy system as pertaining to our world, and has an in a high-class fashion.

Louis Glaum is cast as a German spy, who since infancy has been reared to revere Germany and its ruler, but who soon finds that America has a stronger claim on her affections. She does her role full justice, and she has been surrounded by an excellent supporting cast.

The story: Lucille, whose parents kept an inn in Germany, but were killed when she was but a child, has been reared by the king. She develops into a young womanhood and is sent to America just prior to America's entry into the war, to get valuable information. She continually feels that she is doing wrong; but the influence is so great she cannot overcome it. She marries Hall, an American citizen. She is forced by the Germans to give out information and just when her husband believes she is deceiving him he learns that the information is false and that the Huns are trapped.

Marguerite Marsh in
"CONQUERED HEARTS"

Ivan drama; six parts; published April 18

As a whole............. Interesting Story ................... Well directed Star .................... Appealing
Support .................. Very capable Settings ................. Good
Photography .......... Excellent

"Conquered Hearts," a vehicle peculiarly suited to the subtle appeal that is Marguerite Marsh's, should prove a drawing card at any theater. The story has an underlying foundation of true characters, well presented and some real "heart throbs." Francis Grandon, the director, and Emma Bell Clifton, who prepared the scenario, have used many old situations, but out of them have made a picture of well-sustained interest.

The choice of the star was a particularly happy one. She is supported by an efficient cast, the mother, Eileen Walker, being without remarkably true to type. The father, the old Nora's husband, made the most of his opportunities. R. Paton Gifford made an effective character of the old Earl, who only appeared in a few scenes. Frank Evans was the besotted father, and a small boy with a great deal of personality, played Reddy, her brother.

If Miss Marsh knew how lovely she was when she smiled she would surely smile more often. At times she seemed almost sullen but perhaps it was her interpretation of the girl. She made her changes with a nice distinction and should gain a greater following by her appearance in this picture.

The woman's parts were decidedly subordinate, but both Miss Uzel and Miss Lowry doing intrepid bits very well.

The fight between the husband and the artist appeared forced, and the fact of the man's appearing at the studio after his disinterested attitude towards his runaway wife, was a weak spot, but no doubt the effect by.

The story: Nora Carrigan, a shop-girl, marries secretly a young political aspirant. After an argument with her drunken father, she goes to her husband, Dan Murdock, and he acknowledges her as his wife. Nora lives happily in this atmosphere until the death of her baby, then becoming a prey to loneliness, she runs away from her husband, whom she feels has ceased to care for her. Ambition forms in the mind of the story rather than Nora's, with the result that she becomes an artist's model, for a dissolute man of means. Dan has, meanwhile, risen to a position of power in his district, and has kept track of her wanderings. Her father's death gives Dan an excuse and to go to the studio as an opportunity of meeting and engage the artist in battle, while Nora slips down the fire escape. The balance of the story concerns Nora, now known as Honor Hale, and her rise to high position picture field. At the end of two years she is a world-famous star. How she goes back to her old home, refuses an Earl, and finds love and happiness at her own fireside, is well told in the last reel.

Much of the drawing power of William Farnum seems to be in his virility of acting and his ability to portray emotion in such a masterful way that comes and be-speaks capability. The story of "Rough and Ready" is full of that gripping forcefulness that has characterized his previous productions and was met with a great deal of favor by patrons of the Orpheum, last week.

There isn't a great deal of difference in the general trend of other stories in which Mr. Farnum has appeared, but the interest has been well sustained throughout. Some of the scenes are laid in the region of the Yukon, and there are some exceptional snow scenes. There is a spectacular fight, and admirers of William Farnum will find "Rough and Ready" a strong attraction.

The story: Evelyn Durant finds her lover in what she believes to be a compromising position and breaks the engagement. Bill Straton leaves for the Yukon. He becomes a close friend of a tired, little old miner, whom she finds is Matthew Durant, father of Evelyn. Evelyn comes to visit her father and, though Bill tries to assist her to get to her father, she resents his efforts and takes the offer of Jack Belmont. She learns Belmont's true character when he endeavors to force his attentions upon her. After a terrific battle with Belmont and many hardships, Bill finally succeeds in bringing father and daughter together and winning daughter's forgiveness.

The picturesque cattle lands of the old West furnish the background for "The Boss of the Lazy Y," a Triangle story of the reformation of an uncouth cowboy possessed of an ungovernable temper and rebellious against any kind of authority. Roy Stewart in the leading role displays considerable athletic prowess, and his spectacular encounter with a bucking broncho furnishes one of the high spots of the picture.

The camera entered heartily into the spirit of the film. Huge droves of "shorthorns," broad expanses of prairies, hills, gullies, ranch houses, spread out before the eye in such a manner as to lend an air of reality to the production. Josie Sedgwick is a very human heroine, and her portrayal of the girl whose influence brought the cowboy to his better self goes a long way toward the success of the offering.

The story: Cal Marston returns to the Lazy Y ranch after an absence of thirteen years brought about by a quarrel with his father, to find the property in the hands of Betty Clayton, his father having been murdered as the result of a feud with a neighboring ranchman. Filled with resentment, he determines to live his own life, but gradually comes to a realization that her influence has made a better man of him and that she is a necessity in his life. She agrees not to deprive him of this necessity.

"The Business of Life" is a good story, but the director has overlooked a few points which would materially aid giving the story a punch. The result is dragsiness at certain points. However, for an average program feature it ought to go off fairly well.

Alice Joyce, while not very strong, is pleasing and will undoubtedly prove a source of joy. In the supporting cast appear Betty Bythoe, Walter McGrail, Percy Standing and Mrs. Nellie Spaulding. Bits of comedy are introduced into the story by Templar Saxe and Herbert Patte, who are cast as a future artist and editor of the "Tattler," respectively.

The story concerns a wife who tires of her husband and gives her love to a young man maintaining an establishment handling antiquities. The solution of the tri-cornered problem is satisfactorily worked out.

The story: The jealousies of Elena Clydesdale are aroused when she sees the young lover with Jack Belmont and that he intends to marry her. Elena has growing terrors of her husband, who endeavored to win the love of James, but has been unsuccessful. She resorts to blackmail and causes an estrangement between James, which straightens out when she confesses her actions to her husband.

Containing a number of strong situations, commendable photography, and well sustained interest 'The Scarlet Drop' casts Harry Carey in a somewhat different role than his former productions. There is a stricken, illiterate mountain man, in Kentucky, but the conclusion of the story locates him once more in the west in an atmosphere which has characterized his other plays.

Seeing this same mountain man, refused admittance to the local militia because he was a "gentleman's" organization, years following the war proved the means of saving the honor of the man who had charactized him as "white trash," is the dominating theme of the story. There is enough action and heart interest to make the picture good entertainment. Moll Malone is a very acceptable heroine.

The story: "Kaintuck" Ridge, refused admission to the local militia company to fight for the Union in the Civil war, joins a gang of marauders and the close of the conflict finds him a fugitive with a price on his head. He goes west and becomes a bandit. Marley Calvert, who kept him out of the army, also goes west and engages in mining. Bill Calvert is taken captive by "Kaintuck" when he holds up stage-coach. His hatred for the Calverts is overcome by his admiration for Molly and later when her honor is attacked by a former suitor, he defends and wins her love.

There is little doubt but what "The Tiger Man" will have its appeal for William S. Hart admirers. He is in a class by himself and his name is sufficient drawing power for his followers. Of course, there is the same bad man reformation in this story, but it has been handled in a different manne and is entertaining.

The story: A new Hart leading lady and affords him the most pleasing support he has had on the Artcraft program by giving the director a chance to advance his own talent. Milton Ross, Robert Lawrence and Charles K. French handle the story to advantage.

The production abounds in beautiful scenery and somewhat realistic desert scenes. The photography is excellent. The magazine, in the hands of William S. Hart, has been given careful attention. J. G. Hawks is the author of the picture, which is a young man, who, in turn, falls in love with Ruth Ingram and a party of missionaries on their way to the frontier. The band is attacked by Indians and Parsor assists them in the fight until he sees the approaching cavalry and then he demands that the party sell Ruth for their freedom. Rut leaves her sick husband, that the other members might be saved. And through the sweet innocence of the young woman Parsor finds his better self, returns him to his little party and her worried husband, and gives himself up to the sheriff.
WILLIAM FOX was among the celebrities present at a dinner in honor of Raymond Hitchcock at the Press Club, Chicago, on Saturday evening, April 13. Mr. Fox had been ill in Chicago for several days, but made a special effort to be present in order to reciprocate for the honor one him by Mr. Hitchcock, who acted as toastmaster at the recent testimonial dinner given to Mr. Fox by several hundred friends in New York.

Mr. Fox, in an address, touched upon the censorship problem in Chicago and defended the costuming in his production of "Cleopatra," on the grounds of historical accuracy, and pointed out that the costumes and customs of Cleopatra's time would have made the production ridiculous and in historical value.

"I have opposed the West should not be dictated to as to what it should see in motion pictures."

"In practically every civilized city throughout the world his production of 'Cleopatra' has been exhibited and has been received with great acclaim, yet in Chicago the existing theme of censorship is preventing its citizens from viewing its classic of the screen."

Mr. Fox was introduced as "a great civic and philanthropic leader of New York City and a man who personally contributed $40,000 to a single charity recently and who has risked millions of dollars on his opinion of what the public wants in motion pictures."

Mr. Fox was in Chicago on a business trip in connection with his motion picture and theatrical interests.

Edward Earle in O. Henry Film

Agnes Ayres and Edward Earle, two popular light comedians, are the featured players in this week's O. Henry story, The Rubaiyat of a Scotch Highball," being distributed by General Film Company. This is Edward Earle's first appearance in an O. Henry story while Miss Ayres has been the featured player in a number of the most successful of these Broadway Star Features.

The following film in the O. Henry series will be "The Angler From Cactus City," said to be a lovely romance of business life in which William Dunn and Miriam Miles play the leading roles.

Enid Bennett in Circus Story

The smell of the tanbark and the thrill of the big top is inherited to the screen, it is said, in Enid Bennett's Paramount picture, "The Biggest Show on Earth," written by Florence Vincent and directed by Jerome Storm under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

Frank Crane Directs Madge Evans

Frank Crane is directing Madge Evans and Johnny Hines in a new World photoplay bearing the working title of "Clarps." Mr. Crane is a new accession to the directorial staff of world pictures. His last picture before joining the World was "This," with Mary Garden in the leading role.

William Fox Is Guest of Chicago Press Club

By Fuller Pep

Nothing Could Be Simpler
He never played a dual role
Nor sang a hymn of hate
The reason why? 'Tis simple, dear.
He died in nineteen-eight.

One thing is certain, if the Duponts go into the raw fillum business users of raw stock won't get such a raw deal.

The weekly rumor about a big picture company alliance pops up in the Green Sheet. This time it's Select, Goldwyn, Metro, and (possibly) Famous-Players-Lasky. Oh, well, it helps to fill up the book.

There's nothing wrong with that exhibitor in Omaha, Neb., who announced that he would admit free of charge every redheaded female in Omaha who attended the Strand theatre during the showing of Herbert Brenon's "Empty Pockets." It would never do for a Chicago exhibitor to advertise free admissions to blondes though. He wouldn't make a nickel.

With all these actors and actresses running around the country selling Liberty Bonds, who is going to make the pictures for the next few weeks?

Well, the past week was a busy one for a certain w. k. fillum star, whose wife gave out several interviews concerning his relations with a m. o. i. popular screen actress of the California colony, which he kept denying as "German propaganda." "It's nice to have a husband with a keen sense of humor," she is said to have remarked. It certainly is.

Prunes Is Prunes in N. Y.

Richard Nehls, manager of the American Film Co., who has just returned to Chicago from New York, is complaining about the high price of prunes in Manhattan. It seems they "soaked" him 7 cts. apiece and here, in Chi, they're only 5c. New York has 3,000,000 inhabitants and 100,000 actors. These actors live in boarding houses. Certainly they're high priced. Chicago hasn't one-half that many actors.

A Mrs. Dasher was injured last week in an eastern studio when the leading lady threw her to the ground. Say, it's lucky she didn't answer to Mrs. Beheader or Mrs. Killer or some such moniker, eh? else there'd be a vacancy in the ranks of the "extras."

Manager Edel, of the Strand Theatre, is a glutton for punishment, apparently. He stages a fourth anniversary at his hotel and then leads "A Dog's Life" all week, with "A Face in the Dark" staring at him for seven days. That's hunting trouble, we say.

Learning Fast in Chicago

To teach violators how not to spit on the sidewalk they are entertained at police headquarters, with moving pictures prepared under the auspices of the city health department. It costs $2.50 to see the fillums run. Every day will be "spitless day" in the Windy City bye and bye.

Hey, what's this? The Rialto scratches "Let's get a Divorce" and takes "Unclaimed Goods" as a substitute. Seems to us that's going from bad to worse.

"Sing Sing sees Ghosts of Yesterday," reads one of those already prepared p. a. headings. Yes, we'll bet they see 'em further back than that.

The World Company believes if one scenario writer can write a good story, seven ought to write one seven times as strong. Hence the scheme to have five writers write a five-reeler with two members of the staff assisting will be watched with more than usual interest.
The American Studio Beautiful

The American Film Company's studios at Santa Barbara, Calif., are conceded to be in point of structure, as well as locality, the most beautiful in the country. When Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Company, went through California some six years ago, to select a suitable site for the erection of studios for his concern, he chose the spot at Santa Barbara, without hesitation.

No expense has been spared in the erection of buildings, as well as in the landscape features and greenhouses that form such a large part of the attractiveness of the place. Tourists who come to visit the studio from all parts of the country, it is said, not only exclaim at its beauty, but say that they came because of reports from other tourists who advised them to visit it as one of the beauty spots of California.

While the area of ground is not immense, there are close to fifteen acres in the American Film Company holdings and new buildings are constantly being constructed to allow for the increase in company activities. At present there are three companies working at the plant; the Mary Miles Minter Company, the Margarita Fisher Company and the William Russell Productions company. Hundreds of men and women are daily employed there.

The architecture is of the old Spanish style and with the semitropical verdure, flowering plants and trees, the American Film Company studios have long been one of the special points of interest of the quaint city of Santa Barbara.

General to Publish "Mountain Law"

"Mountain Law," with Ned Finley and Marion Henry, the second of the Blue Ridge dramas, is being issued this week by General Film Company. This is a dramatic story of the southern mountains which deals with an old feud which has existed between the Clayton and Dancey families, and the manner in which Fanny Bruce, the pretty school teacher, restores peace in the community.

Ned Finley, it is said, has a particularly strong part as Bob Clayton, the feudist. There are said to be many stirring moments as the story develops, and a strong heart interest element has been cleverly introduced. An excellent bit of comedy is provided when Bob Clayton confesses before the community's first Sunday School the mortification over the poor shot he had made at one of the Danceys.

"The Raiders of Sunset Gap," the third of the Blue Ridge drama series, will be published in two weeks.

Activities at the Fox Studios East
And West Embrace Many Features

One production was finished at the William Fox studios last week, "Brave and Bold," in which George Walsh is starred and several more are now almost complete.

George Walsh's newest vehicle was screened under the direction of Carl Harbaugh, whose most recent film was "Jack Sparlock-Prodigal." The present picture is an adaptation of a magazine story by Perley Poore Sheehan and is said to provide the athletic star with many opportunities to display the quick-action for which he is noted. Regina Quinn plays opposite Walsh. The principals include, too, Francis X. Conlon, Mabel Munsey and Dan Mason. The story on which "Brave and Bold" is based bore the title, "Four-forty at Fort Penn."

Both June Caprice and Virginia Pearson are well toward the end of productions in work in the East. Harry Miller is directing "The Lion's Maid," starring Mabel Walsh, based on the novel "Blue-Eyed Mary," by Frances Crowley. Miss Pearson is appearing in a dramatic play with a Russian background. Edmund Lawrence, who made "A Daughter of France," is in charge. Victor Sutherland is Miss Pearson's leading man. The feature will be called "The Fire-brand."

Peggy Hyland's Second Production

Another picture almost finished is "Peg of the Pirates," Peggy Hyland's second production for William Fox, which O. A. C. Lund has been directing in the South for several weeks. Mr. Lund also wrote the story.

Jane and Katherine Lee, the famous Fox "Baby Grands," have started upon a new film suited to the particular lines of endeavor in which they do so well. Kenean Buel is again supervising and staging the play.

On the west coast Tom Mix is progressing with "Ace High," which Lynn Reynolds is directing. The story is one of adventure with the mounted police of Canada. It should prove distinctly successful because it provides the endless chances to do sensational feats in the saddle, it is said, a role which has always been his off screen.

Gladys Brockwell is still working on "The Scarlet Road" under the direction of Edward J. LeSaint, and William Farum is expected to begin a new picture this week with Frank Lloyd as director. Farum finished "True Blue" a short time since.

Ella Hall in "A Mother's Secret"
Tops Universal Schedule April 29

"A Mother's Secret," a Bluebird feature starring Ella Hall, heads the list of Universal pictures for the week of April 29. The Hall feature is in five reels and tells the story of a society woman of social ambitions who apparently deserted her beautiful daughter, but secretly loved the child."

Next in importance is the third episode of the boy scouts serial entitled "Boy Scouts to the Rescue." The third episode is subtitled "The Great Mine Disaster."

The thirteenth episode of "The Bull's Eye," entitled "Sold a Auction," is the chapter of the serial that started two months ago. In this serial Eddie Polo adds much to his popularity, it is said. "The Lion's Claws," featuring Marie Walkamp, will be in its fifth episode entitled "The Secret Document." The fact that the action of "The Lion's Claws" takes place in far away Egypt where the British are fighting for mastery over the Turks has brought large audiences to almost every theatre where the serial is being presented, it is said.

Three comedies are also included. The L-Ko is a two-reel entitled "Fathers, Sons and Chorus Girls." An Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran one-reel comedy also is among the publications for the week. The title is "Mama's the Word."

The title of the one reel Nestor, featuring Gale Henry and William Franey is "It's a Cruel World."

Besides the Bluebird feature, the comedies, unusual serials and the Boy Scout serial, the pictures for the week also include the three split reel news subject put out as Current Events, Animated Weekly and Screen Magazine.

"The Judge" Being Produced by World

Work on "The Judge" has been started in World's Fort Le studio under Director Travers Vale, with June Ettridge. The cast includes Walter Pratt Lewis, Albert Hart, George McQuarrie, Marguerite Gale, John Bowers, Henrietta Davidson, Mrs. Tame, Marie Pagano, George Morgan, Margaret Campbell.

Constance Talmadge Select Star Being Sought by Stage

Managers It Is Said Cannot Agree on Type of Role Suited to Talents

Since Constance Talmadge's fourth Select picture, "The Shuttle," has been shown, Miss Talmadge has received a number of communications which have left her both pleased and puzzled. The communications in question have been from several producing managers of the stage, and each one of the four offers received has sought to induce Miss Talmadge to abandon the screen for the stage.

Two of these offers have come from Eastern managers, one from Chicago, and one from the far West. In each instance, the man making the offer has been a prominent figure in the theatrical world.

The thing which has puzzled Miss Talmadge, it is said, is that the learned daughters of the stage seem to disagree as to just what type of artist her acting represents. One writes: "I have followed your work in 'The Honeymoon' and "The Studio Girl" with the greatest interest. I have seen each of these productions several times and in different classes of theatres. Judging from your stage to screen productions, you are a farceuse of high order, and, as you probably know, my dear Miss Talmadge, we have few women who truly rank as farceuses on the American stage." An invitation to "come East and talk terms" followed.

Receives Other Offers
Miss Talmadge had just about settled into pleasant contemplation of herself as an exponent of comedy, when the second offer arrived. This was delivered in person, and among other things, the manager told the Select star that he had just seen one of the most successful exponents of the old-line "high comedy" that the screen had yet produced, and instanced the comedy work seen of floor lights, as well as in this play. Talmadge's acting in the other two plays mentioned by the Eastern manager.

Talmadge was now more than ever convinced that she was a comedy actress. "Why give me this big stuff," she expostulated with her director at the Hollywood studio, "when they are all looking for comedy from me," but the director was obdurate and insisted on the "big moments" as well.

And sure enough the offers from the Chicago manager and the other Eastern manager were a confirmation of his judgment. For each of these producers sought out Constance Talmadge as an exponent of straight drama, and in each case Miss Talmadge's work in "The Shuttle" was instanced as evidence of her dramatic ability.

Appears in Comedy-Drama
Curiously enough, it is said, the Select officials had the same arguments regarding Constance Talmadge's position on the screen when "Scandal," her first Select picture, was released, as in "The Shuttle," there are moments of high comedy and moments calling for straight acting on the part of the star. It was in recognition of Miss Talmadge's ability to do both of these types of work that led to her being announced as appearing in "Comedy-drama," a term well enough known on the legitimate stage.

Miss Talmadge is considerably puzzled and has not yet been able to decide whether she is a farceuse, a comedian, or an emotional actress. The fact that all of her Select Pictures thus far produced, from "Scandal" to "The Shuttle," have been in the star in practically all of these capacities, is calculated to keep her puzzled for some time to come.

Miss Talmadge, it is said, will sign none of the contracts so temptingly dangled before her for she is bound for a number of years to the Select Pictures Corporation.

A. B. Heath Added To Ebony Staff

Scenes of unusual activity are in evidence at the Ebony studio, 3332 North California avenue, Chicago. The contract the Ebony Film Corporation has with the General Film Company for the exclusive distribution of its pictures calls for one Ebony comedy each week. According to a statement issued by Ebony it is the purpose of the corporation to keep ahead with its releases.

An addition to the Ebony staff which should not only make for efficiency in the production of its comedies, but also enable it to surpass anything it has yet turned out in comedies, it is said, is A. B. Heath, who became general supervisor April 5. Mr. Heath is known to film men in this section, but perhaps is better known to film men in the East because of his connection with the Eastern, Jaxon, Amber-Star, Film-Craft and General Film Companies.

Mr. Heath has been loaned to the Ebony Film Corporation for a long time and stated that the better he likes it as a business proposition for exhibitors. The management is contemplating running two companies to keep pace with the demand for these comedies.

Actress Injured in Scene for Feature

The realism Madame Petrova is putting into the filming of Gertrude Atherton's novel, "Patience Sparhawk and Her Time," resulted in a rather serious injury to a member of her cast, Mrs. Paul Dasher, who has adopted the stage name of Norma Feiert.

In one of the scenes of the story, the Polish artiste, in the role of "Patience," is supposed to strangle her stepmother, the part played by Mrs. Dasher. Madame Petrova grasped the latter tightly about the neck, and threw Mrs. Dasher against the floor lights knocking her unconscious, as well as wounding her head severely.

A doctor was called to the studio and it was found necessary to take three stitches to close the wound. Madame Petrova was greatly distressed at having been the cause of Mrs. Dasher's injury and has done everything in her power to make Mrs. Dasher comfortable.

"Eagle's Eye" Pictures Rooms Raided by U. S. German Club N. Y., in Many Episodes of Wharton Serial

The rooms of the German Club in New York, which were raided last week by agents of the department of justice, are shown in many of the episodes of "The Eagle's Eye," the serial story of the Imperial German Government spies and plots in America by William J. Flynn, the recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service.

In investigating the plots of the authorized representatives of the Kaiser, many trips to the German Club by operatives of the United States secret service were necessary, because the room were the meeting-place of the plot leaders, and detecto-cameras were employed for the purpose of getting pictures of the interiors.

Whartons Obtain Pictures

The pictures were put at the disposal of the Whartons for use in reproducing the necessary scenes in the club to show the course taken by the secret service in frustrating the Teuton plots. These pictures are used continually through out the series under the name of the Hohenzollern Club.

It was the headquarters of the most prominent and active Germans in New York up to the time of the entrance of this country into the war. Count von Bernstorff spent much of his time there.

Hugo Schmidt, Admiral Pavenstad Karl Heyman, Captain Karl Boy-Ec, Captain Franz von Papen and numerous other prominent Teutons who played stellar parts in the plots exposed "The Eagle's Eye" held many conferences there.

A most interesting evidence German propaganda and spy activities were found in trunks in the cellars of the club. These belonged to club members, some of whom were interned, some of whom fled and others of whom regarded the club as being the safe storage place for papers connecting them with the plots which are the basis of various episodes of "The Eagle's Eye."

Vice-President Arrested

Gustave B. Kulenkampf, one of the vice-presidents, was arrested two weeks ago, and an order for his permanent extradition is expected to be issued by Washington. Dr. Karl Buentz, former consul-general, and managing director of the Hamburg-American line, was living at the club at the time it was raided. He is under a sentence of eighteen months in Atlanta prison for a violation of neutrality, but a stay was granted because of ill health.

No Tax on Passes
Under New Ruling
Province Manitoba

Treasurer Brown Also Defines Law as to Charitable Performances—Theatres Advertise

The Government of Manitoba has made several special rulings with regard to the enforcement of the Theatres Tax Act which went into effect in that Province on April 1. Honorable Edward Brown, Provincial Treasurer, announced that no tax would be collected on theatre assets held by legitimate newspapers or the performance of their work and otherwise. Hon. Mr. Brown has also declared that the collection of the tax on admission tickets will not be applied in the case of legitimate theatres. He says that the act will not be applied "harshly." Any patriotic entertainment where a deduction is made will be considered. Use of projection machines and other details will be considered in the class named and the collection of the tax from particular performances.

There is no provision for the purchase of theatre patrons of tax tickets in quantities and, for the present at least, the tax on admission tickets must be bought at the box office along with regular admission tickets. Before the date of the enforcement of the new act, the theatres of Winnipeg had secured $12,000 worth of the tax tickets to meet immediate needs and the theatres, of course, paid cash for the tickets. In addition to the new officials appointed to take care of the act enforcement, it has been found necessary to add two men to the Treasury Department to keep records of sales.

The theatre officials of Winnipeg showed their willingness to cooperate with the government in the enforcement of the act by paying the tax, not letting them be levied on the theatre establishments. Every attempt was made to keep the theatres clean and orderly and to prevent any disorderly conduct.

Burlesque Film Destroyed

Prominent statesmen in the Canadian House of Commons have been burlesqued in a special comedy film which depicts a mock parliament session. The characters have been done by members of the Press Gallery in Ottawa and Toronto and the picture created more or less of a sensation when it was presented before a gathering of Government officials.

It is needless to state that the film as not been offered to the Ontario board of Censors for official sanction, but permission has been granted for its screening in the city before the Toronto Press Club, after which the film probably will be destroyed. Despite many matters of state importance, the picture has been widely discussed in Government circles.

Announcement has been made by the Manitoba Government of the appointment of John J. Monereff, managing editor of The Winnipeg Tribune, a prominent daily newspaper in the city, as a member of the new Moving Picture Censorship Appeal Board. Declaration is also made that a prominent business man will be added to the body in order to make the board representative of the community.

Moving picture theatre managers of Winnipeg, Manitoba, without exception, refused to rent their theatres to the executive of the International Bible Students' Association for a meeting at which the Canadian Government's attitude toward the organization was discussed. The managers, who had been persuaded to offer their theatres for the meeting, were apparently not interested in the cause of the organization.

The Committee on Moving Picture Shows for Children, which is a unit of the Citizens' Com- munity, has declared that a number of companies in the city are using children as actors in their productions.

"The Planter," Mutual's feature in which Tyrone Power is seen in a screen adaptation of Herman Whittaker's celebrated novel of the same title, is now being booked by Mutual producers. The film has been much acclaimed by the critics, who have praised Power's performance.

Gloria Joy with Universal

The latest addition to the Universal forces is dainty little Gloria Joy. Following a short course in a dramatic school, the child, then three years old, was engaged for child parts on the legitimate stage. During the past three years she had appeared at Frank Egan's Little Theatre, Los Angeles, and other houses. She has been seen in several of Richard Ordynski's plays, including "Papa," the futuristic comedy that attracted unusual attention from dramatic critics. "Nineteen," and others of the tragédie of English life, "The Widowing of Mrs. Horyd."
Initial Showing of Wharton Serial
Starts Loyalty Campaign in Kentucky

The value of "The Eagle's Eye" as a propaganda to aid the United States in meeting internal war troubles, was demonstrated by the effect of the showing of the first episode of the serial of the Imperial German Government's, spies and plots in America by William J. Flynn, succeeded as chief of the United States Secret Service, in Newport, Kentucky, a city said to contain a strong pro-German element. The showing of the first episode, "The Hidden Death," which deals with the facts of the sinking of the Lusitania, caused a near-riot which resulted in the forcing of every one in the vicinity to swear allegiance to the United States Government or leave that section of the country.

The first episode of the serial was shown at the Hippodrome Theatre shortly after the poisoning of a number of cavalry horses on their arrival in Covington, a near-by city. At an indignation meeting held in Covington, a number of persons who had witnessed "The Hidden Death" were present and pronounced the incident poisoning to be a typical Hun action.

Near-Lynching Averted

Other persons mentioned the names of men who had been admittedly pro-German prior to the entrance of the United States into the war. A man in the audience questioned the fact as to whether it was believable that Germans would commit such a crime as poisoning horses.

Cries of "Lynch him" were heard all over the hall, and only prompt work on the part of the Covington police saved the doubter from violence. He was placed under arrest on a charge of having incited a riot, but at his subsequent hearing it developed that he was weak-minded.

His interruption of the meeting, however, resulted in the formation of a vigilance committee which demanded, the following day, that all persons in Newport pledge their allegiance to the United States Government. Threats of prosecution started with the purpose of sending the defendant to an internment camp, because who fail to take the oath of allegiance.

Pro-German Protest

Trouble was expected by the management of the Hippodrome Theatre at the showing of the first episode of the serial. The showing was preceded by a three weeks' advertising campaign featuring the facts that it was an authentic exposure of German espionage and that the recently retired chief of the United States secret service, Protost, were made to the manager of the Theatre by representatives of the Government at Newport, and much adverse criticism was made by the same residents. The anticipated trouble did not materialize, however, and the opposition was showing resulted in crowded houses at both afternoon and evening sessions.

The indignation meeting held in Covington was attended by hundreds. It has made "The Eagle's Eye" the best advertised and biggest attraction which the Hippodrome has ever run. The serial was chosen for the beginning of the third year of the Hippodrome as a motion picture house and was featured from the standpoint of being a special attraction.

Two Reel Red Cross

Film to Aid Drive

Because the people behind the motion picture industry are Americans of the first water and are house-bound by their spirit of patriotism, they have virtually handed over their organizations to the Government in every move that is to be made to help make the world safe for democracy.

For the Liberty Loan Drive Marie Dressler, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, William S. Hart, Marguerite Clark and a number of other stage and motion picture stars are touring the country in behalf of the Liberty Bonds, raising millions of dollars of subscriptions.

For the Red Cross drive in the near future there will be shown in all motion picture theatres a two-reel picture entitled "The Spirit of the Red Cross," the story of James Montgomery Flagg and produced by Jack Eaton. The picture has been termed by motion picture critics as "A Birth of the Nation in Two Reels."

The announcement of this feature for the next drive was made by Jesse L. Lasky, chairman of the committee of the National Legion of the Motion Picture Industry appointed to cooperate with the Red Cross Organization.

Screen Telegram

Shows Celebrations Of Liberty Loan Day

America's celebration of liberty day and the start of the third liberty loan drive is pictured in Screen Telegram No. 13, issued by Mutual April 14. Screen Telegram correspondents in all parts of the country make reports on the reel.

There are views of President Wilson speaking at Baltimore, of Madame Sarah Bernhardt leading the procession at New Orleans, of regular troops on parade in Indianapolis and of the big military pageant in Chicago.

Scenes in Kansas City, Mo., during the recent strike are shown. The destruction wrought by strikers and sympathizers, and the activities of the state troops, are some of the features of issue No. 12. Humorous and serious incidents of the strike are shown.

Last minute sales of liquor in Gary, Ind., before the town went dry; pretty girls still out, but the playing baseball along the surf in Galveston, Texas; scenes along a trip up Mount Tamalpais near Mill Valley, Cal., taken from an automobile; the balding head of a mountain; thousands of school children marching through the streets of Chicago in the interest of greater crop production; General Douglas MacArthur, the Polish army volunteers, now fighting in the French and English units in France decorating the statue of Marquis de Lafayette; Mexico; the Allied armies in the East visiting French aviation camp and greeting the Allied soldiers; heroes of Washington Artillery taking part in celebration given in conjunction with the dedication of new Elk-home at New Orleans; negroes being baptized in the ice-cold waters of the Mississippi at St. Louis; pictures of President Wilson in the White House, following a conference with a committee of representative farmers and live stock producers; men of the United States Army at a recruiting station at Balboa Park, near San Diego, Cal., "mobilizing" into a giant human flag, spelling the name of the service to be taken; the message taken in the office of James Q. Riker editor and publisher of "Photo-Play Magazine," who is known as "Grand Crossing King," because he is located at the "stopping-off place" on the road between Broadway and the coast.

First National Opens
New Buffalo Exchange

R. H. Clark, treasurer and general manager of the First National Exchange Inc., of New York, announces the opening of an exchange in Buffalo, to be managed by Dr. Savage, who was for several years representative for the Paramount Pictures Corporation throughout the northern states.

Mr. Savage's appointment should meet with the approval of exhibitors in Buffalo and adjacent cities, it is said, for he is one of the best known and best liked film men in that part of the country having always been associated with the distribution with the highest grade productions on the market. Offices are now being leased.

Full Supply of Paper

Issued on "A Dog's Life"

To assist exhibitors in the exploitation of "A Dog's Life," first of the new Charlie Chaplin comedies, and the only picture of a famous world artist that has made in the past eight months, The First National Exhibitors Circuit has gotten out a complete line of lithographic posters, fast chapter Mills, lobby displays, lantern slides and press matter.

The lithographic posters printed in full colors include two different one-sheet, a three-sheet, a six-sheet and a twenty-four sheet. They all depict actual scenes in the comedy. This is the first time the fan has ever been issued for Chaplin. Previous to this, six-sheets were the largest posters gotten out for him.

Dual Role for Roy Stewart

Roy Stewart had his first dual role in "Paying His Debt," forthcoming Triangle production made, under the direction of Frank Borden, "The Man and Peter Morton, "The Vanishing Bandit, " by the writer and director,R. Stewart. The camera man, Josse Sedgwick has the leading role in this production. The cast also includes Harry Yammamoto, noted Japanese actor, and Walter Perkins, who is cast as Father Juniper.

Society People Take Part in the Filming
"Street of 7 Stars"

Doris Kenyon and ten members of the cast had just returned to New York from Lake Placid, where some of the exteriors of "The Street of Seven Stars" were filmed. While at Lake Placid the members of the cast party were the guests of the exclusive Lake Placid Club. It is the first time that a motion picture company has been entertained at the club or permitted the privilege of utilizing the magnificent acres of the club's property, which is considered the scenic gem of the Adirondacks and the St. Mortiz of America.

Miss Kenyon, along with other members of the cast, entered into the spirit of furnishing realistic and artistic atmosphere for the picture. All of the participants, both ladies and gentlemen, were garbed in regulation skating, skiing and costuming costumes. Amazing skating jumps were made before the camera by Miss Genevieve Brooke, of Portland, Ore., and Washington, D. C.; H. S. Johaness, a New York exporter, whose country home is in Pelham; Mrs. F. L. Stone, of Schehery, and many others.

Warren Making Film From Sheldon's Play

Edward Warren, president of the Edward Warren Productions, Inc., is personally directing his third state rights feature, it is announced, in which House Peters and Anna Lehr will co-star, supported by a splendid cast, which includes Wilfred Noyes, Corene Urzelz, Henry Sedley, Ned Burton and Ben Lewin.

This feature is founded on a play by H. S. Sheldon, and the scenario was adapted for the screen by Miss Winifred Dunn. The art direction is in the hands of Mrs. Lillian A. Warren. Most of the exteriors, it is said, will be taken in the South. Edward Earle, who photographed all the Edgar Lewis productions, is engaged as camera-man.

Court Room Replica
Judge Lindsay's Court
In "Young America"

The Juvenile court scenes, which form such an important part in the forthcoming George K. Spoor feature, "Young America," have been prepared under the direct instructions of Judge Ben Lindsay, of Denver, the father of the juvenile court system.

Director Arthur Berthelet, who is putting the picture through, is a personal friend of Judge Lindsay and has made a careful study of the proceedings in the Denver court. He is now in command of the stage judge, getting every detail accurate for the production.

The court itself is being constructed in the Essanay studios and will be a replica of Judge Lindsay's court. The proceedings, it is said, will follow in absolute detail the workings of the Denver court, the boys being handled in exactly the same way as Judge Lindsay handles them.

Everything is being carried out to the minutest detail and the atmosphere will be exactly that of a western court. Director Berthelet, through his personal study of the court and his knowledge of Judge Lindsay's methods, will be enabled to make these scenes of boyhood in trouble and finds the scenes of juvenile court will be closer to actual conditions than ever before presented on stage or screen.

Mutual Productions Popular in Northwest

Mutual productions in Minneapolis for the first week in April established a remarkable record the Northwest exchange reports. Out of a total of sixty-two theaters fifty-eight played Mutual pictures.

Mary Miles Minter in "Powers That Prey," was booked for two days first run at Salt Lake. "Sherlock Holmes," which was shown at the National, William Russell at the Third Ward, Margaret Fisher, New Park and Glenwood Palace; "A Wounded Brigade," at West; while Rhode played no less than nineteen theaters during the week.

Early forthcoming productions of Mutual include "The Great Call," Margaret Fisher in "The Square Deal," and William Russell in "Hearts or Diamonds."

First Six Clover Comedies Completed

The completion of the first six of the Clover Comedy series in which "Bud" Duncan, Dot Farley and "Kewpie" Morgan are the principal players, is announced from the Denver studios of the National Film Corporation, according to General Film Corporation, which distributes the series.

Production plans for these weekly films are being worked out in advance, owing to the demand for the subjects, it is said. It is announced that great emphasis will be placed upon the story value in order that the popular comedy trio may be seen at their best. "By Heck, I'll Save Her," the fourth comedy presents the novel fun making stunts of the three players. Following this will come "The Paper Hanger's Revenge" and "From Caterpillar to Butterfly."
Fire Routes Patrons
And Destroys Films
In Bluffton, Indiana

Bluffton, Ind.—The Grand theatre building, owned by Charles Westrick, of Fort Wayne, was damaged to an amount between $3,000 and $4,000 and several thousand dollars' worth of moving picture machines and accessories belonging to the Safety Supply company, were destroyed in a fire which broke out in the lamp house. The theatre was being shown to a small audience. A fireproof booth and automatic shutters kept the flames and smoke confined until the theatre got audience out without a panic.

Operator Lawrence Zehrung, who had charge of the projection machines, stayed in the booth and worked his hand extinguisher until the instrument was emptied. He was slightly burned about the face and arms.

The smallness of the audience was a big factor in their escape, as there were only about 200 people in the theatre. Every seat had been sold for the night performance.

Manager John T. Belger stated that the fire was due to bad film. He explained that the film broke while passing through the machine and jammed in front of the arc lamps. It was not enough to take fire. Mr. Zehrung, the operator, corroborated his statement, stating that the third reel was being shown when the film took fire.

The theatre building was insured, but the amount of the insurance could not be earned. Beside the theatre proper the building contains the lobby room and club room. The Bluffton Lodge of Moose, the office of the Wells Fargo Express company and the ticket office of three interurban lines operating into Bluffton. All of the pictures was pulled out of the interurban station and the express office. The offices were badly burned but the fire did not penetrate to them. The interior of the theatre is soaked and smoked to a point where much effort will be required to put it in shape for use again.

The booth was located beneath the gallery and the theatre was a two-decker. In that section of the building it is feared that the upper part of the gallery were weakened. The办事 room and work shop of the Safety Supply Company, which was recently moved here from Fort Wayne, is also located in the space beneath the theatre and the entire stock was destroyed or damaged.

New York City—A contract has been awarded to the Longacre Construction Company for the erection of a six-story fireproof theatre and office building at 1649 Broadway, southwest corner of Fifty-first street, on land owned by the Wendell estate and leased to the Majestic Theatre Company.

Hubbel, Mich.—Henry Opal, owner of the Majestic Theatre here, is planning extensive spring improvements to the building which will make it one of the most modern picture houses in the Copper country.

Williamsport, Ind.—Citizens of this city have about completed arrangements to purchase the opera house here. Shares have been sold at $12.50 each and almost the entire amount of stock has already been subscribed.

Fort Worth, Tex.—The Liberty Theatre at Camp Bowie has been completed and has been opened by Mr. Marcellus. The theatre was built for soldiers and no civilian, unless accompanied by a man in uniform, will be admitted.

Chillicothe, Ohio—Mayor S. Story turned the first shovel of earth which marks the beginning of the construction of the Chillicothe Theatre which will rise on the site of "The Duck," recently destroyed by fire.

Vancouver, B. C.—The Orpheum Theatre here was damaged by fire recently to the amount of $25,000.

Scott, Ohio—The Scott Theatre Co. of this city, has been capitalized at $2,500 by J. B. Wilson.

Washington, D. C.—Harry M. Cran dall, head of Cran dall's circuit of theatres, has acquired the Casino Theatre, F and Seventh streets, and will remodel.

Wall, S. Dak.—Residents of this town have formed a company to construct a theatre and hotel building.

Battle Creek, Mich.—Excavation work for the new $100,000 theatre building to be erected by F. K. Berry on West Main street is about finished.

Clarksdale, Miss.—King and Anderson will remodel the Majestic Theatre.

Atlanta, Ga.—Marcus Loew, New York, will expend $40,000 for improvements to Grand Theatre here instead of erecting a new structure.

Des Moines, la.—The Rialto, described as Iowa's foremost temple of the silent art, was formally opened to the public of Des Moines on Wednesday night, April 14, by the Hawkeye Amusement Company. The new theatre is located on Locust street, between Seventh and Eighth.

Kansas City, Mo.—More than $1,300 worth of films were destroyed in a fire which threatened for a time the Alama Theatre, Thirty-fourth and Main streets, this city.

Columbus, Ohio.—M. Marcus, manager of the Colonial Theatre here, has resigned to assume management of Harry Davis' new $1,000,000 motion picture theatre in Pittsburgh.

Brazil, Ind.—S. M. Grimes and Robert Kidd of the Brazil Theatres Co., have leased the Grand Opera House at Linton.

Ebensburg, Pa.—John A. Wolfe has sold his interurban Happy Hour Theatre to his partner, C. J. Brown.

Newspapers Select Beauty Contestants

That the motion picture trade-papers are read by others than those engaged directly in the production and exhibition of photographs is shown by the interest which the young ladies throughout the United States are manifesting in the Gaumont Company's nation-wide beauty contest. Many of these readers have written the Flushing, N. Y., offices, asking if they may submit their photographs to the company direct.

The beauty contest is being conducted by one newspaper in each state, and all girls who possess exceptional beauty, which will screen to advantage, should submit their photographs to the beauty contest editor of the local paper, which runs the contest. A committee of judges appointed by the paper will select the most beautiful girls of each state, and

Ft. Dodge, la.—The Lyric Photoplay house has changed management. F. F. Weiss of the Southern Photoplay circuit, purchased it from M. Kellogg and L. A. Kenworthy. Mr. Weiss took possession at once.

Richmond, Va.—Charlie Chaplin appeared at the Auditorium here on April 1 in the interests of the third liberty man.

Detroit, Mich.—Madge Kennedy gave in fans of this city an opportunity to see her in the flesh when she appeared at the Madison to boost the third liberty loan. Tom Keene, known in "The Danger Game."

Upland, Neb.—C. C. Biderup of Min den has arranged for the opening of his theatre here. Henry Peterson will have charge for the time being.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Al Boyd, lessee and manager of the Arcadia theatre here, has taken over the direction of the Great Northern theatre in Broad street below Eighth. He moved the stage along the same lines as the Arcadia with first run photoplays.

Findlay, Ohio—Sunday motion picture shows have been barred in Findlay through an order of Mayor Shoupie. In a referendum vote, the city several years' worth of a majority to keep them open on Sunday, but under a recent decision of the court of appeals motion picture houses have been classed as theatres.

Cincinnati, Ohio—Charles Weidner, assistant treasurer of the Grand Opera house here for many years, has resigned to take the management of the Colonial Theatre in Columbus. I. Libson of Cincinnati recently took over the Colonial. The position left vacant by Mr. Weidner's resignation will be filled by Harold Hohenstein.

Essanay Volunteers
New State Unit 380
Under Maj. Collins

On the anniversary of the United States entering the war, the Essanay volunteer company, which has been drilling in the Essanay studios, Chicago, for several months, was mustered into the service of the state as Unit 380, Illinois Volunteer Training Corps.

Major Lathrop Collins, commanding the Cook County District I. V. T. C., officiated. The major was met at the entrance of the studios by a military guard and escorted to the drill hall, where after inspection of the records and company drill, he administered the oath of allegiance to Captain Richard N. Woodman, First Lieutenant F. L. Lee Powers, and Second Lieutenant Lee Metford. The seventy-seven enlisted men then were sworn in a body.

Major Collins presented Capt. Woodman with a soldier's wrist watch, the gift of the company. The colors and the battle service flag were presented to Woodman by its members who have gone to the front, and then saluted.

George K. Spoer, president of Essanay, has turned one of the studios over to the organization for drill purposes two nights a week and has furnished the company with guns and signal flags.

Several of the commissioned and non-commissioned officers are members of the Essanay staff, including F. L. Metford, Arthur Berthelet, C. F. Chandler, B. G. and A. W. Bates. The members also are largely drawn from the Essanay force.

General Announces
"Spying the Spy" Next
Ebonv Corp. Comedy

Comedy of an unusually clever nature is provided in "Spying the Spy," it is said, the second of the Ebonv Comedies to be issued by the General Film Company. This is another adventure of the colored Sherlock Holmes. The inheritance of the Coffin Club members in their efforts to suppress a "bumptious" would-be member who is attempting to steal the secrets of the mystic organization are pictured in a highly entertaining style, General Film declares.

The company of negro players gives an effort of performance, the comedy element being worked out at a fast and furious pace. The colored man's love of ritual and regalia, which has been the basis of scores of fiction stories, is pictured with laughable realism, and when rightly advertised, "Spying the Spy," it is believed, should prove a big drawing card.

"The Porters," a mixture of comedy and farce, is the succeeding comedy in this series.

Booking Cartoons
On the Same Scale
As Bigger Features

The three comedies which have been made by William Fox of Bud Fisher's Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons have been so favorably received, according to the Fox management, that the sales organization has been concentrating on a one-week drive during which these productions have had the principal selling attention. The sales results are reported to have been highly satisfactory.

There has never previously been any attempt made to put out subjects as short as the Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons on so pretentiously a scale as that adopted by the Fox organization. The aim has been, according to Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the company, to capitalized every theatre in the country and for this reason the advertising has been on exactly the same basis as if the productions were regular two-reel subjects. Incidental advertising, such as cut-outs, calendars, bottlers, etc., has been used extensively and letters have been mailed to exhibitors throughout the country, in some cases, to or three week. Exhibitors have generally kept informed of what the men who have booked the pictures think of them, the number of repeat admissions, it is said, being very large.

The three subjects thus far published have been "The Demy," "Back to the Balkans," and "The Freight Investigation." For April 11, "The Leak" is scheduled and the other animated cartoons to follow during the month are "Ice Skating," and "Helping McAdoo." These cartoons were made prior to Bud Fisher's departure for the battle front, but it is stated that several, bearing on conditions abroad, have been received from Captain Fisher and will be issued as soon as the involved mechanical work of constructing moving pictures from them can be completed.

Marcus Loew Circuit
Books "Just a Woman"
Steger's Production

The screen version of Eugene Walter's stage play, "Just a Woman," started on its tour of the Marcus Loew theatres, on April 11.

Less than five weeks ago Frank G. Hall, president of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, purchased the world rights to Julius Steger's production of the Walter drama, which has to its credit as a play a remarkably long run at the Forty-eighth street theatre, New York, followed by successful road tours and numerous stock company engagements throughout the length and breadth of the country. Three days after he had acquired the rights, Mr. Hall announced that one hundred first-run projection houses in vaudeville theatres and its early opening in the Loew houses will mark the beginning of a campaign through the cities.

Aside from the sensational aspects of the drama and its popularity as a play, the fact that its original star Charlotte Walker, also appears in the photodrama, had much to do with the demand for bookings, according to Frank Hall. "Julius Steger also deserves a lion's share of the credit," said Mr. Hall. "The story is laid both in Pittsburgh and New York and the atmosphere of the Pittsburgh steel-millionaire, alternating with scenes of New York high life, is so strongly maintained that few titles are necessary to help you follow the story. Why, even in the Pittsburgh steel magnate's reception scenes, where the 'cats of Allegheny society,' as Eugene Walter calls them, snub the pretty wife of the steel worker, it helps appreciated of Pittsburgh is wonderfully maintained and, in fact, the whole staging of the production shows the wonderful grasp of dramatic technique Julius Steger has gained by his long stage and screen experience."

Filming of President
Sought by Essanay
For "Young America"

Essanay is negotiating with George Creel to have President Wilson appear in the Essanay production of "Young America," which is announced as the next George K. Spoer feature. It is the aim to have the president pose for a short picture in his office, or on the capital grounds.

The picture, while not a war play, is intensely patriotic in sentiment and the trip of the president is intended to show the youth of the country what it may aspire to: that in the United States every boy may in time come to lead the nation.

Taken from the Cohan and Harris play by Fred Ballard, it is being arranged for production by Director Arthur Berthelet, whose last cast, which has been tentatively chosen, each to fit a special part. Outside locations have been selected and interior settings practically all completed, so that the actual work on the studio floor will begin shortly.

Gaumont News Reels
Proving Big Success

The reception exhibitors accorded the Gaumont Company's new semi-weekly optical news reel has surprised even Pell Mitchell, the optimistic editor, it is said.

The independent field had long suffered for the want of a pictorial news service; and to have this need supplied not only with a semi-weekly news reel reaching the screen a day earlier than any other, has taken the state rights buyers by storm.

When the Gaumont Company decided to enter the independent field, it assured the state rights buyers that in the News and Graphic it would produce two news-reels which would equal, if not surpass, anything on the market. The Gaumont news service, which has been in training since the infancy of the motion picture industry, stood back of this promise.

The typographical appearance of what is called "informational dance" as the "make-up," of the News and Graphic is believed to be the most attractive yet shown upon the screen. In keeping with artistic principles, the editor insists that every subject included in these reels must not only be of timely "front-page" news interest, but that the photography and laboratory work be of the standard used in the best feature photo-plays.
Paul Brunet is Host
To Chicago Press at Convention Dinner

The trade and newspaper press were the guests of Paul Brunet, newly appointed vice-president and general manager of the Pathe company, at a dinner held in the Hotel La Salle last week, following which the entire gathering saw "Over the Top" at the Garrick Theatre.

Also present were branch managers of the company: William Aschman, Milwaukee; H. J. Roberts, Minneapolis; F. V. Gebhardt, Detroit; R. S. Shrader, Indianapolis; S. S. Sheridan, Des Moines; V. S. Wesseling, St. Louis; F. D. Rogers, assistant manager Chicago exchange, andolph O. Proctor, manager of the Chicago exchange.

The announcement that Mr. Proctor would be the first division manager under Mr. Brunet's plan whereby the United States is divided into five sections with an executive in charge of each, was made earlier in the day. Mr. Proctor will have under his jurisdiction the states of Illinois, Nebraska, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Members of the trade and newspaper press who attended were: Kitty Kelly, Chicago Examiner; Oma Moddy Lawrence; Chicago Evening Post; Louella O. Parsons, Chicago Herald; Beatrice Bartet, Exhibitors Trade Review; May Snyder, Motion Picture News; W. K. Holland, Chicago Daily News; Don R. Egbert, Photograpy; W. J. McGrath, Motion Picture News, and George Clifford, Exhibitors Herald.

"The Howard" will Open about May 1

The latest addition to Chicago's rapidly increasing number of motion picture theatres is nearing completion, and is expected will be opened to the public about the first of May. In name, "The Howard," it is owned by the Sie- ner Amusement Company and is said to have cost approximately $250,000.

Howard avenue is the site of the new layhouse from which it derives its name. It will have a seating capacity of 2,000 persons. A fifteen-piece orchestra will be one of the features. The management, it is announced, will combine music and high-class motion picture productions, particular attention being paid to the musical end of the program.

ake Forest, Ill., Votes
To Keep Sunday Pictures

Lake Forest, Ill., has placed its official "No" upon the Sunday motion picture show. In a recent election citizens of that town voted to keep the theatres open on Sunday by an almost two to one majority. The actual vote was 506 to 226.

Lake Forest is considered Chicago's most fashionable suburb. Many of the city's foremost business men have their homes there. The Sunday theatre matter has been the source of considerable agitation for a number of years, all of which was settled in the election just held.

D. W. Griffith Arrives
To Arrange Premiere

D. W. Griffith, whose latest production is "Hearts of the World," arrived in Chicago last Monday, and will remain for a few days to arrange for the opening of his production at the Olympic Theatre, April 22.

"Hearts of the World," a great portion of which is laid in the actual war zone in France, and many scenes of which were taken under great difficulty and at the risk of life, is acclaimed by critics to be even greater than "The Birth of a Nation" or "Intolerance," Mr. Griffith's previous masterpieces.

Doll-Van Corp. May Start Legal Battle
Over Rejected Film

Another legal battle over a motion picture production in Chicago is in progress in the announced intention of Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, the censor, to refuse a permit to "Carmen of the Klondike" unless many scenes from the notable fight in the picture are eliminated. The film is being exploited in this territory by the Doll-Van Film Corporation and it is believed that D. M. Vandawalker will take steps at once in effort to obtain an injunction to permit the production to be shown despite the ruling of the censor.

The disputed fight scene has been lauded by critics universally as one of the best efforts ever attained in this class of endeavor. Just what the censor's objections to it are have not been made public.

Mr. Vandawalker feels that to cut any part of the fight scene would be to destroy the punch of the story and at the same time render ineffectual the dramatic climax. It is this belief that is influencing the film man toward the courts for redress.

Hero of No-Man's-Land Gives Vivid Address
At Chicago Theatres

Private Dempsey, who was twice cited for bravery by the French Government, is making personal appearances at all the Ascher Brothers theatres in Chicago, under the management of C. E. Elliott.

Dempsey served two years with the French Colonial Troops in the motor service, many of whose wounds he treated, and was commended for his bravery in bringing in wounded on the battlefield of No-Man's-Land under heavy shell fire. He possesses many souvenirs of the terrible conflict being waged on the other side of the Atlantic.

In connection with his address Private Dempsey has the official French war pictures, taken by the Cinemagraphic division of the French government, which are being shown by courtesy of the British Canadian recruiting station, in connection with the Kilties pipers.

Private Dempsey is a pleasing talker, with a strong personality, and his first hand knowledge of some of the most terrific encounters with the Huns is told in a graphic, convincing manner such as only one who has passed through the ordeal can describe. Mr. Elliott stated that Private Dempsey will, at the conclusion of his Chicago engagement, appear in every theatre in the mid-west territory.

BRANCH MANAGERS AND PRESS DINE WITH PAUL BRUNET

PERSONALS

The train which carried Louis Frank, treasurer of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association back from New York, whence he had been attending the meeting called by Frank J. Rembush to discuss an exhibitors' booking proposition, was partially demolished in a wreck.

Louie was considerably shaken up, although not seriously injured and in consideration he jolted and as a balm to his mental strain he was handed a check for $75.

So far as is known this is the only booking scheme broached within recent months which has made an exhibitor any money.

Jacob Cooper of the Twentieth Century was also to have taken the trip, but prior to train time flipped a coin with Max Levy for a five case note. He won the toss and was reluctant to pay off. Cooper finally accepted Levy's promise to pay in a few days and rushed for the train. He didn't catch it, but is said to have paid Levy off at the depot. Levy, unaware of the fact that Cooper did not make the trip, figured that he was killed in the wreck and was heard to remark, "I was always in touch, luck, I didn't pay him that five yet.'

One of the most successful after dinner speakers we know of is Ralph Proctor, newly appointed division manager for Pathe. At the dinner given last Monday night in the Hotel La Salle by Vice-President Paul Brunot to branch managers and the press, Ralph was the only speaker. He said: "We've got tickets to 'Over the Top.' How many of you can go?" The applause was deafening.

Frank Flaherty, manager of Four-square, is another to be engulfed in the clutches of Mme. La Gripe. Those darn aches and pains is liable to get anybody. They got us once for a week.

Former quarters of the Standard Film Co., in the College building, are the scenes of much activity among carpenters and painters. The rooms are being put in ship-shape order for the Doll-Van Corp., which will leave its quarters in the Consumers building in the near future.

Among the out of town exhibitors who registered at the various exchanges this week were "Daddy" Hines of South Bend; Manager Munk of the Princess Theatre, Plymouth, Ill.; E. H. Beston, Court Theatre, Kankakee, Ill.; and W. Oohrig of the Court Theatre, Sycamore. Nothing like seeing what you book, is there boys?

Ricord Gradwell, vice-president and general manager of the World Film Corp., spent a few days of last week in our fair city. Nothing like coming west once in a while to see the wheels of commerce move.

Paul Smith of the valued Screen Opinions, it is said, is about to add a news page to his sheet. Is there no limit to that feller's cleverness? Never can tell which way he's going to jump next.

President H. E. Aitkin of the Triangle Film Corporation made a brief call in our city the past week. Mrs. Aitkin was on his way to the coast, it was said.

Lubliner & Trinz report progress on their theatre. The theatre is in the course of construction, "The Pantheon" at Sheri- dan Road and Wilson avenue, and the other at Wilson and Leland avenues.

H. M. Burman, general manager for Jewel Productions, also hit our burg this week. As our old friend Horace Greeley was wont to say, "Go West, young man."

"Prof." Kemp furnished the musical score for the trade showing of "A Dog's Life," held in the Bluebird projection room and tickled the visitors, is of Universal's music box in the most approved Paderewski fashion. Now, he don't do it for a livin'. In private life he's Manager Kemp of the Madlin Theatre.

Joe Brandt, general sales manager of Universal, stopped in Chicago long enough to say howdy while on his way to Omaha, where he will have supervision of putting "The Kaiser" over.

D. M. Vandavalker of the Doll-Van Corp. made a trip to South Bend, Ind., last week in the interests of his production, "Carmen of the Klondyke."

"Funkie" is said to have put his ban on the fight scene in this picture. What do you want them to do, old top, exchange Chautauqua salutes? Is this some more of those darn pacifists' doins'?

Jack Miller, manager of the Pleasance Theatre, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, is gaining strength rapidly and expects to be back on the job in a short time. Hurry, Jack, the place looks lonesome without you.

On the Firin' Line

Reel 1, "A Dog's Life," a voice, "Meester La-veen, wanted on der telephone." Reel 2, same film, same voice, "Is Meester La-veen present?" Business of looking under the hats of exhibitors, reviewers, etc., for the modest voice. Reel 3, same film, same voice, eight minutes have elapsed, "Meester La-veen, somevun to see you outside."

You guessed it. The location is the Bluebird projection room. Great little game of "you page me and I'll page you." We got results from our campaign, however, "La-veen" usually gets five calls and he fell two short. Maybe it was the length of the feature. So far as we know Jack Meredith is the only "U" salesman who hasn't pagged him. What do you do for recreation. Jack, sell fillums?

Keeney's First Picture

"A Romance of the Underworld," based on the story by the late Paul Arm strong and featuring Catherine Calvert which is to be the first feature of the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation has passed the New York board of cens orship without change, it is said. I will be put on the market in the near future.

High Commendation of
"Ruggles of Red Gap"

The George K. Spoor feature, "Ruggles of Red Gap," featuring Taylor Holmes, has been having an unprecedented run, according to the reports of George Kleine exchanges. It has been shown in every run house practically all the large cities of the country.

This picture, taken from the story by Leon Wilson, has come in an unusual share of commendation by the exhibitors showing it. Scores have written, it is said, telling of their delight. It has been noted in the production of motion pictures. To me it proves without question that the most subtle humor can be portrayed upon the screen, if done intelligently and with artistry of which ruggles of Red Gap is a perfect example.

"Not alone did my business jump up upon reading the story of the first showing, but I have received hundreds of immemorial letters and any number of personal compliments on its showing. It is wholesome and in good taste this story so ably presented by yourself. I will do more to uplift and bring the motion picture into good repute than any movie I have seen in the past two or three years.

Compliments Essayan Heads

"I shall indeed look forward to whatever you may do and I congratulate you of Mr. Spoor and Mr. Windom, and I trust that I will not have the honor of being able to present you in my columns."

The latest Holmes picture, "A Pair of Silver Slippers," has been pronounced by exhibitors as the greatest comedy which he has appeared in. He is supported in this stately by an all-star cast, including Ethel Clayton, Robert Coogan and Alice Faye. It is taken from the stage production by Edward Peple. The Kleine houses have already reported a large turn of bookings.

Phony Films Clubs
Are Growing Apace

Despite the war, it is said the Better Films movement continues to progress. The country has had the last two months a number of committees interested in movement which have affiliated with the National Committee for Better Films is increased. Examination states that the United is represented. One state, Iowa, has thirteen affiliated committees, California, New York, Ohio and Utah Dakota each have ten members, committees, and Massachusetts, Kentucky, Illinois and Michigan are tied for fourth place in the list.

Among the organizations which are represented are women's clubs, mothers' congresses, parents associations, principals and teachers of schools, etc. One of the most interesting of these is the Cleveland Cinema Club, a large organization of women which is giving a great deal of attention to the constructive development of motion pictures of fine quality. This club has a marked influence upon the exhibitions of motion pictures in the Ohio city, it is said.

R. C. Cropper Heads
Chicago Office of Sterling Pictures

R. C. Cropper has arranged with Arthur E. Beck, President of the Sterling Pictures Corporation, for the change of the first branch office opened by Mr. Beck. These offices are at 220 South State Street, Chicago, and under the "Sterling System," Mr. Cropper is to release immediately "The Hypocrites," by Sir Henry Arthur Jones, and directed by George Loane Tucker, and the big picture for Film production, "The Natural Law."

Through Manager of Sales, Herbert R. Ebenstein, Mr. Beck has authorized the handling of the entire Western division of territory for Sterling Pictures Corporation by Mr. Cropper.

Notices have been sent to surrounding exchanges throughout the west, announcing the screening of all special Sterling production hereafter in Chicago simultaneously with the New York showing.

Stenographers and Typewriters Wanted
For Government Work

The United States Government is in urgent need of thousands of typewriter operators and stenographers and typewriters to help in the war work for the departments and offices at Washington, D. C., and are assured of certification for appointment. It is the manifest duty of citizens with this special knowledge to use it at this time when it will be of most value to the Government. Women especially are urged to undertake this work.

Examinations for the Departmental Service, for both men and women, are held every Tuesday, in 450 of the principal cities of the United States, and applications may be filed with the Commissioner at any time.

The entrance salary ranges from $1,000 to $1,200 a year. Advancement of capability to higher salaries is reasonably rapid.

Applicants must have reached their eighteenth birthday on the date of the examination.

For full information in regard to the scope and character of the examinations and for application blanks address the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or the Secretary of the U. S. Civil Service Board of Examiners at Boston, Mass.; New York, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Atlanta, Ga.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Chicago, Ill.; St. Paul, Minn.; St. Louis, Mo.; New Orleans, La.; Los Angeles, Cal.; San Francisco, Cal.; Honolulu, Hawaii; or San Juan, Porto Rico.

Submarine Torpedo
Used in Exploiting "The Eagle's Eye"

William O'Hare, manager of Majestic Theatre in Des Moines, la., took an original way of exploiting "The Eagle's Eye," the serial story of the Imperial German Government's spies and plots in America by William J. Flynn, the recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service, who booked it for a part of his program in a "spring drive for a rousing summer's business."

He had a huge submarine fashioned over a motor truck. The model was 52 feet long and 15 feet wide. He procured a real torpedo and two sailors from Des Moines Naval Recruiting Station, and for three days prior to the showing of the first episode of "The Eagle's Eye" the submarine was driven about the business section of the city. The sailors explained the workings of the submarine, solicited enlistments and boosted the first episode, "The Hidden Death," which tells of the Imperial German Government's complicity in the sinking of the Lusitania.

Mr. O'Hare opened the doors of the Majestic for the first showing of the serial at ten o'clock on Easter Sunday morning. After the first half hour, the manager noticed that he was not forced to stop the sale of tickets because of crowded houses, it is said.

In addition to the submarine, Mr. O'Hare had used advertising in the local newspapers for ten days prior to the showing. The Majestic had also been newly decorated and the manager covered the interior with American flags. The picture ran to crowded houses for three days.

Miss Barriscle's Sister Ill in N. Y.

Bessie Barriscle was called to New York last week in answer to a summons to the bedside of her sister, who is dangerously ill. Miss Barriscle had just completed the final scenes of her sixth Paralta production, "Patriotism," when she received word of her sister's illness and left Hollywood immediately.

Arrangements had been made for Miss Barriscle to star in the next Paralta play, "Maid O' The Storm," the setting of which have all been completed.

Fox Player Injured

An injury to Bertram Grassby, the Fox leading man, has forced a change in the cast of Miss Brockwell's new vehicle, "Charles Clary has been substituted in Grassby's role, and all of the picture already made in which the latter appeared is now being re-photographed with Clary in the part. The production has just been titled "The Scarlet Rider." Edward J. LeSaint is directing it from a story by Charles Kenyon.
NOTE: Below is printed a blank form which exhibitors may use in keeping records upon which to base tax reports on admissions. It is essential that a daily record be kept in order that the Government may be able to obtain the information it requires in each case. “Patriotism” is Sixth Paralta Play
In Which Bessie Barriscale Stars

The final scenes of Bessie Barriscale’s sixth Paralta production, “Patriotism,” have just been taken at the company’s studios in Los Angeles. The story, while it deals with the war situation in Scotland, and with modern conditions, it is said, is really not a war plot. There are no battle scenes in the production, the atmosphere of conflict merely forming a background for the story. Miss Barriscale appears in the role of Patricia Haldine, a Scotch girl who gives her life and home to the care and comfort of the soldiers who have returned from the front.

The picture was directed by Raymond B. West, who is now engaged in cutting and assembling it. Jane Holly and R. B. Kidd collaborated on the authorship of the plot, and Julian Louis Lamothe prepared the screen version.

Charles Gunn, who but recently was engaged by Paralta, makes his debut with that company in the leading role opposite Miss Barriscale. The supporting cast of the picture is said to be a strong one, having been chosen from the aggregation of players in stock with the Paralta company. It includes Herschell Mayall, Joseph J. Dowling, Arthur Allard, Roy Laidlaw, Clifford Alexander, Ida Lewis, Baby Mary Jane Irving and other players of note.

“Patriotism,” it is said, maintains the high standard set by Miss Barriscale since her connection with Paralta and promises to even be a better drawing card for the exhibitors than her five previous pictures. The plot, besides being timely, is strengthened by complications and suspense, and the picture is elaborate throughout both in interior and exterior settings. Many large and gorgeous scenes were erected upon the Paralta stages for this picture, and all the impressive beauty of California and the Pacific Coast was used by Mr. Vest to represent the hills and the rocky shores of Scotland.

As soon as preparations are completed, Miss Barriscale will commence work upon her next picture, in which she will be directed by her husband, Howard Hickman.

Notable Cast Chosen by Petrova
For Parts in “Patience Sparehawk”

An exceptionally strong cast, it is said, has been engaged for Madame Petrova’s fifth picture “Patience Sparhawk” on which the Polish actress is now at work in her new studio on 38th Street, New York. The story is from the well known novel by Gertrude Atherton.

Vernon Steele will play the heavy in the role of “Beverly Peele.” Mr. Steele has made a name for himself in a number of Goldwyn productions, Mr. Steele was also a member of Madame Petrova’s cast a few years ago when she appeared in the Shubert production of “Pantala.”

Rockcliffe Fellows plays the part of “Garan Rourke,” a young Irish lawyer. Mr. Fellows has played many important roles on the Broadway stage, some of his more recent appearances being with Grace George in “Eve’s Daughter,” with Mrs. Fiske in “Ertwhile Susan,” with Helen Ware in “Within the Law” and with Lucille Watson in “Under Cover.” In the film field Mr. Fellows has had an equally successful career in many Fox, Brady and World productions. He has lately been supporting Ethel Clayton in a number of pictures. Mr. Steele and Mr. Fellows have parts of equal prominence, it is said.

Frederick Truesdale will have the part of Beverly’s father. Matilda Barrington will play the part of Patience’s mother, Violet Reed, who has appeared in many former Petrova offerings, when Madame was with the Metro and Lasky productions, will have the role of Honoraria.

Other members of the new cast are: Gene Burrell, who plays “Hal”; Herbert Patee, as the district attorney; Margaret Seddon, Norma Seifert, James Ferry and Captain Harry Lambart.

World to Produce “Beloved Blackmailer”

Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley are actively engaged under the direction of Dell Henderson in a new picture which bears the working title of “The Beloved Blackmailer.” This picture was written by Harry C. Hoyt, one of the new members of the World scenario staff.

BUY A BOND
Is This a Business—or a Greenroom of Scandal?

Recent developments focus attention upon the fact that a large number of individuals who rely upon motion pictures—and motion picture players—for a livelihood are grossly given to the disgusting practice of heaping the mire and muck of sex scandal upon any and every player, man or woman.

Whether or not there is a trace of substantiation for these charges matters not at all with these purveyors of filth stories; their entire object is in no way a corrective one, it is simply the bestial indulgence of a passion to besmirk what is exalted and successful for their own gratification, always attributing as they go what would be their own motives if they were but for a day in the position of those they malign.

This violent passion for character assassination is a damnable heritage from the theatrical world, where since the days of the strolling players no person is safe from the envious and loose-tongued. Despite the multitude of Maude Adamses, Ethel Barrymores and others the practice has gone on rampantly for years and the chief offenders have not been the casually interested general public, but the profession itself.

One day the name of a famous banker is linked with that of an internationally-known artiste, again a noted operatic star is mentioned as the paramour of a member of a royal family of Europe and so on the serpent-tongued scandal-mongers spread their venom-charged stories about people who are cursed with a prominent position in the public eye, and those who are attacked are powerless to reply because a denial would dignify the charge to an extent that would convince many of its accuracy.

It must be conceded without question that any person even though he makes his livelihood by acting should still be considered innocent of moral misconduct until he is proven guilty. But such is not the situation players have been compelled to face: even with their own associates the fact of their profession has carried with it an indictment of guilt.

The vilification that the players themselves spread may properly be considered a matter of their own business but when this practice is carried on in the motion picture trade by producers, exchange-men and exhibitors it becomes a matter of sorry disgust to every right-minded person.

There is a grave commercial consideration in connection with this blackening of the reputations of players. The motion picture as the amusement of the masses, as the greatest neighborhood attraction, soliciting the interest of every member of the family, can be gravely imperiled by the dissemination of stories tending to establish the moral turpitude of prominent players. And the chief responsibility for every disaster that has occurred and that will occur from this cause rests upon the trade itself because almost without exception these stories are carried to the public by individuals in the business.

If this loose-tongued scandal-mongering is persisted in there will one day overtake the trade a disaster of colossal proportions because the clean-minded millions of America, guided by the idle gossip that comes to their ears, will shun the theatre whose attraction is a player who has been blackened by suggestions of misconduct.
Defeating Enemy Aims

THE conviction of Robert Goldstein for violation of the espionage act by a federal jury in Los Angeles in connection with his picture, "The Spirit of '76," is at once a warning to those who might be tempted by German propaganda money and an assurance that in no particular will the great power of the screen be prostituted to purposes foreign to the best interest of the government.

This picture first met opposition in Chicago at the hands of Maj. Funkhouser, and subsequently when an effort was made to exhibit it in Los Angeles the federal authorities took a hand in the matter and an indictment soon followed.

Those who are abreast of the times in the film trade are well aware of the fact that the German agents in the United States are not unmindful of the opportunities to be had through the screen for the advancement of their cause. These agents have fixed their eyes upon that future day when peace will be restored and when it will again be the object of Germany to make a place for her commercial products in the American market.

It has been variously reported that with this end in view several motion picture productions have been undertaken which with slight alterations could be launched almost coincident with the conclusion of the war, thereby preparing the public for a new reception of "Made in Germany" goods.

What shall be the attitude of the American citizen toward German products following the war is a matter for the government to decide, but it is to be hoped that information which any individual in the trade may possess regarding motion picture productions of this nature will be speedily transmitted to the federal authorities.

Casual Comment

A player who is financially responsible, Charles Chaplin, apparently is to be used by George K. Spoor of Essanay to demonstrate whether or not an actor's contract is something more than a scrap of paper.

Robert Goldstein Found Guilty Of Violating Espionage Act

Chicago Chosen By A. E. A. Board For Annual Meet

Will Be Held In June—To Operate "Open House"

Chicago is to supplant Detroit as the city in which the first national convention of the American Exhibitors' Association will be held. This action was taken at a meeting of the directors of the organization held in the Hotel Astor April 9. Plans for the affair were to be taken up and largely perfected.

It was voted to dispense with all pomp and ceremony usually attendant on a national affair of this nature and take the convention a business conference. One of the features of the decision of the board of directors is the "open house" policy which will govern the convention. It is believed that every exhibitor in the United States, no matter what his affiliations may be, will be welcomed.

A definite date for the convention has not as yet been set, it is the present intention to hold it about the middle of June. Choice of the actual site rests with the committee, however, and it is believed that an early decision on this will be forthcoming in the near future. The time to be concluded is set at either three or four every branch of the industry will be a called to enter into the various conferences which will be held. It is produced that the business conference in the motion picture business will be taken up at various hours during the day and that some of the most prominent names in the business will be in-viduals and participate in the discussions. The committee in charge of arrangements for the convention are Frank J. Bubrich, national secretary of Indi-apolis; Louis Frank, chairman, Alex al director of Illinois, and King Ry, state secretary of Michigan.

"All particulars with reference to it and date will be announced later," responded the announcement from the comnittee. "Entertainment will be supplied good better than anything that has been may well be welcomed to attend the meeting.

Expect Large Attendance

asmuch as there is such need of not sound business discussions with industry at the present time and the strateconomy, this meeting will, no-doubt, be of the greatest benefit to the industry in the attendance very great as a result.

Chicago being centrally located logical place for the convention was posed to hear anyone who has any suggestions take as to what will be of the great-benefit to exhibitors in this garden-city. The convention is to be held in ChAGO next week and every means will be used to make this one of the most gatherings and provide the reviewers who have taken place in the industry."

Robert Goldstein Found Guilty

Of Violating Espionage Act

Federal Jury in Los Angeles Finds Producer

Sought to Spread German Propaganda

Through "Spirit Of '76"

Charged with violating the government espionage act, Robert Goldstein, producer of "The Spirit of '76," was found guilty by a jury in the United States district court of Los Angeles last Tuesday. The prosecution's arguments have been begun into the activities of several men associated with the film industry this is the first conviction to be obtained since this country entered the war.

Goldstein's arrest occurred about three months ago following the exhibition of his production in a Los Angeles theatre.

Federal agents swooped downward the playhouse the third day of the showing, confiscated the film and took Goldstein into the inmate.

Repeated attempts on the part of the film man to obtain his release on bonds met with failure and he has been confined in a cell since the time of his arrest.

Denies Guilt Repeatedly

Despite Goldstein's repeated denials of any effort to influence people of German descent in this country against the English by means of the production, testimony given in his trial tended to show that he himself insisted that scenes of English brutality during the

Revolutionary war be retained in the film.

Hearing of the charges was had before Federal Judge Benjamin F. Ble-soe. The editor of a local German paper was one of the chief government witnesses. The defendant, Stockholders of the Continental Producing company under which name the picture was made, also appeared as witnesses.

Probably the most damaging evidence given against Goldstein was that of

George L. Hutchin, writer of the scenario upon which the picture was based. He testified that the best of his knowledge Franz Bopp, fugitive

German ex-consult at San Francisco, was to have become financially interested in the film.

Review Board Passes

On Films for Navy

Through the efforts of the War Camp

Motion Picture Committee, the various ships of the Navy on which there is motion picture equipment, will be enabled to obtain supplies of recent pictures for their use while at sea. The Bureau of Navy of the War Department has asked the Committee furnish them hundred complete schedules of exchanges for distribution through the Navy Department, and they have been forwarded.

Price lists with special rates for entertainments while the boats are in port, are also being furnished together with detailed instructions as to the methods of securing motion picture programs to take to sea. The War Camp Motion Picture

Hutchin also testified that Goldstein had altered changes made in the script and had incorporated a number of scenes to show the brutality of British soldiers.

The producer had made known his intention, the witness said, of making one and two reel feature which would ap-appeal to German turnen members in the United States.

British Brutality Sought

W. L. Brock, engaged to do research work for the production, testified that he had been instructed to obtain all the information possible which might tend to show that the British in the Revolu-tory war were just as brutal as the Germans in the present conflict. He also said Goldstein was intensely bitter against the British.

Max Socha, editor of Germania, proved to be the star witness of the government. He testified regarding an alleged scheme to induce Germans to purchase stock in the Continental Producing Company and produced an advertisement tending to show that the picture was unfavorable to the British and advising local Germans to aid in this propaganda.

Film Shown Jury

During the course of the trial the film was viewed by Judge Bledsoe as well as Federal Judge Oscar Tippet. This was done after Goldstein's attorneys had put up a spirited fight to prove the pictures little bad, tending that it could not properly be put on with the lighting afforded by the cinema and the lack of music.

Stockholders of the company testified that after viewing the film they had told

Goldstein that in their opinion a number of the scenes should be eliminated. Those particularly objected to, they testified, were alleged evidences of British brutality practiced during the Revolutionary war. Goldstein, however, they charged, remained obdurate and insisted that the film be shown as made.

United Theatres Sues M. P. World
For $250,000 Alleging Libel Organizations Resists Institutions Printed in Trade Journal That Exhibitors’ Funds Are Not Being Safeguarded

suit has been filed in the United States Supreme Court by the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., against the Chalmers Publishing Company of New York, charging it with several alleged libelous statements published in the Moving Picture World recently. The damages asked are $250,000.

The action followed a meeting of the board of directors of the United Picture Theatres, at which attorney Milton M. Goldsmith, general counsel for the concern, was directed to bring suit.

It is charged that the Moving Picture World printed attacks upon the honesty of the men back of the United Picture Theatres, relative to an alleged trust fund which is said to have been deposited with the Guarantee Trust Company of New York City.

A statement issued by the United Picture Theatres sets forth the fact that the money received from exhibitors would be deposited in a bank with the understanding that 90 per cent of the same would be returned to the members in case the United Theatres enterprise did not go through. It is at this statement that the World has directed its shafts of criticism.

World’s Editorial Attacks

In its issue of April 27 the World, in commenting editorially upon the matter, said: “Just what effect the disclosures made by the Moving Picture World regarding the non-existence of the ‘trust fund’ alleged to have been established by the United Picture Theatres of America, had upon the gathering of motion picture men at the Hotel Astor who have not attempted to ascertain, but it is quite evident that the picture men there assembled to discuss plans for cooperative booking of pictures got the measure of the little coterie of promoters who are trying to put over the United Picture Theatres plan, for they have turned that proposition down and will have nothing of it.”

In the same issue the World says: “It was very essential that the ‘trust fund’ should have been established as promised and of a mark of good faith. It was not established and, so far as we can discover, no attempt was made to establish it.”

These statements are denied by the United Picture Theatres and the organization further alleges that the World printed them without making an attempt to discover or ascertain the facts; that they did not approach the officers or directors of the society with inquiries as to the truth of the statement and did not conduct any real investigation.

Accountants’ Report

The United Picture Theatres has sent out a report from Quinn, Berran & Co., public accountants, with offices in the Woolworth Building, New York, to the effect that the accountants have verified the existence of a fund and that 90 per cent of the stock subscribed by members of the organization is intact. The statement appears elsewhere in this issue of the Herald. The Commercial Trust Company of New York, it is said, has agreed to act as depository of the fund.

The directors of the United Picture Theatres have also instructed their attorney to prosecute any others guilty of making libelous or slanderous statements against the organization and will take prompt action to defend themselves against insinuations or challenges of their integrity.

The outcome of the libel suit will be watched with considerable interest.

It is pointed out that the principal charge of the Chalmers publication was that the 90 per cent of the monies collected was not held in a trust fund by a recognized trust company. This charge seems to be borne out by the auditor’s report which states that the 90 per cent was only “on deposit in a special fund.”

Chaplin Waives Rights

Subject to June Draft

Charlie Chaplin has waived his rights as an alien and made himself subject to service in the National army, according to an announcement made at the studio of the comedian during his absence in a tour of the United States in behalf of the third Liberty Loan.

According to information obtained from the Los Angeles local exemption board where Chaplin registered, his action will make him liable to the draft among the men called in the June quota.

Universal Swells Liberty Bond Fund

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, its executives and employees will subscribe $500,000, it is said, to the third Liberty Bond issue.

The total subscriptions of the headquarters in New York amounted to $195,410 on Friday, April 19. All of the employes throughout the country have been urged by President Laemmle to strain every effort to take as many bonds as possible.

Through the generosity of Laemmle every employe may subscribe for as many bonds as the employe financially able to carry and pay for at the rate of one dollar a week for every fifty dollar bond taken. President C. Laemmle has subscribed $25,000; vice-president R. H. Cochrane, $100; treasurer P. A. Powers, $10,000; office employes, $30,000.

Theatre Musicians

Subscribe to Lo.

After having subscribed liberally the first and second Liberty Loans, members of the orchestra at the Rialto Theatre, New York, have bought box of the third loan to the amount of $10,000, it is announced. The men of the Rivoli orchestra last week took $350 worth of the present bond, bringing the total for the musicians in the two Rothapel houses to more than $29,000.

Mr. Rothapel himself, it is announced, took $1,000 worth of bonds subscribed for by each orchestra. The men composing the two organizations are of nationalities representing practically every nation now at war, but all have taken out American citizenship papers and backing Uncle Sam in this fight to the limit of their resources.
William Fox Visits Indianapolis and Aids Liberty Loan

William Fox, president of the Fox Film Corporation, enroute from Chicago to New York, paid Indianapolis a visit last week, and while in the city renewed his friendship with Belle Kiker, a prodigy of his playing at Ethel's local house, and bought a $10,- lasure tlis foted tration be a at E. by npany a lerican responded Liberty i>er Meld mngh pb, p. Tuller's visit to Indianapolis, and while he came mainly on business connected with the Indianapolis Fox exchange, he made a number of friends.

He came unannounced Monday evening, dropping into Keith's, where he immediately recognized Belle Kiker, who stopped her act to announce presence to the audience whom she ded her success was due to a large measure to Mr. Fox. He was called upon by the audience to make a speech. He responded by saying he was very much pleased with Indianapolis on his last visit, and that Indiana generally is being closely watched by the East where the "Hoosier" state was known the up and down in every patriotic elevator. He closed his talk by subscribing $10,000 to the Liberty Loan campaign. Mr. Fox spent Tuesday with E. Gerson, manager of the Indianapolis office of the Fox corporation.

American Studios Make Tank for Parade

The secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Santa Barbara, Calif., has written a personal letter of congratulation to Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Chicago, to express the appreciation of that body for the assistance of the American Film Company in preparing for the big demonstration attendant on the Santa Barbara opening of the Third Liberty Loan.

The wonderful war tank built at your studio is admittedly the best piece of work in the way of a float ever turned out at a local plant," he wrote. "It surprised in design, appearance and material a similar float that was passing through the streets of Los Angeles at the same time."

Harriga Fisher and Mary Miles Minter, American Film Company stars, noted a part of each day to talking for Liberty Loan and were instrumental in the sales of thousands of dollars, it is said.

Michigan Exhibitors To Meet in Detroit

Motion picture exhibitors of the State of Michigan have called a meeting to be held at Tuller's Hotel, Detroit, at 11 a.m., April 25. Exhibitors from Ohio, Indiana and Ohio have been invited to attend the meeting. A theatre party and a smoke to visiting exhibitors have been arranged for the evening after the business session. It is said elaborate preparations are being made for the meeting.

Box-Office Angle of a Star's Indiscretion

Pursuant to its invariable policy of giving every exhibitor an opportunity to be heard on any matter of general interest to the trade, the EXHIBITORS HERALD prints the following sensational communication received from one of the leading exhibitors of the Middle West:

PRINCESS THEATRE
L. M. Rubens, Manager

To the Editor Exhibitors Herald:

Dear Sir—While motion picture manufacturers and exhibitors are worrying about the effect of the war, distribution costs, film rentals, etc., on the motion picture industry they are all asleep to a menace which is in the meantime eating like a filthy ulcer at the root. trunk and branch of the entire industry.

The whole matter can be summed up in the few words contained in a remark made by one of our motion picture patrons: "I will not permit my family to attend a motion picture theatre exploiting a star who is known to be immoral."

Every day the exhibitor is being confronted by his patrons in regard to the illicit conduct of a star he is exhibiting or is going to exhibit.

Every self-respecting exhibitor is disgusted as his daily newspaper holds up another "film favorite" covered with the foul sewage of scandal.

No business exploiting people whose home life is known to be impure will long endure.

A few weeks ago I sat in the private office of one of the big film men for an hour while he strenuously denied to the press that a certain film favorite was shot by the husband of another film favorite. This was in Chicago; today I received word from Baltimore, Md., that the father of a family would not permit his children to patronize a theatre showing these same stars because they were familiar with this ugly rumor. This is only one example of how far-reaching is this greatest menace to the industry.

It is the height of absurdity to expect decent people to watch a play depicting purity, cleanliness, wholesomeness, morality, enacted by a star of either sex who has violated the sanctity of their own homes by illicit sexual relations when the fact is known throughout the country. It is far better for all that the same play be produced with unknown performers.

I trust that the manufacturers and exhibitors will awaken to this greatest peril that assails the motion picture industry. The fact that it is known that a star is immoral should be a just cause for the manufacturer to terminate their contract, also for the exhibitor to be relieved of the disgrace of being obliged to present them to his patrons. Such stars should be at once pushed back to the ranks of prostitutes where they belong. We wouldn't want to present such people in our homes; why foist them upon a respectable audience.

It is up to the trade papers, manufacturers and exhibitors to purge the industry of these characters, no matter how popular they now are, before the public places motion pictures out of the class of entertainment for the family.

As a subscriber to your paper we insist that this be published.

Existence Of News Weekly Periled
By Decision Of Kansas Supreme Court

High Court Holds Individual May Recover Damages, Not Named Specifically, for Exhibition Of Photograph

Threatening the very existence of the weekly news reels the supreme court of Kansas, in a decision handed down this week, has ruled that exhibition in a moving picture theatre of the photograph of a person taken without consent and for the purpose of exploiting the publisher's business is a violation of the right of privacy and entitles the person to recover damages without proof of special damages.

While the decision itself was not based on a case against a news weekly the finding of the court is so broad in its nature as to easily include this important branch of the industry within its scope. The case in question was that of Stella Kunz against W. H. Allen and Charles H. Bayne, owners of a dry goods store in Kansas City, Kansas.

The plaintiff was in the dry goods store, of the defendants making some purchases. Without her knowledge or consent the owners of the store are alleged to have caused motion picture films to be taken of her face, form and garments. Later the films were developed and displayed in a motion picture theatre in the neighborhood where the plaintiff lived.

Subject to Gossip

It was alleged that as a result of the display the woman became the subject of common gossip among her friends and acquaintances. She brought suit for damages, but the Wyandotte county district court sustained a demurrer and threw the case out of court.

In deciding the case the trial court held that the woman failed to introduce evidence as to specific damages. Some of the plaintiff's friends even stated on cross examination that the picture display did not lessen their esteem for the woman. But the supreme court held that such admissions were mere admissions of friendship and did not remove the woman's right to recover. The state supreme court quoted extensively from opinions as to right of privacy.

Individual Privacy Sacred

"The right of privacy," the court held, "has its foundation in the instincts of nature. Each individual as instinctively resents any encroachment by the public upon his rights which are of a private nature as he does the withdrawal of those rights which are of a public nature.

If one's picture may be used by another for advertising purposes, it may be reproduced and exhibited anywhere. It may be used in a newspaper, it may be used on a poster of a placard. It may be posted upon the walls of a private dwelling or upon the streets. It may ornament the bar of the saloonkeeper or decorate the walls of a brothel. By becoming a member of society, neither man nor woman can be presumed to have consented to such uses of the impression of their faces and features upon paper or upon canvas."

The case is reversed and sent back to the Wyandotte district court with instructions that the order sustaining the demurred be set aside.

Al Hall With Fox

William Fox has acquired the services of Al Hall to play the juvenile role in support of the Lee children in a new feature, as yet untitled, now in the making at the Biograph Studio, Bronx, New York, under the direction of Keenan Buel.

Mr. Hall was associated with the Fox productions some time ago and is recalled for his good work in "Little Miss U. S. A." and "The Painted Madonna." It was in Hall Caine's "The Deemster," however, that young Hall achieved his greatest success.

Metro Backs Loan With Screen and Star

Metro Pictures Corporation is effectively aiding the third Liberty Loan drive throughout the United States with its stars and patriotic production President Richard A. Rowland has placed the entire organization behind the movement, and has written a letter to each of the firm's twenty-seven exchanges urging them to get behind the government in every possible way.

Two of Metro's stars, Arnold Da and Emmy Wohlen, have already distinguished themselves as four-minute speakers. Miss Wohlen is making two weeks' tour of eleven eastern cities not only speaking, but also singing and arousing interest in the government loan.

Shipman to Handle

"Berlin Via America"

"Berlin via America," the first Fox production, in which Francis Ford and Edna Emerson are starred, is announced will be published on the star rights basis. Mr. Ford has select Ernest Shipman, 17 West 44th street, New York, as sales agent for handling of this big, timely product.

Mr. Shipman, who in the past handled many big features, knows the state right market from every angle. He already has a number of buyers interested in "Berlin via America" and expects to close out a number of territory within a very short time.

The will of William T. Rock, pioneer in the motion picture industry and one of the organizers of the Vitagraph Company, was filed in the Surrogate's Court of Brooklyn last week. The estate valued at $1,436,667, of which his son, John, receives $1,308,677 and wife $30,000. The rest of the estate distributed among his other children.

L. B. Mayer, et al.
In Stewart Case

Im Company Asks $250,000 on Conspiracy Charge

Suit for $250,000 against Louis B. Mayer, Colman Levin and J. Robert Schwalbe is the latest development in the Vitagraph-Stewart breach of contract litigation. The bill was filed in the superior court at Boston last week by the Vitagraph company and Attorney H. Oakley, a well known lawyer, the Hub city, has been engaged to sh the matter for the film company. The specific charge in the bill against the trio is that of conspiracy. The complaint charges that Mayo and his co-defendants sought to entice Miss Stewart from the company with whom she has been connected since the beginning of her motion picture career.

After a statement as to the producer's rights as far as the services of a star are concerned and the responsibility of the producer to the exhibitor, the bill outlines briefly Miss Stewart's progress with the company since she began as an extra in 1912, playing extra parts at a weekly salary of $25.

Miss Star Popular

"By reason of her extraordinary and unique abilities, her personal charm and popularity as a motion picture actress," the complaint reads, "and by reason of the plaintiff's advertising and exploiting her and her said pictures, the plaintiff built up and established an extensive good will and value for all of the motion pictures in said said Stewart's progress might thereafter appear, and by doing greatly enhanced the value of the right to engage and control her exclusive services as a motion picture artist."

In previous actions preceding the present legal fight, the Vitagraph company had gained a temporary injunction against Miss Stewart and Mayer through the Supreme Court of New York and this decision was sustained when the case was brought in the Appellate division. Later, when the plaintiff was in the Supreme court, the injunction permanent, pending at the court must satisfy her contracts obligations with Vitagraph.

Mayer Forced Issue

The complaint further charges that Mayer, fully aware of the conditions and listing contract, had prevailed upon Miss Stewart to break her contract with the Vitagraph company and enter a contract with him at a greater figure than that which she was receiving from the Vitagraph company.

It is also charged that the defendants were left to be made public information about the case the trade press and other avenues that Mayer had exclusive control of the work of Miss Stewart and kept it by means of threats from fulfilling the contract with the film company.

Miss Palmer Joins World

Nancy Palmer, who posed for Howard Christy's celebrated navy recruiting poster, has joined the forces of the World Film Corporation. The first picture Miss Howard will be seen in for World is entitled "Merely Players."

First National Exhibitors Circuit Holds Annual Session and Elects Officers

Important Business Transacted—Meeting Marks End of Successful Year—New Directors Named

The first annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit was held at the Hotel Astor, New York, from April 15-17. The election of officers resulted in the selection of Robert L. Tally, of Los Angeles, as president; T. L. Tally, of Los Angeles, as re-elected vice-president; Harry O. Schwalbe, of Philadelphia, as re-elected secretary and treasurer, and J. D. Williams as manager of the circuit.

Two changes were made in the board of directors. Walter Hays of Buffalo being elected the New York representative, while J. Von Herberg was the new man chosen from the Pacific coast, succeeding Fred Dahmen of San Francisco. The five directors re-elected for the coming year, include: Aaron Jones of Chicago, E. H. Hulse of Dallas, Robert Liede of Indianapolis, T. L. Tally of Los Angeles, and Harry O. Schwalbe of Philadelphia.

From every section of the continent exhibitors brought news of the remarkable returns that are being realized on productions already issued by the circuit. It was the unanimous opinion of the membership that with three attractions of the caliber of "Tarzan of the Apes," "My Four Years in Germany," and Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life," to begin the second year with, it is felt the future of the organization is one of assured prosperity.

Tally Thanked

T. L. Tally, was tendered a vote of thanks for the fine diplomacy he had displayed in carrying on the personal negotiations with Charlie Chaplin incident to his signing the contract that gives the First National exclusive rights to his $1,000,000 comedy series.

As the final executive of the organization, Harry O. Schwalbe came in for sincerely expressed praise. J. D. Williams was also complimented for his unflagging zeal in promoting the things that have made the circuit a factor to be reckoned with in the future of motion picture exploitation.

A complete list of the stockholders who attended the session reads as follows: Robert Liede, Indianapolis; T. L. Tally, Los Angeles; Aaron Jones and Nathan Ascher, Chicago; H. O. Schwalbe, Philadelphia; E. H. Hulse and S. T. McDonald, Dallas; Frank Ferrari, Richmond; Lieut. J. P. Anderson, Atlanta; J. H. Kunsky and G. W. Trendle, Detroit; C. S. Jensen and F. V. Fisher, Seattle; H. T. Xolan and W. H. Swanson, Denver; W. P. Dewees, Vancouver; E. V. Richards, Jr., New Orleans; Thomas Saxe, Milwaukee; Jacob Fabian, New Jersey; E. Mandelbaum, Cleveland; N. H. Gordon, Boston; E. R. Pearson, Minneapolis; A. H. Blank, Des Moines; Col. Fred Levy and L. L. Goldberg, Louisville; E. J. Church, New Jersey; William Sievers, St. Louis; Winthrop Allen and X. J. Flynn, Kansas City; H. Brousse and E. F. Sipleon, Ottowa; J. B. Clark, Pittsburg, and J. D. Williams, New York.
Goldwyn Pictures to Be Distributed
By Oswald Stoll in Great Britain

J. C. Williams Films, Limited, to Handle Australian Territory, New Zealand, Brazil and Other Points Covered

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation announces that exclusive distribution of all Goldwyn productions for England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales will be under the direction of Oswald Stoll, said to be one of the greatest amusement magnates in the world.

Negotiations, which with Mr. Stoll have been conducted by R. S. Edmondson, the London representative of Goldwyn, and the arrival in Great Britain of the first eight Goldwyn productions is being hailed by the British trade press and amusement journals as an event of unusual significance. The Kinegraph, in speaking of these productions, says: "These Goldwyn pictures are the most far reaching and beautiful productions ever received in England."

In less than eight months from the date of its first picture Goldwyn has completed a world-wide organization, with representation in every part of the globe with the exception of the Teutonic powers, and their allies, with whom we are at war.

Oswald Stoll Distributor

The British distribution will be made under the name of the Oswald Stoll Film Company, with offices throughout the United Kingdom.

Link by link Goldwyn is forging its chain of representation around the world and its English and Australasian affiliations, taken in conjunction with Goldwyn Pictures, Ltd., of Canada, constitute the most important alliances of all, it is said.

In Australia Goldwyn pictures are distributed by J. C. Williamson Films, Ltd., the Williamson interests being the greatest in point of financial magnitude and far-reaching scope in the Antipodes. Hugh Ward, George Tallis and W. Thring, the managing directors of the Williamson enterprises, are all as well known in America as in Australasia, and Goldwyn could have enjoyed no greater good fortune than to have entered that important field under their and the Williamson auspices.

Goldwyn's New Zealand distribution is under the direction of New Zealand Picture Supplies, Ltd., Harry Hayward being chairman of the board of directors. In Scandinavia Goldwyn is successfully launched through John Olsen & Company, the biggest factors in Norway, Sweden and Denmark, and in South Africa the South African Film Trust is the Goldwyn distributor. This organization, it is said, owns virtually all of the theatres in which pictures are shown in that country.

Goldwyn in Argentine

Goldwyn Pictures are distributed in Argentine, Uruguay and Paraguay through Messrs. Saenz & Gonzalez; Chile, Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador distribution is made through the Mutual Export and Import Company; Mexico and Central American business will be handled through Messrs. Lescale, Goni & Compania and Egypt through Joseph Adda.

In Brazil the Pan-American Trading Company for the Compania Cinematografica Brasileira of Rio de Janeiro, the largest film concern in the country, owning eighteen of the biggest houses in Rio de Janeiro and Santos, will be Goldwyn's distributors.

Negotiations are now in progress, it is announced, for the distribution of Goldwyn pictures in France, Italy, the Dutch East Indies, Switzerland, India, Burma and Ceylon, China and the Philippines, Cuba, Japan, Holland, Spain and Portugal.

Marie Dressler Signs With World Pictures

Marie Dressler, the comedienne, has just signed a long term contract to produce a series of two reel comedies for World Pictures. Miss Dressler is touring the country at present in the interest of the third Liberty Loan. One of Miss Dressler's comedies, "The Agonies of Agnes," was recently presented at the Strand Theatre, New York, and created a furor, it is said. Other tentative titles of her forthcoming pictures are "Fired," "The Wash Woman."

Norma Talmadge Does Her Bit

Norma Talmadge, the Select star, has done her bit toward making the world safe for democracy by subscribing $200,000 to the third Liberty Loan. Her subscription, which is one of the largest individual purchases in the New York district, was made through the Harriman National Bank. The officials of the bank have confirmed the reports of the sale.

Gaumont News Reels Contain Timely Matt

The semi-weekly news-reels of the Gaumont Company are being forwarded one day ahead of all other news-reels, it is said, and are available for exhibition as soon as shipped. The exhibitor can show these reels soon as they are received, without waiting for specified publication dates. Gaumont News is shipped every Tuesday morning and the Gaumont Gram every Friday morning.

Current issues of these, the only independent news-reels, are fully up to a high standard of the first, exhibitors declare, which won the unanimous praise of state-rights buyers.

At this time, naturally, the great part of each reel is taken up with war subjects. In Gaumont News 7, shipped to exchanges on the morning of April 10, at the time when the entire universe is watching with bated interest such death-grappling with the armed forces and the invading Hun every subject relates to the war. The shows are interesting in detail the battle range in the world, being with the latest equipment, where Un Sam's soldiers are becoming the most expert marksmen; a big shamb blast where the marines are given hard joust in almost actual warfare; aer photography, by which submarines may be detected beneath the surface of the sea; the visit of the Second of the Navy to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, where more than 10,000 men are in readiness; and, among oil territory, some many thousands of miles north here, the thrilling, death-defying stunts performed by Lieutenant F. Charette, the famous French "Ace" who aiding in the instruction of American aviators, which amazed official Washinton.

Kerrigan Resumes Work

After an absence of eight months from the studio, J. Warren Kerrigan is completing arrangements to appear before cameras at the Paralta plant, Los Angeles, within the next two weeks. Kerrigan has been incapacitated in an accident which occurred during filming of his second Paralta Play, "Toby, a Card," and which resulted a broken leg.

The vehicle chosen for his return the screen is "Toby," from the book of the same name by Credo Harris, said he particularly adapted to Mr. Kerrigan's type of interpretation, and with has just been purchased by the Paralta Company. Thomas J. Geraghty, a Paralta staff of authors, has been engaged for some time past in the preparation of the screen version of "Toby" reports that it will be completed a ready for production by next week.

Hayakawa Entertains

Some Hayakawa entertained a number of the officers of the Japan squadron which visited Port Los Angeles last week. The officers called at studio of the star and keenly enjoy their initiation into the mysteries of the making of motion pictures.

Flynn's Narrative of German Spy Plots Appears With Film's Showing

A publicity campaign which includes, at the present time, a full page of reading matter and pictures weekly in sixty-seven newspapers, is a new and acquired sworn circulation of nearly four million, in connection with the "Eagle's Eye," the twenty episode serial story of the Imperial German,Soldier and politicians in Germania, by William J. Flynn, the recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service, has been announced by The Whar tons, producers of the picture. Arrangements whereby the number of newspapers engaged in the campaign will be almost doubled are pending, it is said, but annonalcements have not been made until the negotiations are completed.

The campaign will consist of the publication of a novelization of the picture, under conditions which have been arranged to be the greatest aid to exhibitors who have booked the picture. The newspapers which have engaged the service bind themselves to publish five thousand words each week, each publication dealing only with one episode of the picture. The contracts also require the newspapers to print the novelisation for twenty consecutive weeks in the order in which the episodes are released.

The newspapers which have already signed contracts are: New York American:
Minneapolis, St. Paul and Twin Cities, Indiana, Ohio, Western ships and Rochester, N. Y.
Observer; Atlanta, Ga., Constitution; Charlotté, North Carolina, News; Macon, Ga.,

Hamilton, Ont., Spectator; Calgary, Alta.
Vereen Telegram; and the Quebec, Que.
Telegraph.

The installments of the novelization are to be run in the order in which the episode upon which it is based is released to the exhibitor. All installments will be run under the general caption of "The Eagle's Eye" and each installment will be published under the sub-title which the episode is issued.

Filming "The Bully"
At Ebony Studios

Bob Horner, the script editor of the Ebony Film Corporation, has just finished "The Bully," it is announced, which Director Charles David will direct, featuring Sam Robinson, Yvonne

FIFTEEN-CENT COIN
TERRY RAMSAYE'S IDEA

Mutual Publicity Director Saw Necessity for It for Picture
Theatres—Suggests
Design

The idea for a fifteen cent coin has within a year of its conception, attained the dignity of congressional recognition. It was proposed a year ago by Terry Ramsaye, Director of Publicity for Mutual, who saw, with the general adoption of the fifteen cent admission price at picture theatres, a necessity for a coin to replace the inconvenient nickel and dime. The idea was put up to John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film
Corporation, who said "push it through."

Immediately the idea met with favor among exhibitors and it was presented to the director of the mint not long ago by a committee of motion picture exhibitors. A general sentiment in its favor has been developed in many sections of the country and it is only likely that the O'Shaughnessy bill, which was referred to the House committee, Washington, D. C., will meet with early and favorable action on the floor of the House.

The idea of a fifteen cent coin bears the endorsement of such men as John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field & Company, Chicago; Edward Wise, president of the United Cigar Stores Company, and S. A. Perkins, head of the vast Perkins interests in the northwest. Mr. Perkins personally urged the idea upon members of congress in his section of the country.

"Fifteen cents has become a standard in trade," said Mr. Ramsaye when he learned of congressional action on his idea. "It will surprise you to see, if you notice, how many times a day you make a fifteen cent purchase.

"The fifteen cent piece would be a convenient coin for everybody.
It would save time and annoyance beyond computation not only at the motion picture theatre, but in all sorts of retail shops.

"When the idea for a fifteen cent coin was first suggested, Mr. Ramsaye prepared a design, in which was embeded the head of Hiram, Henry, and Louis, for many picture serials. The design casts much comment and helped materially drawing attention to the fifteen cent piece proposal.

New Western Series

are being produced by the National Fil-Company of Denver, of which O. C.
Woodward is president. This is the one company that makes the Clover C ies with Bud Duncan, Dot Farley and Kewpie Morgan.

The Rango dramas will be two-reel productions, issued every other week and will contain all-western atmosphere.
Story value and thrills will be feature it is announced.

The first picture in the series will be "In the Shadow of the Rockies," a story of romance and action, in which Palm Bowman and Dolly Dale are the principal players. The story deals with the adventures of a millionaire's son in the West, in which he unwittingly plays a leading part in the unraveling of a dram of mystery and suspense.

Succeeding stories are in preparation written by Richard Goodall and direct by Otis B. Thayer.

Addie Linnell Gives

several months in Los Angeles, will appear in many of the leading theatres in the south and give her audiences in person observations of the movie picture studios of Southern California, speaking not any longer than the "four

Miss Linnell will present verbal "closeups" of the principal stars who are engaged in film work in the west and devote some of her time to talks on the first series of six, her favorite, who has started work on an own independent productions and who later on will visit the theatres herself.

Francis Ford to Make

In addition to the feature program which has been laid out for Fordar Films, work on which is to be com-enced at the new studio in Los Angeles within a short time, Franc Ford, the director-general, also has planned to make one and two reel subjects in series of six.

These short pictures, each carrying story of its own, are destined to create sentiment when shown to the public.
They are an innovation for this chas-ter of picture, being entirely different the short reel films which have been produced in the past, it is said.
An announcement will soon be made regarding the series of six and the manner in which they will be distributed to the exhibitor.

It is the little things in "The Face in the Dark" that tend to make this photoplay the excellent example of fine screen entertainment it is. It is the sort of production any exhibitor might take pride in looking at his theatre.

While there are several doubts as to the why and wherefore of certain phases of the story, it has been handled in an excellent fashion and the exact outcome of the story remains a complete secret until near the end and then, while it does not come as a direct surprise, it is pleasing and there is a satisfied feeling in seeing happiness brought to diminutive and inimitable Mae Marsh.

Mae Marsh, Hobart Henley and J. C. Bitzer, the cameraman, may well feel proud of their latest achievement. Mae Marsh is herself all the way through, capable, charming and adorable; the little touches which Mr. Henley has introduced, such as a gang of youngsters coaching, proves his appreciation of humanity in screen story telling; and the high lights which have been brought into the production’s lighting and that beautiful reddish glow which was prominent in many of the scenes shows Mr. Bitzer’s ability at the crank.

Another one of those Paralta productions that should please and entertain is "With Hoops of Steel" in which Mr. Walthall assumes a role different from anything which he has undertaken thus far under the Paralta banner. And he does it in a most pleasing fashion.

All the excellence of direction, photography and acting which have characterized previous Paralta productions are in evidence in this latest Walthall vehicle. Mr. Howe has introduced subtle little touches which warm an audience to the characters and make them feel a personal interest in the telling of the story.

Mary Charleson accords Mr. Walthall good support. Ann Walthall is another member of the well balanced and carefully selected cast. The entire story is laid in the west and the scenes vividly portray vast fields of cactus and mountains reaching far into the sky.

The story: Tom Meade is considered responsible for the disappearance of Will Whitaker, whom the villagers believe to have been murdered. Tom refuses to give himself up until the villagers can prove Will’s death. The disappearance of the little brother of Mary Delarue, whom Tom is in love, locates the missing Will, clears Tom’s name and unites Tom and Mary.

Excellent photoplay combined with a good selection of types to portray this story of the northwest combine to make "The Law of the Great Northwest" good entertainment. The broad expanse of territory manned by the Northwest Mounted Police has always been a popular background for a photoplay and this offering contains much action and moves swiftly enough to sustain interest.

Margery Wilson in the leading role is rather a disappointment. She does not seem to enter into the spirit of the thing and gives a rather passive portrayal of the girl about which the action centers. Will Jeffries, Eugene Corey, William Dyer and Louis Durham in the more important male roles do commendable work, while William V. Mong's characterization of Pedley Monson is charmingly well done.

The story: Hal Sinclair, owner of the only store in Fort Rocher, a trading post, comes under the eye of the northwest mounted police because of his lawlessness and his war upon independent traders. Officer Jamieson is sent to investigate. Simultaneously with his arrival comes also Marie Monset and her father and Charles Morin, son of a banker, seeking his fortune in the north. Sinclair is attracted to the girl and gives her father an elastic charge account. She recovers him and through a ruse he gets his father out of the way. She aligns herself with Jamieson to get evidence against Sinclair and while employed by him is locked in the trading post. She escapes just in time to defeat Sinclair's attempt to murder Morin and Jamieson and the arrival of the mounted police disposes of the criminals in the affair. Morin claims her and Jamieson rejoins his troop.

It is pleasing to note that Mr. Fairbanks has thrown aside his cowboy interpretations and taken to more high class entertainment.

“Mr. Fix-It” is a very enjoyable production and one of the best Mr. Fairbanks has ever done. It is diverting, too, in that Mr. Fairbanks gives others in the cast opportunities to prove themselves entertaining. There are three very charming young ladies: Marjorie Daw, Katherine MacDonald and Wanda Hawley, and a number of interesting youngsters, who give the story that appealing touch many of his others have lacked. In addition to directing the picture, Mr. Allan Dwan is also responsible for the authorship of the story.

The story: Because of his ability to fix things he becomes known as “Mr. Fix-It” and enters the aristocratic home of the Burroughs as their nephew. Before long he has melted the stone hearts of the three aunts and one uncle and won the love of a pretty girl in addition to setting aright the affairs of prettily Georgiana Burroughs and Olive Van Tassel.

The much heralded “A Dog’s Life” was shown to Chicago exhibitors last week and was received with exclamations of delight. Exhibitors present forgot their worries for the time being and had a good time, laughing at the diminutive comedian’s antics. And they were justified in doing so, because without doubt this is undoubtedly Mr. Chaplin’s best piece of work.

Mr. Chaplin was right, too, when he decided to allow the film to run to 2,700 feet instead of the usual 2,000 feet, as everything that is contained in the picture is needed. At no time is there any trace of padding, and it is just one laugh from beginning to end.

The direction has been well handled and Mr. Chaplin’s portrayal is all that his admirers expect of him. A large cast appears in support headed by Edna Purviance, pretty and vivacious, and a wonderful dog who does his bit in a to-the-screen-borne fashion.

The story: Charlie finds it hard to get food without money and still harder to get a position. He rescues a stray hound from a pack of dogs and this hound finally brings him good luck. He gets a wallet of money, wins the love of a pretty girl and after marrying her settles down to a contented and peaceful life on the farm.

Wonderful snow scenes and the attractiveness of the star do much to make “The Purple Lily” fair entertainment.

There is an inconsistency, however, about the story which is made more involved and difficult to follow by the number of cut-backs used.

Miss Gordon is again cast in the familiar role of an adventureress. She is the wife of a man possessed of a mania for gambling and when he has lost his fortune on the gambling table, enters into a plot to steal the result of a survey of valuable lands. Through an expose of the affair her husband leaves her and she pays society for his crime and she returns to the home of her father in the north woods and contentment.

The story: Marie Farnsworth and her husband have reached the end of their means through his penchant for the gambling table and agrees to aid Sir Philip Bradley in the theft of the survey to mining lands. She goes north, works herself into the confidence of James Caldwell, the surveyor, and obtains the survey only to find her return to civilization that she has been duped by her husband and Bradley. "And a little child shall lead them" is the lesson brought home by Zoe Rae in "The Danger Within," which is a whole-some, heart-interest story well enacted. While the plot of the play—a hardened, self-centered old man restored to contentment and kindness through a child—has been used again and again, it never fails of human appeal and this production should prove to be no exception to the rule.

Intelligent direction is evident throughout and a capable cast supports the child star. It should be entertaining for both children and adults and ought to prove a strong drawing card especially in neighborhood houses.

The story: Little Dolly Paulton, overhearing her father tell her crippled mother that the operation so sorely needed cannot be had because of the expense of raising a family, is heartbroken and determined to be no longer a burden. She applies to old Wedgestone, a crusty millionaire, for the position of cook, and while he is ordering her from the house, a Quarantine is put on his residence as a part of a plot to ruin him in Wall street. Through this, Mrs. Paulton and her enemies take advantage of Dolly, Wedgestone's capable chief clerk. Tom Paulton, Dolly's father, is employed in Wedgestone's office and when the millionaire becomes aware of the plot, Dolly, through a ruse, gets word to her father, who successfully defends Wedgestone from the conspirators of his enemies. Through association with Dolly, Wedgestone changes for the better, giving the Paultons a deed for the house they live in and makes him chief clerk of his establishment.

There are times when a story chosen for the production of a drama is a choice not infrequently made for that part. Such is the case in "Who Killed Walton." J. Barney Sherry, in the role of a political boss, powerful but just, who has built his strength through a perfect understanding of the people and their weaknesses, fulfills his role at home through the characterization and imparts human interest to the production.

While the death of Walton is not as mysterious as it might be, there is enough suspense clothed about the discovery of the cause of his demise to make this five-reel Triangle good entertainment. Mary Mersch plays opposite Mr. Sherry and capably depicts Marian Emlen, the authoress. Edwin Brady, Dora Rodgers and Frank Bonn also have prominent parts in the well-balanced cast.

The story: George Hamilton, political power, has offered his love to Marian Emlen, a young authoress, but she has given her heart to Austin Booth, a professional reformer. Through the completion of a novel she is thrown into contact with Farnum Walton, an illustrator, and profligate. Under the guise of business he takes her to a notorious cafe, where she discovers his Designs. She is directed by a fairy spell and regains consciousness to find herself in his studio and him dead. The mystery is cleared up by a former sweetheart of the dead man, who was with him on the night of his death. Booth breaks his engagement when he learns of the affair, and Hamilton is rewarded by her love.

Mitchell Lewis, star of "The Bar Sinister," does virile acting as the trigger, Jules Leneau, in this well-told story of the great Northwoods. The story is full of heart interest, is well directed, and contains many exciting scenes.

A baby, little Breezy Reeves, is an interesting feature of the picture. He plays with a poise that would do credit to many actors. The cast is efficient. Jimmie Maye plays the wife in a sympathetic way. She has an appealing personnel and contributes some exquisite touches to the character of the simple young mother, whose child is taken from her. Reaves Nason, and Julius Frankenbog also do good work. In this day of eternal triumphs, it is a relief to see a picture as wholesome as this offering.

The story: Jules Leneau and his wife, Jane, living in a cabin in the Northwoods, are inseparable after the death of their only child, a daughter. The plotters are led through the scheme of Red Adair and his partner, who live below the Leneaus, a child is kidnapped and brought to the woods. The kidnapped child wanders away and falls into a bear trap set by Jules, who discovers him there. He is adopted by Jules and his wife, because of her joy, Jules does not try to discover where the child came from. Many exciting incidents are woven into the story by the attempts of Red Adair to recover the child by fair means or foul. Through him, Jules learns where the child belongs and resolves to give him up, in spite of Jane's pleadings. She is about to cast herself from the top of a cliff, when the story is cleverly brought to a happy and unexpected ending.

This Theda Bara Fox six-reel. Theda Bara's triumph is put on with all the lavishly, splendid sets and impressive casts which have characterized her previous pictures but does not quite come up to the standard. The interior of the temple Buddha, the sacred gardens, oriental dances, fire eaters and snake charmers, are some of the outstanding features of the play which owe much of its impressiveness to excellent photography.

Theda Bara is again cast in the role of a vampire. An East Indian girl, she forsakes the Buddhist religion for marriage with an English army officer, tires of him, has countless affairs with other men and finally meets her death at the height of her career at the hands of the high priest of Buddha. The latter role is capably handled by Victor Kenard.

The story: Fascinated by the lure of white robes and dancing Bara enters the temple of Buddha. She is soon disillusioned and yields to the entreaties of Major John Dare of the British army to join him and becomes his wife, incurring the enmity of Ysora, the high priest of the Buddhist faith. A child is born to the two, which is later found dead with the Buddhist death mark on its forehead. This withers the soul of Bara, who leads her husband around the globe in search of happiness. Hardened by sorrow, she turns against Dare and bids him be gone. A visit to a Paris resort results in her acquaintance with a theatrical manager who is fascinated by her dancing. She accepts an offer to appear at his theatre. On the night of her premiere her husband unsuccessful in his attempt at a reconciliation, suicides in her dressing room and she meets her death at the conclusion of her dance at the hands of Ysora.

Frank Keenan in "The Bells"
"The Bells," made famous by Sir Henry Irving, the celebrated English actor, has been immaterialized for the screen by Frank Keenan and will be published by the Pathé Exchange, Inc., as a Pathé play, on the selective feature booking service, it is announced.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Keanen, who have seen Frank Keenan's interpretation of the role of "Matilda," and have seen Irving and Mansfield in the same role, say that Keenan's screen interpretation suffers nothing in comparison with those of the two celebrated actors.

The part of "Matilda" affords Mr. Keenan, it is said, as great an opportunity for his dramatic powers as the role he enacted in "Loaded Dice," the Pathé play in which he scored a hit and which has been favorably commented upon by reviewers from coast to coast.

"The Revelation" offers exhibitors an exceedingly well produced picture, a wonderfully impressive story, an actress of exceptional ability who gives a portrayal that is very convincing and the general makeup of the production provides high class as well as interesting entertainment.

No doubt many will remember Nazimova in "War Brides," where she gave a wonderful performance, but her leading role in "The Revelation" is even greater. She is entirely original in her little mannerisms, which are bound to capture her spectators and she has been surrounded with a very good cast. The picture is supposed to be in Paris; in a little French village, in which there are many splendid scenes of an old monastery; and in a hospital for wounded soldiers where Nazimova and her artist lover are reunited.

The story: Joline, a young artist, attracts the attentions of a young man, and she consents to pose for him. He receives a commission to paint a picture of the Madonna at the side of a sacred rosebush in a monastery. The events bring to a crisis Nazimova's life, and she leaves Paul to devote the rest of her life to a good cause. The war again reunites the twain, her, and a soldier, and Joline a nurse, is called upon to attend him.

The evils of divorce are vividly set forth in "The Blindness of Divorce," the latest Fox standard production, and the story should make interesting entertainment for houses where melodramatic pictures are favorably received.

The consequences of which lead up to divorce as screened in this production is sometimes weak and unconvincing, and while there are cases where people go ahead and obtain separation decrees without an explanation or an attempt at reconciliation, it seems that in real life there are many instances of persons are more level headed and the courts make more of an investigation than the case in this story received.

However, there is a pleasing cast which does good work and should make a favorable impression on audiences. The excellent direction and careful story adds to the interest of the production and it proved entertaining to audiences at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, last week.

The story: John Langdon divorces his wife when he finds her in what he supposes to be compromising position. He takes his little daughter with him. Fifteen years later his daughter marries the district attorney. The attorney raids a notorious gambling house and finds his wife is one of those caught. He sues her for divorce. On the witness stand Claire, owner of the gambling house, tells that she is the defendant's mother and that the defendant had visited her to ascertain whether or not she was her mother. The judge who is to pass sentence is the man responsible for the Langdon divorce, and after Miss Langdon tells her story the judge resigns, the husband forgives and the daughter and attorney are reunited.

"Rich Man, Poor Man" affords Miss Clark a part quite different from the fairy tale roles in which she has been appearing recently, and needlessly to say she is delightful in her delineation.

The story, while not portentous in construction, has been very well handled and the excellent direction makes of it interesting entertainment. While there are little touches of pathos throughout the story, it contains excellent humor and will tend to lessen the tension of one's worries.

Marguerite Clark, who stands alone in her particular class of entertainment, does much to make the story enjoyable. Supporting are Richard Barthelmess, George Beasus, Frederick Warde, Donald Clayton and Augusta Anderson. The story is adapted by George Broadhurst from the novel by Maximilian Foster.

The story: After the death of her mother, Betty Wyne becomes the duirge of the boarding house until one of her friends introduces her to the grandson of John K. Beeston. When the decease is discovered Betty makes such impression upon Beeston that he insists she remain, and since the man she loves is the real man, she quickly consents to remain a member of the Beeston household.

Arthur Guy Empey in "OVER THE TOP"

The much discussed "Over the Top," featuring Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey, was given a private showing to exhibitors of Chicago and vicinity, and was well received. The story is adapted from the book written by Sergeant Empey. Robert Gordon Anderson wrote the scenario. The production is a timely one and at times fires one with the ambition to be up and doing.

In the nine reels are embraced scenes of recruiting, German plotting and blowing up a munitions factory; the abduction of a girl of a wealthy family, Empey's joining the army to lead the British to victory, the triumph of the German oppressor, and the rescue of his sweetheart.

There is also an interesting story of a youth played by James Morrison, who joins the army but who fees in terror at the noise of shot and shell, and who later proves a hero by using a machine gun to save his fellow men, giving up his life that they might live.

Many of the incidents are too long-drawn-out and actionless. The best part of the story, and the only time Mr. Empey is given an opportunity to do real work, is in the last two reels, when he leads the boys to attack the Germans, is taken prisoner and is called in to witness the marriage ceremony of his sweetheart to a German spy. It is here where he really makes good, and in the last case he is given his opportunity to do real work.

The story: Helen Lloyd is kidnapped by Friederich von Emden and taken to Germany. Her sweetheart, Garry Owen, and her brother, Albert, enlist and go to war in hopes of finding Helen in addition to aiding the allies. At first Albert sees from his troop, frightened by the noise, but comes back and by his operation of a machine gun, saves his company, though he gives up his life. Garry is captured and taken to the same castle which is where little friedrich, an off moment, escapes the guards, kills Friederich, and-brings Helen safely to the American lines.

Desmond Star of "An Honest Man"

"An Honest Man," forthcoming Triangle drama in which William Desmond will play the title role, is said to be an interesting psychological study, with a very suggestive casting. Desmond is cast as Benny Boggs, happy-go-lucky tramp, whose law-breaking has been of an innocent order, due to his artistic desire to avoid walking which he and his brother have earned to keep up the suggestion. With fifty thousand dollars in his pocket, Benny traveled his way starving and in want until he discharged his mission and won the love of a beautiful girl. Mary Warren has the leading female role. Ann Kroman and Graham Pette are in the supporting cast. Frank Borzage directed. Henry P. Down wrote the story.

"At the Mercy of Men" is an example of how an improbable story can be worked up into an absorbingly interesting dramatic production. Admirers of Miss Brady, who recall her previous characterization of a young Russian girl, will undoubtedly be pleased with her delineation of the role of Vera Soroff. She handles it in a very satisfactory manner.

Frank Morgan again plays the leading male role and Charles Miller is responsible for the direction. The scene of the story is laid in Russia at a time when the peasant classes were rising in revolt against the house of Romanoffs. There is a riot scene where the mob endeavors to attack the barracks and torture three of the Czar's guards, under arrest for their attack on one of the girls of the working class. The happy conclusion of the story is reached easily and in a likeable manner.

The story: On her return home one evening Vera Soroff is attacked by three members of the Czar's royal guard. News of the attack reaches the Czar and he demands that the guilty man marry the girl and that all three men be arrested to await trial. But a suitor of Vera's, leads the working class in an attack on the barracks in which the three men are held. Two of the guards are killed and Vera goes to the rescue of the one she married and they come to a happy understanding.

For any intelligent audience or one demanding a logical plot, it is entirely out of the question.

Supporting Miss Lovely are Philo McCullough, Winter Hall and Edna Mason. The story is from the pen of Harry Gates.

The story: Lee Brooks returns from a hunting trip to learn that his father has become enamored of a South American beauty. He decides to visit her. Arrived at the hotel, he finds her. Ricardo, quite a fascinating young person and persuades her to marry him. Later he learns that she was put upon by a modiste's helper, delivering gowns to Mme. Ricardo, but the hotel clerk had mistaken her and so she was forced to pose as the modiste herself.

To admirers of Edith Storey, "Treasure of the Sea," should prove a joy. And for those who are not acquainted with this star's work, it will prove enjoyable if they are interested in good screen entertainment with a star that combines ability and grace in so charming a manner.

The story: A star has been handled along out-of-the-ordinary lines and proved a pleasing attraction to patrons of Chicago's Bos- ton theatre. It is the story of a father and daughter, who have been ruined and to revenge themselves on those whom they believe to be guilty, the plot against him only to find that their vicious attacks have been misplaced and the victim is innocent of any wrong-doing. Lewis Cody makes a pleasant victim.

The story: When Ruth Elkins meets James Hardwick she plans some way to avenge her father's loss of millions through Hardwick. At about the same time they discover an old ship and plan to look for the treasure. James gets ahead of Ruth and cleans the town of tools and men. Ruth follows up with ruffians and after the gold is located Ruth's men attack James' men and confiscate the gold. Ruth makes James a prisoner and then learns that he is innocent and his father's trusted friend is the real culprit. The story ends pleasantly.

German propaganda and Mexican plotting enter into the story; there are many humorous scenes picturing the attempt of cowboys in evening dress to look at ease; the abduction of a pretty girl by Mexicans and her thrilling rescue by the hero; a quaint Virginia reel and many other little touches which give the picture a strong appeal.

TOM MIX IN AN EXCITING SCENE FROM "WESTERN BLOOD."
(Wm. Fox.)

For audiences fond of Tom Mix, "Western Blood" ought to prove a big attraction and for any theatre wishing a program feature with laugh producing possibilities the picture is adaptable. Lynn Reynolds wrote the story.

The story: Tex Wilson meets Roberta Stephens and falls a victim to her charms. Tex's occupation is the raising of horses for the government. Mexican rebels, inspired by a German spy, contemplate a raid on the ranch house and stage it on the same evening Tex is entertaining Roberta and her father. Roberta is carried off when she steps outside the house and Tex, missing her, takes up what he believes to be a trail, which brings him to the shack in which Roberta is a prisoner. After a thrilling combat he brings her safely back.

Rupert Julian Cast as Detective; Carmel Myers in Role of French Maid

"The Shadowed Man" is the working title of Rupert Julian's next photodrama. The creator of "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin" will play the detective role, as the name suggests. Ruth Clifford, who has been co-starred with Julian and with Monroe Salisbury during the past few productions, will have the stellar feminine role.

Carmel Myers, who had Italian characterizations in "My Unmarried Wife" and "The Wine Girl", has been cast in the role of a little French maid in "My Parisian Sweetheart," her latest production. The final touches will be given to the drama next week under the direction of Joseph De Grasse. A cast including Edwin August, Andrew Robson and Lule (Mother) Warrenton are seen in support of the star.

All the usual complications of the old-time melodrama form the basis of this story. The trite plot, however, is so excellently handled by Julius Steger that one almost fails to recognize it in its new dress. Miss Nesbit is convincing, especially as the young country girl. There is some good photography and a well directed cast. The picture will undoubtedly have a wide circulation, as it is the type of picture that the public likes. Miss Banks, who plays the aunt does some pleasing work. Lois Meredith is the "other woman." Miss Nesbit was unfortunate in her choice of a gown for her big scene, as it was extremely unbecoming.

The Story: Rose Hale, a young mountain girl, finds a wealthy young society man, Ralph Van Cort, lost in the forests surrounding her home. She falls in love with him but he returns to the city to marry a society girl, to whom he had been engaged for some time. The girl learning that his uncle has more wealth than Ralph, breaks the engagement and marries the Uncle. Ralph remembering the truth and sincerity of the mountain girl, returns to the Adirondacks and marries her. They go to New York to live. Ralph and his former fiancée resume their love affair after a few years. Rose sacrifices her own happiness to prevent the other woman's husband from discovering his wife's faithlessness. The climax comes in a private room of a houseboat. In the end Rose's husband, realizing his mistake, comes for her and their child at the old home where Rose has taken refuge.

"Dolly Does Her Bit" is an average program feature with a timely theme and if child productions and particularly Marie Osborne have proven good attractions, this picture should go well as it is as good as anything this child star has done.

The story, from the pen of Lucy Sarver, attempts to show a number of society matron's endeavoring to raise a fund for the Red Cross. A mechanical doll is to be the special feature of the campaign, but the doll becomes broken and Dolly, niece of the woman who designed the costume for the doll, poses in its place. In addition to gathering in a lot of money, she is successful in bringing to justice a gang of crooks.

The story: When the doll, which is to be the special attraction at the Red Cross bazaar, becomes broken, Dolly essays to portray the role. After a large sum of money has been collected Dolly is taken into the Corning home where she brings happiness to the little invalid daughter. She is successful in bringing to justice a band of notorious crooks, when they break into the Corning home.

Containing a slight war angle which, through excellent camera work is made distinctly effective, "A Mother's Secret" presents only a fair brand of entertainment—slightly below the average in program features. The star was unappealing in a role totally uninfitted for her. It was impossible for her to adapt herself to the clothes of a thirteen-year-old and get away with it.

Concerning the matrimonial career of a woman who believed a daughter eighteen years of age would interfere with her plans to annex money through marriage, the story is an interesting one. Mary Mersch, as Lady Sybil Eldone, did creditable work.

The story: Lady Eldone, made a widow through the accurate fire of German artillery, leaves for America, intent upon marrying money, inasmuch as her sole legacy is plans for a long range gun perfected prior to his death by Lord Eldone. Her campaign of conquest with a volunteer worker in the U.S. secret service is complicated by the arrival of an eighteen year old daughter, whom she had not seen since the death of her first husband. Lord Eldone, the daughter, is compelled to make her home as a girl of thirteen, that her mother's plans may not be interfered with. At a masque ball she wins the love of the secret service man, but refuses to make known her identity. Later she helps in the means of defeating a plot of German agents to steal the plans of the gun, but the volunteer government worker recognizes her as the girl of his choice. Lady Eldone's happiness is realized when her husband appears on the scene and says reports of his death were untrue.

Essanay announces that it has met with such success with the first ten of its revived Broncho Billy dramas of the hills and plains that it will follow these with another set of ten Broncho Billy pictures, probably beginning May 10.

The pictures, which are being distributed through the George Kleine system, are one-reel subjects and have been found by exhibitors to be an excellent addition to any program. They have been booked in the majority of cases by the entire block of ten, the exhibitor running them on a special night each week, it is said.

New prints are made on all the pictures by new process photography which has enhanced the beauty greatly. Mostly outdoor scenes, the photography, under the new process treatment, stands out with unusual clearness and sharpness.

The beautiful western scenery and the daring riding has proved a great attraction to young and old alike, and exhibitors report that all the pictures so far released have been received with enthusiasm.

It is possible that another block of ten of the Snakeville comedies will be issued. They feature the comedians Slippy Slim, Sophie Cluths and Mustang Pete. These comedies have proved to be excellent attractions with feature programs and have been favorably received by the photoplay public. They are exceptionally fast moving slapstick, it is stated, and provocative of hilarious laughter.

“A MOTHER’S SECRET” Postponed

The Triangle play, "Hundredth Night," which was scheduled as the second feature for the week of May 26 has been taken off the schedule for the present and "The Mosshack," featuring William V. Mong and Pauline Starke has been substituted in its place.
William Fox Announces May Schedule
For Special Features and Comedies

William Fox's schedule of May pictures in the Special Features is now made up and Mr. Fox announces that the pictures will be these, issued in the order given:

George Walsh in " Brave and Bold;" Peggy Hyland in " Peg of the Pirates;" Virginia Pearson in " The Firebrand;" and June Caprice in " Blue-Eyed Mary." Henry Lehrman's first starring production in May will be published under the title of " A Neighbor's Keyhole."

" Brave and Bold," for Walsh

" Brave and Bold;" says the Fox announcement, "is an action story well seasoned with romance. Carl Harbaugh, who made his directorial debut with the Fox organization in " A Daughter of France," Victor Sutherland returns to play the leading masculine part.

The last Special Feature of the month will be " Blue-Eyed Mary," an appealing screen story in which June Caprice has stellar honors. Harry Millarde is staging this production. The cast includes Helen Tracy, Blanche Hines, Bernard Randall, Thomas Fallon, Jack McLean, Florence Ashbrook and Helen Hallam.

Peggy Hyland's new feature, " Peg of the Pirates," her second Fox production, will be notable, among other things, for its splendid ocean scenes. The company spent more than six weeks on the Atlantic and along the Coast near Charleston, S. C. O. A. C. Lund was in charge of the drama and has obtained many artistic effects. A large cast is used in the interpretation of the story.

Virginia Pearson in War Film

"A powerful drama of wartime Russia is the vehicle in which Virginia Pearson will next be seen. The picture is called 'The Firebrand.' The direction is by Edmund Lawrence, who made his directorial debut with the Fox production in ' A Daughter of France.' Victor Sutherland returns to play the leading masculine part.

The last Special Feature of the month will be ' Blue-Eyed Mary,' an appealing screen story in which June Caprice has stellar honors. Harry Millarde is staging this production. The cast includes Helen Tracy, Blanche Hines, Bernard Randall, Thomas Fallon, Jack McLean, Florence Ashbrook and Helen Hallam.

The Bud Fisher-Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons for the first three weeks will be: ' A Fisherless Cartoon,' ' Oc- culism' and ' Superintendents.' The fourth will soon be announced. The other Sunshine Comedies for May will also be made known shortly."

Clara Kimball Young in "The Reason Why"

In marked contrast to the severe settings and plain clothes of her recent Select Picture, " The House of Glass," Clara Kimball Young, in her latest production, "The Reason Why," to be published the last week in April, appears on the screen attired in one beautiful costume after another, it is said.

The settings, too, of " The Reason Why," are in keeping with its sentiment of raptures. The fact that "Lucille," Lady Duff Gordon, designed the costumes for Clara Kimball Young to wear in " The Reason Why," which is from the pen of Lucille's sister, Elinor Glyn, adds further interest, especially in the eyes of the women who see this picture, to the beautiful raiment displayed on the screen.

Miss Sills, Miss Young's leading man, and Frank Losec, both seasoned actors from the speaking stage, are chief in the Select star's support. "The Reason Why," is the struggle of a young wife to hold aloft the position in the aristocratic family into which she has married, shortly after her arrival in England from the Continent, where she has led a somewhat eventful existence.

Double Role for Billie Rhodes

Billie Rhodes, the clever comedienne playing in Mutual-Strand comedies, does a double role in "Spotted," the comedy for April, is Bob and Bull. Begoggled, mustached and in livery, Billie plays the part of chauffeur and, in black dress and white apron, she appears as a man.

The plot revolves around the desire of a pretty heiress to be "loved for herself alone," who turns her house over to a couple of friends who entertain a handsome young relative, who falls in love with the maid, and finally proposes marriage, heeding her mother's advice, and finds that she has proposed to a vigorously wooed debutante.

How D'yuh Mean That, Billy?

From the Chicago Tribune

Billy Sunday divided the night with Douglas Fairbanks, the movie star, at the big tabernacle on the lake shore. "Doug" came to sell Liberty Bonds and for the first half hour the big audience experienced many thrills. . . .

After the excitement was over Billy preached on the text: "Be sure your sin will find you out."

Our "Flin' Line" correspondent is putting up an awful fight to make the projection room safe for reviewers. The pagings of salesmen attacks have been repulsed with slight losses and they are now in full retreat.

Another Landmark Gone

The Dramatic Mirror offices move from Forty-fourth street and Broadway, New York, to West Thirty-ninth street.

According to one of the Chicago dailies, Wm. S. Hart and company of players, "while taking scenes for 'Shark Monroe' in the mountains of California, met with a heavy squall and several actors were disabled. This ought to put the quietus on taking sea scenes in the mountains."

Margaret Fisher, the American-Mutual star is Hooverizing some more. She has cut the "CO" out of Fisher.

Hints to Exhibitors

Prepared by a trained staff

Another plan to draw attention to "The Scarlet Shirt" is to go about town with a bucket of red paint the evening previous to your opening and drop gobbs of the mixture every few yards on the sidewalk. See that the entire city is covered (if New York or Chicago, it will take several cans of paint; smaller towns much less, of course) and do it quietly. On the morning of the picture's opening have the newspapers play the story up on the front page in red letters a foot high, kid- ding everyone along as a press agent usually does. Before spreading the paint have everything fixed with the authorities so as not to get into trouble, or they may throw you and the paint into the East river or Lake Mich. as the case may be.

In like manner, if you're bookling "The Diamond From the Sky," buy a quantity of steel blue diamonds (these are more brilliant at night) and scatter them all over the burg, city or township, as the case may be. It will create comment and make good business.

For "The Trap," the night before you play that feature place a few bear traps near your theatre, preferably just around the corner where unsuspecting pedestrians will fall into them. Explain to the mangled victims that you are running the film when you are summoned to release them.
Clever Camerawork

Many unique and novel effects are obtained by the motion picture camera in the hands of a clever cameraman, by employing what is known as the double exposure. Dual roles have thus been made possible on the screen, something not heretofore feasible upon the speaking stage.

AN INTERESTING EXAMPLE OF THE CAMERA'S ADAPTABILITY, SHOWING HAROLD LOCKWOOD IN A SCENE FROM THE YORK-METRO PLAY, "LEND ME YOUR NAME."

Two examples of original photographic effects recently obtained are herewith shown. One picture shows Harold Lockwood enacting the role of the Earl of Gilleigh in "Lend Me Your Name," a Metro five-part comedy, while he also appears in several scenes opposite himself in the role of a second-story man. In the scenes played by the two characters, Cameraman Gaudio has displayed remarkable skill, it is said.

GLADYS BROCKWELL, FOX STAR, HAS PLAYED MANY DUAL ROLES. HERE IS A REMARKABLE PHOTO SHOWING MISS BROCKWELL DOUBLING FOR HERSELF IN "HER ONE MISTAKE."

In "Her One Mistake," Miss Brockwell's latest Fox drama, she appears as Harriet Gordon and also as Peggy Malone, two widely different characters. This picture was staged and directed by Edward J. LeSaint.

Few people realize the ingenuity required to obtain these effects and that they are only possible in the hands of an expert cameraman. Special attention has to be paid to lighting effects, as well as the camerawork, to make a perfect picture.

Triangle to Publish "High Stakes"

With Barney Sherry as Featured Star

A crook story, with J. Barney Sherry in the leading role as a modern Raffles, has been put into production during the past week at Culver City. Jack Conway is directing the drama, which is titled "High Stakes," which was written by Andrew Soutar. Jane Miller will make her initial appearance as a Triangle player as Sherry's leading woman. The supporting cast also includes Harvey Clark, Myrtle Risbey, Ben Lewis and J. P. Wild.

The second feature production commenced during the week is "Old Hartwell's Cub," Thomas N. Heffron, who directed Desmond in "The Sudden Gentleman" and "The Se. Panther," is directing Will Desmond has the title role. Harry Edwards has started on the third new picture of the week, a two-reel comedy which is yet untitled. Billy Faren and Maxie Borgen have the featured role.

Western Story Nears Completion

Cliff Smith is putting the finishing touches to the Triangle western, "Wolves of the Border," Roy Stewart's latest vehicle. This story was formerly titled "A Man Worth While." Josie Sedwick has the leading feminine role.

Director Frank Borzage is finishing exteriors on "The Loyalty of Taro San," a picture of old Japan. This is a screen adaptation of the story by the same name by E. Magnus Ingerston, author of "Her American Husband." Jack Livingston, who played opposite Pauline Starke in 'Innocent's Progress,' is the featured player. Jack Abbe, Oriental actor, is Taro San. Maude Wayne, former Keystone comedienne, has her first dramatic role in this production. The cast also includes Lillian West and Lillian Lang.

During the week just passed three feature pictures have been sent to the film editors. "Mlle. Paulette," a comedy drama laid in the Adirondacks, was directed by Raymond Wells. Waiker MacDougal and Claire Anderson have the featured roles. Gloria Swanson and J. Barney Sherry have the leading parts in "Her Decision," just completed under the direction of Jack Conway. Darrell Foss, who was featured in "Her American Husband," has a prominent part as Ann Kromer is in the cast. The plot is based on a girl's sacrifice to save her sister, who has been betrayed.

A John A Moros story, "The Lonely Woman," is the third picture finished during the week. A Hudson river town in the vicinity of Sing Sing provides the locale of the story which portrays the struggles of a wife who attempts to save her husband from a long term sentence. He has been unjustly convicted on circumstantial evidence. Belle Bennett has the featured role. Thomas N. Heffron directed.

Metro Films "The Demon"

Edith Story has begun work in "The Demon," the star's next vehicle on the Metro program, at the west coast studios in Hollywood. In this production Miss Story is directed by George D. Baker. Mr. Baker also made the adaptation for the screen.

"The Demon" is a picturization of the novel of the same name by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. The scenes are laid in Corsica, Algiers and the United States.

Holubar Directs Dorothy Phillips

Dorothy Phillips, Bluebird's emotional star, has begun working in a new society drama, which is being directed by Allen J. Holubar. William Stowell, who has been seen with Miss Phillips in numerous productions, will be her leading man. "Discipline and Grooming," the play upon which the photoplay is based, is the story of a young girl, too closely cloistered from worldly affairs by a Puritanical father, who when released from the family fireside and protection finds the dizzy maze of the world too complicated for her to navigate.
"A Son of Democracy" (Paramount)—Reel 1, view of colored woman able to waist and woman putting shawl around her. Reel 2, subtitles: "All these...every inch, every part...why not let me be an artist?" In taking shawl off of nude girl as the stands on auction block; auctioneer gives shawl and throwing shawl back to girl; two scenes of woman exposing bare breast to hugger child; slave owner slugging man; shooting at men firing on pier.

"Paths of Darkness" (Unicorn)—Reel 1, subtitles: "I'm thru hanging out new women...I was a good woman until you met me." Why not let me be...stereographer?" and embrace of man and woman after subtitle. Reel 2, shots of man and woman in scene of man singing eye and scene of axe descending; girl drinking at bar; Korean woman in saloon; striking man over head with bottle; woman in garb of nun.

"Hickory Hiram" (Nestor)—All scenes of man in underwear after screen, fat man hammering other man with stomach.

"A Waiter's Waistline Life" (Fox)—Reel 2, man on engine thumbing nose.

"The Boss of the Lazy Y" (Triangle)—Reel 1, shooting of Marsten; subtitles: "Well, son, I got him that time." Reel 4, reducing shootings, including claps to half. Reel 5, two shadow scene shootings and reduce to half all sex dull shooting scenes.

"Twenty-One" (Pathes)—Reel 5, first and third tough dance scenes; close of girl drinking at table; six actual fight scenes in first prize fight; six final fight scenes in second prize fight.

U. S. Booking Corp. Buys Two Features "Men" and "The Crucible of Life"

Two new productions have been added to the list of attractions acquired by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation. Frank G. Hall, president of the concern, announces "Men," the block-buster of the American and "The Crucible of Life," from the pen of Harry S. Leonide, and "The Crucible of Life," starring Grace Darmond. Both subjects will be distributed through the Foursquare exchanges in the United States and Canada. Embracing an all-star cast, headed by Charlotte Walker and Gertrude McCoy, "Men" is said to be the most absorbing dramatic production of the year. It was produced by the Bacon-Backer interests.

"The Crucible of Life," purchased from the Authors Film Company, Inc., is a seven-part melodrama of society and the great war, and was adapted from the Broadway stage success. "Fairfax," by Bartley Campbell. Featured in the case Grace Darmond and Jack Sherrill and others who have important roles are Frank O'Connor, Winifred Harris and Edwin Forsberg.

"Social Briars" Next Minter Film

The next production from the studios of the American Film Company, Inc., starring Mary Miles Minter, will be published as "Social Briars," on the Mutual schedule, May 5. It was produced under the working title of "The Greater Call."

Eight New Triangle Plays for May;
With William Desmond Heading List

The Triangle Distributing Corporation has announced its May schedule of features which include in addition to society dramas and westerns, a romance of the Adirondacks and a Japanese-American drama. Margery Wilson, William Desmond, Roy Stewart, Gloria Swanson and J. Barney Sherry are among the featured players of the month.

William Desmond heads the May Triangle list in "An Honest Man," which is described as an interesting psychological drama. Mary Warren has the leading feminine part. Henry P. Dowst wrote the story. Frank Borzage directed.

"Mlle. Paullette" is the second feature of the week of May 5. Frank Condon, Saturday Evening Post writer, who has recently joined the Triangle forces, scenarioized the story by George Anderson. The Adirondack mountains provide the locale for the greater part of the play; the remaining scenes show society life in New York. Wallace MacDonald, and Claire Anderson have the leading roles.

Gloria Swanson in "Her Decision"
The week of May 12 opens with "Her Decision." Jack Conway directed this drama, which features Gloria Swanson in her screen dramatic role. Betty Field is featured opposite her in a fine-sister role. J. Barney Sherry has the leading masculine role. Darrell Foss and Ann Kroman have prominent parts.

Roy Stewart is featured in "Wolves of the Border," the second picture of the week. This story, formerly titled, "A Man Worth While," was written by Alvin J. Neitz, and deals with life on the Mexican-U. S. frontier, showing the struggle of the young wings with the Moqui Indians and cattle rustlers. Josie Sedgwick is the leading woman. A Japanese-American drama, "The Loyalty of Taro Sam," heads the May 19 program. This is a screen adaptation of the story by the same name by E. M. Ingleton, author of "Her American Husband." Jack Livingston, has the title role of the young American lawyer. William Desmond, in "Old Hartwell's Cuh" follows.

Alice Brady and Clara K. Young
On Select Program of Features

Star Series productions on the eve of public showings by Select Pictures Corporation will include Alice Brady's latest picture, "At the Mercy of Men," and Clara Kimball Young's production of Elinor Glyn's story, "The Reason Why," as well as the previously announced Constance Talmadge feature, "The Material Girl.

"At the Mercy of Men" is said to be one of the most ambitious of work which Miss Brady has yet done for the screen. The play is a love story of modern Russia, and the cutting and editing of the scenes has been most ingeniously done. Alice Brady has a role in this play which gives her ample scope for a great variety of work. Select announces.

That the author of "Three Weeks" is the author of "The Reason Why" is a guaranty of the heart interest in this latest Clara Kimball Young's Select production. Elinor Glyn was most enthusiastic when she learned that the distinguished Select star desired to present her successful novel on the screen, and she signed a contract giving Miss Young the screen rights while still at an advance base hospital nursing English wounded in France.

Miss Young has given the Glyn masterpiece a notable production. Lady Duff Gordon, known as Lucelle in the world of fashion, designed Miss Young's gowns for the production. Milton Sills is Miss Young's leading man in this production, and Robert G. Vignola has directed the making of the picture.

Miss Minter in Saturday Post Story

"The Ghost of Rosy Taylor," adapted from the story in the Saturday Evening Post by Josephine Daskam Dodge and in which Miss Minter of the American Film Company will be starred, is said to be the most pretentious story in which the little screen star has yet been featured. Edward Szman is directing the feature.

Red Cross Drama For Marie Osborne
Tops Pathe's Program for April

Baby Marie Osborn in a Red Cross drama, "Dolly in Her Bit," the eight episode of "The House of Hate" as Lloyd and a Toto comedy, are headliners of Pathe's program for April 28.

"Dolly Does Her Bit" is said to be one of the most exciting pictures in which Baby Marie Osborn has ever appeared. It is a story of patriotism, thrilling and light comedy woven into the adventures of Dolly and a Red Cross doll.

The eighth episode of "The House of Hate" is replete with thrilling, mystery and, at the end, the little heroine finds root against the Hooded Terror in the hotel of the dyed Malayan river. The Hooded Terror is trying to force her against the gerrn-laden paper. But he is foiled by her cleverness and the timely arrival of the New York Police.

Harold Lloyd's comedy offering is "Hey, There," dueted by Rolin for Pathe. It deals with Lloyd's adventure in a studio where most of the actors are crazy.

The Toto comedy, "His Busy Day," shows the comedian as a cameraman for the news weekly. He attends a big downtown fire, an outdoor dance and a circus.

The program also includes "Picturesque Wales—Landlady's Song," "Picture of England," and "Beautiful Pathes." Pathe travel scenes. Hearst-Pathes News No. 36 and No. 37 are published on this program.

Divorce Evil Play for Billie Burke

Sardou's play, "Divorces," which has been adapted to screen by John Logan and R. D. Looms, is the star vehicle for Billie Burke on the Paramount program, and under the title of "Let's Get a Divorce.

"Hearts or Diamonds" Russell Feature
On Mutual Schedule for April

"Hearts or Diamonds," the first picture produced by William Russell Productions, is the feature of Mutual's schedule for the week of April 29. The story was selected by Mr. Russell himself, it is said, as one offering opportunities for the characteristic Russell spectacular action. The scenario is by William Parker for a story by William Hamilton Osborne.

The hero of the story, Larry Hanrahan, is a collection of precious stones. He meets and becomes infatuated with Adrienne Gascoyne, a beautiful girl whose father poses as a chemist who has discovered a method of making diamonds. In reality Gascoyne is the head of a band of international diamond thieves. When Larry is robbed of his precious collection of jewels, he traces the thieves to Gascoyne's home; where after a thrilling fight the crooks are apprehended. Adrienne is shown to be innocent of any complicity in the robbery and ignorant of her father's criminal operations. The question of "Hearts or Diamonds" is resolved for Larry at the culmination of his romance with Adrienne.

Screen Telegram issues Nos. 18 and 19 will be issued May 1 and 5; American soldiers taking their places in the Army to check the Hun offensive; Secretary McAdoo opening Liberty Loan drive in Philadelphia; the visit of Margaret Clark, the screen favorite, to Chicago to boost the sale of Liberty Bonds; baptizing of negroes in the chilly water of the Mississippi at St. Louis; scenes from the training camps and up-to-the-minute war pictures, are some of the leading issues of the week.

"Spotted," the Mutual-Strand comedy for April 30, is Billie Rhodes in a double role. It is said to be built around a novel idea, prettily staged, and well directed.

Klever Komedies in South Africa

Klever Pictures, Inc., has just entered into an arrangement with the African Film Trust, Ltd., of South Africa, whereby the latter company secures the rights to Klever Komedies for a number of years. Klever Komedies, it is said, are meeting with great success in Australia, the Scandinavian countries, other foreign markets.

Many Canadian Theatres Change Hands
And Re-open After Months of Darkness

Film Distributing Companies Buy A Number of Houses
Activities Extend to the West Coast

Toronto, Ont.—A distinct feature of the recent developments in the Canadian owning picture theatre situation is the manner in which a great many houses have been reopened after long periods of idleness or have been taken over by various interests. No less than seventy theatres can be named which have been reopened or sold, or for which negotiations are pending. Film distributing companies have taken a number of theatres and the exchange has been able to secure a fair number of offers for the theatres from owners who have not yet been really interested. Several new theatres have been built, Toronto and Hamilton, Ont., the new house in the latter city being erected by the MacKay Brothers. In Montreal the Canadian national has made a new theatre of the Holman, and the house has enjoyed a marked success since its change. Another exchange company has an entirely new house. The Palace, a long established theatre, The Comet theatre, Cote St. Paul, Montreal, has been reopened by Mr. Picard, while the Belle Theatre, a hotel, has been reopened, after being dark for two years, by the management of the Deluxé Palace, Montreal. A. Lebeau has also acquired a lease of the Maisonneuve theatre, in the suburbs of Montreal.

Seeks Amendment
To Restrictive Rule

A real effort is being made to revive the activities of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Protective Association of Ontario by President Baille, who is a former exhibitor, Palace, Montreal, long established theatre. The Comet theatre, Cote St. Paul, Montreal, has been reopened by Mr. Picard, while the Belle Theatre, a hotel, has been reopened, after being dark for two years, by the management of the Deluxé Palace, Montreal. A. Lebeau has also acquired a lease of the Maisonneuve theatre, in the suburbs of Montreal.

Must Firemen Pay Too?

Exhibitors and others of Winnipeg, Manitoba, have discovered that the new amusement tax act requires men and women or a tax on all admission tickets, covers members of the local police department. The exhibitors have received intimation that the police tax is collected from policemen who enter their premises. The question has been raised by Controller Charles F. Gray if city firemen would have to pay the tax if they were called upon to enter a theatre in the performance of their usual duties. The situation has aroused considerable comment.
Toronto Operators Dine

At the first dinner of the Toronto Moving Picture Operators, Local 152, since the start of the war in 1914, held at Young's Cafe on Wednesday evening, April 10, about 150 local operators, exchange managers and exhibitors heard a summation of the film industry from labor leaders and representatives of the moving picture business, including President W. Baille of the Moving Picture Exchange, J. A. Bristow of Ontario; Chairman Lenon of the Toronto Exchange Managers' Association, President C. A. Dentilbbeck of the Operators' Union, F. H. Richardson of New York, and W. C. Smith of the Nicholas Power Company, New York.

Announcement was made during the evening that no less than forty members of the Toronto local had been serving the colors, and eight had already been returned after doing their bit in France. So interesting were the many speeches that the meeting did not break up until 5 o'clock in the morning. Interesting exhibits were samples of a very early Biograph film and of the latest wide-screen Hodkinson film.

Novel Advertising

Through an advertising arrangement between the Temple Theatre, Hamilton, and the Hamilton Spectator a children's matinee was staged at the theatre on Saturday morning, April 10, admission to which was secured by tickets distributed in exchange for coupons clipped from the paper. Two shows were given during the morning to accommodate all the children. This plan has been found to be a fine advertising stunt. It was recently carried out in Toronto by the Allen Theatre and the Toronto Daily Star, and it has been decided to repeat the stunt in Toronto by the same interests on April 27. In Toronto there are seven designated places around the city where clipped coupons can be exchanged for admission tickets and the first applicants get the admissions. The newspaper does all the boosting.

William Harrison has resigned as manager of the Empire Theatre, London, Ontario. The theatre itself has also changed hands.

Prominent theatrical interests of Canada, with a number of moving picture theatres throughout the country, have taken an option on the Crystal Palace, St. Lawrence boulevard, Montreal.

David B. Gally of New York has become the director and leading man of the Pan-American Film Company, Ltd., which has taken over the studio of the Canadian General Features at Trenton, Ont. The leading lady selected by the new company is Marie Lambert.

Through an arrangement between the Strand Theatre, Saskatoon, Sask., and J. R. McMillan, Ltd., a local department store, and with the co-operation of a local chapter of the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, a vaudeville and fashion show was staged as a special feature of the theatre on the three succeeding nights, April 10 to 12. The program was added to the regular screen show, which included the Bluebird feature, "Morgan's Raiders."

The city council of Saskatoon, Sask., has notified the management of the Empire Theatre, Twentieth street, that extensive structural changes in the building are necessary in order to safeguard patrons against fire or panic. The theatre was sold at auction for the changes required, which included the making of several exits on the east side of the structure.

When in Toronto during the first half of the week of April 8 for an engagement at the Regent Theatre, Rita Jolivet, star of "Lest We Forget," visited all of the local military hospitals and attended to the program of the afternoon show. She even gave up one appearance at the theatre in order to entertain the convalescent soldiers.

The Rialto Theatre, Yonge and Shumler streets, Toronto, gave first run of "Parentage" during the whole week of April 13. The picture was passed by the authorities for presentation to adults only.

The Canadian executive offices of the Famous Players Film Service, Ltd., and the Famous Players Film Company, Ltd., were removed from 12 Queen street East, Toronto, to the new Allen Theatre Building, Toronto, April 13. The Toronto office will now stage all first-run Canadian films and are to be renamed Famous Players Players remains at 12 Queen street East.

A recent visitor in Toronto was Leon Schlessinger of the Inter-Ocean Film Company, New York. Mr. Schlessinger was formerly the manager of the Strand Theatre, Toronto, and local colleagues gave a dinner in his honor during his visit, which he made to arrange several special business matters.

James Crang is now the manager of the Oakwood Theatre, the fine suburban house of Toronto, recently built. He has succeeded Mr. C. Smith, general manager of the Nicholas Power Company, New York, announced that he had enlisted with the United States Army for special service in France. Mr. Smith declared that he expected to be in France in a very few weeks.

"Tarzan of the Apes" was presented in Winnipeg, Manitoba, for the first time at the Province and Gaiety Theatres during the week of April 8 under a double-header arrangement whereby the feature was presented simultaneously at the two houses. Messengers were employed to carry the reels between the two theatres, both of which are under the control of one theatre company.

Starting with the week of April 8, the Starland Theatre, Winnipeg, adopted a policy of presenting three different shows each week at 5 and 10 cent prices in the afternoon and evening, respectively.

The features presented at the Starland during the first week of this arrangement included "Dodging a Million," "Scarecrow" and "The Red and the Ensign in the Russian Revolution of 1917." The theatre is also showing "The Bull's Eye" serial, Chaplin, and other comedies.

Morning Shows Imperial

The Imperial Theatre, Montreal, a big first-run theatre under the management of H. W. Conover, started on Saturday morning matinees for children, on April 13, with the special showing of Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp. Admission is reduced 25 cent to adults $15 cents. The regular attraction at this theatre at the time was "L. Tosca," but the management adopted the policy of catering to the young audience. Manager Conover sent out 5,000 circular letters to Montreal mothers to announce the start of the children's matinees. A special feature on which the audience another special feature was an orchestra concert under the direction of J. J. Goulet at 3 p.m., in addition to the regular afternoon performance. The concert consisted of five numbers.

Phil Godiel, manager of the Francais Theatre, Montreal, has become manager of the latest Imperial. A new feature on admission tickets in that province which is the only one in Canada which does not "enjoy" special war levy or any other tax. An amusement tax act will be adopted, and the exhibitors have been anxious to conform with the officials in order to point out defects and inconveniences of the war tax laws in other parts of the Dominion.

Messrs. Jules & J. J. Allen, controlling the Famous Players' Film Service, Ltd., Toronto, and operating a considerable number of moving picture theatres in western Canada as well as in Toronto and Ottawa, have extended the scope of their operations by acquiring the Temple Theatre, Hamilton, Ont., one of the largest and best-known houses in that city. They have acquired the Beaver Theatre, West Toronto, another large house, and they are also planning to build a new theatre, seating 1,000, at Bloor and Lippincott streets, Toronto.

Along with the acquiring of the Temple Theatre, the company, through Mr. Allen, a considerable shake-up in the local theatre situation has occurred generally. The Savoy Theatre, Hamilton's burlesque house, has been converted to a moving picture theatre under the management of Mr. Stroud, as before. The Grand Opera House, Hamilton, is also becoming a moving picture house during the winter months. A brand new picture house known as the Regent Theatre, has been built on Lock street by McKay Bros., and is being prepared for immediate opening.

The Famous Players' Film Service, Ltd., has taken over the management of its exchange branches in eastern Canada. Mitchell Bernstein has become manager of the Toronto branch and Max Price, who resigned, Joe Kaufman, formerly of Montreal and Toronto, has taken over the management of the St. John office of the company.

First National Prints
Fine Souvenir Book

The First National Exhibitors' Circuit has issued a handsome souvenir plan book, outlining the purpose and principles of the organization. The book, which measures 13x9 inches, is printed on the quality of glazed stock, with a heavy embossed cover. A 24x36-inch insert bears half-tone cuts of ninety-eight theatres owned or controlled by the circuit, with a map of United States. Then follow the text pages each showing interior views of theatres pictured on the spread. The various angles of the organization are covered in brief, breezy paragraphs, explaining the co-operative idea of the circuit. At the center of the book there is a striking double-page layout showing a map of the United States, marked off in alphabetically lettered selling districts, with portraits of the members of the circus in a handsonely designed border. The art work throughout is of an unusually high order, having both beauty and dignity. It is printed in light brown ink, which contrasts pleasantly with the cuts and letter press. Burton Rice made the designs.

Goldwyn Predicts
Great Things for
"Joan of Plattsburg"

Mabel Normand, in "Joan of Plattsburg, is regarded as the most notable achievement of the New York photodrama training said, "The story is a war story, and that is the most obvious battle story. George Loane Tucker has taken the original version of the Broadwater Brown play, some scenes of which were disapproved by the government when it was first produced by Goldwyn, and has injected it with an emotional appeal and unusual beauty into it. Many scenes showing details of training at Plattsburg have been eliminated, and in their place Mr. Tucker has substituted a story of wonderful charm and depth, relying for its interpretation on extraordinary photographic effects and flawless direction.

Outing-Chester Films
Being Widely Booked

Since the first announcement of the publication of the "Outing-Chester" travel-scenics, Jesse J. Goldberg, who is handling the distribution, had been in receipt of teletype and other letters from exhibitors throughout the United States, booking the entire series of one a week. On four days after the fourteen telegrams covering every state in the union, it is said, have been received. This demand for these single-reel travel-scenics is accounted for by the character of the films and the unanimous verdict of the trade critics as to their entertaining and instructive character.

Several distributing concerns, it is said, have endeavored to secure the entire series, which would have netted a substantial profit to the producers, but they were not willing to agree to exploit the series independently of any other attraction they handle. It is for this reason that Mr. Goldberg has determined to continue to exploit on state rights basis, and where the proper medium of distribution is not found in any particular territory, to fill the wants of the public. The Strand Theater, New York, commences the exhibition of the series the week of April 21.

Await "Venus" Film

Preparation of "The Triumph of Venus" for release to exhibitors is being rapidly conducted in New York City laboratories, according to a bulletin from General Film.

Hillier & Wilk, Inc.
Foreign Agents for Gerard Photoplay

The success "My Four Years in Germany" has won in this country is being reechoed in the success that has attended the sale of the foreign rights to the Ambassador Gerard photoplay, which is now enjoying a very successful engagement at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, and throughout the country.

"My Four Years in Germany" Company have appointed Hillier & Wilk, Inc. Longacre Bldg., New York, their exclusive selling agents for the foreign territories. To date the following territories have been sold: Great Britain, South Africa, Australia and Brazil.
Rigid Ordinance
For Film Storage
Under Discussion

Indianapolis City Council
Holds Special Session on Matter

Indianapolis, Ind.—A special meeting of the city council was held Monday night and the discussion of an ordinance which proposes regulation of the storage, handling, and manufacture of motion picture films taken up. The ordinance, which was drafted by the city legal department at the request of Mayor Charles W. Jewett, is now in the hands of the finance committee, where special investigations have been made, and hearings held in conferences with the various motion picture industries represented in Indianapolis.

The proposed ordinance is somewhat similar to the one drafted shortly after the Colfax hall fire in this city in 1917, when six persons were burned to death as a result of an explosion of stored films, and which was stricken from the city records just prior to the assumption of control by the present city administration.

This ordinance provides that the handling, storage, keeping or use of motion picture films, including negatives, raw stock, damaged products or discarded scrap or used films would be prohibited in any building, any part of which is used for a theatre, dance hall, hotel, church, school, department store, public meeting place, or any assembly place, apartment, tenement or residence building for more than one family.

It also makes the storage of films in any building unlawful, where any part of that building is situated within fifty feet of the nearest wall of another building unless protected by an unperforated brick wall, twelve inches thick, separating the two. It also compels the installation of a sprinkler system in all storage places, and prohibits the handling of scrap film in a building within the fire limits. No one would be permitted, under the proposed ordinance, to handle film in Indianapolis, without first receiving a permit from the fire prevention bureau.

The ordinance also provides for the construction, in film exchanges, of fireproof vaults in which to store and handle films, and provides further, that all films handled must be stored in fireproof containers.

Select Salesman
Rosenberg Drafted

The selective draft has just called to the colors A. E. Rosenberg, a member of the sales force of the Select's Pittsburgh branch. Mr. Rosenberg has been doing yeoman work for Select in his territory under Leo Levison, branch manager, and is a well-known figure in the film world of the Smoky City.

Exhibitors Win Praise
Of State Fire Marshal

Calumet, Mich.—Proprietors of copper country picture theatres are lauded by Deputy State Fire Marshal Edwin Parrish of Marquette for the manner in which they are complying with the state regulations. Mr. Parrish is in the county on a tour of inspection and he has yet to find one proprietor who is evading the statute.

The measure which requires fire escapes on theatres and the act which prohibits patrons from congregating in lobbies or in the rear of theatres are being rigidly observed while other requirements such as fireproof operators' booths and escapes leading from booths are being carried out.

A similar condition exists in other parts of the peninsula and with few exceptions, theatre owners in the lower part of the state are enforcing the law. Mr. Parrish recently returned from a tour in the lower peninsula and he found it necessary to make but one complaint. This concerned a theatre in Rosecurrent county which was not equipped with a fire escape and the establishment was closed at once.

Picture Patrons Must Not Stand in Aisles

Dallas, Tex.—Patrons of local motion picture theatres will not be allowed to stand in the aisles of the shows hereafter, if instructions sent out by City Fire Marshal Naylor are obeyed. He said he had received complaints that the section of the State Fire Marshal's ordinance referring to this practice was not being observed in Dallas. He requested an answer, indicating compliance with the following provision of the State ordinance:

"No audience greater than the seating capacity of an auditorium shall be permitted in the auditorium during the operation of any motion picture machine and no other than employees shall stand in the aisles. All aisles leading to exits shall be kept open and free of all obstruction and all doors of exits shall open outward."

Tennessee Exhibitors
Hold State Meeting
To Aid Organization

Nashville, Tenn.—The first annual meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Tennessee was held at the Hermitage hotel here. This association of moving picture theatre owners and managers was organized June 17 of last year, with Charles A. McElravy and J. F. Futhrie of Memphis as temporary president and secretary, respectively.

Permanent officers were elected, a constitution and by-laws adopted, and the association launched on a business basis.

The primary object of the league is to promote the interests of the exhibitors in Tennessee. The Tennessee organization is affiliated with the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, a national association covering the entire United States.

Matters affecting the Tennessee showmen, such as legislation, tax equity, censorship regulations and other matters of vital importance to the industry will be taken up.

A resolution has been adopted by the league pledging the aid of moving picture men in all matters of national patriotism, including the purchase of Liberty bonds and the use of theaters by four-minute men to promote the sale of Liberty bonds, thrift stamps and war certificates, and to encourage enlistment in every possible manner.

Texas Exhibitors
Pick Galveston, Texas
For Annual Convention

San Antonio, Tex.—The Texas Amusement Managers' Association held a business session in the club room at the Gunter hotel and it was formally decided to hold the annual convention of the organization this year at Galveston, July 8, 9 and 10. The decision also was reached to establish a claims department of the association for adjusting claims which any member may have for failure to obtain films or special attractions for which he has contracted.

At the conclusion of the meeting a resolution was adopted thanking the local members of the association for the liberal entertainment which has been the feature of the assembly during the last two days. The big barbecue and dance, given on the Soledad roof Monday night, was declared to have been the most successful event of that character ever given by the association.

Ballot to Decide Fate
Of Sunday Pictures

Munising, Mich.—The city council of Munising has granted a petition from the citizens, asking that the question of opening the theaters on Sunday be submitted to a special election to be held on or about the first of next month, when the saloons will go out of business.

The petition, according to a Munising man who was in the city yesterday, was signed by a large number of citizens and the vote of the council was unanimous. Speaking of the matter, he said:

"The agitation for movie shows on Sunday was started by the working men of the town and I have not heard of many who were asked to sign the petition refusing to do so, and even some of the more devout church people are satisfied that the opening of the theaters on Sunday will do no harm, while it will satisfy a large element which under present conditions, find Sunday a rather long and tiresome day.

Rialto Celebrates

The Rialto Theatre, New York, blossomed out with a complete new stage setting this week by way of celebrating its second anniversary. William S. Hart in "The Tiger Man," will be the attraction of the anniversary bill, and S. L. Rothafel is arranging chorus numbers, film novelties, and special musical features to make the occasion noteworthy.

Exhibitor's Briefs

Dayton, Ohio.—At an estimated cost of more than $150,000 the Auditorium Theatre in East Fourth street between Main and Jefferson, here, will be overhauled and remodeled in the near future. All modern appliances and conveniences for a theatre are included in the plan.

Albany, N. Y.—The Majestic Theatre in South Pearl street, this city, has been acquired by the O. H. Stacey Amusement Company.

Milan, Mo.—R. E. Simpson of Unionville, has leased the Harmon Theatre here and reopened the playhouse after redecorating the interior.

Portland, Ore.—H. W. Pierong, for several years connected with local theatrical interests, has been appointed manager of the Public Auditorium, effective May 1; according to an announcement by Mayor Baker.

Scranton, Pa.—Recent showing of a Ford weekly at the Regent Theatre, this city, attracted considerable attention.

The educational reel contained many scenes taken in the Diamond mine located near this city.

Valparaiso, Ind.—The Memorial and Schelling theatres of this city have consolidated, the former having been closed.

Columbia, S. C.—The Rialto Amusement Company of Spartanburg has been commissioned with a capital stock of $10,000. The petitioners are S. A. Lynch of Asheville, N. C., and E. J. Sparks of Jacksonville, Fla.

South Bend, Ind.—O. Hansen, former manager of the Caldwell Theatre, St. Joe, Mich., has been appointed manager of the Jefferson Theatre, this city.

Wilmington, Del.—The Nemo Theatre Company of this city has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000. The directors are C. L. Rimplinger, M. V. Haywood and F. A. Armstrong of Wilmington.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—A. J. McCabe of the Transfer Theatre here, has disposed of his interests in the playhouse.

Sioux City, la.—Fire started by the bucking of a film in the motion picture machine at the Scenic Theatre here caused damages of $1,000. The building is owned by C. L. Catchart.

Bluffton, Ind.—H. G. Belger, owner of the opera house in this city, has favored his theatre for patriotic meetings during the drive underway in the interests of the third Liberty Loan.

Rochester, N. Y.—Members of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers held a three-day convention here recently the last day of which was devoted to visiting manufacturing plants connected with the motion picture industry.

Orange, Tex.—Contract for the construction of a modern theatre here has been awarded a Beaumont contractor and work will be begun at once.

Spokane, Wash.—C. E. Stillwell has taken over the Rose Theatre at Colfax, adding another link to his chain of amusement houses.

Davenport, la.—Joe Landor, local manager of the Fleischman Yeast Co., has purchased an interest in the stock of the American Theatre.

Richmond, Va.—Plans are being completed by Jake Wells and C. E. Howell for the construction of the new Colonial Theatre which will occupy the site of the present structure.

Kilbuck, Ohio.—The Duncan Theatre here was destroyed by fire recently.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Abraham Wax will erect a one-story theatre at 122-26 South street here. Plans have been drawn by H. D. Welden, architect.

Drumright, Okla.—H. Le Van will remodel the Folly Theatre here.

Tulsa, Okla.—J. W. Williams will erect a $4,500 addition to his moving picture theatre in this city.

Anamosa, la.—The Crystal Theatre here is now under the management of E. W. Corwin and Dick Stanaway.

W. S. Hart's Message To Bond Buyers

William S. Hart has subscribed $102,000 to the third Liberty Loan. This is the largest amount thus far received from any representative of the motion picture industry, topping that made by Mary Pickford by $5,000 and more than doubling Charles Chaplin's subscription of $50,000.

Mr. Hart, at the request of Secretary McAdoo, is touring the principal cities of the Pacific Coast on behalf of the third Liberty Loan. He will speak in Los Angeles, Salt Lake, Ogden, Butte, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Olympia and San Francisco.

At the request of the second federal reserve (New York) district, Mr. Hart has sent the following article on "Why We Should Buy Liberty Bonds":

"It is the absolute duty of every red-blooded American to do his 'bit' in this great war of democracy against the kaiser. The only way to defeat the kaiser and his barbarian principles is by fighting, hard and now—not a year from now, when it will be too late, but now—and if you can't do it yourself, be willing to come through with your money and make it fight for you with the boys who have given themselves that they may have a safe place for every American to live in. Stand by the Stars and Stripes as our forefathers did.

"If you are not going to put your money out for yourself, is there any reason why you should not have it out for the Kaiser? To me, it is a clear and logical decision. Lend us your money and we'll put it to better use than you could ever put it to.

"It is up to us to get together and use every atom of power that has been given us by the Creator to make our enemies know that this is a mighty nation, which stands ready to give its last cent or shed its last drop of blood in this world battle for humanity. Personally, every dollar I have in the world, and as fast as I can get more is at the service of the government. My one regret is that I can't do more."

Ralph Phillips Will Direct Ebony Comedies

L. J. Pollard, president and general manager of the Ebony Film Company of Chicago, announces that Ralph W. Phillips will resume directing the Ebony comedies of the Number 2 company. Mr. Phillips is a well known director, having been formerly connected with the Gaumont and other eastern companies. He has directed several Ebony comedies and has beensupervising the film editing department. Director Charles David is handling company number 1.
Exchange Managers
In Numerous Shifts;
Bayley to Goldwyn

Numerous changes in management are scheduled to take place this week among local exchanges, including the appearance of one new man in Chicago and the temporary withdrawal from the film business of a man who has been identified with its activities for some years.

H. J. Bayley, since last September manager of the Vitagraph exchange, has signed this post and will take over the management of Goldwyn’s Chicago office at Monday. Mr. Bayley has been in the service of the Vitagraph company in various capacities for more than seven years. He will be succeeded by T. Chatburn, who has been manager of the Pittsburgh exchange of the Vitaphone company.

Sidney J. Goldman, present manager of the Goldwyn local exchange, who will be succeeded by Mr. Bayley, will take over the management of Jewel productions in this territory the first of next week.

C. C. Plough, manager of the Bluebird exchange, has resigned and will have his post Saturday of this week. Sol German, it is said, will assume the management of the exchange. Mr. Plough has announced that he will take hard earned rest before making any ans for the future. He will leave only for the south.

I. S. Bailey to Manage
Detroit General Film

General Film announces the appointment of a new manager for its Detroit sales office in the person of I. S. Bailey, who takes charge once.

Mr. Bailey is one of the best known of most popular film men of Michigan. He was for four years in charge of local sales for Universal. More recently he has been manager of the Metropolitan Film Company and distributor of the films of E. F. Les weekly paper and manager of the Drury Lane Theatre in Detroit.

George J. Ekre, formerly General Film representative at Spokane, Wash., is in with the company. He has just been appointed manager of General’s branch at Portland, Ore., and has already taken up his duties there.

chicago is Mecca
For War Productions
Beginning This Week

With the opening of “My Four Years Germany,” a First National Exhibitors court production, at the Colonial Theatre next Sunday night, Chicago will come the home of the three foremost subjects touching on the great war. Last Sunday night at the Auditorium the Unbeliever” got away to a flying start. It is an Edison production and will continue on a two shows a day schedule for seventeen days. The play is based on the story by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews “The Three Things.”

The picture was made with the cooperation of the sixth battalion of the United States Marine corps stationed at Quantico, Va. The war scenes were staged under the supervision of Col. A. S. McLeMore and his staff, recently returned from Europe, and familiar with conditions on the front.

A fifty piece orchestra under the direction of Arthur Dunham as well as Miss Ida Gardner and Hardy Williamson, soloists, will appear at every performance. Raymond McKee and Marguerite Courtot are the featured players. Probably the opening of the Olympic Theatre on Wednesday night of this week of David Wark Griffith’s master-piece, “Hearts of the World,” based on the great war, is arousing the keenest interest in this city. Special music and stage settings are being arranged for the showing of this big cinema drama which took eighteen months to make.

Doll-Van Film Corp.
Gets “A Grain of Dust”

The latest acquisition of the Doll-Van Film Corporation is “A Grain of Dust,” filmed from the novel by David Graham Phillips, and starring Lillian Walker. The Chicago company has obtained the state rights to Illinois and Indiana from the Crest Pictures Corporation.

Due to the favorable comment the production has received upon being shown in other parts of the country, its arrival in this territory is awaited with considerable interest by exhibitors. Doll-Van- has announced that they will begin distribution of the film about the middle of May.

Paul Gerard Smith
Host to Reviewers

Paul G. Smith, editor of Screen Opinion, was host to Chicago’s newspaper and trade paper film critics last week. Mr. Smith expects an early call to service in the National Army and the affair was in the nature of a farewell. He was presented with a wrist watch by his critic friends.

Exchanges Raise Big Sum in Loan Drive

Having been allotted the Chicago exchanges to loan affairs in the Liberty Loan Drive. Frank R. Flaherty, manager of the Four-square exchange, and J. L. Friedman of the Celebrated Players have finished the first week of their task with slightly more than $13,000 in subscriptions.

While all the exchanges in the city have not as yet been visited it is estimated that the number of subscriptions will total more than twice that already received. A minimum of $25,000 is promised by Mr. Flaherty.

PERSONALS

“By George”

Manager Flaherty of the Four-square exchange is back at his desk after having given Mme. La Grippe the good bye in two days. How long do you think typhoid fever would last against that bird? So do we.

Jack O’Toole, former popular Chicago manager for the Fox Film Corporation, has accepted a like position with the Four-square people in Minneapolis. We hear this with considerable alarm. Sure, we think he can hold down the job all right. What we’re afraid of is that the brand of baseball furnished by the American Association may get his goat.

Word from California forecasts the early return of E. Thomas Beatty to Chicago after an enforced absence of nearly four months, due to illness. Make it snappy, E. T. We all want to see you and A. E. A. needs the brand of pep you hand out.

And now comes to our attention the fact that J. Cooper has not as yet collected that five spot which he won on the toss of a coin. Max Levy still insists that Cooper was killed in a wreck returning from New York and every time the exhibitor tries to collect demands proof that he is still alive. When Cooper goes out to get witnesses, Levy makes his get-a-ways. Get him some night when he’s in bed, J., maybe he don’t walk in his sleep.

MAY ALLISON AND RERT LTTELL, METRO’S TWO LATEST STARS POSED AT THE STUDIO.
EXHIBITORS' HERALD

When a feller's got money he don't lack for attention. Ever since word got out about Louis Frank getting that seventy-five bucks from the railroad company, film salesman has been in and out of his office in an endless procession.

Elizabeth Sears, editor of the news service of the American Film Company, has returned from New York. It's a nice place to visit, she concedes, but for steady living Chicago seems more restful. Thanks, Elizabeth, we always knew your heart was with the old town.

What with entertaining one brother, a senior lieutenant in the navy, and celebrating the marriage of another brother, stationed at Great Lakes, along with his other duties, Colvin Brown, advertising manager of the Mutual Film Corporation, has put in a particularly active week.

Another indication of the ever-increasing popularity of "Bad" Bill Hohenzollem is the substitution of "Parkside" for "Germania" on the electric sign in front of the theatre at 1350 North Clark street. With co-operation on all sides Americanizing America won't be a such a terrible task.

Harry Weiss, manager of the Central Film Company, has returned from a two weeks' gad in Indiana. He had a few remarks to make about business in general but the most pleasing part of the trip was the change of pace. The celebration of the state going dry he was entertained at the Elks club by L. H. O'Donnell, manager of the opera house at Washington, Ind. An oasis, Harry?

Ralph Crocker, who runs the Star Theatre out to Elgin, comes to Chicago once or twice a week, knows all the reviewers and everybody, boarded a third rail car from his town the other night and found himself in the midst of a gang of "nuts" being transported from the Chester asylum to Elgin.

Now every time those third rail cars hit a cross road the lights go out and Ralph was pretty busy praying they wouldn't forget to come on again.

But he wasn't too busy to figure on saving an honest nickel and when the conductor came through, he cocked his hat over one ear in the most approved manner when the man with the punch had checked up on the tickets he tapped Crocker on the shoulder and said, "Ticket, please." Foiled, Ralph straightened his back and said, "Thanks for the compliment, old top."

Paul Smith, news editor of the esteemed Screen Opinion in anticipation of an early call to service in the National Army, entertained Chicago's M. P. critics one night last week. Remembered as being a dandy man, the gentleman presented him with a wrist watch. Summoning to his assistance his most wag-ish manner Paul said he hoped he could soon call the bugs on the "Huns" with any kind of a fair chance at all Paul could talk those Huns out of the war.

The Anaheim Theatre at Terre Haute, Ind., is installing opera chairs at $7.50 a throw. Being a demon at figures we reckon this means that 75 people have got to sit in each seat before the durn things are paid for. And along the same lines some of them is going to be paid for before the others because every theatre has choice seats. But, anyhow, it shows one man's faith in the future of the industry.

On the Firin' Line

Famous sayings of famous men:

"Thank God, all the Exhibitors' Herald, it kept me out of the projection room."
- La-Veen, Universal.

Leo Salkin who can't quite make up his mind whether he wants to make se-llum or get in the movies spent several of his life's work, has been located as manger of the Jackson Park and South Park theatres. Why don't you do both, Leo, get in on some of that business and then sell fillum to yourself?

George Wilson has resigned as a member of the Foursquare sales force to assume the management of the Catholic Arts Association. He will devote his time to exploiting a nine-reel feature, "The Victim," solely for exhibition in Catholic churches and schools.

That worried look and furrowed brow of Dell Goodman of the Pathé sales clan is not due to the fact that he will soon enter the service. Perish the thought. The trouble is that Dell has a dependent Ford and while the exemption board did not doubt its dependency it was not sufficient grounds for exemption. Dell likes the thing and wants to find a good home for the cherished property. In some of the fillums, has a moderate appetite as far as gas and oil is concerned—but why go an any further, everybody knows what a Ford is.

Herman Rasty, former Mutual salesman, is back in the old town for a short stay, prior to leaving for Milwaukee where he will devote his talents to the cause of Triangles. No, not eternal, fillums.

The entire sales force of the Pathé exchange had their pictures took last week and all seemed much pleased with the result with the exception of Morris Salkin who viewed his supposed likeness with as much dismay as a salesmen say Morris moved, others say it does him justice. Us? We ain't saying nothin'. The recruiting offices is open for them as wants war.

Fred Young, Milwaukee salesman for Kleine, is burning 'em up with contracts. He's just as Young as he used to be.

Walter Hickey has forsaken La Fol-lette's home state where he toiled in behalf of the First National Exhibitors Circuit and his future address is Minnesota and the metro offices. Jack O'Toole's up there too, Walt, better get in contact with him.

"Chub" Florine, north side tourist for Pathé products, has not yet fallen for Billy Sunday's stuff and has passed a tabernacle time and again without Even a glance. Wait till they open up

H. W. Richter, who has been workout of the Buffalo office of Paramo

And now comes the plaint of li "Me" of Foursquare who wishes a friend of "Me" would write him something about the gay days of the big city. Br透

Colonel Roosevelt's Preparedness Talks
Produced on Screen

Former President Roosevelt's military preparedness doctrines will be promoted through the medium of the Universal Screen Magazine which this week has the feature for distribution within about five weeks.

The animated interview opens with a close-up of the colonel sitting on the lawn of his Oyster Bay estate, beginning a casual conversation, which gradually turns to the subject of preparedness. Then all of the dynamic action in the man comes to the front. He leaps to his feet, relates the shortcomings and the proper methods to remedy them.
Those famous front teeth come togo, forcibly bringing the picture as the colonel talks that it appears possible to hear them click. There is that characteristic cutting short of words so well known to members of the audience who have listened to the "Cyclone of Oyster Bay." The great right fist is shaken in the faces of the fans as the colonel marks his points and defies his audience to contradict him.

To make the animated interview even more realistic, Manager Jack Cohn of the Universal Screen Magazine has caused take-ins to be inserted illustrating the points made by the colonel, as he marshals his facts one by one and changes his point of view.

It is generally predicted that the aniimated interview by President Roosevelt will be the most popular of the animated talks as yet released by the Universal Screen Magazine. This is to be followed by patriotic talks by other well-known men, and it is probable that President Wilson may be persuaded to pose before the motion picture camera for the purpose of illustrating an address on the war aims of the United States and her allies.

Sessue Hayakawa Pays Grauman's New Theatre a Visit

While "The Honor of His House" was enjoying an extended run at Grauman's
Theatre, Los Angeles, recently Sessue Hayakawa, the star of the picture, dropped around one evening to pay his respects to Sid Grauman, the managing director of the new million dollar photography house, Grauman made a suggestion that the time was propitious for taking a photo of the scene as large crowds were entering and leaving the playhouse.

Hayakawa said, "Shoot, I'm ready." A photographer was immediately telephoned for and was on the scene in a few minutes and took a flash light of the group before the entrance.

In addition to the popular screen artist the other notable in the scene were Sid Grauman, Grauman's wife, William Worthington and F. J. Hawkins, vice-president and general manager of the Havworth Pictures Corporation which is engaged in making the Hayakawa productions.

Madge Kennedy Makes Philadelphia Talks In Liberty Bond Sale

In further support of the Liberty Loan campaign, which she already has aided by a trip to Detroit and by large personal subscriptions in parbels to the Kennedy, Goldwyn Pictures star, addressed 3,000 students of the South Philadelphia Girls' High School last week. Following this she appeared on the stage of the Stanley Theatre and spoke for the loan, after being introduced by means of a novel film prepared especially for the occasion.

Miss Kennedy was escorted from her hotel to the theatre presented her pupils and was met at the entrance by the Philadelphia Police Band, said to be the country's largest municipal band. Serenade music was played as the star entered the auditorium of the high school and was introduced by a member of the Philadelphia district loan committee.

Escorted by Jules Mastraub, head of the Stanley Amusement Enterprises, Miss Kennedy then was whisked by motor to the Stanley Theatre, where a capacity audience, aware of her coming, greeted her with warm applause. A special Liberty Loan film, showing Miss Kennedy speaking from the home movie background of the third Liberty Loan oster, flashed out to reveal the star in the stage. Her patriotic address was followed by the reading of loan subscriptions, it is reported.

William Fox Manager Joins U. S. Signal Corps

Louis Williams, manager of William ox's Star Theatre at 10th street and exington avenue, enlisted last week in the United States army. He is now stationed with the 33rd Signal Corps at Jump Upton, as a telegrapher. Mr. Williams became twenty-one since the passage of the draft bill and was probably one of the youngest theatrical managers of the metropolis and of the entire country. He was assistant manager of the Star for two years, and had been charge for more than a year. The employees of the theatre went to the station with the star, a native of Port Edwards, N. Y.

Foursquare Pictures In Preparation for Southern Campaign

"Foursquare Pictures is preparing for a drive in behalf of its southern interests. With a view to enlarging its operations in the southwestern territory, a sales manager has been appointed with the southwestern Film Corporation wherein its organization will distribute all Foursquare product in the states it covers. Our arrangement with Messrs. F. M. Nord and L. C. McHenry," said Treasurer Jacob Wildberg of Foursquare, "is the purpose of obtaining the utmost efficiency for our patrons. To secure the highest efficiency the element of distribution at a cost is an essential, and because of it the organization of the southwestern Film Corporation has been consummated."

Herbert Lubin and Bert Ennis End Tour in Interests of Petrova Films

Every Exchange of the First National Exhibitors Circuit Visited in New Exploitation Campaign

Herbert Lubin, personal representative of Madame Olga Petrova and a representative of the firm of General Enterprises, Inc., together with Bert Ennis, director of publicity for the Petrova Picture Company, returned to New York on Monday, of this week, following a trip which embraced the principal points of the United States.

They paid a visit to each office of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, which organization is distributing the special star productions featuring Madame Petrova and made under the auspices of her own personal production organization. During the tour of the Petrova representatives, arrangements were completed with each of the exchanges throughout the country, whereby an entirely new scheme of exploitation is to be worked out commencing with the fourth special Petrova feature, "Patience Sparkhawk." It is planned to apply a considerable amount of intensive publicity covering each Petrova picture from now on in the various localities embraced by the different exchanges.

Tentative plans were also laid with the representatives of the First National Exhibitors Circuit and the various leading newspapers throughout the United States looking toward a personal tour by Madame Olga Petrova to be made in the near future. It is believed that the intended circuit will appear in all of the leading photohouses of the country, for the purpose of aiding the present drive now in effect for the sale of War Saving Stamps.

Franchiseholders Pleased

Messrs. Lubin and Ennis found that all of the franchiseholders of the First National Exhibitors Circuit were highly enthusiastic regarding the personal appearance of Madame Petrova in their respective territories and the utmost cooperation will be forthcoming from the different exchanges in the carrying out of this scheme.

Thus far but three of the new special productions in which the emotional star has appeared have been released from coast to coast and it is taken as a mark of distinct success that "Daughter of Destiny" of the initial release, has more than lived up to the expectations of the Petrova Picture Company and the various franchiseholders of the Circuit.

"The Light Within," Madame Petrova's second production, has also met with the approval of those exhibitors interested in the picture, and thus far the box office results on these two pictures have more than justified the expectations of all concerned.

It is believed that the arrangements consummated by Madame Petrova's representatives, during their recent tour, will result in bringing the producer and exhibitor more closely together, as special plans were taken to ascertain the type of picture most in demand by the picture shownmen, as well as the exact wants of the exhibitor relative to the proper exploitation materials needed to best advertise Petrova productions.

Work Progresses on New Paralta Studios

In accordance with the plans recently approved by the executives of Paralta Plays, Inc., the expansion of the Paralta studios in Los Angeles is now well under way and no time is being lost in the construction and completion of the new buildings which are to surround the five big stages on the studio grounds.

Already some of the new dressing-rooms have been practically finished and one or two of the sets are awaiting final touches before occupying them. The green room, which will be an innovation to the motion picture studio, is still in the course of construction, but will be completed before long.

Review Board Likes "A Pair of Sixes"

The latest George K. Spoor feature, "A Pair of Sixes," has received exceptional commendation from the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, which calls it the funniest picture of the season. The board in passing this picture declares the entertainment value is excellent, the dramatic interest of the story is good, the coherence of the narrative clear, the acting excellent, technical handling good, the atmosphere quality of scenic setting good and the moral effect good.

IF WE ONLY OWNED YOUR THEATRE FOR A WEEK—

We would want to put our enthusiasm and imagination behind the presentation of an unusual picture.

We would take MABEL NORMAND in "JOAN OF PLATTSBURG," our newest and in many respects greatest Goldwyn Picture, and play it in your house.

We would start our musical program with "Keep the Home Fires Burning" for an overture and swing through this heart-thrilling story with patriotic music that would make every person in the audience feel that he was watching Gen. Pershing's victorious army marching triumphantly home to the music of Sousa's inspiring military bands.

There never has been a picture with such a grip on the emotions; that clutches at your heart and puts a mist before your eyes as does MABEL NORMAND in "JOAN OF PLATTSBURG." Properly handled by resourceful showmen, it will pull audiences up in their seats cheering and shouting.

It isn't a morbid picture.

It IS a picture of Faith and Courage and Hope and Inspiration.

And at this very moment when millions of persons are perplexed and wondering, it contains the answer to the question asked by all loyal Americans: "What can I do to help my country?"

Every LIVE exhibitor with energy and imagination will clean up with Mabel Normand in "Joan of Plattsburg," by Porter Emerson Browne. Released everywhere May 5.

To the Exhibitors of the United States and Canada

At the Hotel Astor, April 8-9-10, representative exhibitors and producers met, discussed and considered the question of co-operative booking and distribution of pictures.

The undersigned were constituted a permanent committee of exhibitors to perfect a national organization of exhibitor booking associations, with these fundamental principles in mind:

1—To insure EXHIBITOR MANAGEMENT and CONTROL in very fact, as well as promise.
2—To in no way disturb existing booking organizations, but rather to encourage them.
3—To keep the capital of each association in its OWN depository, and under its OWN control.
4—To maintain all the benefits of “Open Booking,” and at the same time, provide a CONSISTENT and DEPENDABLE schedule of releases.
5—To secure, not only ALL the concessions in rental prices which the combined buying power of exhibitors will earn, but the MAJOR SHARE of all excess profits as well.
6—To distribute the cost of all productions on a fair and business basis to each booking association, and to every member of such an association.
7—To regulate expenditures, according to sound business methods and to protect exhibitors against excessive salaries, extravagant advertising and pretentious executive offices.
8—To arrange, on behalf of the booking associations, now existing, and such others as shall be formed, for an affiliation with a national, or central clearing house, upon terms that are JUST and EQUITABLE to all concerned.

In accordance with these principles, and in co-operation with substantial business interests, not heretofore associated with the film industry, the committee has perfected arrangements for an affiliation of exhibitors co-operative booking associations, for operation on a national scale, to be known as the AFFILIATED DISTRIBUTORS CORPORATION.

The committee invites the co-operation of booking associations, now formed, in the furtherance of its efforts, and solicits the opportunity to work with exhibitors in territories not yet organized into booking associations. Exhibitor organizers are available without expense.

An announcement of the associations which have aligned themselves with this movement, together with further details of its operating plans, will be made next week. These plans will be found to be strictly constructive—not destructive.

Interested exhibitors would do well to preserve this, and subsequent announcements, as the advertising expenditure, like all other operating charges, will be limited, in keeping with the determination to conserve the profits of the organization FOR THE EXHIBITOR.

Mr. Funkhouser, Where Do You Stand?

Mr. FUNKHOUSEr, in your official capacity as czar of the Chicago censor board, you have for some time been viewed by the motion picture trade with considerable curiosity and some alarm.

The municipal administration of which you are a part has on many occasions since the entrance of the United States in the war had leveled at it many ugly charges of disloyalty.

His Honor, the Mayor, "Big Bill" Thompson, was quoted as calling Chicago "the sixth German city." Thompson is head of the administration of which you are a part.

Through the conduct of the administration of which you are a part, the City of Chicago has had a pall of disloyalty placed over it by the country at large. And it naturally would be a matter of no little comment when, with all the war activities with which the city is concerned, that the name of the Mayor is always conspicuously absent.

In your autocratic censorship of motion pictures you have repeatedly aroused the righteous indignation of producers and in several instances these producers have claimed that your eliminations from their films were due to your hesitancy about allowing anything to be exhibited in picture theatres of Chicago that would be taken as an affront by the German nation.

Sometime ago we read with considerable interest the lengthy defense which you issued aimed to substantiate your Americanism. We recall that you eloquently disclaimed all pro-German tendencies.

But, Mr. Funkhouser, if you are really American, if you are not seeking to shield the Germans, why do you consistently make an effort to keep from the screens of motion picture theatres in the City of Chicago views and incidents that present the German people in the light of the scientific barbarians that they are?

In your censoring of "The Unbeliever" you eliminated a view showing a German knocking down an elderly woman and dragging her by the hair—and you took this action notwithstanding the fact that there is a great mass of evidence to prove this was a typical incident, that not one German officer but thousands conducted themselves in this identical manner in their barbarous onslaught upon France and Belgium! This scene in "The Unbeliever" is being exhibited broadcast throughout the United States, yet it is eliminated from view in "the sixth German city."

You opposed with all the power of your office the exhibition in Chicago of "The Spy," which is an expose of the German system of espionage and was finally overruled by the Federal courts.

In the "Hearts of the World" you eliminated scenes of a German being bayoneted, scenes of a German officer's attack upon a Belgium girl. Do you not know that German officers have been guilty of thousands of outrages of this nature, and that the facts in the cases have been substantiated beyond the shadow of a doubt? Do you want the people of Chicago to be ignorant of the true nature of the enemy? Do you want the people of Chicago to believe that with the exception of the Kaiser, Von Hindenburg, the Crown Prince, and possibly a few others, that we are fighting a nation of Schillers and Goethes?

Mr. Funkhouser, your warped judgment on what the public is entitled to see is bad enough when you handle only pictures of a general nature, but when you deliberately nullify the great propaganda pictures that producers are loyally devoting their time and money to make you become a real menace.

Mr. Funkhouser, we ask again, Where do you stand?
Casual Comment

The glory of having made the "Hearts of the World" probably will be greatly dimmed for David Wark Griffith when he learns that "Mae Tinee" of the Chicago Tribune does not approve of the name he has given the picture.

Elliott, Constock and Gest, managers of the "Hearts of the World," have been indulging in the exhibitor's dream this week in Chicago—apologizing to the public for its inability to supply the demand for admissions.

Production of motion picture film is at its lowest ebb in years—a thing that has been devotedly hoped for and which is already showing a beneficial effect in fewer and better films.

The open meeting to be held by the American Exhibitors' Association in Chicago in June should be productive of excellent results. With only the program of business meetings in view and a total elimination of politics this meeting is likely to set a precedent for all others that are to follow.

The presentment to Congress of a bill for the production of a fifteen-cent coin is undoubtedly a matter of considerable satisfaction to Terry Ramsaye of Chicago, who inaugurated the movement for the introduction of such a coin. Even if Congress does not act favorably on Mr. Ramsaye's supplementary suggestion to mirror the fair face of Helen Holmes upon the proposed coin, the success of the movement will probably be considered satisfaction enough.

A casual survey of the career of William Fox would have convinced Major Funkhouser in advance that to cross unfairly the path of this film company executive means a fight to the finish. In addition, however, to making the Major fight back fiercely to retain his sceptre as film czar of Chicago, Mr. Fox is doing a service to the entire trade in showing up the autocratic powers vested in a police official of Chicago.

Birmingham Clergy Drag Religion Into Sunday Closing Struggle

Eleventh Hour Charge of Catholic Control of Picture Production Comes as Fray Reaches Fever Heat

As a last resort in their almost frenzied campaign to force the closing of motion picture theatres on Sunday in Birmingham, the ministers of the southern city, leaders in the fight for the application of the blue law, have dragged the religious element into the struggle.

Disregarding the truth of their assertions and scorning an investigation by which the truth might be learned, they have caused to be spread broad propaganda to the effect that the production of motion picture features is in the control of a certain religious sect.

Attempts to arrive at peace and prejudice has at all times in the midst of bitter campaigns been the last straw clutched at in an attempt to save a lost cause. The efforts of the ministers of Birmingham can be viewed but in one light—the eleventh-hour attempt to put over by camouflage an issue doomed to defeat in an honest and above-board fight.

Abernathy Leads Exhibitors

T. S. Abernathy of the Strand Theatre of Birmingham is in charge of the exhibitors' campaign for an open Sunday theatre and the film producers are concerned. Under his guidance an intelligent and educational campaign has been conducted which has, no doubt, created many friends and support for the object to be attained.

Mr. Abernathy's first action upon learning of the mud-slinging activities of his opponents and of his charge that the industry was controlled by a single religious sect was to wire those in the industry in a position to dispute the claim.

His telegram is short and to the point. He states the issue and then asks for information concerning the dominating religion among the producers of pictures. The wire in full follows:

Catholic Control Charged

"In fight to close theatres here Sunday, ministers using propaganda that Catholics control manufacturing end industry. Please wire me if this true and your opinion as to what denomination if any predominate in manufacturing end."

Undoubtedly the flood of replies to be received by Mr. Abernathy will be of small comfort to the clergymen waging the fight against the Sunday theatre. The efforts of the minister of Birmingham on the whole matter might be dismissed as ridiculous.

The EXHIBITORS HERALD was a recipient of one of Mr. Abernathy's telegrams, and in reply had the following to say:

Herald Denies Claim

"Not one of the big film companies is headed by Catholics. Not more than half a dozen names of Catholics appear anywhere in management of any companies...

The Catholic influence upon motion picture production has never been evidenced in single instance. Catholic church has never backed a picture offered to public. Catholic clergy attitude of tolerance toward Sunday pictures is simply molding own business and not opposing innocent amusement. Charge of Birmingham ministers is vilést bigotry.

Putting a religious issue into any kind of a campaign, political or otherwise, has so often proved futile that the admission of the Birmingham ministers approaches the asinine. The ballot box, however, is the final judge, but undoubtedly the perpetrators of this outrage will learn to their sorrow that it doesn't pay.

Review Board Holds Its Annual Luncheon

The annual luncheon of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures will be held at the Hotel McAlpin, Broadway and 33rd streets, New York, on Friday, May 3, at 12:30 o'clock. Among those who have been invited as guests are: Irvin S. Cobb, Miss Margarette Clark, Miss Pauline Frederick, J. F. Flinn of the Publicity Department of the Paramount Company; George Middleton, the well-known dramatist and scenario writer, and Miss Hettty Gray Baker of the Fox Company. Subjects related to the making of motion pictures and their distribution will be discussed.

Griffith's Success "Hearts of World" Prey of Funkhouser

Second Deputy Superintendent of Police M. L. C. Funkhouser, censor of motion pictures in Chicago, has again come into the limelight through eliminating from David Wark Griffith's production of "Hearts of the World" two scenes depicting the bayoneting of a German soldier and the other an attack upon a Belgian woman by a Hun.

"Hearts of the World" is said to have been passed officially by the governments of both France and this country. While nothing authentic could be learned, it is believed the action of Major Funkhouser in eliminating the exhibition of German brutality, will be brought to the attention of the state council of defense of Illinois.
Insistent Demand That Advance Deposit Be Converted Into Liberty Loan Bonds

Theatre Owners’ Association, Inc., of Los Angeles Latest Exhibitors to Join Demand on Producers and Distributors

Despite the insistent demand on the part of operators’ associations that advance deposit money held by exchanges and producing companies be used for the purchase of Liberty bonds, there has as yet been no indication of the part of the latter toward this end.

Among the latest to urge this step is the Theatre Owners Association, Inc., of Los Angeles, who, at a meeting, went on record as favoring the purchase of Liberty bonds with the money held as advance deposits by the film companies. Without competition, it is pointed out, the Paramount-Arcafract and affiliated companies, stand supreme in the amount of exhibitors’ money held in the form of advance deposits. Although definite figures cannot be obtained it is estimated that no less than $4,000,000 is in the control of these companies through the medium of the advance deposit.

Paramount Advance Deposits

It is pointed out by exhibitors interested in the project of having this money converted into Liberty bonds that Jesse L. Lasky, prominent in raising money for the loan in the film industry, could add considerably to the amount already obtained by carrying out the wishes of exhibitors’ organizations and devote the money held by his companies to the purchase of the bonds.

The Californians in their resolution express their willingness to accept the government bonds in lieu of cash return for advance deposit money in instances where cancellation of contract is made. The resolutions in full are:

Los Angeles Resolution

"Whereas, it has come to the notice of the Theater Owners Association, Inc., that the Trades Paper under date of April 13th, carried full page advertisements, crediting several exchanges and producing companies with the patriotic attitude of urging the readers thereof to purchase U. S. Liberty bonds, and

"Whereas, the members of this Association desire to do all they can to further the Third Liberty Loan Campaign.

"Whereas, the members of this Association have thousands of dollars deposited with various exchanges, said money being a deposit on contracts, and lying idle, and

"Whereas, the Government has made known its desire to have all idle money put into Liberty bonds, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that all members of this Association go on record as requesting that the exchanges no longer allow this money to remain idle, and be it further

"Resolved, that this Association urge, advise and make known their wish to have the exchanges buy Liberty bonds with this money, said bonds to be accepted by every member, in payment of their deposit at the termination of their contracts, and be it further

"Resolved, that this association recommend all other associations and organizations of a similar nature to urge the exchanges to do likewise with the funds they have entrusted to them as deposits, and be it further

“Resolved, that this resolution be spread on our minutes, and a copy sent to all exchanges, producing companies, trade papers and exhibitors’ associations.”

Bomb Hurling at New Theatre From Elevated Train

Violence Breaks Out in Chicago’s Labor Difficulties

The first violent in Chicago’s labor war between the owners of motion picture theatres and the operators occurred at midnight Monday night when a bomb was hurled from an elevated train at theatre personnel standing by a third street. Only poor marksmanship saved the front and lobby of the theatre from complete destruction.

Fronts of two stores adjoining the theatre building were wrecked and many windows in the neighborhood were shattered by the force of the explosion. Damage did the theatre is slight, consisting only of two broken plate glass windows, the entire loss being hardly more than $100.

Andrew Kargas, owner of the theatre which was just opened to the public last Friday night, was in the building when the bomb was thrown. With him at the time was his patrol director. The two were viewing and going over the musical score of some coming productions. The theatre was erected at an estimated cost of $300,000, and seats 2,000 persons.

$1,000 Demand Made

Mr. Kargas told the police that he had trouble with the operators’ union and that the organization had refused to install a police on the theatre despite his application for one. He said that a demand had been made upon him for $1,000 to be paid to the union before an operator could be permitted to work in his theatre.

"I refused the demand and opened the house with a non-union operator,” Mr. Kargas told the police. “I open the theatre Friday night with him in the projection booth. On Saturday the union official came to me and withdrew their demand about a union operator at work."

"The bomb was thrown half an hour after the audience had left the theatre. I was in the auditorium at the time with my companions watching the pictures which I have booked for future dates. The bomb landed against a curb and exploded with terrific force. The theatre is a block east of the theatre and the fire marksmanship is all that saved the front and lobby of the theatre from destruction.

Wrecks Adjoining Buildings

The fronts of two stores adjoining the theatre building were wrecked by the explosion and many windows in the vicinity, including two in the theatre, were shattered by the force of the explosion. I have had no trouble with unions other than the operators organization."

Attempted destruction of the Woodlawn theatre comes as a direct violation of an injunction issued by Judge Oeca, M. Torrison of the circuit court recent which restrained the union from interfering in any way with the conduct of theatres by exhibitors.

May Affect Negotiations

Another angle which looms up as possible result of the Monday night bombing exploit is the possibility of negotiations between the theatre interests and the union tending toward a settlement of present difficulties and dissolution of the injunction.
Affiliated Distributors' Corp. Forms Co-operative Booking Plan

Organization Is Outgrowth of Recent Astor Hotel Meeting—Concern Capitalized at $100,000

Announcement is made of the incorporation, under the laws of the State of Delaware, of the Affiliated Distributors' Corporation, with an authorized capital of $100,000 for the furtherance of co-operative booking of pictures by exhibitors on a national scale.

The new organization is the direct outgrowth of the meeting of exhibitors and producers, called at the Hotel Astor, to take place the last month of the month, by Frank Remus, of Indianapolis, for the purpose of forming the subject of co-operative booking.

In reality, however, the new organization is the crystallization of a movement which has been gaining strength throughout the country for the past months past, and which, recently, has been reflected in the formation of various exhibitors' booking associations in different states and groups of states.

The associations, now operating, it is understood, are to form the nucleus of the Affiliated Distributors' Corporation. The plan is to continue, maintain their complete independence, financially and otherwise, the primary purpose of the national organization being simply that of helping to facilitate the acquirements of pictures.

Committees Appointed

The permanent committee, appointed at the Astor meeting, to develop a practical working plan for nationalized co-operative booking, which consisted of Sydney Cohen, president of the New York State Exhibitors' League, chairman; Byron P. Cummings, Salt Lake City, secretary; Joseph Hop, president of the Illinois Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, Louis Frank, treasurer of the Motion Picture Association of America; Frank Remus, secretary and treasurer of the American Exhibitors' Association; King Perry of Detroit, secretary of the American Exhibitors' Association of Michigan, and John Manheimer, president of the Manhattan Local of Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

A number of meetings since the Astor convention have been held and every effort has been made to reconcile the interests of all throughout the country for some form of a national affiliation of such combined booking strength as to insure the various booking associations of a consistent supply of high grade pictures with the equally consistent demand that any such national association should be exhibitor controlled, and that exhibitors should retain their funds in their own territories.

The committee found that by reason of the unrelated character of the bookings of these associations were experiencing difficulty in getting a regular supply of high grade pictures, it is said, but that if the interests of all of them were pooled, they would possess such buying strength as to guarantee producers a market of such magnitude, as to enable them to operate on an unlimited scope.

A number of plans for the affiliation of these associations were analyzed before the committee finally evolved the one which is now the affiliation of the Affiliated Distributors' Co-operation.

Booking Associations Represented

Each booking association will be represented in the new organization by a director. As soon as these directors are chosen, officers for the Affiliated will be selected.

In the meantime, the committee is managing the affairs of the corporation, Frank Remus, chairman; Pettijohn acting as General Counsel.

Six prominent producers of special features have already aligned themselves with the committee, including Pathé, Admira, and others have made application. The product of these producers will be booked on its merit, but by a plan that will eliminate the speculation which has heretofore been associated with the distribution of pictures on the "open market."

The committee declares that this plan is planned to an advance in the stabilization of the moving picture industry, and at the same time, one that will make for consistently increased quality of product at prices which will represent savings to exhibitors, of such substantiality, as have heretofore not been thought possible.

In other words, better pictures and lower prices, are to come out of the new organization, it is the opinion of the committee, with the exhibitors getting the lion's share of all profits.

Sign Booking Associations

With the incorporation of the Affiliated operations were started immediately for the raising of funds for the purpose of forming booking associations and for the organization of such associations in territories where none now exist.

Meetings were held during the last week of the United Exhibitors' Association of Philadelphia and Eastern Pennsylvania and of the Michigan Exhibitors, for the purpose of arranging for the affiliation of these groups with the new organization. Arrangements have previously been affected for the affiliation of other important factors. Announcement of the organizations which have joined the new corporation thus far, is to be made next week.

The Philadelphia meeting which occupied all of Wednesday last week, was followed by a meeting of the Executive Committee of the United Exhibitors' Association of Philadelphia, on Friday, for the completion of the details involved in the association of interests. Both meetings were attended and addressed by Byron Park and John Manheimer, representing the organization committee of the Affiliated. The Michigan meeting, which occurred at the Hotel Tulier on Thursday, was addressed by Charles C. Pettijohn and King Perry, as representatives of the committee. During the next few weeks, the entire country will be covered by members of the committee and it is expected that within the next sixty days that the organization will be so perfected that the release of pictures will start not later than the first of July.

"Lightless" Nights Suspended Through

The Summer Season

Suspension of the "lightless" nights order put into effect last November by Fuel Administrator Garfield has been announced by this government official. The new order takes effect on April 25 and will not be enforced again until September 1. As a result exhibitors will be permitted to use their display lights on Mondays and Thursdays, heretofore prohibited, during the summer months.

At the urgent request of the Liberty Loan Committee, "reads a telegram sent by Mr. Garfield to local administrators, "I have decided to suspend operation of the lightless night order, beginning next Thursday night. By reason of the late hour of lighting, brought about by the daylight saving law, the lightless night order will remain suspended until September 1 next, when it will become again effective.

Tom Bret's Comedies Near Completion

Activities at the Tom Bret headquarters continue at high speed and the first two-reel production, featuring James Aubrey, will be shown to the trade during the next two weeks, it is announced. Three subjects are now being cut and titled and will soon be on the market. An extensive publicity campaign is being prepared.

The scenes of the next Tom Bret comedy will be taken aboard a yacht. Miss Virginia Clark continues to play opposite Mr. Aubrey and, it is said, has made a fine impression at the former Yorke-Metro studio where the Bret comedies are being produced.
United Picture Theatres Establish Branch Offices and Appoint Managers

Frank Eager Joins the Organization Following Meeting in Omaha—Many Exhibitors Attend Conference

With one or two exceptions the branch managers of United Picture Theatres of America are now installed in their own offices with the field forces fully organized, it is announced. Booking days are being rapidly contracted for throughout the most populous sections from Boston and New York as far as Denver and Salt Lake City and from Minneapolis and Chicago down to New Orleans. The names and addresses of the local managers are as follows:

A. S. Abeles (Eastern representative) and Aaron Corn, 1600 Broadway, New York; C. W. Bunn, 220 South Street, Chicago; Floyd Lewis, 3301 Olive street, St. Louis; Ernest H. Horstmann, 248 Boyleston street, Boston; E. E. Erickson, 503 Renshaw building, Pittsburgh; A. J. Gilligham, Empire Theatre building, Detroit; D. F. O'Donnell, Chatham Courts, Washington, D. C.; N. I. Filkins, 324 Pearl St., Buffalo; C. C. Hite, Strand Theatre building, Cincinnati; S. E. Schwartzblume, 447 Loeb Arcade, Minneapolis; C. E. Holah, First National Bank building, Omaha; C. S. Edwards, Sr., (district manager) and C. S. Edwards, Jr., 1003 Commerce building, Kansas City; K. A. Bugbee, 714 Poydras St., New Orleans; W. G. Underwood, 107 South St. Paul St., Dallas; C. R. Gilmore, Albany Hotel, Denver; I. F. Arnold 30 Woodruff Apartments, Salt Lake City.

Organization Growing

This is believed to be one of the strongest organizations in the country. The members of it enjoy exhibitor confidence, and it is said, they have been getting results. Eastern Representative Arthur Abeles, District Manager Edwards of Kansas City and Manager Bunn of the Chicago office, have been touring their territory and report that the United Pictures Theatres movement is growing rapidly. Many of the strongest theatres of northern and western Indiana have joined the movement as the result of a week of personal visits from Manager Bunn and his assistant, Milton Simon.

What is regarded as an important accession to the big co-operative society is Frank Eager, general manager of the Acme Pictures in attendance included Mr. Neb, one of the leading exhibitors in the United States. In signing the contract for the booking service Mr. Eager insisted on making his check payable to the United Picture Theatres of America instead of the trust company depositary. Mr. Eager did this, it is said, to show his complete confidence in the officers and directorate of the United Picture Theatres who had been unjustly attacked.

Omaha Meeting

The Eager contract and several others were signed soon after a meeting of Omaha film interests, held on April 22 at the First National Bank building by C. E. Holah, the U. P. T. representative. More than thirty exhibitors, exchange men and others interested were in attendance. Mr. Holah explained the United Picture Theatres plan and fully disproved to the satisfaction of those present the allegations against the society by a trade publication. He also showed by figures the savings that could be effected in the purchase of films by the United's collective buying power.

After the U. P. T. meeting another meeting was called to order by Manager Thomas of the Strand Theatre, Omaha, to discuss the issues of the municipal campaign insofar as they affected exhibitor interests. This second meeting was addressed by Mayor James C. Dahlman, the city executive, who is a warm friend of the exhibitors' cause. Those present expressed their thanks to United Picture Theatres for the use of the convention room and other courtesies. The exhibitors expressed their appreciation of Manager Pramer of the Alhambra, Free- man of the Palm, Ribble of the Rex, Shirley of the Muse, Jensen of the Latham and Hamilton, Kirke of the Grand.

LINCOLN & PARKER CO.

BUY EDISON STUDIO

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., announces that the Edison Studio, at 2826 Decatur Avenue, New York, its equipment and the equipment of the Edison Positive Film Plant, formerly located at Orange N. J., have been sold to the Lincoln & Parker Film Co., Mr. E. B. Messrs., based on the terms of the deal, the Lincoln & Parker Film Co. also comes into possession of over a million feet of Edison negatives, released prior to the beginning of the arrangement by which Edison pictures were distributed through the George Kleine System.

The Lincoln & Parker Film Co. also acquired the right to reproduce Edison feature subjects and Edison Conquest Pictures on their narrow-width and non-Standard film, but all other rights in such subjects are retained for a period of years by the Edison Company and the George Kleine System, through which they will be available as before. All rights in the James Montgomery Flaggs, series "Girls You Know," it is announced, are so retained.

Included in the Lincoln & Parker deal are the educational and scientific subjects upon which Mr. Edison was working a few years ago. It was announced that Mr. Edison will act in the capacity of Consulting Edison to the new company, and that his son, Charles Edison, is to become a member of its Board of Directors.

Frank Beamish Appears

In Coming World Picture

Appearing in the forthcoming World Picture, "Clarissa," starring Madge Evans and Johnny Hines, and written for them by Maravene Thompson, is Frank Beamish. Those familiar with the activities of Sothern and Marlowe will recognize him as the stage manager of E. H. Sothern for many years.

He did not confine his work alone to producing, however, but appeared with Mr. Sothern in his Broadway production of "If I Were King," taken from the Justin McCarthy story, which formed one of the big successes in the noted actor's repertoire, but now Mr. Beamish created the part of Mercutio in "Romeo and Juliet" in the Sothern and Marlowe production.

Novelizing War Play

The interstate Film Company has engaged A. M. Katzman of the Press Service Bureau to novelize the story of its production, "The Last Raid of Zeppelin L-94." The Press Service Bureau also syndicated the novelization of the William J. Flynn story, "The Eagle's Eye," for the Wharton Releasing Corporation.

L. S. Card Predicts Unprecedented Boom
For Motion Pictures

Manager U. S. Booking Corp.
Regards Baseball Attendance
As Good Indication

The extraordinary enthusiasm with which the public welcomed the opening of the major league baseball season at the Polo Ground in New York City and elsewhere throughout the country indicates, according to Lynn S. Card, general manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, that an unprecedented boom is in store for the moving picture industry despite the war.

"Fully 30,000 persons attended the opening of the National League season at the Polo ground," declared Mr. Card, "and if it can be believed, one of the best signs for the picture business. If that many persons will go to see a baseball game in war time, it is logical to assume that a great many more will go to the picture theatres.

"In more ways than one, baseball and pictures are similar. Baseball is essentially an amusement business, just as motion pictures are an entertainment. Each has its loyal following. It is my contention that if the baseball fans flock to see the games, despite the increase in admissions due to the war tax and the high cost of living, they certainly will not remain away from the motion picture theatres for the purpose of economizing.

Panacea for Ills

"Both baseball and motion pictures form a medium to relieve taut nerves. They are a sort of panacea for mental ills, a recreation that the public will need in time of stress."

"The baseball world has been infested with its calamity howlers just as the motion picture industry has had its skeptics, but the splendid enthusiasm manifested by all real Americans over the opening of the national pastime, while one of the greatest drives of the entire war was under way on the fields of Flanders, gives ample reason to believe that it will take more than a war to undermine the moving picture industry."

"Theatres all over Pennsylvania report a general improvement in business conditions," Mr. Card states. "Reports from the middle west also indicate a splendid season. From the north and south, too, come reports that business is picking up rapidly and a majority of exhibitors expect a flourishing summer season."

Chaplin's "Night Out"
Establishing New Record

Advance booking orders for "A Night Out," new edition Essanay-Chaplin, have established a new record for the series, despite the fact that it enjoyed a tremendous run when first issued, according to General Film Company.

Many prominent exhibitors are arranging to feature this new edition Chaplin for runs of from three to six days, a policy which has prevailed quite generally in connection with the other subjects in this series, it is reported.

"Eagle's Eye" Sets
Pace for Bond Sales

"The Eagle's Eye," the twenty episode serial story of the Imperial German Government's spies and plots in America by William J. Flynn, the recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service, has established a record as an aid to Liberty Bond salesmen working in the third loan, it is said. On April 23, following a run of the first and second episodes of the serial in the Plaza Theatre at 59th street and Madison avenue, New York, a fifteen hundred seat house, $42,100 worth of bonds were sold to persons in the audience.

This showing is regarded as remarkable by Liberty Loan workers, inasmuch as it is within $11,900 of the record established at the New York Hippodrome. There were more than 5,000 persons present at the Hippodrome drive. The serial opened at the Plaza on April 22. During the evening run on that date $10,000 worth of bonds were sold.

Musical Score for
"Triumph of Venus"

Among the various exhibitor aids being provided for Edwin Bower Hesser's "The Triumph of Venus," with Betty Lee starred, is a fine musical score especially devised for this picture, announces General Film Company, the distributor.

This music has been timed for use with the picture in its popular five-reel form, and the various moods of the gods and goddesses on Olympus, the denizens of the underground regions and the nymphs at play in the sylvan pools. An early publication announcement is expected from General Film.

The advertising and exploitation of the Interstate Film Company's new production, "The Last Raid of Zeppelin L-21" has been assigned to the Press Service Bureau, which is preparing a complete advertising and publicity campaign for the convenience and service of the houses booking the film.

It is said an unusual and attractive poster has been designed in black and white, picturing the German Zeppelin L-21 caught by the rays of the powerful searchlights over London.

"Hearts of the World" Is David Griffith's Masterpiece

Soaring to Heights Never Before Approached Latest Work of Great Director Sets New Standard in Film Play Production

BY MARTIN J. QUIGLEY

Taking as the background the most tremendous fact of modern history—the Great War—David Wark Griffith has created a scene by scene drama of overwhelming power, telling his story with such accuracy and fidelity that it brings home to the spectator the events of "Over There" as living, pulsating actualities of life.

"Hearts of the World" is a close-up of the War, not the war of the diplomat, statesman or general, but the war of those poor bits of struggling humanity who are caught in the tidal wave of invasion, tossed about without mercy or compassion by the scientific barbarity of the Hun, their hearthfires quenched in blood and their loved-ones ground to earth under the spiked heel of Militarism.

No more eloquent tongue has yet spoken of the bravery, self-sacrifice and devotion of the people of France than Griffith in his latest triumph. He has pictured the devotion of a people to a cause they value higher than life in such a vivid manner that it is a heart of stone, indeed, that does not quicken in a spirit of admiration, and facing this depiction it is only the wooden image of a man who is not impelled toward a desire to do his bit to punish the guilty and to recompense the injured.

The story of the "Hearts of the World" is a simple narrative, dwelling only on the fundamental emotions of the handful of principals, and it is this fact of simplicity of theme and treatment that gives to the subject its tremendous power and force. With the hand of genius this simple story is blended with a spectacle of tremendous elaborateness. For the battle scenes, the trench conflicts, the maneuvering of great and small artillery are of such magnitude and scope that they become new testimonials to the almost magical power of the recording eye of the camera when directed by expert intelligence. The spectacle features, however, are only incidents of this great picture, for its magnificent power comes from the simple story, brilliantly enacted and carried on from one dramatic situation to another until there is accumulated a force for emotional response that will make the picture live, if not as an actuality, at least as a memory for all time.

In the cast there are many familiar players—Lillian Gish, Robert Harron, Dorothy Gish, George Fawcett and George A. Siegmann. The characters of the play fit these individuals with a nicety that suggests the genius of Griffith direction. The work of each of these players is distinctly notable and, whether it is the story or the vehicle as a whole, all seem to have achieved greater effectiveness than ever before. Lillian Gish, as The Girl, is seen with her many little mannerisms that fit the present role pleasingly. She has several big dramatic moments in which she acquits herself most creditably. Robert Harron's work is a distinct improvement, giving evidence of a mature talent that enables him to be convincing at all times.

Dorothy Gish, in a character role as The Little Disturber, a mischievous little Hayden, affords many delightful moments and her delineation is most creditable. George Fawcett, as the village carpenter and a poitin, and George Siegmann, as the German agent, contribute their quota of good characterizations and splendid acting.

Probably the most commendable acting in the entire production is that of a boy, Ben Alexander, who acts "The Littlest Brother" of The Boy. This youth of about seven years of age, during the course of the production, runs the entire gamut of dramatic expression with the natural facility and directness of a seasoned artist and is responsible alone for a number of big heart-throbs. The boy's acting and the understanding direction, which is a part of it, are most creditable.

* * *

The battle scenes, maneuvering of troops over the shell-scarred area of northern France and other military activities depicted are grippingly authentic, giving evidence of the co-operation accorded the producer by French and British authorities. Many of these views are tremendously realistic, affording what is undoubtedly the most graphic impression of war as it is being fought that has yet been caught upon the screen.

America has awaited with bated breath the advent of a great story of the war and a great picture of the war. And the honor of supplying both has devolved upon David Griffith, for "Hearts of the World" is at once a most powerful story and a wonderful picture.

Comparison with Griffith's great previous success, "The Birth of a Nation," is inevitable. While the pictures are unlike and in a sense have no proper basis for comparison, yet "Hearts of the World," evolving about the great war, the tremendous issues of Democracy against Autocracy: the right of nations and individuals to live their own lives and not be subjected to the ravages of invasion by a power dreaming of world dominance and guided by the false principle of "Might Makes Right"; and the validity of international law has a theme that utterly dwarf the comparatively local issue of "The Birth of a Nation"—and consequently from this aspect soars to heights unapproached by the earlier production.

Again, we have in "Hearts of the World" the ripened genius of Griffith evidenced in practically every scene of the production: a grasp for dramatic arrangement; a knowledge of the effectiveness of contrast and an ability to use it and an intuitiveness of that which makes for tremendous emotional response which have not left so graphically an imprint upon any previous effort. "Hearts of the World" is Griffith's masterpiece.

Mechanically, the picture is utterly without flaw—many of the photographic results are nothing short of marvelous. The settings are admirable, giving evidence of the intelligence and painstaking care that characterize every detail of the production.

In the story two American painters make their homes in France. Marie, the daughter of one painter, and Douglas Hamilton, the oldest son of the other, live next door to each other. A natural event is the love between the two.

The Little Disturber, a strolling singer, falls in love with young Douglas also. However, this affair does not develop to any disastrous conclusion.

Marie and her lover are in the midst of great preparations for their coming wedding when the Great War begins. Though an American citizen, he gives his life to the service of France.

Marie and her family, left at home in the village, refuse to believe the possibility of danger.

The little French company, a part of the great armv of France, however, are beaten back by the great German offensive. Then follows the overwhelming of the French, the bombardment and destruction of the village. The scenes of the evacuation and of the distress and terror of the villages under the bombardment. The latter part of the story takes up the village under the German occupation. In this village Marie and The Little Disturber manage to drag out an existence at the village inn, now in possession of the Huns.

The story relates the suffering, privations and agony of the villagers in their captivity, relating also the preparations for the rescue of the village by the French, the massing of their troops, the intense struggle of the French soldiers to recapture the village and free their loved ones; and the prayers and hopes of the women and children of the village awaiting their deliverance, ascend from cellar and crypt in the stricken district.

With the recapture of the village by the French forces a satisfactory denouement is brought about.

And with the soldier-principals and their sweethearts in Paris on a furlough when the American troops came marching in to do their bit for the freedom of the world and are caught sight of by the weary poilus there is what may be accurately described as a dramatic “punch” which will leave its imprint upon the mind of the spectator for many a day.

“Hearts of the World” will live, and living on it will do homage to the name of the great artist of the motion picture.

Kitty Gordon has seldom been seen to better advantage than in “The Interloper,” the story of a woman’s struggle against the ever-present influence of her husband’s first wife, which lowers phantom-like over her life, disrupting her right to happiness. The star’s fight to maintain her standing in the household of her husband furnishes Miss Gordon with a wonderful vehicle in which to display her talents as an emotional actress.

Comment on the production would not be complete without heralding the excellent direction of Oscar Apfel in his first effort for the World company. Photography also contributed to the general number of fine effects. It has been considerably in the presentation. A strong cast, including George McQuarrie, Irving Cummings, Frank Mayo and June Blackman, appeared in support.

The story: Through litigation begun by a railroad company to obtain right of way through her property, June Cameron becomes acquainted with Paul Whitney, whose first wife has died, an acquaintance which rapidly ripens into love and marriage. Once installed in the Whitney home, she is constantly the object of comparison to the first Mrs. Whitney, to her detriment. In her dejection and during the absence of her husband on a hunting trip, she falls a victim to the wiles of Edmund Knapp, supposedly a lifelong friend of Whitney. With the promise to disclose a scandal in the life of the first wife, he gets her to visit him in his apartments where in a secreted “dove cote” he attempts to force his attentions upon her. She escapes, but destroys the evidence against her phantom rival and is repaid by the unexpected return of her husband, who confesses to being unable to stay away from her.

While perhaps the main theme of “Riders of the Night” won’t appeal directly to an audience, the manner in which the story has been handled and the little human touches which have been wrought into the telling of the story will, and the general effect is most pleasing.

There is little connection between the title and the story and while it might have been made more effective by the introduction of night riders, a la Klu Klux Klan, it is perhaps better to leave well enough alone.

The picture will please the majority of picture patrons because the direction has been so careful and the little touches have been brought in with such effectiveness. Viola Dana gives an excellent portrayal in the character role of Sally Castleton, and has good support in Russell Simpson, George Chesbro, Clifford Bruce, Mabel Van Buren and Monte Blue. There is a little pup, too, who will receive his share of applause, if all audiences are to be judged by those who viewed the picture at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, last week.

The story: Sally Castleton is loved by Milt Derr, but Simon Derr, a tyrannical cousin of Milt’s, is desirous of possessing Sally. He makes several attempts to win Sally, but is repulsed each time. The night riders assemble to wage war on Simon and the keeper of the gate, who takes excess toll from the villagers. Two persons are killed and Simon tells Sally that Milt is held and the only way to free Milt is to marry him (Simon). However, before he has time to exact his promise he is killed, and Sally, because she is found departing from the Derr home via the chimney, is held for the murder. Just a few minutes before she is to hang, the real murderer is found by Milt. The romance has its usual happy ending.

The screen version of Louis K. Anscher's successful play, "The Unchastened Woman," is interesting and especially interesting is the work of Grace Valentine in the title role. Her Mrs. Knolleys is a woman to be remembered; a character of delightful subtleties, of finish and poise.

The play has great dramatic moments, which careful direction has given every value. William Humphrey, the director, has chosen an excellent cast. Mildred Manning as Emily Maddern did duties beautifully and appealing work. Frank Mills as the husband gave perhaps the best performance of the picture. He does so much with the material he has to work with.

Catherine Tower, an actress of rare ability, adds much to the picture by her splendid performance of Hildegarde. Others in the cast are Paul Panzer, Edna Hunter, Victor Sutherland and Adelaide Barker. The latter is excellent as Mrs. Martha.

The story: Caroline Knolleys, a woman whom wealth and social position prevent from the consequences of her numerous flirtations, is cold, unscrupulous and utterly selfish. Her husband loves Emily Maddern, with whom he has been secretly living, but he is unable to get a divorce because there is absolutely no cause. Caroline discovers her husband's affair and tells him they will live apart. She goes abroad and meets a young artist, whose wife, Hildegarde, runs a model tenement in New York and by her newspaper writings is trying to uplift the condition of the poor and pay for her husband's studies. Caroline flirts with him, and even goes to Italy with him on a platonic basis.

Hildegarde writes him to return, and Caroline decides to return also. Meanwhile Emily has fallen in love with a young writer, a friend of Hildegarde's, and breaks with Knolleys. Caroline returns and tries to smugle some jewels. Emily, who is sent to search her, discovering who she is, saves her. Caroline, following up her flirtation with the artist, meets his wife. She comes to the tenement to dine with them and there meets Emily and insults her. Emily's fiancé goes to Knolleys to force her to apologize. Meanwhile the artist, becoming too involved for his peace of mind, phones her that he cannot come to the house as she has requested. To allay her suspicions he tells her that Hildegarde is away. Caroline arrives and discovers both Hildegarde and her own husband. Knolleys forces her to apologize by threatening a sensational divorce. When she leaves, however, she regrets that she "can't also stop the rumors." Emily confesses, and the two couples find their happiness. It is so well done that we can almost forgive the fact that Caroline goes unpunished.

"Unchained Goods" will no doubt mean unclaimed seats in many theatres. It is a poor example of first-class screen entertainment. Typically western, its enjoyability is hindered by an involved manner of telling the story and the inability of the star to register convincingly.

Patrons who recall with delight some of Miss Martin's previous productions, will be somewhat disappointed in this one. Her role is as a small bit and the unfortunately wears a manner that ages her and the clothes she wears do not coincide with the period of clothes worn by the other members of the cast. Altogether the production is a disappointment.

The story: Betsy Burke's father sends her to her uncle in Gold Rush, while he goes to San Francisco. She is sent by express C. O. D., and when she arrives the town is in the hands of outlaws and her uncle, together with other respectable citizens, are held prisoners. She beomes the property of the young express agent, who has a hard time protecting her from the onslaughts of Slade and his gang. And just when Slade believes he has really got the girl, her father arrives with a gang of cowboys, the girl is rescued and having fallen in love with the express agent, there is a possibility of a bright future for her.

It wanders aimlessly from reel to reel in a boresome, yawn-producing fashion, does this latest comedy called "How Could You, Caroline?" Undoubtedly those who view it will ask, "How Could You, Pathe?" There is no story, and throughout the five reels the "what'll we do next" attitude is only too apparent. It is distinctly a walk-out picture.

Bessie Love makes a strenuous effort to do her part in a convincing manner, but she has no part. A willing cast runs rings around the star in an effort to make something of nothing but fails. It is a terrible fliver and were better left undone.

The story: Caroline Rogers is called home from boarding school to attend the wedding of her sister. She is asked to call a man, from a list given her, to serve as an usher. She runs across a name which has recently been the subject of some literature which has entranced her. Despite the fact that he turns out to be a taxicab driver she throws herself at his feet and when about to elope with him discovers he has a wife. She returns to school, graduates, and is about to marry Bob Worth when she feels that she should have something on him to make up for his knowing about her escape. She determines to appear as a cabaret dancer on the night of his farewell bachelor dinner and they are married by a friend in a mock wedding and when she reproaches him the next day he tells her he knew her all the time and she believes him.

The strong point about "A Bachelor's Children" is Harry Morey. The weak part is Alice Terry. There is a story that, while it may interest many, is poorly constructed and poorly fitted to the star's talents. Two youngsters put quite a touch of reality into the play.

For admirers of Harry Morey this will undoubtedly prove a good production, as he gives a splendid delineation. Florence Deshon, while not given a great deal to do, does it well and is always beautiful and charming. Alice Terry gives a colorless portrayal, making the heroine role a weak and lifeless one.

The photography throughout is excellent and many beautiful scenes are interspersed with well staged interiors. The production has been handled along high-class lines and for audiences not too particular about continuity or dramatic construction it may get by as an average program feature.

The story: Penelope and her two small sisters arrive at the home of Hugh Jordan, in the midst of a stagg party, and present a letter from their late father, which leaves Hugh to believe that his uncle, whose estate he has inherited, cheated Penelope's father. An investigation proves Hugh's surmise to be correct and he makes arrangements to transfer the money to Penelope and her sisters. While a number of inconsistencies creep into this Triangle production there is enough action and uncertainty to sustain interest. One thing which stands out above all else is the faithful portrayal of types. Joe King's role of a captain of police is a welcome relief from the usual characterization. He is seen not as one gifted with supernatural powers, but rather added to the finger point habit and his home environment of that of a neighborhood boarding house. In other words, he is the kind of police official with whom the general public is familiar.

The story moves swiftly from the start. The romance of the police captain with a new boarder at his lodging house is cleverly worked out with a surprise ending. The play deals with the dissolution of a gang of counterfeiters and the method one of them sought to avenge himself on the police captain responsible for his incarceration.

The story: Captain Roderick Moran arrests "Tony the Banker" on his wedding day and when the latter is convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment he threatens the life of the police official. Moran becomes interested in a girl who has taken lodgings at his boarding house and while her early associations are tempered with suspicion, he declares his love and is accepted. On his wedding night he is mysteriously shot. Finger prints on the window are those of "Tony the Banker," supposedly dead. It remained for his wife to clear the mystery, which she did by bringing in the dead banker's wife. She then confessed to her husband that she was in the employ of the government secret service.

The atmosphere surrounding "Social Briars" is indeed enjoyable, and while the story is light in theme, the result is breezy entertainment that will provide five reels of real amusement for any class of audience.

There are many new angles to the story, and old angles are well rounded out. Mary Miles Minter gives a delightful delineation of her role and is as beautiful and charming as ever. Alan D. Forrest again appears as her leading man. Other members of the cast are Ann Schaffer, Edmund Cobb, George Periolat and Claire Du Brey.

The photography throughout is up to the usual standard of excellence set by American. The exteriors are beautiful and the interiors show remarkable skill in staging. Especially fine is a setting supposedly the stage of an opera house when Miss Minter, in the role of Iris Lee, makes her operatic debut. Excepting for one scene where the manager of the house forces his attention on Iris' predecessor, the production is without fault.

The story: Iris Lee tires of her humdrum country existence and one night steals away from the home of Martha Kane, with whom she had been living, and goes to the city intent upon becoming a great singer. Slowly rising from a church soloist to a prima donna, her dreams are finally realized. In the city she has met Fred Andrews and fallen in love with him, but when he comes to her one night intoxicated she sends him away. Grieving over Fred, she returns to her home town, where, the manhood having been awakened in him, he finds her by accident.

As a rule Elinor Glyn’s novels contain material that makes interesting screen entertainment for adult audiences. "The Reason Why" is one of these productions. It is an excellent example of how interesting an old theme can be made if properly handled. Mr. Vignola has given this production the right treatment and it afforded the patrons at Chicago’s Bijou Dream Theatre an hour of engrossing entertainment when shown this week.

Clara Kimball Young handles her role with polish and finesse, and gives a sincere portrayal of the character role. The selection of Milton B. Sills was an excellent one for the leading male role. He took advantage of every opportunity and afforded Miss Young well-balanced support. Florence K. Billings, Eldean Stewart, Kate Lester and Frank Losee also handled their roles well.

The story: After Zara is married to Lord Tancred she believes he married her for her uncle’s money. Her treatment of him is decidedly cold. His suspicions are aroused when she visits her son by a former marriage when he becomes ill. The boy’s death affects Zara greatly, but when she realizes that her husband is going to leave her forever she tells everything concerning her former marriage and the cruelty of her first husband. She also tells him that she loves him and, tendered, having loved Zara from the first, is made happy and willingly forgives her.

The direction throughout has been carefully handled, and the technical details have also been carefully looked into. The photography is exceptional and the settings appropriate and well arranged. Edna’ Graham has added to the story and has brought it into several novel situations which make for the story’s interest.

Here is a picture that will have a wide appeal just at this time. A story of patriotism and discovered German intrigue, well-handled. It has many tense situations and a love story which is subordinate to the principal theme of war. Mr. Ford, who plays the hero, also directed the picture. "Berlin via America" will undoubtedly prove popular with patriotic audiences.

He gains the confidence of the German spies and is sent to Germany and becomes an aviator in the Kaiser’s service. He is known to the Americans as “the done,” because he never does any harm. There is just enough interest, sufficient suspense, and a well balanced cast to make "Society for Sale" an acceptable offering. The play evolves about the novel method employed by a girl model to break into society through the medium of a bankrupt member of the English nobility.

Gloria Swanson as Phyllis Clyde, social climber, is well cast and William Desmond, as the penniless nobleman, gives the usual good account of himself. The reckless desire of Phyllis to form the acquaintance of Lord Sheldon, whom she has been warned is a dissolute rake, and the subsequent explanation of her interest in him, lends an air of uncertainty to the outcome of the story which compels attention.

The story: The Honorable Billy, through his love for Vi Challoner and the attendant expense, finds himself in financial straits and is deserted by the cause of his trouble. In his plight he is approached by Phyllis Clyde, who wishes to be introduced into society as his fiancee and is willing to pay for the deception. Honorable Billy seeks to break the agreement when Phyllis apparently becomes enamored with Lord Sheldon, whose affairs are the subject of gossip. She refuses him his liberty and accuses him of jealousy. When in an auto crash Lord Sheldon is killed, it is revealed that he was her father. She also convinces Billy that the engagement should be permanent with the well known ending.

Marvelous sunlight effects and the charm of well-selected woodland locations help to make "Denny from Ireland" a real feature. It has some excellent spontaneous comedy and a story full of heart interest. It is the old story retold, but pleasingly played by every member of the cast, among whom are Florence Drew, Ethel Terry, Pomeroy Cannon. Shorty Hamilton plays with a delightful naturalness and makes Denny a character long to be remembered.

The story: On his wedding day in the "old" country, Denny is forced to flee to America, as circumstances point to him as the murderer of his landlord. He bids his colleen goodbye and makes his way to Grey Rock, Arizona, where he presents a letter, given him by his parish priest, to the sheriff of the county. Securing work on a ranch, he tries to save enough to bring the colleen over. He learns of a shipment of gold to the U. S. mint and resolves to hold up the express. Concealing himself in the car, he is a witness to another man's attempt upon the life of the agent. This brings out all the good in Denny. He attacks the robber, who has tossed the gold out of the car. The robber escapes, and Denny finds the gold and believes it is his. He can then tell the good story to explain his part. Meanwhile the colleen's uncle dies and leaves her enough for the voyage. She arrives and all of the men adore her. The detectives are hot on Denny's trail, but the sheriff saves him for the colleen's sake. Denny, in the end, brings in the real robber.

"De Luxe Annie" Cast Completed

"De Luxe Annie," on which Norma Talmadge and her forces are busily at work, is progressing rapidly with the cast completed. The screen version of Edward Clark's successful play of the same name has been prepared by Paul West, the filming is under the direction of Roland West, and the photography by Ed. Wynard and Albert Moses. The star is presented, through Select, by Joseph M. Schenck.

Norma Talmadge's leading man in this Select picture will again be Eugene O'Brien, who occupied a similar position in the star's earlier releases, "Ghosts of Yesterday" and "By Right of Purchase." In "De Luxe Annie," O'Brien plays the role of Jimmy Fitzpatrick, the confidante of the crook heroine in the "de luxe game." Another male role of major importance has been entrusted to Frank Mills.

Dr. Fernand Niblo, the alienist-physician, is portrayed by Edwards Davis, Detective Cronin and Cyrus Monroe, the malicious storekeeper with a weakness for pretty women, are drawn by Fred R. Stanton and Joseph Burke, respectively. Joe, the fat grocery boy, who provides much of the comedy relief, is played by David Burns, while Mrs. Archer is portrayed by Edna Hunter and little Janet Kendal by Harriet Jenkins, the winning child actress.

Cast Selected to Support Viola Dana

The cast of "The Only Road," Viola Dana's next picture to be produced at Metro's west coast studios, Hollywood, has been completed. Casson Ferguson, who has just finished doing a juvenile lead for Max Pickford, will play opposite Miss Dana in the leading male role of Bob Armstrong, "who became a westerner because in the East he put a goat in his professor's bed." Monte Blue, who played Jed, "the killer," with Miss Dana in "Riders of the Night," is cast as Pedro Lape- son of a high-caste Mexican lawyer, and is the young "heavy" in "The Only Road.

Others in the cast are: Paul Weigel, as Manuel Lopez Marie Van Tassel, as Rosa Lopez, his wife; Edith Chapman as Clara Hawkins, owner of the Buena Vista ranch, and C. I. Geldert, as Jeff Peters, ranch foreman. Frank Reicher will direct the production and the photography will be by John Arnold.

"Social Briars" With Mary Miles Minter
Tops Mutual Schedule for May

The forthcoming feature from the studios of the America Film Company, Inc., starring Mary Miles Minter is "Social Briars," scheduled for distribution at exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation May 6.

"Social Briars" casts the golden-haired actress in a more dramatic role than she has played before and gives her opportunity to combine a more serious part with her comed artistry, it is said.

The story is by Jeanne Judson, scenarioized by Edward Sloman, a member of the directorial staff at the America studios, and was produced under the direction of Mr. Sloman.

Iris Lee (Mary Miles Minter), a rustic beauty with beautiful singing voice, is unhappy in the restricted enviror- ment of village life, and runs away from the house of her narrow-minded and bigoted aunt to seek fame and fortune in the metropolis. She wins fame, but loses her heart to a man whom she believes is faithless to her. The story, it is said, gives Miss Minter many opportunities to make this one of the best vehicles she has ever had.

The cast contains such well-known names as Alan Forrest who plays the lead; George Periolat, Ann Schaefer, Edmur Cob, Claire Du Brey, Mild Davenport, Jacob Abrams and Frank Whiston.

The Strand comedy, out May 7, starring Billie Rhodes, titled "Over the Garden Wall," Mary's sweetheart, Jack, in the village jail for speeding, and Mary's dad, who didn't like Jack, saw that he was kept there. Mary captured two burglars and forced them to liberate Jack and put dad in jail. Then they proceed to smoke out father with a smudge-pot until he consents to the wedding.

Screen Telegrams Nos. 20 and 21 are to be published Ma 8 and 12. Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, on his arrival from France; American soldiers leaving training camps in France for first line trenches; Admiral Fullam of the United States Navy, paying official respects to Admiral Kantar Suzuki of the Japanese Navy on board the flagship Iawate at Pacific port; are striking features of the Screen Telegram's recent issue.

Feature Gaumont Graphic and Weekly

In Gaumont News No. 5 there are a number of beautifully photographed subjects which show some of the things which the United States considers as necessary for the winning of the war as soldiers and guns. One of these subjects pictures a great oil field which will supply much of the oil needed to run our tanks and aeroplanes. Other subjects show the thoroughness with which we are increasing our food supply. The United States now produces annually nearly a billion additional bushels of poultry and eggs; the picture of a big poultry farm shows how this enormous production is made possible.

For our soldiers and the Allies must be shipped from the United States, and to increase the annual production, every hill in the United States has been asked to raise a hog this ear. In order that there may be sufficient meat for shipment abroad, we who remain at home must eat less meat and more vegetables; which means that we must grow more vegetables, and one of the pictures shows how California is doing this.

Another picture shows thousands of shipbuilders who have agreed to work to their utmost to bridge the Atlantic and defeat the Hun.

There are sixteen news subjects illustrated in this issue of the Gaumont News No. 5, three of these show the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of the Treasury in their swing around the country to boost the Third Liberty Bond campaign. In Washington, President Wilson is shown taking his first tank ride in "Britannia."

German Prisoners of Americans Shown
From France come pictures of the first German prisoners captured by the American soldiers, who are shown interned in concentration camps back of the fighting lines. And being most hospitably fed.

In Gaumont Graphic No. 4 is pictured "Insurance Unit No. 1", at the U. S. Naval Training Station on the Great Lakes, where 25,000 policies averaging $10,000 each have been written.

A good sized army of enlisted insurance experts is necessary to handle the policies, which must be checked and rechecked so that there will be no possibility of error.

This issue of the Gaumont Graphic also shows the first "crew" of the tank "America." The United States has built many large tanks for her allies, but this monster, built for her own soldiers, weighs 43 tons, and is large enough to carry the biggest British tank in her interior.

Other timely topics in this number show the opening of the baseball and bathing seasons; the Third Liberty Bond campaign; and, among many current news events, war pictures taken here and abroad.

A most enjoyable subject shows the annual visit of the director to Bellevue Hospital. Since the days of Phineas T. Barnum, the Barnum & Bailey circus has journeyed each year to Bellevue and given a special and free performance for the entertainment of the unfortunate children confined in this hospital.

Charlie Chaplin Comedy "A Night Out" on Essanay's Schedule for May

Essanay's May program contains ten pictures, including the Essanay-Chaplin comedy, "A Night Out," in two parts. This was one of the most successful and popular of the Chaplin comedies.

The second of ten pictures of Broncho Billy's western photoplays will start May 24, it is announced, with "Broncho Billy and the Greaser." These plays proved so popular that it is expected to be another block of ten, making twenty pictures so far scheduled.

Another block of ten of the Snakeville comedies also will be issued beginning June 1, one week after the last issue of the first set of ten.

Do your Bond shopping early.

A Milwaukee statistician, with a penchant for fillum figures, has doped it out that 750 miles of celluloid go out of that city every month, or approximately 40,000 reels, containing approximately 1,000,000 separate exposures about the size of a thrill stamp.

Suits for $250.00 are becoming quite common. We suppose these will be followed by large checks, if the swing parties are successful in the courts.

There's a P. A. by the name of Alphabet Storey flying around New York, they say. That's our idea of a man fitting the job (but it isn't worth four paragraphs in this trade journal.

Joe Brandt says that L-Ko comedies in which shapely and pretty women are pictured are having a tendency to establish bald headed experts abroad. "Broncho Billy" has been requested to run them at slower speed. They'll be sending mash notes to the guy in the booth next.

Did Hoover Write This Play?
An ad, in the Sunbury (Pa.) Daily Item states the feature of the Victoria theatre will be "The Hard Rock Bread."

"H. R.," a trained reviewer on a New York trade paper, says that "Dolly Does Her Bit" is a "wholesale juvenile picture." Heretofore film concerns have been content to retail their output. This must be something new Pathe is springing.

The Week's Wildest P. A. Yarn
(We were just about to award the medal to the company that sent us the story about the fillum salesman who broke into an exhibitor's home out in Orrville, Ohio, at 4 o'clock in the morning, woke the man up and "whipping out the old fountain pen secured the manager's signature to a contract," when the following floated in on the late afternoon breeze):

"In the eighteenth episode, Polo tied to a railroad track, with a runaway engine approaching at terrific speed, is supposed to drop into a culvert beneath the ties. Instead, when the steel monster was almost upon him, with a mighty jerk he pulled his feet out of his boots, did a backward summersault, wrenching loose the cords that held him and leaped safely, just as the iron claws of the locomotive ground his boots to atoms.

Caruso is going into pictures 'tis said. Have to get a panorama camera to get him all in, won't they?

Doug Fairbanks latest play is entitled "Mr. Fixit." He is said to be wonderfully convincing, in the picture, as a fixer.

More Hints to Exhibits
Our "Hints to Exhibitors" in last week's issue met with instant favor among exhibitors throughout the world. One correspondent from Tokio writes in and says: "Your hints dominate the field; keep it up." Another asks: "How do you do it and live?" Therefore we have, at great expense, gotten together a few more Hints. Let 'er go.

When showing "Blue Blood" or "Western Blood" (all blood looks alike) the only difference is that the former is usually thinner than the latter), have several men stationed on top of high office buildings about town, each plentifully supplied with buckets of deep crimson paint. With a stick, have these men throw paddles of the paint on passing pedestrians below. It will cause talk and when you are approached as to the cause, point to your theatre entrance and the posters out in front. It'll advertise your house, all right.

"A Bachelor's Children." This is a hard one. Bachelors seldom have any offspring, but if you can find one or two, hire a window in the neighborhood of your theatre and have the children and the house open a fireplace. The face of the picture will attract attention and, of course, then you step in with your display advertising.

"The B. V. D. Bridalroom." For this big feature employ a number of well known young men to parade the suits on the girls of the picture, the difference in the skirt attract attention and, of course, then you step in with your display advertising.

"Hearts of World" Griffith War Play To Be State Righted

Elliott, Comstock and Gest To Handle Big Spectacle—Film Playing to Big Business

Speculation as to the method of distribution of D. W. Griffith's big war spectacle, "Hearts of the World," is set at rest with the announcement from the William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest Enterprises, that this production will be distributed on the state rights plan immediately.

"Hearts of the World" is playing to capacity houses in four cities—New York, Los Angeles, Boston and Chicago, where the initial dates have been booked and a speedy disposal of the different territories throughout the country is anticipated. At Clune's Theatre in Los Angeles, the production did $6,800.75 more than the "Birth of a Nation" during the first six weeks of its presentation. In New York, Boston and Chicago it is a difficult matter to get seats, unless ordered well in advance, it is said.

"No human organization is big enough to handle the simultaneous presentation of this gigantic triumph of the screen," says the statement from the Elliott, Comstock & Gest offices. "The psychological time for the exhibition of this wonderful cinematic public, is at hand. It is a screen message that should be seen by every person in the country and its handling in different territories by individual organizations is felt to be the most effective method.

"In view of its particular timeliness and its great value in point of cinematic technique and general production, it is readily expected that 'Hearts of the World' will far exceed the wonderful success of Mr. Griffith's first big spectacle or any of his succeeding efforts to date.

"We are now prepared to consider offers for territorial rights on this production for its presentation in the immediate future. All communications and wires should be addressed to Elliott, Comstock & Gest at the Century Theatre, New York City."

Madame Petrova Makes Special Southern Trip

Accompanied by Ralph Ince, her director, and a staff of studio employees, Madame Petrova returned this week to New York from Asheville, N. C. The Polish actress has been busy in the south for several days, securing scenes for the fifth special Petrova production, "Patience Sparhawk."

This story, adapted from the novel by Gertrude Atherton, was especially chosen among other things because of the opportunities offered for beautiful exteriors and out of the ordinary photographic effects, it is said.

"Patience Sparhawk" follows "Temper Steel" on Petrova's calendar of features and will be issued through the exchanges of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit sometime during the coming month. It has been adapted for the screen by Mary Murillo, responsible for "Cheating the Public," "Jack and the Beanstalk," and many of the screen successes featuring Theda Bara, Clara Kimball Young and Norma Talmadge.

Screen Classics, Inc. Enlarges Its Scope

Screen Classics, Inc., has entered into new and greater activities by acquiring all the big Metro specials and announces an enlarged field of activity.

It is now announced that this company will not only handle productions of its own manufacture, but will acquire other productions, made independently, provided they pass the tests in the matter of bigness of theme, beauty of photography and power of story and action.

President's Tank Ride

President Woodrow Wilson on board His Majesty's Tank "Britannia" toured the White House grounds, is an interesting feature of Screen Telegram No. 17, issued by Mutual, April 28. It was during this "tour" that the President burnt his hand on a hot exhaust pipe. A stampede of wild animals durin the fire which occurred at the) park animal house at Baltimore, Md is shown in this issue. Camels and zebras are seen running wild through the park, causing intense excitement. Other interesting features of this issue are: A parade of 40,000 union men through the streets of Chicago, carrying the Kaiser in effigy, as part of the Federation Labor's patriotic demonstration.

A beautiful and artistic feature of this issue shows the pretty girl pupils of the Van Vlissingen studios dancing among the lilacs at Lincoln Park, Chicago, garbed in filmy garments.

Secretary of War Newton D. Baker just returned to his office from the battle front in France, with the declaration that Germany will never win, is shown in Screen Telegram No. 16, published April 24.

Four Fox Films Listed

For Liberty Theatre

Two William Fox special features and two Mutt and Jeff animated cartoon are listed in the newest War Service Bulletin, issued by the War and Navy Department's Commission on Training Camp Activities, for use in the camps of the Army and Navy. The present bulletin takes account of pictures published between April 1 and April 15. Announcements are issued semi-monthly.

The films are "A Camouflage Kiss," starring June Kenyon, directed by Harry Millarde, and "The Bride of Fear," in which Jewel Carmen starred. Tb cartoons, made by Bud Fisher for re lease through Fox Film Corporation, are "The Freight Investigation" and "The Leak."
Hodkinson Visits Paralta Studios and Lauds Actors

Exhibitors Give Co-operative Plan Warm Support, He Says

W. W. Hodkinson, president of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, which is distributing Paralta plays, spent several days this week at the Paralta studios in Los Angeles and met the stars who are making the productions that are being placed on the market through his organization. Mr. Hodkinson reached Los Angeles last week in the course of a tour throughout the United States which he is making to develop his "Co-operative Exhibitor" plan, through which it is said exhibitors in all territories will share over two-thirds of the distribution profits of Paralta plays and other pictures which the Hodkinson Corporation may later handle.

General Manager Nat I. Brown, of Paralta Productions, Inc. took Mr. Hodkinson through the immense plant in which Paralta pictures are made and explained to him the details of production as well as pointed out the plans for expansion and construction which are now being carried out and which will make the studio, when completed, eclipse in size, equipment and efficiency, all others on the Pacific Coast.

Louise Glum, Henry B. Walthall, Bessie Barriscale and J. Warren Kerigan all met Mr. Hodkinson and had lovely talks in which he told them of the wonderful success with which his "tie-in" plan is being met all over the country, and assured them that before long their productions being made for Paralta, if the standard of those already completed is maintained, will reach the best motion picture audiences in the United States.

"Is that the doubt now?" Mr. Hodkinson said, "of the triumph of our 'co-operative' plan. Exhibitors realize, as soon as it is explained to them, the freedom and excellence of service that they are guaranteed through it, and are really anxious to join with me in overcoming the difficulties of the distribution end of the industry. And, now that I have seen the wonderful plant in which these pictures are made, I feel more convinced than ever that I did the best possible thing by choosing Paralta plays as my first product for distribution."

After leaving Los Angeles, Mr. Hodkinson will work his way back across the continent, stopping at all the principal cities and finally close his tour in New York.

"A Milk Fed Hero" Next

Ebony Comedy of Series

The publication of the fourth of the Ebony Comedy Series, "A Milk Fed Hero," is announced this week by General Film Company.

It provides an excellent opportunity, it is said, for the company of negro players that are present upon the screen the droll and inimitable humor of their race. It is in the form of a rural burlesque. Following this will come "Busted Romance."

Famous Bixy Ranch

In Farnum Production

One of the interesting features of William Farnum's latest production, "True Blue," is that a great part of the "location" work in the picture was done on the famous Bixy cattle ranch in Southern California. This is said to be about the last of the ranches that the country knew a generation ago, and Frank Lloyd, who directed "True Blue," regarded himself as unusually fortunate in obtaining permission to film scenes on the premises.

The Bixy ranch is widely known and consists of 16,000 acres, and shelters more than 10,000 head of cattle. It would have been almost impossible to round up such an enormous number of steers as are shown in the picture except through the medium used. Both Mr. Farnum and Mr. Lloyd feel enthusiastic over the results of their "shooting" on the location.

Actor Paints Portrait

For Lobby Display

The engagement of Frederick Truesdale for a prominent part in Madame Petrova's fifth production, "Patience Sparhawk," has led to a discovery of unusual interest at the Petrova studios. Shortly after the actor had commenced working in the new Petrova feature under the direction of Ralph Ince, it was discovered that he is a portrait artist of considerable note.

Inasmuch as painting is one of the Polish star's foremost hobbies, Mr. Truesdale extended an invitation to Madame Petrova to sit for a full length pastel drawing. The star gladly consented and arrangements have been completed whereby Truesdale's work is to be reproduced in color in one of the leading photoplay magazines during the month of July. Following this Madame Petrova requested that this painting be used as a basis for a new lobby display sheet which will be furnished to exhibitors commencing with her fifth picture, "Patience Sparhawk."

Brinkerhoff Cartoonist

To Do Comic Ad Series

A pleasing variation upon the ordinary commercial advertising layout has been put into effect by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit in exploiting the merits of Charlie Chaplin's new $1,000,000 comedy series. R. M. Brinkerhoff, one of the best known of American cartoonists, has been engaged to cover every angle of Chaplin's work with characteristic drawings designed to accentuate the humor of the films. Brinkerhoff's cartoons are not only utilized for trade paper advertising, but are being published in the form of herald and as colored lobby displays.

R. M. Brinkerhoff's daily comic series in the New York Evening World, entitled "Little Marry Mix-Up," has been widely syndicated and has made him a general favorite among the younger generation of newspaper artists. A native of the middle west, "Brink" did his first cartoon work for the Toledo Blade. He also served on the staffs of the Cleveland Leader and the Cincinnati Post before coming to New York to take a course in advanced draughtsmanship.

Farnsworth Returns to Coast

F. Eugene Farnsworth, president and director general of Mastercraft Photoplay Corporation, made a short visit to New York in the interests of his company last week. He left for the Paralta studios to surpervise the production of Thomas Dixon's novel, "The One Woman," which will be staged there. Mr. Farnsworth had been in Los Angeles for several months planning the filming of the first Mastercraft picture, but in order to overcome certain difficulties regarding the story and the management which were causing indeterminate delays, he made a hurried trip East.

One of the objects accomplished during his stay in the metropolis was his election to the presidency of the Mastercraft Photoplay Corporation of New York, a subsidiary organization to the Mastercraft Photoplay Corporation of Massachusetts.

MARY MILES MINTER IN "SOCIAL BRIARS"
Canadian Exhibitors Joining Circuits Facilitate Booking

John Hazza, Manager of the Princess Theatre, Edmonton, Alberta, who organized the first circuit of exhibitors in Western Canada, believes that some day soon practically all exhibitors will be compelled to team up if they wish to remain in business. In order to facilitate booking arrangements, he also believes that the time is coming when there will be a schedule price for a first run in every city and when all bookings will be governed by a graduated scale of charges.

The object of forming the Western Canada Exhibitors Association," declares Mr. Hazza, "was to protect the exhibitor. The latter was signing for pictures about which he knew nothing. An exhibitor would book a special production at a high price and then would have to raise his admission prices after doing a creditable amount of advertising. If a picture, possibly, would not live up to expectations and the theatre's business was hurt. "At first the exchange managers were opposed to the organization of our circuit," continued Mr. Hazza, "because they thought that the aim of the circuit was to increase the cost of service. They were soon convinced, however, that the organization would also help them, inasmuch as the circuit would book a picture in that city, the entire circuit, thus saving the exchange the bother and expense of reshipping and separate bookings.

The Western Canada Exhibitors' Association, the first organization, proved so successful that it has been broadened and is now known as the First National Exhibitors' Circuit of Canada. There are ten theatres in the circuit, extending from Winnipeg to Vancouver, as follows:

Princess Theatre, Winnipeg; Rose Theatre of Regina; Eagle Theatre of Swift Current; Daylight Theatre of Saskatoon; Strand Theatre, Prince Albert; Savoy Theatre, Moose Jaw; Empress Theatre, Lethbridge; Regent Theatre, Calgary; Rex Theatre, Vancouver, and Mr. Hazza's own theatre, the Princess of Edmonton.

Toronto Theatreman Jogged Up Over Tax

Toronto, Ontario—Claiming that there was a tendency on the part of exhibitors of Ontario to be dictatorial with respect to a provision of the Amusement Tax Act which calls for a monthly statement of attendance, Mr. Elliott of Toronto, Provincial Inspector of Theatres, has issued an official statement in which it is promised that action will be taken against those who are negligent.

As a start in this direction Mr. Elliott had Thomas J. Ryan of the La Reta Theatre, Toronto, summoned to police court under charges of not complying with the Act. Mr. Ryan explained that he was taking a course to become an officer in the Canadian Army and was trying to run his theatre at the same time. A conviction was registered, but owing to certain circumstances, the magistrate let the accused off with a warning. Other prosecutions are promised. Usually exhibitors come across quickly with the new laws, which are used to check up the sale of war tax tickets.

Police Spoil Posters

Exhibitors of Montreal and other Canadian cities are complaining of the manner in which the Montreal police censor, who examines theatre posters, places his official stamp on the lithographs. The rubber stamp imprints the word "Approve." with the name of the picture. This word is the punch for "Approved." In many instances, the imprints are placed right on the facial features of the star of a picture and the artistic value of the poster is immediately destroyed. A recent three-sheet of Alice Joyce was spoiled when the Montreal censor passed it, according to the owner, because her vaccination mark ought to be there. There was considerable blank space at the bottom of the picture for the impression of the stamp. The exhibitors are kicking, because the cost of paper has increased quite a bit and they want to make effective use of it when they do get it.

Exhibitors Oppose Closing

In an effort to stave off a Sunday-closing order, the exhibitors of Sherbrooke, Que., have circulated petition forms throughout the city. The petition is to be presented to Sir Lomer Gouin, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec. After the Lord's Day Alliance, a number of months, has been at full strength, with a number of the recent laws of the Dominion which provides for Sunday observance. One of the local theatres, His Majesty's Theatre, is closed on Sundays, but the other exhibitors are opposing the Alliance.

Manager William Griffith Mitchell of the Regent Theatre, Toronto, has been in the habit of opening for business each day at 12 o'clock noon. Starting with the week of April 20, however, the opening hour for the Regent was made one o'clock to help enhance the value of the daylight saving proposition. Performances were scheduled to start at 1, 3.50, 7.30 and 9.30 p.m. Under the previous arrangement, the final show of the day was due to start about 8.30 p.m. Manager Mitchell has announced that if the old time table had been continued the people would have been encouraged to leave their gardens comparatively early in order to see the last performance. Now they can stay with their garden tools until it is really too dark to work by natural light and will witness a whole performance at the Regent.

Through the distribution of coupon tickets by the Maple Leaf and the Star, three thousand children attended two special morning matinees at the Allen Theatre, Toronto, to witness the "Blue Bird," on Saturday, April 29.

Halifax Recovering From Big Disaster

Business conditions in Halifax, N. S., are reported by exhibitors to be very good. The Canadian port is filled with a special army of mechanics who are engaged in the rebuilding of the stricken portion of the city, while there is also a large garrison of soldiers. The hotels are crowded with transient officers and the theatres are crowded every day.

 Halifax exhibitors are said to be making up now for the business which they lost during the middle of the winter. The theatres were closed from a month to two months after the disaster. Some were partially wrecked, while others were used to house refugees and wounded, as well as being used to store needed supplies of all kinds. The city was down and out for a period, but it has performed a real comeback.

Dailies Print Serial

Two of the leading daily newspapers of Canada have undertaken to publish instalments of the serial, "The Eagle's Eye." These are the Toronto Daily Star and the Montreal Star. The serial has been booked by John Griffith to be shown on the circuit of fourteen theatres in Ontario.

Announcement has been made by Superfeatures, Limited, of Toronto, which has become the Dominion, that the tenth episode has been re-titled "The Invasion of Canada." This move is quite appreciated by Canadian exhibitors.

Douglas Cooper, formerly with Kleine in Toronto, for the past four years, has become Toronto manager of Superfeatures, Limited, one of the largest Canadian exchanges handling independent productions exclusively.

Albert Donaghy, a former exhibitor of Ottawa, Ontario, has become the Atlantic Coast representative for Superfeatures, according to an announcement by Charles Stevens, general manager. He replaces A. E. Browne, who has gone to the Regal Films, Limited.

J. A. Barclay has sold the Bright Theatre, Roncesvalles Avenue, Toronto, to J. Aber.

Among the recently incorporated companies at Fredericton, N. B., is that known as the F. G. Spencer Company, with an authorized capital of $40,000. The head office is named as at St. Johns, N. B., and the incorporators are F. G. Spencer, the well-known exhibitor, H. A. Truax, a St. John lawyer, and Miss Marie Magee, an employee of Mr. Spencer.

Mr. Spencer has a chain of picture theatres in the Maritime Provinces, including two at St. John, and one in Amherst. Fredericton, New Glasgow, Yarmouth, and other centres. Mr. Spencer recently acquired all rights for "Damaged Goods" in Eastern Canada, and this picture has already done record business in Nova Scotia, it is said.
Alberta Tax $125,000

The Provincial Government of Alberta expects to secure a revenue this year of $125,000 through its Assessment and Rating Act which was recently amended so that the tax on admission tickets was considerably increased. This act stands sixth among the various property-producing statutes of the Province. There are scarcely one hundred theatres in the Province of Alberta.

Julia Arthur, the actress who recently announced her screen debut, is a native daughter of Hamilton, Ontario. She has undertaken to produce a picture from a scenario by Charles K. Harris, the song composer.

A new moving picture theatre, the cost of which has been placed at $50,000, has been started at Sydney Mines, Nova Scotia, by B. Cuzner. The latter made a tour of prominent cities in order to examine modern equipment to get the best ideas for his new house.

Returned Canadian soldiers are operating the Cedar Cottage Theatre at Vancouver, B. C., very successfully. The Universal service, including two serials, is being used.

There is apparently an opening for a moving picture theatre at Wheatley, Ont., which has a central hub of about 800 people. Recently the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire staged a special show in the lodge hall and there was an attendance of over four hundred—all of the population.

Since the tightening up of the restrictions governing the exit from the Dominion of young men of military age, exhibitors of Ontario border cities, such as Windsor, Sarnia, Niagara Falls, etc., report that the attendance at their theatres has increased considerably, because the young men cannot spend their evenings in the large American cities near by. One development of the situation is that a number of young ladies in the American centres cross into Canada ad lib and gather to meet their boy friends, and then go to the local shows to spend the evening.

Manager Ben Rogers of the Toronto office of the Fox Film Corporation, Limited, announces that a new arrangement has been made for contracts for Standard Pictures. Until recently, it was necessary to draw up a fresh contract for every booking of a Standard Picture, but exhibitors may now sign a blanket contract for a year, during which time they may take one Standard release every two weeks.

The Specialty Film Import, Limited, Canadian distributor of Pathé and other releases, has been taken over by the Canadian rights for the British Official War News Weekly. This was formerly handled by the Independent Film Supply Company, which is reported to be going out of the exchange business.

Phil. Golds, manager of the Francais Theatre, Montreal, has been transferred to the Dominion Theatre, Ottawa, Ontario. Both theatres are controlled by the Canadian United Theatres, Limited.

Announcement was made that, starting with the week of April 22, the Peter Pan Theatre, 1909 Queen Street East, Toronto, was under new management, and would be in operation every day. The week features Universal comedies and weeklies.

The Rialto and Globe Theatres, downtown Toronto, presented "26,000 Leagues Under the Sea" simultaneously during the week of April 22, with a matinee for children on Saturday morning, April 27. The Rialto has moved back and forth by a squad of messenger boys.

The Colonial Theatre, 45 Queen Street West, Toronto, has adopted the policy of presenting shows at 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., daily, Sundays excepted. This may not sound unusual, but by making this arrangement the Colonial is practically the only theatre in Toronto where it is open on Sundays. The remainder of the downtown houses open at noon or thereabouts, while a few of the suburban theatres run matinees at and after Saturdays. The Colonial takes Universal service regularly.

During the week of April 22, the York Theatre, 312 Yonge Street, Toronto, presented six different features, attractions being changed daily as usual. The six features were: Ethel Barrymore's "The Call of Holy People," Bessie Love in "The Great Adventure," Kitty Gordon in "Diamonds and Pearls," Mary Garden in "The Splendid Sin," Jane and Katharine Craig in "Two Little Imps" and Earle Williams in "An American Live Wire." Manager Brock has followed the policy of daily changes for many weeks and he believes that it keeps the people coming to his shows several times each week and he also gathers in a lot of transient trade. Although he has managed the theatre for some time with good success, no other Toronto exhibitor has dared to follow suit.

Clyde Curry, proprietor of the Favorite Theatre, Windsor, Ont., has made arrangements to build a modern moving picture theatre at Amherstburg, Ont., which is situated on the Detroit River a few miles from Windsor. Amherstburg is a popular summer town and the new theatre will be ready for the coming season.

The Empire Theatre, London, Ont., which has been closed for some time, has been reopened under the management of J. Spurgeon.

Mr. Elliott, Provincial Moving Picture Theatre Inspector for Ontario, put on a very interesting entertainment for the Toronto Press Club on Tuesday evening, April 16, when he presented an original moving picture by means of a stereoscopic lantern. The picture consisted of scores of slides which were changed quickly by the operator to give a semblance of a moving picture. The whole thing was burlesqued. There was a super-abundance of titles, sub-titles, etc., and such explanations as "End of Part 1; Part 2 Will Follow Immediately," etc. The story was also a burlesque of political life.

J. P. Bickell of Toronto, who is directing the affairs of a number of Canadian moving picture theatres, has been elected Honorary Treasurer of the Toronto Motor Boat Club for 1918.

Alexander Clemes, the owner of the Strand Theatre, has practically a new roof constructed, and the electrical equipment is being changed entirely. Some changes are being made in the exit, and the house will be thoroughly redecorated before it is reopened. It is the present plan of the owner to present moving pictures only until the fall, when the house will be reopened as a stage venue, is also a hotel owner of Vancouver and has returned to the moving picture field since Canada went bone dry.

Manager Harry Pomeroy of the new Holman Theatre, Montreal, has christened his house "The Theatre of Big Events." Since Pomeroy reopened the theatre on Easter Sunday the house has been doing triple the business it formerly enjoyed. On Saturday morning, April 13, Pomeroy started the first of a series of special productions with a 10-cent admission by presenting little Zoe Rae in "The Cricket" at the one performance. During the first half of 1918, the Holman was "The Doctor and the Woman." Pomeroy is also running the Universal serial, "The Lion's Claws."

L. H. Mayrand, formerly manager of the Columbia Theatre, one of the leading picture theatres of Vancouver, B. C., has become manager of the Colonial Theatre, in Seattle.

An event of unusual nature at the Strand Theatre, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, aroused more than ordinary interest throughout the city. The stunt, which was staged on April 2 under the auspices of the Saskatoon Star, consisted of a spelling bee and entertainment, a portion of which was presented by the players of the Strand. Details held the floor at the matinee performance, while senior scholars of the city were present at night. The picture, "The Right to Be Beaten," based on Dickens' "Christmas Carol," opened the entertainment, and the children sang and gave folk-dances.

The automobile club of Calgary, Alberta, officially opened its 1918 season by attending a performance at the Grand Theatre, Calgary, on April 3, when moving pictures of the club's contest of the fall last year were shown for the first time. The views included some of the magnificent scenes along the route of the run.

Mann Brown, formerly of Toronto and Montreal, has become eastern sales manager of Regal Films, Ltd., with headquarters at St. John.

The company controlling the Verdun Palace Theatre, Montreal, has been dissolved, but the theatre has been continued under the same name by Mr. David Wolf.

A. C. and E. Speridakos of the Queen's Palace, Montreal, have dissolved partnership. The theatre is being continued under the old name, however, under the management of E. Speridakos.
